THE GHOST DID IT

A Young Woman's Scheme to Obtain Her Wedding Outfit.

SHE DECEIVED HER FRIENDS

The Spirit of Her Departed Brother Made Frequent Visits.

He Story Generally Believed and Appeals for Money Generously Responded To—An Old Delaware & Hudson Engineer Frightened—He Kept a Sharp Lookout for the Strange Apparition.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., May 2.—A most remarkable ghost story has just come to light which, were it not for the standing of the person who relates it would be unworthy of credence. Incredulous as it may seem it can be vouched for. Two years ago Michael Connors, fireman on the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's Railroad, was killed in the tunnel. Connors was a single man and lived with his parents in this city. The incidents of his death had passed away from the recollections of all except his most intimate friends and family, but they were vividly recalled a few weeks ago when, it is alleged, that a sister of the deceased astonished the family by claiming that the disembowelled spirit of the beloved and departed one was nocturnally floating through space, and that on a certain hour it was in communication with her.

It would appear at her chamber window and gently tap on the pane for admission. She claimed that the spirit was very much annoyed on account of debts that Connors owed at the time of his taking off, and she had been importuned to secure the money some way and pay them. She said that it was the spirit's request that the lantern that her brother carried should be kept burning at the foot of her bed, as it had been his custom when he was here on earth, as he desired to make a spiritual trip to the spot where he met his death.

The young lady was ill at the time, and she insisted that the lantern should be kept burning nights. The family were nearly frightened out of their wits, but she told them to have no fears as the spirit would not harm her. The story at the time became current among her friends, many of whom called to see her. She told them of the visit of the spirit of the departed and beloved brother, and that she needed money to liquidate his debts. His spirit would never rest in peace until the obligations against him were paid.

Her story was generally believed, and her appeals for money were generously responded to, and as her illness was somewhat protracted she secured a round sum of the coin of the realm. For the purpose of removing suspicion and making her story generally believed she sent for the engineer with whom her brother worked. She told him of the spiritual visitation, and stated that the spirit had said to her that it had frequently visited the tunnel and had ridden on the engine. The engineer was not a little exercised over the strange story.

For weeks after that when he passed through the tunnel he kept a sharp look for the strange apparition. It worried him somewhat, but he says that he saw nothing that would in any way suggest the presence of the supernatural. Soon after the young lady recovered, and it was supposed that she used the money as the spirit indicated to pay her brother's debts. A short time after her recovery she was married, and her trousseau was one of beauty and richness. It was not until after her marriage that she told some of her most intimate friends how she secured the funds to pay for the wedding outfit. She had no money and was betrothed; the wedding day was fast approaching; in order to get money to pay for her wedding outfit she conceived this ghostly tale, and she was thereby enabled to fulfill her promise. The couple are living in this city, and to all appearances are contented and happy.

OPPOSED TO PENSIONS.

Judge Daniels, of New York, Says the Constitutional Provision is a Fraud.

BUFFALO, May 2.—It has been rumored that Judge Daniels, whose term on the Supreme Court bench will expire next Fall, would decline a re-nomination. Judge Daniels said to-day that he has made no such statement.

His position, he said, was this: He would not seek the nomination but would leave the matter entirely to the people. If re-elected Judge Daniels can serve four years before he would be retired by the constitutional age limit. After retirement he would be entitled to full pay for the remaining ten years, amounting to $70,000. Judge Daniels was asked his views on this pension matter.

"I will state my position," he answered. "I believe this constitutional provision is a fraud, an imposition. The people never approved of it, consequently if I accepted this pension I should feel that I was doing a very dishonorable thing. The Judges of the Supreme Court should not be paid after their term of service any more than the incumbents of other public offices."

Dog and Cat Hunt Birds Together.

TIFTON, Ga., May 2.—Mr. William Williams, who resides near Mud Turtle Lake, has a pointer dog and a large brown cat. They go out hunting together. The dog points the birds and attracts their attention, while the cat, with a flank movement in the rear, never fails to secure a bird. They never banquet until they have secured four birds, when each of them dines on two birds apiece.

THE PEACH CROP INJURED.

The Yield Will Not Be One-Third What Was Anticipated.

MILLFORD, Del., May 2.—The prospect for an abundant crop of peaches, which was so confidently expected a month ago, cannot be verified. It is now feared that the prevailing frosts of the past few weeks have done their work, and that the yield will not be one-third of what it was at first anticipated. The young trees have suffered more than the old ones and it is from the latter that there is still a hope of marketing a portion of a crop.

The same state of affairs exists in lower Kent and Sussex Counties while in upper Kent and lower Kent and New Castle there will be a good yield. Reports from Maryland and the upper part of the State show that the prospects are good and the yield will be a large one. The poor crop of this year, coupled with the failure of the past few years, will have a tendency to greatly depress the farmers of this part of the State, as a great many of them depend principally on the peach for their source of revenue.

WANTS $10,000 DAMAGES.

Ex-Diplomat Origoni Charges a Doctor's Wife With Libel.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Rudolph Origoni, ex-Secretary of the American Consulate at Genoa, Italy, has brought suit in the Brooklyn City Court for libel against Emma J. Mason, wife of Dr. Sumner A. Mason, of Flatbush, in which he places his damages at $10,000.

He alleges that Mrs. Mason sent to Secretary of State Bayard letters charging him with an attempt to blackmail her and saying that she had kept her daughter at home because she feared she would be abducted.

By reason of Mrs. Mason's acts Origoni alleges he lost his official position. All the statements, he says, were false.

In her answer Mrs. Mason admits that she composed and sent a letter to Secretary Bayard, but says the letters produced by Origoni are garbled.

HE GOES TO THE TOMBS.

Frenchy No. 1 Has Counsel Who Thinks He is Innocent.

NEW YORK, May 2.—"Frenchy No. 1," the man charged with being the murderer of Carrie Brown, has been transferred from Police Headquarters to the Tombs. His counsel, E. M. Friend, was allowed to see him there and had a long interview with him, conducted with the aid of an interpreter.

Frenchy declares that he is an Algerian, having been born on the Barbary coast 35 years ago. He said that he served with the Germans in the Franco-Prussian war, and in proof of this exhibited two scars on his body made by bullets. Frenchy says his name is George Frank, and that he has been but a short time in this country.

Mr. Friend is of the opinion that no case can be made out against the alleged "Jack the Ripper."

Indians are Enlisting.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The War Department is much pleased with the success it has met in the enlistment of Indians in the army. Already three troops have been formed and the department expects to have others in a short time. It is the intention of the department to utilize Indians who graduate from the Indian schools in the capacity of tailors, cooks, mechanics, blacksmiths, etc., in connection with the Indian companies and the Indian Bureau will be urged to do all in their power to educate Indian youths to fill such positions.

Both Sides Are Stubborn.

DU QUOIN, Ill., May 2.—What promises to be the most stubbornly-contested coal miners' strike ever had in this district has been inaugurated here. The contest is to enforce the eight-hour day and pay every Saturday. The men say they will stay out until the law is upheld and their demands granted. The operators say the law is unjust and that they will fight it to the United States Supreme Court. Fully 1,500 men will be directly interested in the strike, which, with their families, swells the total number affected to 3,500 souls.

Falling Off in Customs Receipts.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—There has been a remarkable falling off in the customs receipts for the month of April as compared with the same month last year. Receipts for the month just ended amounted to $640,188.32, while for the same period last year they were $2,393,795.41. In April, 1890, the receipts for sugar alone were nearly $1,200,000. During the past month but one bag of dutiable sugar was received here upon which a duty of $1.50 was collected.

ALL TERMS REFUSED

General Manager Lynch Says the Coke Strike is Over.

EVICTIONS STILL GOING ON.

Italian Workmen Are Being Imported Into the Region.

Less Than One Hundred Desertions From the Ranks of the Strikers Since the Battle Commenced—Pinkerton Men Are Guarding the Works Where the Italians Are Employed—Labor Leaders Active.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., May 2.—The eviction of the families of strikers from the houses owned by the coke operators still continues, and the families thus made homeless are living in sheds, barns or tents, as the labor union is able to provide.

Workmen, mostly Italian, are being imported into the region from other coal producing places, and one after another the coke ovens are being started into operation. There have been less than one hundred desertions from the ranks of the strikers since the strike commenced, nearly twelve weeks ago, and many of the men imported into the region to take the places of strikers have been induced to join the strike. Still it is plainly evident that there is more coke being produced here than has been the case at any time previously since the strike commenced, and the indications now are that even this amount will soon be increased. During the week that closed last night this region has produced about one-fourth its capacity, but of course this includes the product of those plants with which the labor organizations have no controversy. It looks now as though the strikers would remain out indefinitely and that little by little their places would be filled by Italians.

General Manager Lynch said to a correspondent yesterday that the strike is over.

"We are making all the coke we need," he said, "to fill our orders. The market is very dull and there is no demand for coke."

"Would you consent to arbitrate the questions in dispute?" he was asked.

"There is nothing to arbitrate," he said, unconsciously using the language that Vice-President Webb, of the New York Central, has made memorable. "We have determined the terms upon which we will employ men and the prices we will pay for labor. If these men do not want to work on these terms and at those prices we will find men who do; but we are through with running our business in partnership with a master workman from Ohio, or a vice-president from Indiana, or a delegate from somewhere else. If our men have any grievances we are willing to talk it over with them, but we are through with these imported labor agitators, who want to run our business for us."

Hundreds of Pinkerton men are guarding the works where the Italians are employed, and the strikers are not allowed to get near them. Two strikers and an Italian interpreter at Adelaide disguised themselves as Italian laborers, and were thus enabled to get through the Pinkerton lines, and they induced 60 of the men to join the strikers. The labor leaders say that not a plant in the region will run two hours after the Pinkerton guards are removed.

SHOULD ALGER ACCEPT.

Meaning of His Possible Appointment as War Secretary.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Dispatches received in this city quote Commander-in-Chief Veasey of the Grand Army of the Republic as predicting the succession to Senator Edmunds of Secretary Proctor and the award of the war portfolio to Gen. Russell A. Alger.

Should the programme outlined be fulfilled friends of the Michigan veteran say he will be compelled to abandon any aspirations he may have of securing the Republican Presidential nomination next year.

Should General Alger become Secretary of War, the inference drawn by his supporters and opponents alike would be that he as well as Mr. Blaine regards the renomination of President Harrison as inevitable.

For a Railway Hospital System.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2.—The fourth annual convention of the National Association of Railway Surgeons is being held in this city. About 150 members are present. Dr. W. B. Outten of St. Louis is President. The object of holding the meeting here is to get Eastern roads interested in the association and to develop the railway hospital system which is in successful use in the West. The time of the convention so far has been taken up with the reading of papers.

Philip Moen Left No Will.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 1.—It has been ascertained that the late Philip I. Moen left no will. The estate will have to be settled by the administrator according to statute provisions.

BISMARCK'S ELECTION ASSURED.

The Latest Returns Place Him Far Ahead of His Opponent.

BERLIN, May 2.—From the latest news at hand it appears probable that Prince Bismarck may poll double the number of votes of his Socialist opponent on the second ballot in the Geestemunde district. The author of "Imperial Germany," Mr. Sidney Whitman, has just returned from a visit to Prince Bismarck. He says that the veteran politician is in excellent spirits, and that he has been looking forward with perfect confidence to the final issue of the election.

From all that Prince Bismarck cared to say on the subject, Mr. Whitman gathered that he would appear in the Reichstag only on important occasions, and that he considered himself unable to become a regular attendant at the sitting of the Imperial Parliament.

As the later returns of the bye-election at Geestemunde come in they show that the return of Prince Bismarck to the Reichstag is now certain, as it will be impossible for Herr Schmalfeld, his Socialist opponent, in the districts not yet heard from to overcome the present majority given to Prince Bismarck.

Up to 11 o'clock the returns had been received from seventy-six election districts. They show that in these districts Prince Bismarck has received 8,866 votes and Herr Schmalfeld 5,139.

BIG FLOUR MILL COMBINE.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 2.—The Northwestern Consolidated Milling Company has just been formed. It takes in the Columbia, Zenith, Northwestern, Galaxy, Pettit and the Crown roller mills, with a capacity of ten thousand barrels a day. The combine comprises practically all the big flouring mills not in the Pillsbury English syndicate.

The management of the mills will remain practically in the hands of the men who have hitherto controlled their destinies. The six companies will be one in buying and selling and the general manager will be Fred C. Pillsbury, who is not connected with the Pillsbury of the English syndicate mills.

NINE YEARS FOR PIQUET.

The Defaulting Insurance Cashier Sentenced By Judge Martine.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Eugene Piquet, who embezzled $18,000 from the Lancashire Insurance Company and fled to Switzerland, has just been sentenced to nine years' imprisonment by Judge Martine in Part I of the Court of General Sessions.

Piquet pleaded guilty to one of the fourteen indictments found against him. The Court, in passing sentence, declared that several influential persons had appealed for clemency in behalf of the prisoner, and that in view of that fact it felt incumbent to be lenient. Piquet did not receive the maximum sentence.

ARMS FOR THE INSURGENTS.

An American Schooner Said to Be Aiding Balmaceda's Foes.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 2.—The schooner Robert and Minnie, American, is reported to be anchored in Catalina harbor with a cargo of arms and ammunition intended for the Chilian insurgents. The vessel is owned in San Francisco and sailed from that port April 23d.

It was stated at the time of the vessels departure that she was bound for Eureka on the northern coast of California. The vessel arrived in Catalina harbor on Saturday last and has had no communication with the main land.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES.

A Crowded Train Crashes Through a Bridge in England.

LONDON, May 2.—While the Brighton express, crowded with people on their way to business in this city, was crossing the bridge at Norwood, about seven miles south of London Bridge, the structure collapsed, and six of the rear carriages fell into the bed of the shallow stream beneath.

The carriages were smashed to atoms, and very many of the passengers sustained more or less painful injuries, but not a person on board of the train was killed.

Death of Bishop McIntyre.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 2.—Bishop McIntyre, the venerable Catholic Bishop of Prince Edward Island, died last night of heart disease, while on a visit to Bishop Cameron at Antigonish. Bishop McIntyre was 70 years of age, and had ruled the diocese of Prince Edward Island of which province half the population are Catholics, for over a third of a century. He was a Scotchman by birth and wielded a great influence in the province. Last fall Father McDonald was appointed coadjutor bishop.

A $60,000 Blaze in Boston.

BOSTON, May 2.—A fire broke out about midnight in the Codman building, a large five-story building fronting on Hanover street, adjoining the American House and occupied by a large number of firms. Three alarms were rung in and the flames were confined to the building in which they originated. The damage to the building, owned by the Codman heirs, will probably exceed $10,000. The total loss is roughly estimated at about $60,000.

Manning Again Denounces the Parnellites.

LONDON, May 2.—Cardinal Manning has written a letter in which he again attacks the Parnellite faction of the Irish National party. He denounces their actions during the recent electoral contests in Ireland, in the Parliament and elsewhere as being not only suicidal, but as constituting one of the greatest blows ever delivered against the rising hopes of Ireland.

Mr. Hurlburt Coming to New York.

LONDON, May 2.—Mr. Hurlburt says that he intends to go to New York in the middle of this month, and has already communicated with Inspector Byrnes with regard to the missing and mysterious Murray.

CLEVELAND BAKING POWDER CO.,

DR. C. N. HOAGLAND, President. NEW YORK.

THE GREAT MYSTERY

New Points in the Barnaby Poisoning Case.

DR. GRAVES' QUEER MOVEMENTS.

He Remained Secluded When He Went to Denver.

His Great Surprise Over the Second Will —The Box Found in Which the Poisonous Fluid Was Sent to Denver—Dr. Graves Signature Compared with the Inscription on the Bottle.

DENVER, May 2.—The mysterious poisoning of Mrs. Josephine Barnaby continues to attract attention.

Dr. Graves's movements have been traced from the moment he laded in Denver, on Friday morning, April 24, until he left that night. Dr. Graves arrived on Friday morning at 8 o'clock and went directly to the Gilsey House, and thence to Mr. Worrell's home on William street.

He was there about fifteen minutes, long enough to hear the story of Mrs. Barnaby's death. He expressed deep regret for her death, and declared that she was "his greatest friend."

After he left the house he called at Mr. Worrell's office and they talked the matter over. He asked about the will made in 1889. He said he knew that such a will had been made. He had never seen it and did not know its terms, only in a general way, as the lawyers had outlined it to him. Mr. Worrell told him about the second and last will made in Chester, Pa., last January.

"Dr. Graves," said Mr. Worrell, "seemed greatly surprised. He jumped at least an inch from his chair when I told him that, and there are other witnesses here who will say the same thing.

Dr. Graves remained secluded in a private room until he went away that evening with the remains. Mr. Worrell has found the box in which the bottle containing the poisonous fluid was sent to Denver. It will be sent East. It has been mistakingly understood that the box containing the fluid arrived in Denver on April 3, and that it must have been sent from Boston on March 30 or 31. As a matter of fact, the box arrived at the postoffice on March 31, and was brought to Mr. Worrell's office on April 3. In that case, the box must have been put in the Boston postoffice on March 26 or 27, supposing that it came through without delay. Where Dr. Graves was on those dates has never appeared.

A fac-simile of Dr. Graves's signature in the hotel register was discovered today. It is clear that he used a stylograph.

The slope and general style of handwriting appear similar to the inscription on the bottle, with the noticeable fact that the writing on the inscription is evidently much more careful and finished.

THE SEAL QUESTION.

Secretary Foster is Giving the Question Much Attention.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Secretary Foster has fixed the maximum limit of seals to be taken this season by the North American Commercial Company at 60,000. The agent of the United States at the seal islands, by the instructions now being prepared, is vested with the broadest discretion as to limiting this number, as his judgment may dictate, and the interest of the United States in the preservation of the seal fisheries may demand.

Secretary Foster said that no question had given him so much concern since he assumed charge of the Treasury Department as the seal fisheries. He had given the matter more thought than any other question presented to him.

Distributing Subsidiary Coin.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Treasurer Nebeker, carrying out Secretary Foster's plan of distributing subsidiary coin throughout the United States, has issued the following circular: "The coinage of the standard silver dollars authorized by the Act of February 28, 1878, having been discontinued by the Act of July 14, 1890, the Treasurer finds it inconvenient to furnish them otherwise than in redemption of silver certificates or treasury notes, but will forward silver half dollars, quarter dollars or dimes to any address, free of cost for transportation by express in sums of $200 or more, or by registered mail in packages of $70, in exchange for any other kind of money deposited in the Treasury, any sub-Treasury or depositary bank.

THE SPANISH TREATY.

Secretary Blaine Will Not Give It Out Until the President Returns.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Spanish Treaty, negotiated by Special Commissioner Foster at Madrid is in the hands of Secretary of State Blaine. Mr. Foster, who arrived here yesterday, called at Secretary Blaine's house shortly before noon, and with him went carefully over the proposed agreement.

Secretary Blaine, however, said that he could say nothing whatever on the subject of the treaty, which is of such a nature as to preclude publication until the President shall have had a look at it. He also declined to state whether or not the document was a treaty or an agreement under the recent tariff law.

This is an important point to be determined, inasmuch as a treaty would have to go to the Senate for ratification and would, therefore, run the chances of rejection, whereas a tariff agreement, such as those that have been made with the South American countries, can be put into operation at once by means of a proclamation by the President.

It is generally thought that it is an agreement of this sort since this form of international arrangement has all the effect of a formal treaty with none of its disadvantages. It might also be noted that the only imports into the United States that can be affected by an agreement under the tariff act are hides, sugar, tea and coffee. It is understood that Spain made a strong effort with Commissioner Foster to secure the extension of the reciprocity privileges to tobacco, but he was compelled to refuse under the terms of the act, which includes only the staples named above.

Tobacco could have been included in the agreement, to be sure, but this would have made the act a treaty, subject to ratification or rejection by the Senate, with the probabilities largely on the side of the latter. It is believed that Mr. Foster's preliminary report, largely verbal, was highly satisfactory to Secretary Blaine.

THE SANE IN MAD HOUSES.

Practically, No Such Case Ever Occurred, the Alienists Declare.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—At the last session of the Association of Medical Superintendents of American Institutions for the Insane, held at the Arlington Hotel, the society, by a vigorous resolution, condemned that public impression that patients were often confined in private asylums when insanity was not certain. They unanimously agreed that a case of improper confinement practically never happened.

In the same spirit the society insisted on the necessity of watching the letters coming from patients in an asylum, not as the public supposes, to intercept any complaint from patients, but for the evident reason that often delusional ideas in the minds of patients can be discovered fully through letters, and thus, perhaps, furnish valuable aid to treatment.

And that furthermore such letters often contain language that neither the patient nor his outside friends would wish ever to see the light, were the writer in his sound mind.

For such reasons, and for no other was it necessary that all letters be supervised by the asylum authorities.

No Department for Colored People.

CHICAGO, May 2.—At a meeting of the National Board of Control of the World's Fair the question of a distinct exhibit at the Exposition by the colored people of the country came up, and a resolution was adopted declaring that the Board deemed it inexpedient to direct or authorize any distinctions to be made between American exhibitors.

—Janitor Hope of the Bryant school says that the reason the flags are n't kept flying every clear day is because such constant use soon wears them out.

—Two women fought in the Boulevard yesterday afternoon, and one of them was cut with a knife. Policeman McCue will take them before Judge Codington for a hearing.

—On Tuesday and Wednesday the Diocesan Convention will be in session in Grace Church. On Tuesday at 5 p. m., the corner stone of the new church will be laid by the Bishop.

—The Stars of Dunellen defeated the Acmes of the same place, this morning, by a score of 26 to 14. The features of the game were H. Craig's pitching, and the Stars heavy batting.

—Two years ago Justice L. F. Wadsworth lost a valuable seal ring on which was engraved his family crest. Yesterday it was dug up by a gardener at work on ex-Councilman Beguelin's place.

—James H. Carson, of North Plainfield, is now a graduate machinist, having finished his trade at the Scott printing machine works, Thursday. He will continue in the employ of the company as one of its most capable workmen.

—The Bible used by the Hon. Wm. Paterson, Special Master in the Court of Chancery, at his office on Broad street, Newark, is 135 years old, and formerly belonged to John Brown, at one time Chief Justice of the Bahama Islands.

—Of the various grades and styles of excellent footwear which he sells, Kenney to-day wants special attention drawn to his fine new line of men's patent-leathers and ladies' oxford ties. He recommends them as neat, durable and inexpensive.

—Since Bound Brook became a borough it is developing a decided boom. Just now the Councilmen are planning to have County Engineer F. A. Dunman of Plainfield grade the streets and lay out one of the systems of beautiful highways for which he is noted.

—If the woman who persists in making the fire with kerosene oil would only take the woman who locks her children alone in the room, and the man who did n't know it was loaded, with her in her upward flight, her loss would be a distinct gain to the community at large.—Firemen's Herald.

—George Griffen's barn at Second and Washington streets was thought to be afire last night, and Mr. Griffen's key was inserted in box 15 ready to give an alarm. The smoke which was seen proved to be from the smouldering remains of a bonfire, and this morning Mr. Griffen had to hunt up Chief Doane to get his key out of the box.

—The purest and richest milk, the finest cream, and the sweetest and most wholesome buttermilk, are the three lacteal wares on which D. D. Schenck the milk dealer prides himself in selling. Within a very short time he has built up a large route, and the excellence of his goods secures as a regular customer everyone who samples them.

—The Eclipse Quartette, consisting of J. C. Martin, E. C. Searing, Charles Parlee and E. M. Southard, rendered several songs at the anniversary celebration of America Lodge last evening, and were repeatedly encored. John Carney, the humorist, was another favorite of the evening, and Miss Josie Sullivan, of Bound Brook, rendered several charming soprano solos.

—The "Young Songsters," composed of Grace church choir boys, defeated the "Resolutes," this morning by the score of 18 to 17. The teams were: Young Songsters—Albertis, pitcher; C. Rice, catcher; and McClure, Mumford, J. Bartindale, W. Bartindale, Langdon, Dumont and T. Rice. Resolutes—La Boyteaux, pitcher; Martin, catcher; and Smith, Green, Homan, Fish, Squires, Kline and Runyon. Umpire, A. B. Carpenter.

—The Frank A. Robbins great "wild west hippodrome and unparalleled athletic congress" is announced to exhibit in Plainfield next Thursday afternoon and evening, May 7. The combination comprises equestrians, Indians, marksmen, mustangs, bronchos, trained ponies and donkeys, athletes, gymnasts, jugglers, boxers, fencers, funny, funny fellows and many other attractions, and is said to present the best and most varied of all tented amusements.

MYSTERIOUS MIDNIGHT VISITORS.

They Were Loaded for Babbitt, Who Thinks They Meant to Ruin the Works.

James Babbitt, night watchman at the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, says that he thinks the three men who attacked him Thursday night were not Italians, but men who had evil designs on the company's property.

It was an hour and a half past midnight—he says—when they approached him from the direction of the railroad embankment. One of them had a bundle of tools such as plumbers use. They pretended they wanted a drink of water, and tried to get into the main building. Mr. Babbitt at once divined that their purpose was to damage the pumps and machinery. He knew that with the tools they had they could effect great injury to the works in a very short space of time.

When the men found they could not push past the watchman one of them produced a revolver and flourished it in Babbitt's face. Babbitt instantly pulled out his gun also, and fired a shot in the air. At this the three men jumped back, and one of them fired point-blank at the officer's head. Seeing that they meant business, he opened up a hot fire on them, and a fierce exchange of shots followed. Bullets whistled all about Babbitt's head, and imbedded themselves in the woodwork of the building around the doorway. The officer's returning aim was so close that the men beat a hasty retreat. One of them fell over a log crying "I'm hit!", but almost immediately jumped up again and followed his companions away in the darkness.

Mr. Babbitt said that he had never been under quite so hot a fire before, but he kept his nerve, and does n't think the fellows will molest him again.

Base-Ball This Afternoon.

The base-ball team of the Plainfield Crescent League are this afternoon contesting a game against the Unions of New Brunswick. The batting order of the two nines is as follows:

Crescents—Martin, short stop; Lufberry, second base; McIndoe, first base; Hammill, left field; Gregg, pitcher; Jones, catcher; Bonner, right field; Lee, third base; Simmer, centre field.

Unions—H. Bradley, third base; Howley, second base; Egan, catcher; Gordon, pitcher; Kenny, first base; N. Bradley, short stop; McGrath, right field; Cox, centre field; Gold, left field.

The Crescents have wisely taken the advice of THE PRESS and have dropped Davis from the team.

Concerning to-day's game the New Brunswick Fredonian says: "Plainfield has the crack team of this State, but the the Unions think they will make them hustle to beat them."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Ex-Mayor Beckfellow is at Atlantic City.

Dr. D. C. Adams and wife are now the happy parents of both a girl and a boy. The latter is a recent comer.

The wedding of Miss Eleanor Shepard and Mr. Jack Miller, will take place in Dr. Ketcham's church early next month.

Cornelius V. Shaddle and family, after the season in New York city, have returned to their summer home at Netherwood.

Edward Milligan and family, of Brooklyn, N. Y., have taken possession of their beautiful country residence in Washington Valley for the summer.

Bishop Scarborough will hold a reception at the residence of Rowland Cox, Esq., West Seventh street, this evening, from 8 to 10 o'clock. Any wishing to call on him will be welcomed.

The marriage of Miss Francis S. Mosher and Arthur T. Stryker, will take place on Thursday evening, the 14th inst., at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Avis L. Laing, 52 Broadway.

Until he moves into his new home, in June, corner of Eighth street and Arlington avenue, the address and residence of the Rev. K. P. Ketcham will be at Mrs. Kirk's, 5 West Seventh street.

The Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning, sisters of City Physician Manning, were the principal soloists at a recent church concert at Lyons Farms. Their selections were all enthusiastically encored.

The father of ex-Councilman Stephen C. Ryder has died at the home of his son, the Overseer of the Poor, at Farmingdale, L. I. His remains will be interred at Hempstead to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock.

Will Proceed Against Schorb for Selling to a Minor.

Walter Martin, of West Fourth street, was arrested last night for causing a disturbance on Central avenue near Reform Hall. This morning he told Judge Codington that he was intoxicated at the time, and promised to better in the future. Sentence was suspended.

When the court found out that Martin was only 18 years of age, it determined to proceed against the guilty saloon keeper for selling liquor to a minor in violation of the law. Martin said Schorb sold him the drink, and that he got it there whenever he wanted.

MY CATARRH was very bad. For thirty years I have been troubled with it—have tried a number of remedies without relief. A druggist advised Ely's Cream Balm. I have used only one bottle and I can say I feel like a new man. I make this voluntary statement that others may know of the Balm.—J. W. Mathewson, lawyer, Pawtucket, R. I.

WITH Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. In ear catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head, it is easily applied into the nostrils and gives immediate relief. Price 50 cents.

OBITUARY.

Samuel Osborne Doane.

Samuel Osborne Doane died at his home on East Fourth street, at eight o'clock this morning. He had been very ill all Winter, but yesterday was out working about the yard, and said that he never felt better in his life. He was taken seriously ill again during the night, and medical aid could not save him.

Mr. Doane was born at Barrington, Nova Scotia, December 17, 1816. He spent most of his life in and about Brooklyn and New York, but came to Plainfield in 1855 and lived in this vicinity ever since. As a builder he built up a large business in Brooklyn, and also in Plainfield. His life was a busy and successful one.

He was married July 16, 1840, to Miss Sarah Bagot, who survives him. He leaves also four sons, Thaddeus O., Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department, John H., J. Hervey, and Charles, and two daughters, Mrs. S. P. Craig of East Fourth street, and Mrs. T. T. Barrett of South avenue. All the children live in this city.

The deceased was a member and warden of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was a consistent Christian. He was upright and honorable in all his dealings, and the true spirit of his religion was carried into all the affairs of his daily life.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

E. W. Milligan and family have taken possession of their summer home, Maple Cottage.

Frank Mobus lost a valuable horse yesterday, of colic, while loading hay near Somerville.

Little Bertha Sharpshire hurt herself while at play at school Thursday. Her right leg became swollen to twice its natural size. She has to be carried about the house, not being able to walk.

The many friends of George N. Beeching will be pleased to know that he is convalescent from an attact of pleurisy which confined him to the house. B.

The Epworth League.

The Epworth League held its regular meeting in Vincent chapel, last evening, at which the annual election of officers took place:

President—Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell.

First Vice President—Geo. M. Rittenhouse.

Committee on Religious Work—Miss E. O. Katline, Miss Emma F. Brown, Miss Minnie Sharp.

Second Vice President—James R. Joy.

Third Vice President—George R. Cornwall.

Committee on Social Work—Miss Alice Carroll, Miss J. Louise Pangborn, Harry Jenkins.

Secretary—Arthur E. Crowe.

Treasurer—Clarence M. Smith.

All members of the League, who ride a wheel are invited to join in an "Epworth League Bicycle Run" on Saturday, May 9. Meet in front of the M. E. church at 2 p. m.

Somerset's Sheriff Stops Work Saturdays.

A point has been raised that, under the Saturday half-holiday law, county clerks and surrogates cannot legally file papers or transact business after 12 o'clock noon, Saturdays. Chancellor McGill declines to transact any business pertaining to his office after the time specified. North Jersey clerks have been advised that, while there is a doubt whether the new law covers their offices, it would be safest for them to follow the example set by the Chancellor and await future developments through the courts. The Somerset county offices are now closed Saturday afternoons, and the Sheriff has changed his usual day for holding sales to Monday.

"Ladies Day" at the Bowling Green.

The bowling green season will be opened at New Jersey's only green, at Dunellen, next week Saturday, May 9, when the annual dinner of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club will be given, and the election of officers for the ensuing year will be held. The gentlemen are expected to take their wives to the meeting, and in honor of the presence of the gentler sex the day will be called "ladies day." The ladies will be protected from the sun's rays by a marquee which will be erected for their accommodation.

A Blind Boy Learns a Useful Trade.

In its news from Dunellen the Bound Brook Chronicle says: "Percy Cannon, brother of the late Willie Cannon, who was killed on the Prospect avenue crossing some time ago, has graduated with honors from the Institute for the Blind in New York city and has returned to the home of his parents at the Eight Row. The Institute before his departure presented him with a beautiful set of instruments for tuning pianos, and he hopes soon to be able to make his living at that employment."

There is no better remedy to give relief to children suffering with whooping cough than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Do not be without it at any time. Price only 25 cents. At all dealers.

Tore the Flesh from His Arm.

Wm. Jukes, an esteemed employe at the Scott Printing Machine Works, had an arm badly injured in machinery yesterday afternoon. A large piece of flesh was torn out of it, and it will require several weeks for healing.

In the days of the past, people had to suffer much pain, now they have Salvation Oil and they get cured in less than no time. Price 25 cents.

The men of Boston, of all ages and conditions, are wild over boxing, and the many cures made by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, their national remedy.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are n't straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public estimation accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

HELPING THE G. A. R.

Twenty-five Dollars Appropriated for Memorial Day Observance.

At the regular May meeting of the Borough Council of North Plainfield, last evening, Mayor Place and all the Councilmen were present. The public meeting was short and only routine business was transacted.

A communication was received and filed from Dr. J. H. Carman, Secretary of the Board of Health, stating that the board would want an appropriation of $300 for its work this year.

A petition for a crosswalk at the junction of Grove street and Park place was referred to the Street Committee.

Wm. Newman was made a member of Warren Engine Company, No. 1.

Dr. J. H. Cooley wrote that his work as assessor would be greatly facilitated on Westervelt avenue if the houses on that thoroughfare were renumbered. The Street Committee were given power in the matter.

A letter was read from the Joint Detail of Grand Army Posts 73 and 109, requesting an appropriation for Memorial Day. The sum of $25 was unanimously voted.

W. R. Codington, Secretary and Treasurer of the Edison Electric Light Company of North Plainfield, wrote that the company's charge for lighting the engine house, council room and lock-up would be 1 cent per hour for each lamp of 16-candle power.

Bids were opened for furnishing crushed stone to the borough. A. I. Smalley's prices for the four sizes were $1, $1.10, $1.15, and $1.20, delivered, or 20c per ton less at the crusher. Alfred C. Johnson's prices were .60, .75, .75 and .75 at the crusher, but he said he couldn't get his crusher in working order before June 1, and the borough wanted delivery begun immediately. Jasper H. Wilson's prices were .85, .95, .97½ and $1.05 at the crusher, or 20 cents per ton higher for delivering. Christopher West and Samuel Moore each put in a bid for carting at 17 cents per ton. By resolution of Councilman Buckle A. I. Smalley's bid was accepted as the lowest.

Councilman Smalley reported for the Committee on Licenses and Marshals that the matter of choosing a marshal was not yet settled, but that progress was being made. This report was taken as evidence that Mr. Smalley had consented to serve as Chairman of the Committee on Licenses, and that the list of standing committees appointed by Mayor Place at the previous meeting was not to be changed again.

By resolution of Councilman Buckle the Street Committee were authorized to order foundation stone for Greenbrook road at a cost not to exceed 25 cents per load.

The petition to macadamize Grandview avenue from Somerset street to Westervelt avenue was granted, and by unanimous vote on Mr. Buckle's resolution work was ordered begun as soon as possible. The length to be macadamized is 1,600 feet. The citizens contribute $355 towards the cost.

A resolution was adopted that all subscriptions towards macadamizing streets must be paid over to the Mayor and Council before work can be begun on those streets.

A bid from George C. Polhemus was read, stating that he would wire the borough buildings for 11 electric lights at a cost of $38. The matter was referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps.

The Council then went into executive session, and all outsiders left the room. Final adjournment was made to Monday evening, May 11, when the selection of a borough marshal will be considered.

Their First Anniversary.

The first anniversary of America Lodge, No. 161, Order of the Fraternal Circle, was held at Turn Verein Hall last evening. About six hundred people were present and admirably entertained by some excellent talent. Addresses were made by James Morrison, of Boston, Supreme Guard, and Robert Griffiths, New York State Deputy. From their remarks was elicited the information that the order is on a sound financial basis, has a membership of nearly 13,000 in the United States and Canada, has paid out over $60,000 to sick members, and has nearly $225,000 in a reserve fund, the bulk of which is deposited with the State Treasurer of Massachusetts.

Mr. Griffiths in his remarks upheld the action of the press with reference to the bogus orders lately introduced, and courted the minutest scrutiny of the standing of The Fraternal Circle. Many signed applications for membership in the Plainfield lodge which has now 51 members in good standing.

After the entertainment, the floor was cleared for dancing.

Moving Time.

The month of May is typical of the moving season. Tenants move into new homes, the zodiac moves up a link, nature moves out of her trance, base-ball moves into the sphere of popularity, and at Collier's there is the same old move in the march of improvement and a constant increase of excellence in watches, diamonds and every variety of jewelry.

An Eight-Voice Choir at Trinity.

Beginning to-morrow, the singing at both morning and evening services at the Trinity Reformed church will be by a choir of eight voices, under the leadership of T. E. Hazell. The evening service will begin at 7:45 hereafter, instead of 7:30 as formerly.

EIGHT STRIKERS EVICTED.

Their Families Homeless in the Streets of Stirling.

The families of eight leaders of the strike at Schlachter's silk mill at Stirling, in the mountains back of North Plainfield, were evicted from their homes yesterday morning. The strike began April 11. Mr. Schlachter wanted six weavers to work overtime a few hours to complete some samples. The weavers refused, and at 3 o'clock, the closing time Saturdays, they were discharged. The six men, aided by two others, induced 200 workers to strike unless all were were re-employed. The firm refused to take back the six weavers and the strike began.

The men employed were nearly all foreign born. The native Americans refused to join them and continued to work. Threats were made against those who chose to work, and constables were stationed around the mill to prevent trouble.

The strikers called on Mr. Schlachter a few days ago and wanted to go back to the mill. He agreed to give them employment, but would not receive the eight men who had begun the trouble. All except the eight were given work Monday. His lawyer served notice on these leaders that on May 1 they must leave the cottages they occupied. They gave no signs of moving yesterday, and Sheriff Lindley and six deputies from Morristown went to Stirling and ordered them out. Three obeyed and set their household effects on the sidewalk. The other five refused to move, and were forced out by the Sheriff and his deputies. The women and children shrieked and cried, and at last the heads of the families were induced to remove their own furniture. While the county officials were talking with some of the men the Italian family first evicted began carrying furniture back to the cottage. When the officers saw what was going on they again told the family to leave the place. Efforts were made to avoid the order, and at last the officers confined the six Italians in the backyard and then removed their household goods from the house.

The eight cottages emptied, the doors were locked, and the evicted ones were left to roam the streets and to bewail their misfortune. An Italian, whose family was one of the first evicted, half an hour later kicked in the door of his old home and began carrying in his effects. Two deputies ordered him to stop and he answered in Italian. They arrested him and were surrounded by the evicted tenants. No violence was attempted, but the homeless ones tried hard to have the prisoner released. Several women spat at the deputies. The man was set free after he had promised to take his goods out of the cottage.

The homeless families held a council and the women urged the men to plead with Mr. Schlachter to take them back. The men refused and the women started for the mill to do the pleading themselves, but were soon turned back by their husbands and brothers. The women then sat on the sidewalks crying like children. Two families were cared for by neighbors employed in the silk mill and the other six found temporary homes in the farmers' barns. If the 200 employes of the mill had been out of work and on the streets the deputies might have met with a warm reception.

Mr. Schlachter owns the cottages, and his mill is the main stay of the town. Many citizens say he has acted fairly towards his employes, and they blame the eight leaders for their stubbornness.

"Doctor Bill's" Immense Runs.

"Dr. Bill" ran at the Cluney Theatre, Paris, 250 nights; at the Avenue Theatre, London, 300 nights; and at the Garden Theatre, New York, 102 nights. After repeated visits the public in this great capital of the World were quite unanimous in praise of its comedy merits. The wit, dialogue, situations and dances were thoroughly appreciated and warmly applauded. The fun which begins with Miss Allen's "Kangaroo Dance" showing her wonderful imported steps to perfection, and goes on until it reaches the key down the back of Miss Fetter, finishing with Mr. Polk's ludicrous exclamation "Oh! the supper I ordered for 20 pounds and was not in it" has seldom if ever been equalled on any comedy stage. It will undoubtedly go as well in Plainfield, at Music Hall next Friday evening, as elsewhere.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

A DRUNKARD'S REFORM.

A demon has traveled beside me
For years that directed my ways
Through paths of intemperate thralldom
That threatened to limit my days;
And oft when I strove to avoid him,
And take a more suitable guide,
He laughed at my wavering efforts
And traveled more close by my side.

He lured me with wild fascinations,
And whispered gay things in my ear;
My tongue seemed to flap of his teachings
Whenever I felt he was near.
His presence repelled beloved friendship,
Whilst enemies seemed to increase,
Because of his damnable promptings
Repulsive to virtue and peace.

I drank of his soul-killing potions
Till hope seemed my presence to fly—
Till oft in remorseful relapses
I felt I was willing to die.
And thus with a God-given features
Distorted, and low as the brute,
I helplessly walked with the demon
With infamy close in pursuit.

He laughed at my guardian angel
Whenever it called me away,
Because he had found that in evil
His touch would command me to stay,
Until I seemed shackled completely,
And till he felt sure that my soul
As well as my body was mortgaged
Unto him beyond my control.

He sneered when admonishing friendships
Implored me the demon to flee,
And when I'd recall a loved parent's
Last warning and pleadings with me;
Whilst thwarting my efforts to shun him,
His agents were sure to be nigh,
To singe my poor wings with a fire draught
That left me unable to fly.

Till once in the depth of my thralldom
I happened a moment to pray
That angels of peace might assist me
And kindly direct me away,
When quick to my soul came the answer:
"Up! fight for redemption at once!"
Whilst echoes seemed gladly repeating
That hopeful angelic response.

I instantly fought with the demon
In order to shatter his spell,
Whilst hope seemed to sing out from Heaven
And groans seemed to issue from hell,
Until from my lips with an effort
I cast his foul goblet away,
When my guardian angel embraced me
And shed on my life a new ray.

Alarming Prevalence of Ginger Tippling in the Good Old Quaker City.

The ginger habit has supplemented the liquor habit. It has become a kind of fad in some classes of society, and its dangerous inroads upon health are forcing it upon the attention of physicians, while as an outgrowth of high-license legislation it is at the same time recommending itself to the attention of lawmakers. The ginger habit is worse than the ordinary liquor habit, because it is more rapid in its effects and means earlier ruin to the health of the individual. It has only recently come to the attention of physicians and druggists that in thousands of families the peppery dose that has borne the popular appearance of innocence and respectability has become an agent of debauchery.

The tincture of ginger, or Jamaica ginger, as it is popularly known, is the strongest and most irritating alcoholic solution known, ranking next to alcohol absolute, which is undrinkable, and standing equal to commercial alcohol, which is never used as a beverage. The Jamaica ginger is sold by druggists and grocers in four-ounce vials, and the unbottled tincture is retailed at one ounce and upward. During the last few months the demand for the article, which has been steadily growing for a number of years, has become unprecedented, and some druggists are already beginning to "flag" habitual inquirers.

The greatest demand is in those sections that are at a distance from the principal business centers of the city, although the Chestnut and Market street druggists themselves have experienced and noted the rapid growth of the traffic. The most alarming phase of the habit is its prevalence among women.

Dr. W. G. MacConnell said recently: "The tincture of ginger can be bought for about five cents an ounce. It contains fully 95 per cent. of alcohol, so that in an ounce of ginger there is more than two ounces of whisky. The way it is now being used is amazing. I know a physician, a man prominent in his profession, who died only a short time ago from the effects of ginger drinking. You would think a physician would know better, and he did, but in spite of the warning and protestations of his friends in the profession he would use it daily as a beverage, diluting it one-third.

"I was in a drug store only a few days ago when a young girl came in twice, buying each time two ounces of ginger. The druggist said she'd been in twelve times that day. He knew that her mother and her sisters drank it, but it had never occurred to him that he should refuse to sell them the article. I was called not long ago to attend a woman who admitted to me that she was in the habit of drinking sixteen ounces a day. Think what a dose that is! It would have the strength of more than twice that amount of whisky. It would surprise you to know how many patients afflicted with the ginger habit the physicians of this city are now struggling with.

"The majority of them are women, who until a few years past were accustomed to sending to the neighboring saloon for beer or whisky whenever they wanted it, night or morning or Sunday. One woman told me she began to drink it when she couldn't run into a handy saloon with her pitcher but found that she could buy all the ginger she wanted at the druggist's or at the grocery store, and that it went further and had more effect than anything else. Old drinkers at the bar are familiar with the effects of ginger, and I suppose the growth of the present habit has its origin with them. It is encroaching upon the very best society, and many an exclusive morning and afternoon gathering of ladies about the tables of some elegant hostess indulges in the ginger tipple. It is passed around diluted in water, and it seems harmless enough. But the habit once acquired is almost hopeless. It is worse than the liquor habit. The ginger, through which the alcohol percolates in its manufacture, is an irritant of the worst kind when taken in excess, and the alcohol is in almost its absolute state. Its effects, too, are distinctive. The ginger drinker invariably becomes simple. These are not the varieties of ordinary intoxication. You will find all the smaller drug stores outside of the very center of the city doing an enormous business in ginger, and the same with the grocery stores. There ought to be legislation against its indiscriminate sale, the same as there is against the indiscriminate sale of other alcoholic drinks."

A prominent druggist, whose business includes wholesale and retail, said the growing demand for ginger had been noticed and commented upon in his establishment and in others which he had visited. "In our store," he said, "we have adopted the rule of refusing to sell ginger to any person who appears to have been drinking, but we haven't gone so far yet as to refuse to fill the orders that are sent in to us from families or that are brought in by children. There ought to be some restriction, I must admit, but what and how? Most of the ginger drinking is done down town, I should judge, by the quantities ordered by druggists. We sell a good deal of it, too, and to people who would be horrified if accused of tippling."

According to the Pharmacopœia, the formula for the tincture of ginger is: "Ginger, 20 parts; alcohol, a sufficient quantity to make 100 parts. Moisten the ginger with 5 parts of alcohol, and macerate for twenty-four hours; then pack it firmly in a cylindrical percolator, and gradually pour alcohol upon it until 100 parts of tincture are obtained." —Philadelphia Times.

ALCOHOL AND DISEASE.

It Is Productive of Mental and Physical Degradation.

Dr. Lewis D. Mason, of the Inebriate asylum, Fort Hamilton, N. Y., discussing the etiology of dipsomania and the heredity of alcoholic inebriety, determines as facts that alcoholism in progenitors will produce physical and mental degradation in their descendants, with the disorders that arise from a defective nerve organization; and all grades of mental weakening, from slight enfeeblement of intellect to insanity and complete idiocy; and that the laws regulating these changes are similar to those that govern congenital degenerative changes from other causes. The offspring of the confirmed drunkard will inherit either the original vice or "some of its countless protean transformations." In another paper—on pathological changes in chronic alcoholism—Dr. Mason exhibits alcohol as modifying the serum and the anatomical elements of the blood, besides being an irritant and directly producing modification and degeneration of tissue, and therefore as being more evidently a disease-producing agent. Contrasting the little progress that has been made in the study of the pathology of chronic alcoholism and of the diseases incident to alcoholism with the great advance that has been achieved in knowledge of microbic diseases, he adds: "Alcohol has not any microbe, but the grand total of its mortality will exceed the combined effect of all the bacteria that have ever passed the microscopic field or developed in the culture-tube of the bacteriologist." The subject is now, however, beginning to receive some of the attention it deserves.—Popular Science Monthly.

GENERAL BREVITIES.

MANY persons suppose that the Bible does not condemn the use, but the abuse of strong drink. Could there be any stronger appeal for total abstinence than this?—"Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." —United Presbyterian.

THE official report of crime in France for 1887 shows that inebriety has diminished steadily from 1873. The average number of inebriates arrested for crime of all kinds from 1873 to 1875 was over eight thousand. From 1875 to 1880 it was seven thousand five hundred. From 1881 to 1885 it was six thousand seven hundred. From 1885 to 1887 it was five thousand nine hundred.—Journal of Inebriety.

CRIME and drunkenness have increased in terrible proportions in Germany and France during the past twenty years. This fact disproves the oft-repeated false assertion of anti-total abstinence people that the consumption of beer and wine—light alcoholics—tends to sobriety. The report of the last International congress for the suppression of alcoholism, which was held in Paris from July 29 to August 1, 1889, affirms that criminality and mental aberration follow a march parallel with the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

THE highest court of Maryland decided that the liquor law of the state applies to the dispensation of drinks in a social club as fully as in a saloon, and consequently that clubs must obey the law or suffer its penalties. The supreme court of Massachusetts has held that the law does not apply to clubs unless they are mere tippling establishments run under the name of a club for the purpose of evading the statute. The court draws a distinction between a saloon which is public and open to everybody and a club which is a private body open only to its members.

The Love of Drink.

A recent Pittsburgh (Pa.) telegram mentions that on a single evening in that city four expectant brides, who were in readiness for the marriage ceremony, were disappointed through the non-appearance of the men whom they were to marry on account of drunkenness. In one case many invited guests and the minister were in attendance and waiting from half-past seven till nine o'clock, when word came that "John" was drunk, and the party dispersed. In three cases the disappointed girls reconsidered and decided that they would not marry the men who had thus disgraced themselves. In this decision they were wise, and it is to be hoped they will adhere to it. Drunkenness and marriage, in the best sense, are incompatible.—National Temperance Advocate.

Breaking It to Him Gently.

Editor—Mr. Plumduff, you may make a little change in your column to-morrow morning. It takes up too much space. Cut it down one-half.

Mr. Plumduff—Yes, sir.

"Then the other half won't need any special heading. Remove the heading."

"Yes, sir."

"And it needn't be leaded. Run it in solid."

"Yes, sir."

"That will make it take up about a third of a column."

"Yes sir."

"And then it can go in any part of the paper wherever there is room for it."

"Yes, sir."

"And if there isn't room it can be left out."

"Y-yes, sir."

"And it hardly seems worth while to keep it going, does it?"

"N-no, sir."

"You are right, Mr. Plumduff. Your resignation is accepted."—Chicago Tribune.

An Apt Reply.

A certain queen of Hanover once upon a time when traveling stopped at an inn called "The Golden Goose." She remained two days to rest herself and retinue, and receive such entertainment as was needed, and for the same was charged three hundred thalers.

On her departure the landlord besought her with obsequious deference to favor him with her patronage on her return.

"I you desire that, mein lieber mann," replied her majesty, "you must not again take me for your sign."—Harper's Bazar.

A Matter of Money.

"My daughter will receive five thousand dollars on the day she marries you," said a Texas father to a suitor for his daughter's hand. "She will receive five hundred dollars and the rest from time to time as my circumstances justify it."

"That's all right, my dear sir," replied the youth, "but hadn't we better wait with the marrying until we get everything together?'—Texas Siftings.

How His Poems Went Off.

The following letter shows how a young gentleman made money by publishing a book of poems. The publisher wrote immediately after the book was published: "Dear Sir: Your whole edition is gone off, leaving a balance of £20 in your favor. Check inclosed. P. S.—There was a fire in the warehouse and the contents were insured."—London Tid-Bits.

MAKING A RECORD.

A California Man Who Hit One Man and Got Fined for Hitting Three.

"Did he hit you first," asked the court.

"Well, no, Your Honor," said the delegate from the new counties. "He kinder jostled me, though. He was chuck full, don't you see, so I thought I'd go him one."

"According to the revised statues," said the court, severely, "the penalty for biffing the inebriated but harmless taxpayer is $5 per biff, but as you only tapped him once, we will call it $5 and a severe reprimand."

"All right, judge, all right," said the prisoner, getting out his wallet, "but I wish you'd make it three, Your Honor."

"Three what!"

"Why, three men licked, even if you have to charge me a little more," said the small countryman, confidentially. "You see, judge, I aint much of a fighter, and the fellows up our way kinder crowd me sometimes. So I calculated if I could make a record while I was down here, and have it printed in the papers, it would kinder brace me up at home, as it were. S'posin' you let it go on record that I licked three men and fine me ten dollars for the lot. What say, eh?"

"Tell you what I'll do," said His Honor, thoughtfully. "Three for ten is rather crowding our bedrock rates, but I'll make it twelve, and a half for the lot. That's the best we can do: take it or leave it."

"It's a go, judge. Comes high, but I'm going into the saloon business soon and must have a record." And handing the money to a clerk, the hayseed Sullivan went off to arrange with the Associated Press man to telegraph the affair in his most sensational style.—San Francisco Examiner.

Not a Good Identification.

St. Peter—So you are a bank cashier, are you?

Applicant—Yes; allow me to present my card, and a letter of introduction.

St. Peter—That's all right; but we don't do business that way. Step aside, please!—Puck.

Only Hearsay Testimony.

Col. Percy Yerger—So I've caught you smoking cigarettes. You are only fifteen years old and indulge in all kinds of vices.

Tommy Yerger—But, father, you should remember that you were a boy once yourself.

Col. Yerger—I was, eh? How did you come to find that out? What do you know about my boyhood? Did you ever see me smoke when I was a boy?—Texas Siftings.

DR. BOTHWELL DEAD

Peacefully the Afflicted Clergyman Passed Away.

HIS LONG FIGHT WITH THE CORK.

Fifteen Days of Agony Which He Bore with Fortitude.

Last Scenes at the Hospital—His Wife was at His Bedside—He was Unconscious Most of the Time Before His Death—It is Probable that no Autopsy Will be Held.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Rev. Dr. George W. Bothwell died at 9:20 o'clock last night at the Brooklyn Hospital. After two weeks intense agony, suffering as few men have suffered, he passed away. He regained consciousness a few minutes before the end came, and seemed to recognize his wife.

His deathbed was surrounded by his wife, Rev. Dr. W. T. Stokes, Dr. Young, Miss Collins and Miss Alexander.

Dr. Bothwell hovered between life and death all Saturday night. From 4 o'clock Saturday to midnight the physicians pumped 200 gallons of oxygen into his lungs. At midnight an additional supply was sent for.

At intervals brandy and sparteine were injected hypodermically. The suffering man was unconscious most of the time. His devoted wife remained at his bedside all night, expecting that every moment would be his last. Dawn came, but the lamp of life was still flickering.

The day wore on, but there was little change in the sufferer's condition. At intervals he brightened up and recognized those around. Occasionally he became very feverish, and his pulse beat 180 times to the minute and his temperature went up to 120. Shortly after 6 o'clock his attendant thought he was dead. He rallied again, but lapsed into unconsciousness once more. A clerical friend called at 7 o'clock, but he did not go up stairs, as it was deemed expedient not to admit anybody to the room except those who were already there. At 9:20 the end came.

It is fifteen days since Dr. Bothwell swallowed the cork which caused his death. One of his children was sick and he sent for medicine, which came in a three ounce bottle. Pinning the child on his knee he threw the cork, which he placed in his mouth. His other child was looking on and asked for some of the medicine. Dr. Bothwell laughed at the request and the cork slipped down his throat and entered the windpipe. Several physicians were sent for, but they could not remove the obstacle. Then he was taken to the Brooklyn Hospital. His treatment and suffering there the public is familiar with.

The reverend gentleman, whose case has excited world-wide interest, was 41 and a native of Ohio. After graduating from the Adrian (Mich.) College he entered Yale. Dr. Bothwell became a Congregational minister in 1876. His ministry at Newcomerstown, Ohio, lasted until 1878, when he went to Fostoria, and his excellent work and preaching there attracted a large circle of friends. His next field of labor was the Straight University in Louisiana. Then he went to the Southern University. He was president of both institutions. Then he accepted a call from the Second Congregational Church in Oakland, Cal.

Last January he located in Brooklyn, and became pastor of the Church of the Covenant, Classon avenue, near Park place, succeeding Rev. S. W. King. During his brief pastorate he made many friends, and his congregation gained many new members. He was a simple, genial, whole souled man, and everybody who came in contact with him liked him. He had a good word for all. He lived with his wife and two young children at No. 928 Butler street.

It is probable that no autopsy will be held in his case. Mrs. Bothwell is opposed to it.

Strikers Take a Secret Ballot.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., May 4.—Four hundred eviction notices expire in this district this week. It is now the general opinion that the strike is about over in the vicinity of Uniontown. It is said that a secret ballot was taken by the strikers at the Red Stone Works, all but four ballots declaring in favor of resuming work at the company's terms. The citizens of Lafayette County are indignant, at the importation of so many Italians. They are considered undesirable neighbors. They spend no money in the stores and are inefficient in coke mining.

Knocked Out in the Second Round.

PEORIA, Ill., May 4.—The finish fight between Bey, of Streator, and Johnny Connors, of Springfield, was short, sharp and decisive, Bey forcing Connors in the first round and knocking him out in the second. The fight took place at an ice house above this city between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning, and was witnessed by about 500 sports. Billy Myer, of Streator, acted as umpire.

Judge Taft Improving.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4.—Judge Alphonso Taft, for some time Secretary of War and later Attorney-General under the second administration of President Grant, who has been ill at his home here for several days past, is reported by his physicians to be improving. The illness of Judge Taft is due to infirmities resulting from his active life for many years.

MORE ABOUT RAY HAMILTON.

A Well Known Guide Tells a Queer Story About the Body.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 4.—Thomas Cooper, a well known Wyoming guide has just returned from Jackson's Hole, where Robert Ray Hamilton is said to have been drowned last September.

Cooper was present when the body was found, and says there were a number of suspicious circumstances attending the event calculated to confirm the belief which many people possess that Hamilton is still alive.

He says the body was very much decomposed and that recognition was hardly possible. When Dr. Green arrived he did not look at the body, and it was buried close to where it was found. Cooper says that although every man in the party had known Hamilton not one could identify the body.

The apparent indifference of Hamilton's friends and the unceremonious manner in which the body was buried made an unfavorable impression upon the people living in the vicinity, and many of them believe that a body from some medical college was shipped there and dressed in Hamilton's clothes and dumped in the river, with the circumstantial evidences carefully planned to make an apparently reliable story of Hamilton's death.

The decomposition of the body found in the river was much beyond what it should have been with but six days' submersion, the length of time that Hamilton was missing until the body was found. The body can easily be exhumed and taken East at any time should the friends of Hamilton desire to have a conclusive identification.

TERRORIZED BY NEGROES.

LANAPHER, I. T., May 4.—Three hundred well armed negroes are terrorizing this place and threatening the whole community with wholesale slaughter and it is probable that a frightful massacre shall have taken place, if the posse of 100 men who left Talequah with the sheriff at the request of the sheriff here does not arrive in time to prevent it.

The cause of the trouble is this: On Wednesday night a negro was found dead near the postoffice with his neck broken. The whole negro race in this vicinity became aroused and they immediately set to work to seek out the murderers, believing it was the work of "full bloods." The negroes are swearing vengeance on the entire community, and the greatest excitement prevails, as the citizens are at present unable to cope with the infuriated mob.

WORK OF A MISCREANT.

Three Young Boys Given a Loaded Dynamite Cartridge.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 4.—At Martin's Ferry an unknown miscreant gave three little boys, James and Wilton Turney and Charles Wilson, all under nine years of age, a loaded dynamite cartridge.

The boys played with the cartridge and it finally exploded. All three of the boys were blown over 60 feet and horribly mangled. The Wilson boy had his breast and abdomen torn open and a leg badly lacerated. He will die. One of the Turneys will lose the sight of both his eyes, and the other's arms are burned to a crisp, and he cannot recover.

Supt. Porter Off for the Northwest.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The business of the Census Office is now in such condition that Superintendent Porter will take advantage of the opportunity to make an extended tour of the Northwest. Accompanied by Mrs. Porter he left Washington last night, going direct to Chicago, where he will remain several days as the guest of his brother, Mr. Washington Porter. Mr. Porter will stop at all the principal cities en route to the Pacific coast, and will spend considerable time with relatives in San Francisco. He will also travel through Puget Sound. He expects to return to Washington during the early part of June.

Barry Sullivan Dead.

LONDON, May 4.—Barry Sullivan, the well known tragedian, is dead. He was born at Birmingham, England, in 1824, and first appeared upon the stage in Cork in 1840. He visited America in 1857, and had an enthusiastic reception. He also visited Australia and India.

Committed Suicide by Hanging.

ALBANY, May 4.—Patrick McKenny, of Troy, committed suicide by hanging himself with his coat lining at the west side police station at 11 o'clock last night. He was alive when found, but died shortly afterward. He was arrested early in the evening suffering from delirium tremens.

A Gift to the President.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The Union League Club has presented to President Harrison a beautifully enamelled solid gold plate fac simile of the card of invitation to the reception which he attended Saturday night.

Agreed to the Cigarmakers' Demands.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 4.—The cigar manufacturers have virtually agreed to the men's demand for an increase in pay ranging from fifty cents to one dollar a thousand. This applies to the cheaper grades.

POLISH CENTENNIAL

Grand Celebration To-Day in New York City.

MANY SOCIETIES REPRESENTED.

Memorial Service in the Morning Followed by a Procession.

Many of the Participants Wear the Picturesque Costume of Their Native Land—The Statue of Washington Crowned With a Silver Wreath—Mass Meeting at Cooper Union This Evening.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Polish residents of the United States are to-day celebrating the centenary of the constitution of Poland.

Delegates from the different Polish societies in the country now in this city represent about a million Poles scattered throughout the United States. Unlike the people of other nations their influence has never been felt in America politically. Lack of education has been one of their greatest obstacles to surmount. Added to this is the constant strife among themselves, which prevents the formation of any Polish organization on a solid basis.

At to-day's celebration all differences are buried, and an attempt will be made for the formation of a strong polish union.

To-Day's Celebration.

The celebration opened this morning with a memorial service in the Church of St. Stanislaus. This was followed by a procession, many of the participants wearing the picturesque costume of their native land. During the parade the statue of Washington in Union Square was crowned with a silver wreath.

A delegation was sent to West Point to place on Kosciusko's monument a silver wreath, while the Statue of Liberty will receive the same attention at the hands of another delegation.

Mass Meeting To-night.

This evening a mass meeting will be held in Cooper Union, where delegates from the Sons of the Revolution and the Pan Republican Congress will be the guests of honor.

It is announced that Secretary Blaine has been invited to address the meeting and that Governor Hill will be present. Mayor Grant will take part.

Mme. Theophile Kraemer, the beautiful Polish patriot, will also address the meeting, and Count Wodzicki, a loyal son of Poland, will take a prominent part in the proceedings. A grand ball will wind up the occasion. Four hundred bronze and silver medals will be distributed in commemoration of the centennial.

The event which the Poles of America are celebrating to-day was the last great effort of a number of noble patriots, who were trying to stay the downfall of their country. In 1788 a remarkable Diet was convened which lasted four years, and the constitution of 1791 was the result of the deliberation of that Diet. The effort was made too late to be effective, and another sad page was added to the history of the country.

The Kingdom of Poland ceased to exist in May, 1864. During recent years the Polish language has been suppressed, and the present Czar has sought by every possible means to Russianize the land.

POWDERLY'S VIEWS.

He Says Gould, Rockefeller and Astor Could Control All the Gold.

CHICAGO, May 4.—T. V. Powderly is at the Sherman House. "We hardly have time to pay attention to the wage question at present," he said. "The other three questions—the land, the railroad and the currency—are occupying every leader's attention."

"How about the eight-hour movement?"

"It is something that will be granted before a great while, because there are so many machines being brought upon the market that there will soon be an overproduction of goods."

"What will you attempt to do regarding the currency?"

"We will try to do away with the gold standard. The public, so long deluded, is crying for the gold currency, but when it realizes that there is not $950,000,000 gold in circulation, and that Rockefeller, Gould and Astor could buy every gold piece in the nation and thus get a grip upon the people that would be difficult to break, then they will coincide with us."

Stabbed While Playing Cards.

STEUBENVILLE, Pa., May 4.—During a fight over a game of cards Geo. Burke stabbed Chas. Mehan twice in the left side and once in the head. Mehan will die.

Yesterday's Baseball Games.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The American Association games yesterday resulted as follows: Louisville, 5; Columbus, 4; Cincinnati, 5; St. Louis, 2.

Felt Six Miles Away.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 4.—A terrific explosion occurred at the Geneseaville Salt shaft near Mount Morris last night. The concussion was felt six miles away.

IMPORTING NEW MEN.

From 6,000 to 7,000 to be Taken Into the Coke Region, if Necessary.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 4.—The Poles celebrated the 100th anniversary of the ado; tion of their constitution by a parade and meeting here, more than 3,000 taking part in the demonstration.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 new men are to be imported to replace the strikers, if necessary. This statement comes from a trustworthy source. Carloads have arrived during the past week and the influx continues.

Labor leaders are trying diligently to induce them to leave the region, and have succeeded to some degree.

The evictions of striking tenants will be renewed throughout the region, and it is estimated that before the week is out 600 families will be homeless. Monster mass meetings were held to-day at Jimtown and Hutchison with the view of persuading new workmen to unite with the strikers.

THE CLARKS RETIRE.

The Superintendent and His Sons Will Establish a Mill in Rhode Island.

PATERSON, N. J., May 4.—After a quarter of a century of service as superintendent of the Clark Thread Company, of Newark, N. J., William Clark has resigned his position, and together with his two sons, William and Robert, will establish a thread mill at Pawtucket, R. I. Several acres of land were offered to the Clarks to build there and the offer was accepted. They have been promised subscriptions aggregating $1,000,000 by Rhode Island capitalists, to organize a company.

The retirement of Mr. Clark and his sons from the Clark Thread Mill Company was because they were opposed to the policy pursued by Herbert Wamsley, superintendent of the cotton mills, to whom the recent trouble at the Clark Thread Mills is attributed.

MONSTER LABOR MEETING.

Over 200,000 Working People at Hyde Park in London.

LONDON, May 4.—The attendance at the labor meeting in Hyde Park is variously estimated at from 200,000 to 300,000. The procession in connection with the meeting included workers at all the trades, and was miles long.

John Burns, Thomas Mann, Benjamin Tillett, the Avelings, and Mr. Graham, the Socialist member of Parliament, were among the speakers, who were assigned to twelve different platforms, which had been erected in the park. An identical resolution in favor of a compulsory labor day of eight hours was moved at all the platforms.

SAVED FROM SUICIDE.

An Unfortunate Girl Makes Two Attempts to Drown Herself.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 4.—Laura Dearns, aged 18, jumped into the Elizabeth River last night from the Sumner street bridge. The girl was pulled out by a negro and she was taken to her home, 603 Fourth avenue.

Shortly after she managed to slip, half clothed, out of the house and ran to the river into which she jumped a second time. She was rescued with difficulty by the same man.

Her father took her to police headquarters, where she was locked up. She is evidently insane. Her father says she has been betrayed by a young man named Gaffney.

Dr. Graves Will Explain.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 4.—Dr. Graves says it is evidently the determination of the newspapers to, in some mysterious way, connect him with the murder of Mrs. Barnaby. It had compelled him to set to work in the preparation of a public statement, which he promises to have ready in a day or two. He declares the statement will explain many of his so-called mysterious actions. The police of the city have finally begun work on the case and will investigate it thoroughly.

The President Starts for Portland.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—President Harrison took a much needed rest yesterday. In the morning he attended the First Congregational Church. The rest of the day he remained in his rooms. Last evening he crossed over to Oakland, where his train was waiting, and shortly after midnight started for Portland, Ore.

The French Minister in Doubt.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—M. Roustan, the French minister, still remains without any intelligence from his government that he has been transferred. The post at Madrid is an embassy, and as the French minister to Belgium is ahead of him for promotion, M. Roustan is disinclined to credit the reports of his change.

Thirty Shots Fired.

DENVER, Col., May 4.—The employes of Davis & Larimer, brick manufacturers, have struck for shorter hours. During a collision between the strikers and the officers placed in charge of the brick yards over thirty shots were fired, but no one was hurt. Further trouble is expected.

Opera House Destroyed by Fire.

TYRONE, Pa., May 4.—Conrad's Opera House was destroyed by fire early in the morning. Templeton & Crawford's millinery store and the establishment of Chas. Conrad were also burned out. Loss $20,000; partially insured. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Brickyard Buildings Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Early in the morning the buildings of the brickyard of James E. Dinges, at York and 26th streets, containing a large quantity of machinery, were destroyed by fire. A fireman named Charles Shaw was badly hurt by a falling beam.

Hostile to Jews.

LONDON, May 4.—A despatch to the Chronicle from Adelaide, Australia, says that Baron Hirsch's schemes of sending Jews there is much commented on. The colonists are strongly hostile to an influx of Russian Jews.

ALTOONA'S BIG FIRE

Two Hotels and Many Business Houses Burned.

THE WORK OF AN INCENDIARY.

While the Fire Was Raging a Safe Was Broken Open and Robbed.

The Hotel Guests Escaped, but Many Lost Their Effects—One Man Falls Dead from Excitement—Several Persons Overcome by Smoke and Flames—The Entire Loss Will Exceed $80,000.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 4.—At 1 a.m. fire was discovered in the ice house in the rear of Rising Sun Hotel. The fire department promptly responded to the alarm, but the continual breaking of the hose delayed the firemen so that the flames gained considerable headway. The fire soon spread to some stables in the vicinity filled with hay, which burned like tinder.

The flames kept spreading, soon leaping across the alley to the storehouse of the Altoona Hardware Company, fronting on Eleventh avenue. The tin roof kept the fire inside for some time, but finally it burst out and communicated with the store proper, which contained a valuable stock of goods, utterly ruining everything. Cartridges and gunpowder began to explode, but no casualties occurred. The damage to this store alone is estimated at $35,000.

The high winds drove the flames across the alley again to the Rising Sun Hotel and the Beam House, firing them. The guests all escaped, but many lost their effects. Several persons were overcome by smoke and flames, and were rescued with difficulty. Both hotels were completely gutted. They were large brick structures, and very little of their furnishings were saved. The Nickel Plate restaurant was considerably damaged. The immense dry goods emporium of William McCray & Son next caught fire, closely followed by Rev. James McCord's house. The occupants removed their effects as speedily as possible.

H. M. Mitchell, of the firm of J. Bluementhal & Co., wholesale tobacconists, left his room in the McCord building and soon after was seen to stagger and fall dead, the excitement having brought on heart failure. While the fire was raging a second alarm was sent in for the livery and exchange stables in the rear of the Whitehall Hotel. All the animals were safely removed, but everything else was burned.

In the early part of the fire some one entered the law office of T. D. Greevy, broke open the safe and abstracted valuable papers.

The fires were undoubtedly of incendiary origin and the entire loss will exceed $85,000.

WATCHING AMERICA.

The Haytien Situation Regarded With Much Interest in England.

LONDON, May 4.—Englishmen for the past day or two have been gleefully circulating that they would not be alone very long in French hot water, and that the methods which have made the Newfoundlanders and Lord Knutsford miserable were about to be applied to the United States and Hayti in regard to the Mole St. Nicholas.

The French look upon Hayti as a French negro colony, and the relations between France and the West India republic are very intimate, the good will of the French being fully reciprocated by the Haytiens. France, therefore, views with the greatest jealousy any proposed alienation of Haytien territory and is ready to show teeth to prevent it.

Englishmen are watching curiously to see whether America will be frightened, and give France a pretext for making a substantial and political protectorate over Hayti which has heretofore been social and sentimental. The Haytien situation is regarded with much more interest here than Americans may suppose.

A RARE OLD PAINTING.

LITTLE FALLS, Minn., May 4.—Rev. Charles Labomie had occasion to go to the old trading post of Crow Wing, some twenty-four miles north of Little Falls, and while there visited the ruins of the old French Mission church at that place. The church has neither doors nor windows, and is in a very delapidated condition.

While looking through the building he discovered, nailed to the wall, a painting which at once attracted his attention, though covered with the dust of years. He secured the prize and brought it to the city, where it was cleaned and remounted. The painting represents a saint with a crucifix raised aloft in his right hand, while around him are clustered representatives of the various races of people in the world, all gazing hopefully to the direction of the uplifted cross.

The work is evidently that of a master hand and is supposed to have been brought to the wilds of the Northwest by some of the early Catholic missionaries.

It is 20 by 40 inches in size. All who have seen it are enthusiastic over its beauty.

Manager's Regent in Flight.

CALCUTTA, May 4.—It is learned that the Regent of Manipur has taken the Chaand route in his flight, and that the number of his followers has dwindled to twenty. The party keep among the hills to prevent pursuit.

Death of an Old Newspaper Man.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 4.—Thomas E. Hewitt, one of Pittsburg's oldest newspaper men, died at his home in the East End early yesterday of consumption. During his life Mr. Hewitt has done work in almost every large city in the United States. His body will be cremated at Samson's crematory on Wednesday.

BISHOPS AT WAR.

Trouble Between the Catholic Dioceses of Rochester and Buffalo.

ROCHESTER N. Y., May 4.—There is great feeling here over the trouble between the Bishops of Rochester and Buffalo. Yesterday a pastoral issued by Bishop McQuaid was read in all the churches. The pastoral is as follows:

"For over 10 years this diocese and its Bishop have been misrepresented and maligned in a manner shameful by the Catholic Union and Times, a weekly newspaper published in Buffalo with the fullest approbation of the Right Rev. Bishop of Buffalo. The paper referred to labors to foment insubordination among priests and people; to keep alive unchristian feelings between the two dioceses; it disturbs the peace of this one; it is a constantly recurring source of scandal to many, running into sin and shame." Therefore the Bishop protests against the circulation of the paper in his diocese, and threatens severe measures if this letter does not prove effectual.

"The quarrel between the two Roman Catholic dioceses of Rochester and Buffalo is no new one, though it has not reached an open outbreak before. There has been friction as far back as 1883. The differences between the two dioceses were further embittered by Bishop McQuaid's treatment of Father Lambert, who was formerly attached to the Buffalo diocese, and held in high esteem by the Bishop of Buffalo. Of late the Rochester Catholic Journal and the Buffalo Catholic Union have been indulging in personal criticisms growing out of a charge that the latter paper had been misstating doctrine. The warfare grew so warm and the personalities so strong that the Rochester Bishop's pastoral letter followed. It will be seen Bishop Ryan is held accountable in Bishop McQuaid's pastoral, the Catholic Union having his seal of approbation, and he being president of the Buffalo Catholic Publishing Company."

Bishop Ryan Very Reticent.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 4.—Bishop Ryan declines to make any statement in regard to the controversy with Bishop McQuaid, of Rochester. He says he has no quarrel with Bishop McQuaid, and there the matter ended.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

There was a light fall of snow at Huron, S. D., yesterday.

Col. Fred Grant and Mrs. Grant have returned to Vienna after a week's visit to Paris.

Rioting continued near Mons and Liege, Belgium, yesterday, and the situation there is considered serious.

James Bolton, aged 18, and William Thomas, aged 19, of Elkton, Md., were drowned in the Elk River. Their boat capsized.

John Boucher has been convicted of murder in the first degree for killing Dennis Crowley in Philadelphia on June 24 last.

R. S. Poinsett, business manager of the Norristown, Pa., Herald, has been missing for a week. He was prominent in the Baptist church and a leading spirit of the Y. M. C. A.

The total number of deaths in New York city for the past week was 1,208. There were 136 resulting from grip symptoms, 106 from consumption, 80 from bronchitis and 273 from pneumonia.

The Cincinnati express collided with a freight train on the Metropolitan branch of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad Tuesday morning and four trainmen were killed and two seriously injured. The passengers all escaped.

A monument fifty feet in height of Bedford limestone will be erected May 10, with appropriate ceremonies, marking the center of population, as shown by the Census Bureau. It will be on a farm twenty miles east of Columbus, Ind.

J. W. Hannan and L. R. Davis, two envoys from the striking miners and coke burners of the Connellsville district, are in Chicago soliciting financial assistance for the strikers. They have been on a similar errand through Pennsylvania and Ohio, meeting with fair success.

The situation in the coke regions remains practically unchanged. The labor leaders declare now that the eight-hour struggle of the miners has been postponed they can concentrate their forces and stand a better chance of winning. Many evictions have taken place during the past few days, but no resistance on the part of the strikers was encountered. Four operators have effected compromises with the labor leaders and the men have returned to work. The agreement in each instance was that the men return at the old wages; that the operators employ none but union men, and that no coke will be sold to the Fricks.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—For New England Fair; stationary temperature; variable winds.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Generally fair; slightly cooler; southwesterly winds.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Fair; no change in temperature; winds becoming southerly.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The Young Men's Auxiliary will meet at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening.

—Grand officers will visit Easter Lodge, Knights of Honor, this evening. A full attendance of members is desired.

—The regular meeting of the McAll Auxiliary will be held at the public library to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

—Thomas Malcolm, a would-be pugilist, tried to stir up a fight on West Second street, Saturday evening, and was arrested and fined $10.

—An important change of time-table, with the full summer schedule, will be announced by the Jersey Central this week to take effect May 10.

—Charles Smith, of No. 2 West Front street, has begun the erection of a handsome new residence on Craig place, adjoining the home of Principal C. E. Boss.

—A quarrelsome Chinaman who was under the influence of opium drew a knife on a white man at the North avenue railway station last night, but no stabbing was done. This morning he was fined $5.

—George Gidney, the veterinary surgeon, announces himself ready to receive orders at his office, A. D. Thompson's Metropolitan stables, North avenue, opposite railway station, or at his residence, 59 East Fifth street.

—Messrs. Pearson & Gayle have just finished one of the handsomest and most complete residences on Sandford avenue for Seeley Edsall, the Front street dry goods merchant. Mr. Edsall and family took possession last week.

—Last Saturday afternoon the Boys' Club base-ball team defeated the Young Cuban Giants by the score of 48 to 35. The work of the battery of the Boys' Club was considered very clever; Mattis, the pitcher, struck out thirteen men. Peter Winn made the best score for the Boys' Club, and Pendelton for the Young Cuban Giants.

—The base-ball nine of the Total Abstinence and Benevolent Association defeated the Twilights by the score of 26 to 23, Saturday. The features of the game included the heavy batting of Mack, Bolsterlei, Hines and Sheehan, and two high catches by Carpenter, for the T. A. B's, and the batting of Fields, Johnston and Young for the Twilights. The battery for the Twilights was Fields and Monte; for the T. A. B's, Mack and Bolsterlei. About 100 people witnessed the game. Mundy was umpire.

—Governor Abbett of New Jersey has forwarded to Washington the details of the conflict between the Hoboken police and the sailors of a Hamburg steamer, which gave rise to a correspondence with the German Government. It is hoped that a war between Germany and New Jersey may yet be avoided. Should hostilities break out, however, between those two great countries, it would be interesting to inquire which side the United States would be likely to take.—New York Daily Continent.

—The small boy is looking forward with delight to the coming of the Frank A Robbins circus, which will exhibit in Plainfield this week Thursday. One 25-cent ticket will admit one to the whole show. The list of attractions is great, and there is something to entertain people of all ages. The dazzling Creole girl dancers, the miraculous Shetland ponies, the mid-air gymnasts, the Wild West show, with real cowboys and Indians, the bareback riders, in their daring and brilliant feats, are only a portion of the astonishing things on the bill.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Harry Bartling, of Sycamore avenue, is in California.

Bishop Scarborough is visiting at the home of Rowland Cox, Seventh street.

The engagement is announced of Wm. Worth of Grove street, and Miss Pease of Washington Park.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bedell, of Somerset street, are visiting friends in Brooklyn and also at Undercliff, Bergen county.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lee, at 50 Grove street, North Plainfield, was made happy yesterday morning by the advent of a new member of the family, a baby girl.

Miss Lottie D. Springman, a twelve-year-old pupil of the North Plainfield public school, is awarded third prize of $15, and Miss Mary Agnes McCarthy of Plainfield is given honorable mention, in State School Superintendent Chapman's decision in the New York World composition contest.

The Rev. John Hart, of Neshanic, Hunterdon county, exchanged pulpits yesterday, morning and evening, with the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church. During his stay in Plainfield he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Dunn of West Fourth street, who were formerly members of his congregation.

John Briant, the well-known Newark undertaker, has bought the residence at Fifth and New streets and will hereafter make his home in this city, commuting back and forth between his residence city and place of business every day. He is having his house handsomely fitted, and H. A. Pope is newly carpeting it throughout.

"DUTCH HARRY" KILLS HIMSELF.

Startling Find of a Farmer's Daughter in a Scotch Plains Woodland.

The body of Henry Buzer was found by Miss Archibald, daughter of Wm. Archibald, a Scotch Plains milkman, in the woods on the mountain-side, just back of her father's farm, this morning. She had been driving her father's cows to pasture, and was gathering wild flowers by the way-side when the strange barkings of her dog drew her to the spot where the corpse was swaying in the breeze. Around the dead man's neck was a tightly-drawn noose, made of a clothes-line. The ends of the rope were attached to two saplings, which had bent over with the weight of the body sufficiently to permit the corpse to rest partly on top of a brush-wood fence. The feet were dangling over the fence near the ground. The head was thrown over backward. Death had evidently come from strangulation, as the neck was not broken.

Buzer's suicide seems to have been a most determined one. Before adjusting the fatal noose he had tried, in a bungling way, to cut his throat and the arteries at his wrist with a sharp-pointed stick. His neck was covered with gashes, and in one of the cuts in his fore-arm the crude weapon was still sticking when the body was found.

The dead man was familiarly known about Scotch Plains as "Dutch Harry". He had been hostler at Insley's hotel, in the village, nearly a year. Previous to that he had worked for farmer Post at New Providence. He was saving up his money to go back to his mother's home in Germany, and four weeks ago his savings amounted to $100. Of late, however, he had been drinking heavily, and seems to have squandered all his money. Last week Sunday he was suffering intensely from delirum tremens, and Monday evening when he crawled up to his room in the attic of the hotel he was glaring wildly about and muttering "They shan't touch me! I'll foil them yet!"

Tuesday morning he was missing, and examination revealed the fact that during the night he had slipped out of an open window to the roof of a shed and had thus dropped to the ground. He left everything behind save the scanty clothing in which his body was dressed when found this morning. He wore no shoes, and his stocking feet were worn to shreds.

Miss Archibald, after running home with the news of her shocking find, fainted, and is suffering from nervous prostration.

County Physician Westcott, who was summoned, examined the suicide's body, and formally pronounced life extinct, but as the act occurred in Somerset county he said he had no jurisdiction and notified the proper officials.

The remains were removed this afternoon to Terrill & Cole's undertaking establishment in this city.

"The General Sentiment is Expressed in THE PRESS" as Usual.

[From The Rahway Democrat.]

A session of the Union county court was held on Saturday morning last, at which, according to the law, by the unanimous vote of the four members of the court, Frederick C. Marsh was appointed temporary Prosecutor of the Pleas in place of William R. Wilson, whose term had expired, and the Governor not having appointed his successor. Mr. Marsh performed his first duties at the special sessions on Wednesday. There had been a question of the constitutionality of appointing Mr. Marsh while he is Senator, but Judge VanSickle having looked thoroughly into the subject gave his opinion that there was no obstacle in that direction in the way of his temporary appointment.

Mr. Marsh sought this position when Mr. Wilson was previously appointed five years ago, and it has been generally conceded that he would receive the appointment for the present term, and he hesitated to take the nomination for Senator last fall on that account. Under the circumstances the Democrats of the State and county, generally, have favored the action taken by the court on Saturday. That Mr. Marsh will make an able and acceptable official none who know him can doubt. The general sentiment is expressed in the following extract from the Plainfield Press:

Mr. Marsh's appointment will give universal satisfaction to the bar of Union county. Had a vote been taken among the lawyers of Plainfield, the Press knows of but a solitary ballot that would have been cast for any other candidate.

In Every Sense an Enjoyable Production.

"Dr. Bill", whose success on the road has been beyond the anticipation of all theatrical prophets, will be the attraction at Music Hall, next Friday evening, with all the original scenery, accessories stage garnitures and efficient cast. "Dr. Bill" is a farce-comedy entirely different from a musical skit. It is more on the style of the "Private Secretary", "The Tutor" and "Pink Dominoes". Its situations are not far-fetched, but natural; its fun is ludicrous and infectious; and its production is in every sense one worthy of patronage. The cast will include J. H. Polk, John W. Jennings, W. C. Reynler, Isabelle Coe, Selina Fetter, Louise Allen, Mrs. Louise Eldridge, and other comedians and comediennes of establishe t repute.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

A FINGERLESS ORGANIST.

Some Notable Work that Plainfield's Conductor Has Done.

The resignation of Edward J. Fitzhugh, conductor of the Plainfield Choral Society, from the position of organist at St. Mark's Episcopal church in New York city, took effect yesterday, and he was succeeded by Wm. E. Mulligan, formerly organist at St. Leo's church, Twenty-eighth street.

"Mr. Fitzhugh's retirement"—says the New York Times—"is of more than ordinary interest to musicians in this city and Brooklyn. In some respects Mr. Fitzhugh was the most extraordinary organist who ever played in a church in this city. An accident in early life deprived him of three fingers on his right hand, leaving only the thumb and little finger for execution. It was, of course, necessary for him to utilize the left hand in work that is usually performed by the right, and when he played compositions in which close harmonies were written he had occasion also to employ both of his feet simultaneously on the pedals.

"He became so adept in his performance on the organ in spite of these disadvantages, that only the most expert ear, trained to familiarity with the works that were undergoing performance, could ever find a difference in his playing and in that of organists of his class who had hands full of fingers to use. Indeed, it was only on the most rare occasions that Mr. Fitzhugh ever felt obliged to slight the harmonies in any of the works that he performed. His infirmity not only was not allowed to interfere with his manual performance, but it served, perhaps, to spur his ability as a trainer and choir master to a rare degree of excellence. The choir festivals which he organized at St. Mark's church were most attractive musically. They did not give, however, anything like a full measure of Mr. Fitzhugh's ability as a leader and trainer of voices.

"He came much nearer showing what was in him when he organized the St. Cecilia Society in Brooklyn nearly thirty years ago. At that time he was the organist and choirmaster at St. James's Episcopal church, at St. James place and Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn. A generous member of that congregation was specially interested in music, and gave of his means with lavish hand in order that the very best musical performance might be furnished at this church. This enabled Mr. Fitzhugh to indulge his abilities in full play, and it was not long before St. James's church had the reputation of furnishing the best musical service in Brooklyn.

"Mr. Fitzhugh was a stern teacher, and a purist alike in training and in the character of the music which he produced. The excellence of the work under him in the church led to the organization of a society for the performance of English madrigals, glees, and the more exalted form of church music. This society developed into the St. Cecilia, which was the pioneer of the Brooklyn choral societies. The missionary work thus performed by Mr. Fitzhugh outlived his own prominence in the musical world of Brooklyn, for when he gave up the leadership of the St. Cecilia Society the Apollo Club succeeded it, with Dudley Buck in charge, and out of the Apollo Club grew the Amphion Society, which is still one of the institutions of Brooklyn."

Crushed Stone for the City.

The following bids have been received by Street Commissioner Robert A. Meeker for furnishing four sizes of crushed stone to the city: J. H. Wilson—$1.10, $1.15, $1.20, $1.30, per ton, four sizes respectively; A. I. Smalley—$1.12½, $1.20, $1.25, $1.32½; Fanwood Stone Company, of Fanwood—all sizes, $1.10; John G. Cook, of Fanwood—all sizes, $1.08; Alfred C. Johnson—$1.05, $1.05, $1.05, 90 cents. The City Council will decide on its choice from among the competitive bidders to-night.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, vertigo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

LOST, THEN WON.

In the Face of Seemingly Certain Defeat, the Crescents Change Pitchers and Bat Out a Victory.

We have the finest catcher in the land;
Our second baseman's really out of sight;
Our fielders throw the ball with either hand;
Our short stop's moves will fill you with delight;
The gentlemen who play at first and third
Are just the men to cover either spot,
And it would be most perfectly absurd
To look for better batters than we've got.

When, at the finish of the fourth inning of last Saturday's game, the score stood 6 to 0 in favor of the Unions of New Brunswick, the Crescents were not scared a bit. They simply set to work and stopped the visitors' run-getting right there, and at the same time piled up ten for Plainfield in the next four innings, six of which were earned. Don't say the Crescents never wear batting clothes. In those four innings they made 15 hits, with a total of 19 bases.

Although a perfect day, and although a contest between teams of neighboring towns arouses the interest of base-ball lovers more than other games, the attendance was small. The grounds begin to show signs of coming turf, and are so carefully tended by John Wierenga that they are a pleasure to look upon. There is no base-ball field in the State better arranged, or where the people and players are better accommodated. Even the bleachers are roped off, and every purchaser of a ticket gets an unobstructed seat. But all this still comes too high, and it is only when Somerville plays that the people feel as though they must have it.

The game was opened with Martin striking out, and was closed with Jones's circus catch of a a foul tip. As the score by innings shows, it was a game that would have broken the heart of an ordinary team and rattled its players all around the field like corn in a popper. But the Crescents' this year is not an ordinary team. It still lacks the pitcher that is necessary to place it above all other nines, but it is greatly improved over last season by the addition of Hammill, Bonner and Simmons, while it has not lost strength anywhere else.

When it was plain to be seen, by the result of the third inning, that Gregg was entirely at the mercy of the Unions' heavy hitters, he was taken out of the box, and Hammill was substituted. The latter's speed and upshoot held the visitors down to three little hits in the following six innings, whereas in the third inning alone they had pounded Gregg for a two-bagger and four consecutive singles. Then the Crescents took their turn with the stick. Up to the fourth inning only one hit had been made for Plainfield, and that was by Gregg, who was, however, left on first because Jones flew out to Nick Bradley, and Bonner to Gold. But in the fifth "we" opened up hostilities.

Lee went out on a foul tip, but Simmons followed with a single and stole second. Martin then worked one of his bunts down the first base line, and Gordon carelessly tossed the ball over Kenney's head, letting Simmons and Martin reach third and second. Then Captain Joe Lufbery knocked a little one on which he reached first, and Simmons scored while Martin was being cut off at third. The people were, however, not much encouraged yet. The score was 6 to 1, and there were two of the Crescents out. McIndoe stepped to the plate. He had already stood there twice before and knocked a bounder to Nick Bradley each time. Somebody on the bench where the scorers sit and try to see through three rows of visiting players and their friends in front of them, whispered, "McIndoe, your hit is due; now do it!" and he did it. This time he soaked the ball into deep left field, and Lufbery walked home while Mac reached third on the hit and scored while the ball was being fumbled by Cox.

In the next inning, three more runs were added off of singles by Jones, Bonner and Martin, and a double by Simmons. In the seventh, Hammill, Gregg, Jones and Bonner made clean hits, and Lee a two-bagger. In this inning the two first named were caught at third because of the reckless running and careless coaching at this point that THE PRESS called attention to at that time last year. There was no one out, and no need of taking any risk. Three successive hits followed that would have brought them home with two more runs, both earned. Plainfield in the past lost two games to Somerville alone, because of bad coaching along that third base line. In their eighth, the Crescents closed their score by two more runs off of hits by Martin, Lufbery and Hammill.

All this time the Unions were adding nothing to their total of 6. It looked like an awful big figure when it stood against naught, but it could hardly be seen when the game closed. In the fourth inning when a pop up of Egan's dropped between Lufbery and McIndoe, both hesitating to take it, one of the Unions shouted, "We've got 'em rattled!" But Nick Bradley said, "Now don't you get that in your head. I've played against every one of them fellows before, and we ain't through this game yet." During the subsequent innings the Unions spent little time at the bat. They were put out in short order. In of each the sixth and seventh innings only five balls were pitched by Hammill to the batters.

Although defeated, the visitors were well satisfied. They were full of praise of Berriman, who made the only mistake of the day in calling McGrath's hit a foul that was ten feet inside the line. But he could not see it, and as the batter followed with another that there was no doubt about all was forgiven. New Brunswick has the strongest team this year she ever owned. It will rank with the best of them, and is far ahead of the nines of Rahway and some other places whose claims are so high.

CAME OVER WITH COLUMBUS.

Some Curious Relics Which New Jersey Will Send to the Big World's Fair.

James M. Seymour, Supervisor of the State Prison at Trenton, whose residence is in Newark, proposes to put on exhibition at the World's Fair in Chicago some of the most valuable and interesting relics of Christopher Columbus and his times that the big exposition will contain. Probably the most interesting of Mr. Seymour's collection, at least so far as the public is concerned, is a box which he has had for years. In general appearance it resembles somewhat the old-fashioned wooden trunks brought here from Europe. The only fastening apparent is a hasp, which may have been secured by a padlock.

This trunk, Mr. Seymour says, and he has no doubt of its genuineness, belonged to Perez, who came to America with Columbus. Perez was a sailor on the Pinta, and he carried the trunk here and back to Spain. The trunk was kept in the Perez family and was handed down from one generation to another, until it was finally given to the Seymours by one of the direct descendants of Perez. Mr. Seymour lived some years in Spain, and during that time he gathered many curiosities. His son and namesake went to Spain a few years ago as United States Commissioner to the National Exposition at Barcelona, and brought back with him a large number of relics. Spanish swords and daggers and all the implements of knightly warfare are represented.

At Mr. Seymour's home may be seen the cruel, sharp-barbed irons with which the bulls are prodded in the bull fight to make them angry, and on the other side of the wall is a little holy-water font supposed to be hundreds of years old. Ancient books by the dozen are there. They are in parchment and bound in rough, untanned skin, but the moths have riddled them so as to give one the idea that a hundred sparrow shot had been fired through every page.

These books are in Latin. One of them is a Bible dated 1589. Some of the books, over two hundred years old, are in a fair state of preservation, and the whole collection is in a condition to be removed to Chicago. The relic that Mr. Seymour values most and preserves with the greatest sacredness is a receptacle containg particles of the bones of saints, some of whom died over a thousand years ago. The frame in which these are is not unlike the monstrance in which the Eucharist is kept in Catholic churches. At the end of each branch is a small glass case containing a tiny piece of bone of one or more saints, and on the reverse side of the case is the picture of the original owner.

There are, in all, relics of about fifty saints. These names are printed in type like what was used in the latter end of the fifteenth century, shortly after printing was invented, and the glass on the little cases looks strong enough and odd enough to have belonged to the same period. The wood-work is dark and heavy, resembling ebony. How this heirloom came to be in his family Mr. Seymour does not know. He is not a Catholic, and is not aware of any of his ancestors having belonged to that faith. He does know, however, that this case of relics has been handed down for years, perhaps for several centuries, until it has come directly to him. He values it chiefly on that account, and but for that might not have it to-day.

Archbishop Hughes would have given him any price for it, and numerous Catholic priests and laymen have tried since then to get Mr. Seymour to part with it. In recent years few people have seen it. When a newspaper correspondent was favored with a glimpse of it the other day the case had not been unwrapped for nearly ten years.

Victory for the St. Club.

The base-ball nine of the Plainfield Bicycle Club defeated the Leal school nine Saturday on the Park avenue grounds by the score of 29 to 18. Davis, of the Leals, and Murray, of the "Bi's", each made a home run. S. McCutchen made a splendid running catch.

THE JERSEY CENTRAL AT WAR.

Its Fight With the Pennsylvania May Give Elizabeth Two Palace Stations.

The Pennsylvania and Central Railroad of New Jersey are having an interesting time over their proposed new stations at Elizabeth, where they are elevating their tracks. At Broad street the Central will be at grade, but the tracks will have a gradual ascent in either direction, while the entire structure of the Pennsylvania road will be elevated. They now occupy a union depot just west of the junction, which is the most appropriate and available site. The Central owns the northern half of the station, and the Pennsylvania the rest of it. The dividing line of the property runs zig-zag through the building, and one piece of ground is n't of any practical use without the other part, because the strip is so narrow.

The two companies have not been on very good terms for some time, but things have n't gone so far that one road paints its half of the old rickety building green and the other black, or that one of the companies tears down its part of the depot, leaving the interior of its neighbor's waiting room exposed to the weather. But interesting things—says the New York Sun—have happened, and are still likely to happen.

There was some talk between the officers of the two roads about a new two-story union station that would be adapted to the elevated system. The Central suggested that the station be erected on the old site, and that it use the ground floor and the Pennsylvania the second floor. This would be in keeping with the level of the tracks at the junction. But the Pennsylvania people thought that its ground-floor neighbor would have the advantage. Many commuters would take the first railroad it came to rather than climb up stairs to the Pennsylvania waiting room. So no agreement was reached, and each company went its own way.

A little later it came out that the Pennsylvania had secured an option on the Arcade building at the corner of Broad and West Grand streets, south of the Pennsylvania's tracks, and separated therefrom by a small triangular piece of land. The Arcade building would give the company a conspicuous approach from the main thoroughfare of the town. The idea is to erect a fine station that would outshine the Central and induce the public to travel by the Pennsylvania. The company would construct a corridor leading back to the tracks.

The Central answered this move by choosing a plot of ground as far away as possible from the Pennsylvania, north of its own tracks, and reached from Morris avenue. It has got an inkling of the kind of building that the Pennsylvania thinks of erecting, and it is preparing something still more gorgeous. So, if the two companies don't come to an understanding, Elizabeth will be favored above most towns of its size. If two stations are built, the triangle where the present union depot stands will be vacated.

HOPE FOR HACKENSACK MEADOWS.

Farmer Wagener's Plan to Transform Them Into a Floral Bower.

Jeptha A. Wagener, the New Jersey fertilizer magnate, who may be seen on the streets of Plainfield, where everybody knows him, nearly every day, and who recently brought "friendly suit" against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company for $50,000 damages for assaulting a citizen whose life "was worth many millions of dollars to the American nation", went down to Exchange place, New York city, again last Tuesday to consult with President Sloan about the project of turning the refuse of the Hackensack meadows into gold bars by converting the refuse into fertilizing and selling it to farmers.

Farmer Wagener has a very unique scheme. It is a plan for the construction of an elaborate system of sewers to convey the refuse from the meadows to Hoboken, where it can be transformed into fertilizing material and distributed to purchasers. A series of bridges is included in the plan, a description of which, accompanied with drawings, Mr. Wagener sent some time ago by mail to Secretary of State Blaine. Farmer Wagener's purpose in going down to Exchange place was to convey to President Sloan the good news that Secretary Blaine had written to him that he would give the scheme consideration when he had leisure.

"There's millions in this project,"—the farmer said—"and there's no mistake about it. Besides, it will convert the odoriferous meadows into a garden spot in time. That is rich soil, the precious part of which, as I wrote you before, is thrown now into the great deep and forever wasted. When we have made a fortune out of what can be utilized, the ill-smelling tract of meadows can easily be transformed into a floral bower, or a big peach orchard, or any one of a number of things of agricultural beauty."

President Sloan is understood to have said that he would wait until Secretary Blaine pronounced an opinion on the feasibility of the farmer's plan before he would promise any co-operation in the scheme. He cheerfully admits, however, that, in common with several hundred thousand travelers with healthy noses, he would be delighted to see the offensive meadows transformed into a garden spot, or a floral bower, or anything else of agricultural beauty and utility.

The power of imagination is certainly very strong, but it takes something with more of a body and base to cure a cold or cough. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is now the great national remedy.

THE WOES OF "CABBY."

Innumerable Hardships Are His to Bear.

He Is Subjected Alike to Disagreeable People and Inclement Weather and Is Poorly Paid for His Services.

"Talk about a policeman's lot being 'an unhappy one,'" said a veteran hack driver the other evening to a New York Herald man, "well, you can lay large, gloomy and peculiar wagers that I will swap lots with any police man on the east or west side—or, for that matter, with any one of the squad in the toughest district in the city. I guess you don't know what we drivers have to put up with, or the great difference in the kind of parties we have to drive. Why, before now I have had parties take me at the Astor house and give me an order to drive them to Fifty-ninth street, and when I would get out at the address given me I would climb off the box to open the door for my passenger and collect my fare, when, lo! presto, change! the hack would be empty. The Lord knows where my freight got out, but most probably somewhere between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. I don't see how they do it so quietly, for it makes some noise to open a hack door and takes some practice to jump out safely. But they do it somehow, and I suppose it is partly due to our getting tired and sleepy with our day's work.

"Then, I sometimes run across a hard crowd, and when I try to collect at the end of the route they 'give me the laugh,' and I know that if I insist I will only get half killed. Policemen are never near, either. Oh, I don't blame them, for if I was one I would hide, too.

"Another thing that troubles a driver awfully is waiting—waiting, perhaps in a pouring rain—for a man never went into a house yet without saying that he would be out in a few minutes. And you never can tell when they will come, either. If they would only say how long in the first place, it would be easier, for then you could drive off to some convenient spot, or else curl up and go to sleep quietly inside, in case the gentleman didn't give you a cigar to comfort you. And, speaking of cigars, it is astonishing how few fees drivers get. A man will fee his waiter, his barber, his porter, his chambermaid or any people in such employment, but he seldom thinks of offering the driver anything but a cigar or a drink. Yet a driver has a hard time, and his wages are not large, either, to say nothing of the responsibility resting on him in the way of careful driving, finding the way, etc.

"Still, I have known people to give me money occasionally, and in this line I think actors are more generous than others. There is one lady in particular—the wife of a star actor—who never fails to give me at least fifty cents over and above the fare I have to turn in to the boss. I never enjoy shopping except when I go with her.

"Speaking of ladies, I suppose they are worse than anybody else at keeping you waiting. The trouble with them is that they get as far as the door of a house and there they stand. Why, I have jumped up and down off my box a dozen times just because every time my fare opened the house door she would close it again and continue her conversation. Of course it fooled me, as I wanted to be ready to open the carriage door for her.

"Theater parties and parties who want to be taken to the stations are pretty good jobs, as the distances are almost always short and direct and there are generally several in the party. Another thing a driver has to do is to use judgment as to how he drives, according to the party inside and the occasion. Often have I had a young fellow press fifty cents into my hand when I would be driving him home from the theater with his girl and whisper: 'Drive slow as you can, please, and go a long way.' Well, sir, perhaps those same people would take me again a year or two afterward, and I could tell they were married, because the fellow would put her in the carriage and shut the door, saying: 'Good night, dear; will be home soon. I just want to look in at the Hoffman house; business engagement. Man takes an early train; be up in half an hour.'

"When you are driving swells home from the theater with their wives you want to drive fast, you know, so that they can get back to their clubs at a decent hour. Everyone knows that you want to go slow at funerals and fast to trains, but for the little fine details a driver has got to have judgment.

"What's that? Well, thank you, sir, don't care if I do. Very much obliged. Good night, sir, and please don't mention my name."

Could Not See Beyond His Nose.

Volkhovsky, a Russian exile, while lecturing at Hampstead, Eng., related a desperate artifice to which he once resorted. A police official once searched his home for compromising papers. At the time there was in his possession a certain document the discovery of which meant serious danger, not only to himself, but also to his friends. Volkhovsky was desperate, for it was quite certain that the document would be found. But a daring trick saved him. He coolly handed the document to the official, who scarcely glanced at it and handed it back. Thus, after the most minute search, the official, his nose blackened with soot and his hair decorated with feathers—for he had even examined the stovepipes and the bedding—had to depart empty-handed.

Winter in Finland.

Finns have to battle with the hardness of Arctic winter from November until May, and the ice during this dark period blocks all trade with foreign countries. To remedy this the Finnish government has had an ice-breaker specially constructed strong enough to force the severest of ice, and, although it cost upwards of 1,000,000 marks, the Finns do not regret the money.

AN ORDINANCE

Locating the tracks of The Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars.

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and they are hereby located pursuant to the route designated in their articles of incorporation in the following streets and avenues of the city of Plainfield, to wit:

Beginning at a point in Somerset street at the line of North Plainfield Township and running therein southerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue to Sixth street, thence through Sixth street westerly to Plainfield avenue, thence through Plainfield avenue southerly to Seventh street, thence through Seventh street westerly to Monroe avenue, thence through Monroe avenue northerly to Fourth street, thence through Fourth street easterly to Grant avenue, and thence through Grant avenue northerly to Front street, thence through Front street easterly to Park avenue, thence through Park avenue southerly to North avenue, thence through North avenue northerly to Peace street.

And said street railway company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its street railway in said streets within the city of Plainfield. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed by said company with the City Clerk and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

Section 2. That the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a double track street railway in Front street from Grant avenue to Park avenue, and in the other streets and avenues and portions thereof above designated, the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track street railway to be laid upon the middle line of the street (except when by ordinance the Common Council shall otherwise expressly determine) with suitable turnouts and switches; provided that no turnout shall be more than one hundred and fifty feet in length or within five hundred feet of any other turnout on the same street and provided also, that every turnout shall be laid equally on each side of the middle line of the street.

Section 3. Said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the committee on streets, the paving or other surface material of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks, and in addition shall so keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks; or, if not so kept and maintained, the repairs thereto may be made by or under the direction of said Committee on Streets and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall be paid, on demand by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets, or a majority of them, shall give at least ten days' notice, in writing, of their intention to make such repairs; the said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Section 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any or either of them, be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush alongside the said tracks, in any street or streets, in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when removing such snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks, the said company or its said officers, servants, agents or employes, shall cause the same to be immediately leveled between said track or tracks and the gutter lines on each side thereof; under a penalty of twenty dollars to be paid by said company, or by any of its said officers, servants, agents or employes so offending to said city, for each and every offense.

Section 5. The rails to be used for said railway shall be of steel, and shall be of the best and most approved quality and pattern of side bearing rails, of not less than 60 pounds to the yard, and the sleepers, ties, chairs and spikes shall severally be of the best quality of their respective kinds; and both material and workmanship shall be subject to the inspection and approval of the committee on streets; and said railway shall not be operated for the transportation of passengers, or fares be collected thereon, until such approval and acceptance by said Common Council, or a majority of them.

Section 6. The company shall, in laying its tracks, switches and turn-outs, conform in all cases, to the grade lines of the streets, as now established, or as they may be hereafter changed or established by the Common Council and said company shall in case of any such change of grade, conform thereto, and alter such tracks, switches and turn-outs at their own expense, and without unnecessary delay, and under the direction of said committee on streets; or, in case of default, the said committee on streets shall make such a change, or cause the same to be made, and the expense thereof shall be paid, on demand, by said company to said city; provided ten days' notice of the committee's intention to make such change shall be given, and served in the same manner as in case of repairs as aforesaid.

Section 7. In passing over the gutters of any cross street where the bottom of such gutters is or may be below the grade line of such railroad, the rails shall be securely laid and fastened upon iron bridges of the most approved pattern; and such bridges shall be extended on each side of the track or tracks to the gutter line of the street in which said track or tracks is or are laid; the bridges and work to be subject to the inspection and approval of said Committee on Streets, in every particular.

Section 8. During the construction of said railroad, no unnecessary hindrance or obstruction to ordinary travel upon any such street or streets, shall be permitted; and if any accident or other casualty shall happen or occur at any time, to any person or property, because or by reason of any work connected with such construction of said railroad or afterward because or by reason of any operation thereof, or through the carelessness or negligence of any of the company's officers or servants, agents or employes, the said company shall be liable therefor, and shall indemnify and save said city harmless from all cost, loss or damage by reason thereof.

Section 9. No car belonging to said company shall be allowed to stand in or obstruct any cross street, or to stand upon any cross-walk, for any purpose or purposes whatsoever; nor to stand or remain in any one position, upon any street, for more than five minutes at one time; except when said car shall be unavoidably obstructed or detained without the fault or negligence of said company, or any of its officers, servants, agents or employes under the penalty of five dollars to be paid by said company to said city; for each and every offense, and that any stopping to take up or let off passengers at any street crossing shall in all cases do so upon the far side of such street crossing.

Section 10. The said city reserves the right to dig or excavate in or upon any such street in which said railroad shall be so constructed for the purpose of laying, examining, repairing or replacing any water or sewer pipe or other pipes or making or shutting off any connection therewith, or for the purpose of making any other public improvement, or of doing any other public work of any kind whatsoever; and the said company shall not have any recourse against said city therefor, for damages or otherwise, because of any detention or obstruction to the travel upon said railroad arising therefrom.

Section 11. If the said company shall fail to build or complete the whole of said railroad, with its said turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and to put the same in full and complete operation for the transportation of passengers, within one year next after the passage of this ordinance, or shall afterwards fail or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid, daily and every day for the space of three months, all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them, of said company, their successors or assigns, under and by virtue of this ordinance, shall thereupon cease and be determined, and this ordinance shall become null and void, so far as the grant of any such right, power or privilege to said company is concerned; and in either of such cases, the Common Council expressly reserves the right to cause the said railroad, or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets, or any of them, and to sell and dispose of the materials thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets and of restoring the same as nearly as possible to its or their original condition to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company, or its successors or assigns; provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement, signed by the City Clerk, and published in one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

Section 12. That the cars shall be of the pattern known as the vestibule cars, they shall be lighted by electricity and properly heated in winter, and shall be similar in construction and design to the cars of the Rapid Transit Street Railway Company of the city of Newark, N. J. The company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other approved gearing, and shall have proper bells or gongs, and shall be run at a speed of not more than twelve miles an hour.

Section 13. That the cars to be used on said railroad shall be propelled by electricity supplied by overhead wires; that the poles necessary for the overhead electric construction shall be of steel and they shall be placed between curb lines and sidewalk, opposite each other and shall be located as nearly as may be one hundred and twenty-five feet apart. The trolley wire shall be properly guarded so as to prevent other wires coming into contact therewith. The current used by said company to propel its cars shall not exceed five hundred volts.

Section 14. That the fares charged for the transportation of passengers over the said railway within the city of Plainfield, shall be as follows: Children under four years of age, free; children over four and under ten years of age not occupying seats required by other passengers, three cents; all others, five cents. School tickets shall be sold for three cents to all children actually attending school, and to all teachers engaged in teaching school within the city of Plainfield.

That said company shall maintain a system of transfers for a continuous ride within the city limits for a single fare on all lines now or hereafter owned or operated by said company, and also to give and receive like transfers to and from all the lines of other street railways upon any equitable basis that can be agreed upon by said companies. And in case of failure of any two of said companies to agree upon any such equitable basis of transfer, the question shall be submitted to arbitrators, one to be chosen by each of the disagreeing companies, a like number by the Common Council of the city of Plainfield, and a fifth by those so chosen, the decision of a majority of such arbitrators to be final and conclusive and binding upon each of the companies.

Section 15. That no license fee shall be charged for the running of the cars of the said company for the period of five years from the date of the adoption of this ordinance; that for each and every year next following said first term of five years there shall be paid to the city a license fee of twenty dollars per annum for every car operated by said company.

Section 16. That the cars of the said company shall be run under the following minimum headway, between six A. M. and ten A. M. fifteen minutes; between ten A. M. and three P. M. thirty minutes; between three P. M. and eight P. M. fifteen minutes; between eight P. M. and midnight thirty minutes. The said headway to be reduced as the service requires. Said company shall run its cars in both directions along all portions of its route so that there shall be an equal number of trips each way daily.

Section 17. That when any improvements or other method of furnishing the power for the propulsion of cars by electricity shall have been determined to be a practical success by a commission consisting of three electrical engineers, one to be selected by the Common Council, one by the said company, and the third by the two so chosen, such company shall within six months after the passage and approval by the Common Council requiring the same to be done, and notice thereof given to said company adopt such improvements or take down their overhead construction, and substitute therefor such improvements or new methods of propulsion; provided such commission may be appointed at any time the Common Council may by resolution require, and the said company shall appoint its representative within thirty days after the adoption of such resolution, or forfeit the permission hereby given; and if such commission shall report in favor of the adoption of such improvements or method for propulsion of cars by electricity hereby permitted, another commission or commissions may be appointed as often as the Common Council may require in the same manner and subject to the same conditions.

Section 18. In case such substitution is made, or the said company shall forfeit the permission hereby given by refusal to appoint a member of the commission as in the last section provided for, the Common Council may order the poles and overhead construction of the said company taken down, and the said company shall within ninety days from the service of such order upon the President or any director of said company take down and remove such poles and overhead construction, and restore the pavement of the street or streets to its original condition within that time. In case the poles and overhead construction are not removed or the street restored to its original condition by any company within ninety days from the service of such order, the same shall be done by the Street Commissioner, at the expense of said company, and the company shall in that case pay all expenses connected therewith on demand, and in case the city shall remove such poles and overhead construction, the same shall thereupon become and be the property of the city.

Section 19. That said company upon the final adoption of this Ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby shall as a condition precedent file with the City Clerk of the city of Plainfield a contract to be executed by said company and duly approved by the Corporation Counsel wherein said company covenants and agrees with the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield to abide by and perform all the matters and things herein on the part of said company to be observed, kept and performed, that it will, at any and all times hereafter fully indemnify and protect the city of Plainfield of and from any and all suits, actions and proceedings that may be brought and maintained by or sought to be brought and maintained, by any person or corporation for, on account of or by reason of, the adoption or maintenance by said company, its successors or assigns of said electric railroad, or the construction or maintenance of said electric system, or anything connected therewith, or any act of omission or commission by said company, its successors or assigns or its agents or servants, at any time or times, and shall whenever requested by said city, fully defend any and every such action, suit or proceeding.

Section 20. That said company shall also at the same time herein above specified for filing said contract file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the Common Council and corporation counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained on part of said company to be kept, observed or performed. And in case the conditions or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted, to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made in the streets of the city by the said company, its successors or assigns.

Adopted by the Common Council April 21, 1891.

Approved by the Mayor April 27, 1891.

A. GILBERT, Mayor.

Attest—JOSEPH B. COWARD, City Clerk.

THE MARQUIS AGAIN WRONG.

No Confidence Violated by Publishing the Dispatch from Rome.

Fac-Similes of the Telegram Forwarded to Minister Porter—Washington Attaches Very Little Weight to Rudini's Reply—Marquis Imperiali Extremely Reticent—The Next Step to be Taken.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The following dispatch has been sent by Secretary Blaine:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, May 5, 1891.

Porter, American Minister, Rome.

A series of statements addressed to the Marquis Imperiali by the Marquis Rudini was telegraphed from Rome yesterday and published by the press of the United States. The only part of the Marquis Rudini's communication which this government desires to notice is the one here quoted namely:

"I have now before me a note addressed to you by Secretary Blaine, April 14. Its perusal produces a most painful impression upon me. I will not stop to lay stress upon the lack of conformity with diplomatic usages displayed in making use, as Mr. Blaine did not hesitate to do, of a portion of a telegram of mine communicated to him in strict confidence, in order to get rid of a question clearly defined in our official documents, which alone possesses a diplomatic value."

The intimation of the Marquis Rudini that the telegram in question was delivered in strict confidence is a total error. As the telegram expressed the demand of the Italian government, it was impossible that Marquis Rudini could transmit it as strict confidence. As I have already stated, it was communicated to me in person by Baron Fava, written in English in his own handwriting, without a suggestion of privacy, and the telegram itself has not a single mark upon it denoting a confidential character. I have caused a number of copies of the telegram to be forwarded to you to-day in fac simile. The usual mark for italic printing was used by me under four lines and they appear in the copies. You will use the fac similes in such manner as will most effectually prove the error into which the Marquis Rudini has fallen. BLAINE.

ITALY'S LATEST NOTE.

It is Regarded in Washington as Intended for "Home Consumption."

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Premier Rudini's latest note to Marquis Imperiali has not, in the opinion of the State Department people, wrought any change in the Italian question.

Marquis Imperali was extremely reticent about the matter and would only say: "You must let the communication speak for itself."

State Department officials, while slow to express opinions, do not attach much importance to this last note. It is regarded here as intended simply for "home consumption," and to be used there for the purpose of inspiring the Italian people with the idea that their government is pursuing a vigorous and resentful policy.

While it is thought the relations between the two nations are not in the least improved by this latest Italian "caper," the great difference in the tone of the Premier's first note, which embodied a demand and an ultimatum, and his latest, which suggests a grievance and a protest, is freely commented upon in diplomatic circles, and leads many to hope for more satisfactory relations between the two countries before long.

The next step taken by this government in the matter will probably be a communication from Secretary Blaine to Imperiali, based on the report of the District Attorney at New Orleans in regard to the nationality of the men killed in the New Orleans prison.

Praise for Ex-Senator Blair.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The Woman's National Industrial League of America, of which Charlotte Smith is president, has adopted resolutions in which the refusal of the Emperor of China to receive ex-United States Senator Blair as Minister is spoken of as "the highest compliment that could be bestowed upon a citizen of the United States." The resolutions then heartily endorse Mr. Blair for his earnest advocacy of the Chinese exclusion act and for his zealous efforts while in the Senate in behalf of the industrial classes—the workingmen and women of the country.

Will Go to Cape May Point.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—When the President and Mrs. Harrison return from their Western trip they will then take up their residence at Cape May Point. Before leaving for the West Mrs. Harrison gave orders as to the improvements she wished made on the residence and grounds. It is Mrs. Harrison's intention to have a number of improvements and changes made in the White House during her absence. The President will spend as much of his time as possible at Cape May Point.

Justices Field and Bradley to Retire.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—It is positively stated that Associate Justices Field and Bradley, both of whom have passed the age which entitles them to retire on full pay, will resign in October, when the Supreme Court will resume the hearing of oral arguments. Justice Bradley's place, it is believed, will be taken by ex-Senator Edmunds, and some Western jurist will be chosen to succeed Justice Field.

National Association of Machinists.

PITTSBURG, May 5.—The third annual convention of the National Association of Machinists is being held in this city. One hundred and seventy-five delegates from Canada, Mexico and all parts of the United States are in attendance. Mayor Gourley delivered an address of welcome to which Master Machinist Cramer, of Richmond, Va., responded. The convention will be in session about 10 days.

Navigation Resumed.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 5.—Superintendent of Public Works Hannan states that every report coming to him from along the canal indicate that navigation can be resumed to-night. The indications are that the opening of traffic will be large.

THE BOTHWELL AUTOPSY.

Dr. Rushmore Found the Cork With the Wide End Up.

He found that the minister had died of supurated bronchial pneumonia caused by the closure of the middle division of the left bronchus. The cork was found lying in the lowes bifurcation of the left bronchus with the wide end up. The cork was half an inch in diameter and seven-eighths of an inch long. The lower end of the cork was broken, one-quarter of its circumference where the corkscrew went in and failed to hold. The upper end of the cork was also broken, probably before he swallowed it.

The lining membrane of the bronchus was found to be decomposed. Below the lower end of the cork the membrane was found to be all congested.

The burial will be at Paterson, N. J., to-morrow.

ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

A Classmate of Secretary Blaine Arraigned for Murder.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 5.—The trial of Dr. George I. Garrison for the murder of Dr. George Baird has been begun here. Dr. Baird was one of the leading physicians of this city and was at one time mayor. He was also Grand Commander of the West Virginia Masons and a member of the City Water Board. He was a classmate of Secretary Blaine and entertained him here in 1884.

Dr. Garrison was president of the State Board of Health. A feud had existed between the two men for several months. They met on the street on March 9 and after exchanging a few words Dr. Baird was shot and killed.

Yale Will Not Play With Harvard.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 5.—Yale has notified the Harvard baseball men that the Yale nine will not play the series arranged for the coming season because of Harvard's action in refusing to carry out the terms of the agreement made with Yale at their recent meeting at Springfield. The Yale managements, in their letter, state that Harvard agreed at the meeting to play Princeton, but shortly after the return to Cambridge of the Harvard men they cancelled the Princeton agreement entirely, and several important details of the full agreement. Yale, therefore, cannot arrange a baseball series with Harvard this year.

A Half-Million Failure.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The failure is announced of Jesse H. Lippincott, the sole licensee of the American Graphophone Company and president of the North American Phonograph Company, with preferences to the Rochester Tumbler Company of Pennsylvania for all just and legal claims now due to Harriet E. Lippincott of Pittsburg, Pa., $6,760; to Sarah H. Vance, $6,760; to Anna M. Lippincott of Pittsburg, $6,760 and to J. Adrian Bush of 10 Wall street, $5,000. The liabilities are estimated at $500,000.

Stabbed by Italians.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 5.—A serious stabbing affray occurred about midnight on the Boulevard near Beach avenue. Ad. McDonald, a carpenter in the employ of Seibel & McLean, contractors here, got into an altercation with a party of Italians. Blows quickly followed, and in a clinch which resulted McDonald was badly cut with a knife or razor. One of the cuts required 11 stitches and he now lies in a precarious condition. One of the supposed assailants has been arrested.

Kidnapper Elbogen on Trial.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The trial of the dramatic agent, August Elbogen, on the charge of kidnapping young girls, is now in progress. Anna Rackwog and the other girls allege that they were sent to the Royal Palace in New Orleans as actresses, and that the character of the place is bad.

"Old Hutch" Round East.

CHICAGO, May 5.—B. E. Hutchinson has left the city to visit his old homestead in the vicinity of Salem, Mass. His friends say that he will return in a week and recommence his trade operations, but the general opinion is that he has retired permanently from business.

Three Men Drowned.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 5.—Three men were drowned last evening at the outlet of Braddock's Bay on Lake Ontario. They were at work on the Manitou Beach Railroad building a drawbridge over the outlet. By some mishap the boat was swamped, throwing the three men into the water. Their names are Noel Sonst, Theodore Forbes and his brother John Forbes, all of Charlotte.

MURDER IS CHARGED

Three Bosses Under Arrest in the Coke Region.

STRIKER MOHAN SHOT DOWN.

The Prisoners Say He Was Killed by Pinkerton Detectives.

Car-Loads of Italians and Huns to Take the Strikers' Places—One Party Met With Revolvers and Knives—They Fled for Their Lives—Progress of the Strikes in Pittsburg and New York.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., May 5.—John Mohan, a Slav striker, lies at home dead as the result of a collision at Leisenring No. 3. Supt. Gray, Pit Boss Callahan and Yard Boss Agnew are in the Fayette County jail for his murder. They declare they are innocent and say the man was killed by Pinkerton detectives, who shot him down over their heads.

It appears that a number of the men working at the Leisenring plant were induced to join in a drinking bout, and for fear that they would not come back the three bosses now under arrest went after them. In the general row which followed Winchesters were brought into use, and Mohan fell dead with a bullet in his brain. A desperate fight was prevented only by the presence of a large posse of armed deputies.

The 18th week of the strike opened with more men at work than at any time since the struggle began. Five cars of Italians and Huns were brought into the region to-day to take the strikers' places. During a series of evictions at Broadford, Deputy A. W. Stanton flourished his revolver at the threatening mob which menaced the officers. He was promptly discharged, whereupon all the deputies went on strike for his reinstatement. Six of them were induced to resume the work of eviction, but the rest of them left for their homes.

The Frick Company brought 37 Huns from the Braddock Steel to the Redstone Coke plant. They were met by the strikers, who flourished knives and revolvers and howled so derisively that the Braddock men fled for their lives and left on the next train for their homes.

THE PITTSBURG FIGHT.

No Concessions Made by Either Side in the Building Trades Strike.

PITTSBURG, May 5. No concessions have yet been made by either side in the building trades strike in Pittsburg. The carpenters remain firm, while the Builders' Exchange held a mass meeting and discussed the situation. The builders' fight, it was developed, is being made to break the organization of the men.

To-day the tile-layers to the number of 150 come out for eight hours. According to the statement of the president of the Building Trades' Council, about 5,000 men will be idle in Pittsburg to-morrow on account of the building trades strike.

Citizens of the Coke Region Indignant.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 5.—The sensation of the week is the promised importation of 7,000 workmen from different parts of the East. It is said many of them will be negroes and Italians. The operators have little to say, except that they must run their plants somehow, while citizens generally are indignant that steady skilled labor seems about to be driven from the field by this threatened invasion of ignorant and by no means desirable laborers.

Malignant Typhus Fever.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Max Lippmann, a Russian Jew, 19 years old, a tailor living at 75 Suffolk street, has been taken to Riverside Hospital suffering from malignant typhus fever. Lippmann has been in the country two years, and roomed with four other men, one of whom recently came from Hamburg. Dr. Edson, of the health Department, said that he believed Lippmann contracted his disease from some undiscovered case of typhus, and also that there are several cases in the city which have not yet come to light. Every precaution has been taken to prevent the disease spreading.

A Case Like Dr. Bothwell's.

BOSTON, May 5.—A case, in many respects like that of the Rev. Dr. Bothwell, of Brooklyn, is being treated at the Massachusetts General Hospital in this city. The patient is Oscar Nills, aged 9, and the physicians are trying to extract a tamarind seed that the boy swallowed while at play Saturday. The seed is located in the left lung. Tracheotomy has been performed without success.

Bell Boys on Strike.

BOSTON, May 5.—The bell boys at the Quincy House have struck because their hours of labor have been increased without a proportionate increase in their pay having been made.

The Two Victims Dead.

PITTSBURG, May 5.—John Briggs, water tender, and Joseph Yorks, the victims of the boiler explosion at the Keystone Rolling Mill, died about 11 o'clock.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

Enthusiastically Received on His Journey to Northern California.

REDDING, Cal., May 5.—The first portion of the Presidential party's journey to Northern California was made in a mild rainstorm. The President rose early and was the only one of the party to greet the crowd that gathered at Tehama. He was enthusiastically received and shook hands with all within reach.

At Red Bluffs the party were loudly cheered. Captain Matlock, an old army comrade, introduced the President to the people. The President made a brief address, in which he referred to Captain Matlock and other Indians people whom he met in the State.

The train passed through Delta about noon, and at Dunsmuir the President shook hands with a large number of old soldiers and thanked the citizens for their reception.

To-morrow Night's Billiard Contest.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Great interest is manifested in the game of billiards to be played in Central Music Hall to-morrow night. It will be for the championship of the world at the 14-inch balk-line style. Upon the result will depend stakes of $1,000, and the first of the contestants to nip the 900th button will take the money and the big chunk of silver emblematic of the great title. Jake Shaefer now holds the heavy coin cup, having won it in a match against George Slosson last year in New York. On Wednesday night the "Wizard" will bring the emblem into Music Hall and give Eugene Carter a chance to carry it home after the evening's entertainment.

The Eight-Hour Demand Granted.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Nearly all the employers of striking mechanics in Brooklyn conceded to the demands made by the men that eight hours shall constitute a day's work and in some cases increases in wages. Those who have not completely settled the difficulty are the housesmiths. They claim that they have reliable information that several of the largest firms in the city have decided to accede to their demand, and are therefore in a hopeful mood.

K. of L. Delegates to Attend.

CINCINNATI, May 5.—Much surprise is caused by the announcement that the Knights of Labor in this State have ordered 400 delegates to attend the third party convention week after next, and that the order has done likewise in many other States. It is now claimed that 2,000 delegates will attend.

Nolan Ready to Fight Slavin.

CINCINNATI, May 5.—A reporter called upon one of the backers of Pete Nolan and was informed that Nolan would fight Slavin at any time for $10,000. The gentleman says that Nolan has five responsible backers, all of whom are willing to put up the money.

Died from Eating Diseased Pork.

MILWAUKEE, May 5.—John Runkin's sister died at noon from trichinosis, making seven members of the family who have died from eating diseased pork.

ALLEGAN, Mich., May 5.—A heavy snow storm is prevailing here. The wind is blowing a gale from the north.

AN EXCITING SCENE

The French Chamber of Deputies in an Uproar.

BITTER ATTACK ON A MINISTER.

M. Constans Called a Murderer by a Radical Deputy.

His Supporters Stigmatized as Varlets—The Chamber Compared to a Den Filled With Wild Beasts—The Massacre at Fourmies the Cause of the Attack—Women Thrown Into Prison in Chili.

PARIS, May 5.—The Chamber of Deputies was again the scene of a most exciting episode.

M. Constans, the Minister of the Interior, having replied to a question with regard to the massacre of workingmen, women and children at Fourmies, Department of the North, by the troops on May Day, was about resuming his seat when he was bitterly assailed by the Radical Deputy M. Ernest Roche, who, springing to his feet, shouted out at the top of his voice the word "Murderer!"

In the midst of great confusion the Chamber voted an order of closure and exclusion against the recalcitrant deputy.

No sooner had this been done than M. Roche, shaking his clenched fists at the heads of the Conservatives and making his voice clearly heard above the din which had now become terrific, denounced them in stentorian tones as "varlets worthy of their master." At this point the officers approached the furious Deputy and forcibly removed him from the Chamber, which was now comparable only to a den filled with infuriated wild beasts.

HORRIBLE SCENES IN CHILI.

Women Seized in the Streets and Subjected to the Vilest Outrages.

LONDON, May 5.—Buenos Ayres advices represent the condition of affairs in Chili as most wretched. Horrible scenes are to be witnessed everywhere, owing to the scarcity of food, consequent upon the neglect of agriculture and the general devastation caused by war.

In Santiago the greatest outrages are reported, no mercy being shown by Balmaceda's agents to any of those suspected of opposing him. Women of the highest families have been seized in the streets, thrown into prison and subjected to vile outrages. The British fleet, commanded by Admiral Hotham, has done everything possible to alleviate the horrors of the struggle, affording a refuge to non-combatants without regard to their party affiliations.

In Valparaiso bread has reached three times the usual price, and multitudes of unemployed workingmen wander meaningly through the streets. Continual arrests are being made of persons suspected of favoring the revolutionists, and their doom is at once decided, without trial or hearing, by telegraphic report to an order from President Balmaceda. Numbers have been shot simply on the President's order, based on a brief telegraphic report of the charges against them.

The insurgents are gradually gaining ground, and the loss of the Blanco Encalada only inspired them with new determination. They now hold the northern province as solidly as Balmaceda holds the middle and southern territories of the Republic.

Bricklayers' Strike in England.

LONDON, May 5.—In most of the great centers of England the bricklayers have gone on strike for higher wages. This being the busy season for the building trades the strike is causing great annoyance to the contractors and those employing them. Large numbers of men belonging to the associated trades are compelled to remain idle pending settlement of the bricklayers' strike.

Reviving the O'Shea Case.

LONDON, May 5.—Important information has been furnished by outside parties to the Queen's proctor, Sir Augustus Keppel Stephenson, during the last few days in regard to the O'Shea divorce case. It is stated that if the information given is correct, it is sufficient to call for the intervention of the Queen's proctor.

Police Watching Captain Verney.

LONDON, May 5.—Capt. Verney, M. P., is closely watched by the police, notwithstanding the high bail he is under. The evidence against him is said to be conclusive, not only as to Miss Beckett, but many other cases of abduction, and he is certain of a long term in prison.

Poisoned by Eating Cold Slaw.

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 5.—The entire family of John French were poisoned Sunday by eating cold slaw, made of cabbage, sour cream, vinegar, etc. Mary, aged seven, and an infant child, are momentarily expected to die. Their sickness began immediately after dinner, and was manifested by paleness, weakness and failing sight. Jessie, aged 12, and the father and mother are also seriously ill, but are believed to be out of danger.

Reception to Cardinal Gibbons.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 6.—A brilliant reception was tendered Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ryan last night by the Columbia Club of this city. The Cardinal received in the east parlor and was assisted by Archbishop Ryan and Bishops O'Hara, of Scranton, McGovern, of Harrisburg, and Phelan, of Pittsburg. The affair was most brilliant.

Passed the Wolcott Ballot Bill.

DOVER, Del., May 5.—The House of Representatives passed the Wolcott Ballot bill, which is a modified form of the Australian Ballot bill. The Senate will also pass it.

BURNED TO DEATH.

A Man and Woman Perish in a Rochester Fire.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 5.—While Edward P. Schafer was returning to his home at a quarter to three o'clock in the morning he discovered flames issuing from the two-story frame building at No. 148 Nassau street, occupied by Nellie Rosenbloom.

The flames had enveloped the entire interior of the building before it was discovered.

An alarm was sent in, and almost at the same instant Mrs. Muntaki and her son, who lived in the rear part of the upper story of the building, were awakened by the dense smoke, and although rendered almost unconscious, succeeded in making their way from the burning building to the street clad, only in their night clothes.

The front part of the upper story was occupied by Herman Ulrich and his wife. The first floor was occupied by Mrs. Rosenbloom's confectionery store. It was supposed that all the inmates of the building had escaped in safety.

Within a few moments after the alarm was sent in the department responded.

When the firemen had subdued the flames enough so as to be able to enter the upper part of the building by means of ladders they found the bodies of a man and a woman lying near together on the floor.

From neighbors the name of the man was said to be Herman Stephanski, but the name of the woman could not be ascertained, though it is supposed that she was his wife. The two were in the habit of drinking, and they may have been under the influence of liquor at the time of the fire. They had evidently realized the danger of their situation and tried to escape, but their egress was cut off by the stairway being in flames and for some unknown reason they did not succeed in raising the only window in the room. When their bodies were found they were burned beyond recognition.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Andrew Carnegie was elected a director of the U. S. Cremation Company in New York.

Pugilist Mike Donovan, of New York, knocked out Prof. McClelland in 40 seconds last night.

The tannery and currier shop of David Gassels near Anville, Lebanon County, Pa., were burned during the night. Loss, $10,000; partly insured.

The East Maine M. E. Conference met at Damriscotta, Me., and the final vote on the admission of women was announced. It was 47 for and 30 against.

Employes in the nail factory of the Brooke Iron Company of Birdsboro, Pa., have been notified that a reduction of 10 per cent. will be made in their wages on the 15th inst.

Sylvester L. Cleveland, aged 23 years, of Lawrence, Mass., was killed on the Manchester & Lawrence railroad during the afternoon, the buggy in which he was riding being struck by an express train.

Frederick L. Seiter, a piano maker, 36 years of age of 275 Wythe avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been ill for a year, committed suicide by shooting himself yesterday in the heart with a revolver.

The strike on the Steinway & Hunter's Point Horse Railroad at Long Island City, N. Y., is over for the present. All the men, 183 in number, are at work to-day, the superintendent having accepted the proposition of the strikers.

Senator Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., has been shown telegrams from every Republican editor in the district declaring him to be the unanimous choice of the Republicans in the district for another term. The Senator expressed himself as gratified, but said he was not a candidate for re-nomination and did not think he could be under any circumstances.

Edward E. Gedney and Frank B. Ingersoll, the late president and cashier of the defunct North River Bank in New York, have been arrested on a charge of perjury. The charge is preferred on a statement to the State Superintendent of Banks on June 14, 1890, in which the men both swore that there were $150,783.50 in the treasury of the bank at the time. They were held in $15,000 bail to answer.

Vote of Confidence.

PARIS, May 5.—The Chambers have voted confidence in the government by 356 to 23.

—Nineteen columns of advertising in THE PRESS again, yesterday. It has now become an almost universal rule of the people's, if you don't see it advertised in THE PRESS, don't buy it.

—Mrs. Florence Howe Hall will tell her "Personal reminiscences of distinguished people" at the Unitarian rooms, Second place, Friday evening at eight o'clock. Tickets may be had at the door.

—By a recent serious fire at Alfred Centre, N. Y., Clarence Titsworth, of East Fifth street, and other Plainfield students at Alfred University, were burned out of their boarding houses.

—On account of the granting of a license for a saloon in the Hand Building, Ivanhoe Council, No. 1,074, American Legion of Honor, has vacated its rooms at that place, and now meets in the Music Hall block, West Front street. At a regular meeting to-night several initiations will take place.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor of this city has been appointed to deliver the oration before the Beta Beta Chapter of the Psi Upsilon Society of Trinity College, Hartford, at the approaching fiftieth anniversary of their order.

Pleasant Evening With a Successful Lodge.

Easter Lodge, Knights of Honor, held a very interesting regular meeting last evening. Grand Lodge officers were present, and initiated a new member. A large delegation attended from sister lodge Wetumpka. Grand Dictator Jones and Assistant Grand Dictator C. J. Feytel, made addresses full of good advice to the order. They were followed by Grand District Deputy Sidney E. Flower, who made a humorous speech. E. C. Pease, Dictator of Wetumpka, made a happy address, as did Mr. Lewisohn of Wetumpka. Remarks were also made by Past Dictator, F. P. Haffner, of Wetumpka, and Past District Deputies John Seidel, Louis Breming and N. Giese, of Newark. Easter Lodge is well officered, and very prosperous.

The Way Our Neighbors Saw It.

(From The New Brunswick Fretonian.)

The Unions played their first game at Plainfield on Saturday, but the worst kind of base ball luck followed them and they were beaten. Our boys appeared in their new and handsome uniforms of blue and white, and have all the equipments of a first-class team. The Plainfielders appeared with a hired battery of well-known professionals, who are paid through the support given the home club by the citizens.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the sore nose is rapidly going.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

AN OIL MAGNATE DEAD.

Charles Pratt Dies Suddenly in the Standard Oil Company's Office.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Charles Pratt, the well known oil magnate and vice-president of the Standard Oil Company, died suddenly at 7 o'clock last night at the company's office at 26 Broadway. He had left his home in the morning in his usual health, but was taken ill with indigestion at 4 in the afternoon and died suddenly three hours later of heart failure. Mr. Pratt's last business act was to sign a check for $5,000 for the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.

Mr. Pratt was born at Watertown, Mass., Oct 2, 1830. At the age of 22 he came to New York and secured employment with the paint house of Reynolds & Devoe. He finally became a partner in the firm. He married the daughter of a well known oil merchant of Brooklyn, in which city he made his home. His family consisted of his wife and eight children, two daughters and six sons.

Large sums have been expended by him for educational and charitable purposes, notably the founding of Pratt's Institute at a cost of $1,000,000, and an annex to the Adelphi Academy, on which $160,000 was expended. Both these institutions are in Brooklyn.

Mr. Pratt's wealth is estimated to exceed $15,000,000.

Killed by a Fall.

OIL CITY, Pa., May 5.—Becoming mentally deranged from sickness Thomas Griffiths, aged 58, a well known resident of South Oil City, accidentally stepped from a second-story window about 4 a. m. and was killed.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, ver ted stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed two months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without, and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptoms.

MISFORTUNATE MISS MAYER.

Her Second Groom to be, Changed His Mind on the Day Selected for Their Marriage.

The latest matrimonial venture of Miss Addie Mayer, daughter of ex-Councilman and ex-Fire Commissioner Gilford Mayer, of this city, has proven even less satisfactory than the first. Everybody remembers her marriage to Edward A. Vanderhoof, the broker, shortly after her graduation from Miss Kenyon's Seminary.

It was a brilliant affair, the groom was a handsome fellow and making plenty of money, and, consequently, the bride was more or less envied. But Vanderhoof got in trouble, his income ceased, and so that clever lawyer Richard V. Lindabury procured a divorce for the young lady.

Then she issued some steel-engraved cards with "Miss Addie Mayer" on them, and plunged into society again. Rumors of her engagement to divers men of wealth have since floated about, followed by the news of her having been married last month to a New York jeweler by the name of Keim. But it seems that she was not married, though almost. A New York paper tells the story in this way:

The doors of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Madison avenue and Forty-second street, were swung open at half-past one o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 15, for a wedding was to take place a half hour later.

The contracting parties were to be John B. Keim, of No. 314 West Thirty-fourth street, and Miss Addie Mayer, the woman to whom he gave his heart last June. Sexton McCallister was busily engaged arranging the preliminaries, while in his study the Rev. E. Walpole Warren, the pastor, stood in his surplice awaiting the summons to come forth and perform the ceremonies. Slowly the hands of the clock approached the hour of two, and finally there came the bells intoning the appointed hour.

Rector Warren is exceedingly prompt himself, and when the minute hand had passed the hour he became restless. But the necessity for further waiting was abruptly ended, for there came a messenger who brought with him a letter. It told that the ceremony was to be postponed, as the bridegroom was sick. Dr. Warren doffed his surplice and retired to the rectory; the sexton closed the church doors and departed for his home.

There was another scene in West Forty-seventh street, the winter home of Miss Mayer, the promised bride. Throughout the house there was the scent of flowers. Miss Mayer, in her bridal dress, awaited the coming of the man she loved. Only the night before they had talked and planned of the future. Everything in life looked bright to them. There was not a cloud on the horizon of their love. They were to go to Fortress Monroe on their honeymoon, the railroad tickets were in her reticule, and within an hour they were to be on their way to the balmy South—man and wife, joined together for life.

BUT NOT HER LOVER.

It was within half-an hour of the time appointed for the wedding. The groom had not appeared. The bride, nervously looking at her jeweled watch, wondered as to what detained her lover. Impatiently she listened for the approach of a carriage. She listened and listened and the minutes sped on. It was almost two o'clock, when the sound of wheels was heard. At last he was coming. There was a flutter among the guests. Miss Mayer heard the door bell ring, and with the impetuousness of love and forgetting all about her worriment ran to welcome her lover. The door opened and she saw —Fred White, her intended husband's "best man."

Miss Mayer, as soon as she had recovered from her surprise and keen disappointment, inquired where Mr. Keim was. Mr. White, who looked as if he had been selected to officiate at a funeral instead of at a wedding, did not answer, but handed her a note.

She knew the chirography well, it was from her intended husband. Hastily she tore open the envelope and drew out the paper. There were only a few lines stating that Mr Keim was ill, and that he would have to disappoint her.

Miss Mayer, suspecting nothing, inquired if her lover was seriously ill if she could not go and nurse him. But Mr. White was strangely reticent. He merely said he had been requested to give her the note. That was all. Then he hastily left the house.

The parents of the bride, angry at the discourtesy shown their daughter, declared that they would not permit the marriage to take place unless they found that Mr. Keim was really very ill. The carriage that was to take the bridal party to the church was dismissed and the friends who had assembled to witness the ceremony dispersed. Miss Mayer took off her wedding gown and threw aside the fragrant bouquet that had been sent her only a few hours before by the man she had given her heart to. The fragrance of the flowers only brought her pain now.

NO EXPLANATION.

It is said that after a violent fit of weeping the girl went to Mr. Keim's house and had a long interview with him When she returned home her eyes were red from weeping. The next day the friends of the family were informed that the marriage would not take place. There was no explanation and none has been given out since.

The only excuse Miss Mayer has received from Mr. Keim was that he found it impossible to carry out his promise. Within fourteen hours he had changed his mind. He promised, it is said, to make an explanation that he trusts will be satisfactory.

TWO RUNAWAY BABES.

They Cause a Flutter of Anxiety in Several Happy Homes.

Two tiny daughters of Oscar Pearson, of Steiner place, North Plainfield, took it in their heads yesterday afternoon to go calling on their grandmamma, who lives on West Second street. As one is but three years old, and the other only six, they were not very successful in finding the way, and at half-past four o'clock they were the most miserable little tots in the city, for they were utterly lost, and were anxious to go back home. They were roaming up and down West Front street, near Liberty, sobbing as if their hearts would break, when two sympathetic young married women happened along and undertook to pilot them homeward. This was a far from easy task. The infants gave but meagre information in response to the questionings of their good Samaritans. The one said her name was Florence, the other sometimes called herself Mabel and sometimes Eva. The nearest they could get to their surname was "Powers"—and that was far from right. Their mamma's name—they said —was simply mamma. They called her that, and so did papa. The woman who lived next door was just a lady—and she had a nice new parasol. The lady did n't call mamma anything but just lady—not Mrs. What, but Mrs. Lady. Papa's name was Oscar, and he painted houses.

So, after drying the tears of the pretty little waifs, the two young women set out on a long search for Oscar who was a painter. The children insisted in going towards Evona—for that, they said, was the direction where they lived—and they cried when taken any other way. As they proceeded, the two children became very happy. The six-year-old was very reticent, but the younger tot skipped along joyously and prattled merrily. She was very sociable with her new-found friends, and they highly enjoyed her chatter.

"I won't show oo vere sister lives!"—she exclaimed laughingly, shaking her flaxen ringlets as she danced along the pavement.—"We is lost, an' oos uns has dot to find us. We won't help. It's lots of fun to play lost, 'speshully ven oo is weally lost for dood, an' don't know who oo is, or vere oo lives."

The two young married women trudged over miles of weary street, inquiring at house after house, and searching through numberless by-ways, for some one who could identify the youngsters. After a time the strays began to get tired, and had to be carried in arms. They had a toy baby-carriage, and that had to be carried too, so the two young married women had their hands full.

Near the Evona station a motherly woman who knew every soul in the neighborhood stated positively that the children were not from that part of town, though people all along the road had spurred the young women on by saying, "Oh, yes: we've often seen them about here; they must live but a few doors be yond". The motherly woman had her horse harnessed to her carriage, and had her boy drive the worn-out women and their charges back to town. The little ones were so tired that they slept, sheltered from the chill atmosphere by the young women's wraps, all the way back, and the young women were very glad of a chance to rest. One of the young women took the children to the shelter of her mother's roof-tree, and the other looked for a policeman. By this time it was nearly 8 o'clock, and two disconsolate young husbands were searching anxiously about for two young wives who were strangely absent from the dinner table, and of whom no trace could be found.

Police Captain Grant very soon found the children's father, when the case was put in his hands, and the little tots were taken away from a very nice supper over which they were prattling happily, surrounded by a group of women who called them little dears and little darlings, and were taken to their home, where a tearful and distracted mother clasped them fondly to her breast, overjoyed at their safe return. Their father and the neighbors had been searching for them three hours.

Some time after eight o'clock the two weary young wives reached their respective homes and by their presence restored happiness and tranquility to the hearthstones which their absence had saddened, and to the countenances of two worried young husbands returned the accustomed joyous smile.

It Will be a Great Game.

The Ivanhoes, this year's champions of Brooklyn, will roll the Crescent team here to-night. Readers of THE PRESS will remember that the other evening when the Crescents defeated the Echoes, last year's champions of Brooklyn, a member of the Ivanhoes was referee. He saw what the Plainfield bowlers were, so it is natural to suppose that to-night's visiting team will consist of the pick of the city of Brooklyn.

The Crescent team will be the same as that which defeated the Echoes, except that Davis will roll instead of Williams. The team is: VanWinkle, Davis, Thiers, Pellstreau, Rogers, Vail, Reed, Haven, Tesi, VanEmburgh.

The League members are particularly requested to attend with all their women folk, and encourage their bowlers in the hardest battle they ever entered into. The game will begin promptly at 7:30.

Here's our Card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

PLAINFIELD'S PLANS FOR PROGRESS.

Freight House, Water-Works, and Dogs, Receive Municipal Attention.

Just when the unsightly freight sheds are to be removed from the centre of the city is still a matter of indefinite futurity. According to facts which came to light at last night's meeting of the Common Council a new and very stubborn obstacle has arisen. Councilman Ginna, chairman of the special committee having the matter in charge, reported that the committee had had another interview with President Maxwell, and that official said that if the city would get possession of the property adjoining the freight yard the company would willingly vacate its own property there and transform the entire spot into an attractive park, with lawns, shrubbery and driveways. The owner of the property, however,—Mr. Ginna continued—refused to part with it for any ordinary consideration. The bulk of the land was devoted to a lumber yard, and unless the city would point out a similarly suitable, procurable site it could not have the present one—and even under such terms the price would be very high—certainly not under $30,000. Such a proposition—Mr. Ginna added—could hardly be entertained, yet the committee would like to be continued [and it was] in the hope that some adjustment of the problem might be effected.

In water-works matters another step forward was taken. Councilman Moffett returned to the Council the plans and specifications that had been submitted by J. M. Low & Co., of Kingston, N. Y., G. M. Dorrance of Philadelphia, and the Plainfield Water Supply Company. The committee reported that in their judgment the proposed contract should be given to Low & Co., and by motion of Mr. Moffett the matter was returned to the hands of the committee, and they were instructed to draw up, in connection with the Corporation Counsel, a suitable ordinance.

The proposed dog-muzzling ordinance introduced by Mayor Gilbert at a previous meeting and referred to the Committee on Laws and Ordinances was reported back, in amended shape, by chairman Rushmore, for adoption. Its provisions were that all dogs, male and female, permitted on the streets between June 1 and October 1, should be properly muzzled, and that dog catchers' fees should be fifty cents for each dog caught. Councilman Ginna thought that the ordinance already on the books covered the case; all that was necessary was to secure its enforcement. Mr. Ginna added that he was opposed to muzzling dogs anyway; it was—he thought—a sort of refined cruelty. Councilman Hetfield added that science had determined that rabies were not peculiar to any season, but as likely to be developed in winter, when dogs ordinarily are unmuzzled, as in summer. Councilman Rushmore explained that so far as muzzling went the proposed ordinance gave the dogs more liberty than did the existing one, for under that now in force the dog is required to be muzzled all the year 'round. The main purpose of the ordinance—he added—was to increase each catcher's fee from twenty five to fifty cents. No catcher would accept a fee less than 50 cents, and up to date the extra 25 cents not provided by law always had come out of the mayor's pocket. Fifty cents—he concluded—was little enough. No man could be expected to go around catching dogs and getting everybody mad at him for less than 50 cents a dog. The first section of the ordinance, shortening the period of muzzling, was lost. Councilmen Ackerman, Johnston, Rushmore, Smith and Spangenberg voted aye, and Councilmen Gallup, Ginna, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts and See voted no. The remaining section of the ordinance, increasing the dog catcher's fee to 50 cents, was passed, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Roberts, Rushmore, See, Smith and Spangenberg voting aye, and Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield and Moffett voting no. The amended ordinance was then adopted on its second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised, all voting aye.

Councilman Moffett, chairman of the special committee appointed to secure the passage of the Plainfield sewer bill in the Legislature, reported that the bill had been signed by the Governor, and requested that the committee, having accomplished its work, be discharged, which was done.

An ordinance amending the recently-passed street railway ordinance, merely correcting several clerical errors, was passed on its second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

In reference to the proposed widening and extension of Peace street, chairman Rushmore of the committee in charge reported that progress was being made, and that the committee were now in consultation with the Young Men's Christian Association and the Society of Friends, whose property would be affected by the change. The committee would—he said—probably be able to report something definite in the near future.

The liquor license application of James O'Neill was laid on the table, and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was instructed to give his opinion concerning the legality of some of the signatures on it. The ordinance provides that a signer to an application shall not have signed any similar certificate within a year. Mr. Marsh said that on first reading he was of the opinion that the intent of the law was that no signer should have signed another certificate within a year, whether the former application had been granted or refused, but he desired time to see how the courts had ruled in the matter. Some of O'Neill's signers, it seems, signed other license applications this spring, but the applications for which they signed were refused.

The sum of $100 was unanimously donated, on motion of Councilman Hetfield, to Grand Army Posts 73 and 109, for Memorial Day purposes.

A communication was received from L. V. F. Randolph, Lawrence Myers, Charles Hyde, J. T. Closson, and others, protesting against the rumored proposition to extend the electric street railway out East Front street, and announcing their readiness to resist by all lawful means such a scheme.

Ordinances establishing the grade on North avenue and East Third street were adopted on third reading and final passage.

The Council adjourned to meet again Monday evening, May 11, at 8 o'clock, in spite of the indignant protest of Mr. Ginna, who asked why such frequent adjourned meetings were held, and who said that never before in Plainfield's history had there been so many Council meetings, and yet the present Council was n't accomplishing any more than its predecessors. We might—he added—just as well stay in continual session all the time. The vote for an adjourned meeting was 6 to 5, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See voting no.

Westfield Also Needs Two Pitchers to Win.

Gregg of the Crescents was n't the only Central New Jersey base-ball pitcher that was batted out of the box Saturday. In the game between the Westfield Athletic Club and the Pingry team of Elizabeth, Sampson, who pitched up to the sixth inning for the Westfields, was getting pounded in a rather lively manner by the Pingrys, when O'Neill, their expert pitcher, was substituted. He was not batted very hard until the ninth inning, when Ayres and Fredericks succeeded in getting two-baggers. Fisher made two pretty hits for the Pingrys during the game. Howe and Diven were excellent in fielding for the Westfields, and Johnson hauled in some seemingly safe hits from the Elizabeth boys. The Pingrys showed the effects of well-disciplined practice, handling bat and ball well and running bases daringly, but with excellent judgment. But Westfield won by the score of 8 to 4. The players were: Westfield—McManus, catcher; O'Neill, short stop and pitcher; Howe, second base; Diven, first base; McLaughlin, left field; Johnson, centre field; Trust, right field; Sampson, pitcher and short stop; Wilcox, third base. Pingrys—Runyon, first base; Applegate, third base; Ayres, short stop; Fredericks, right field; Hedges, pitcher; Armitage, catcher; Pope, second base; Teal, centre field; Fisher, left field.

The game had many spectators, who watched the sport with great interest.

Gompers to Reply to Powderly.

LYNN, Mass., May 5.—It is stated here that President Gompers has prepared a reply to Grand Master Workman Powderly in answer to his statement in the last number in the official organ of the Knights of Labor with regard to the lockout of the union printers by the Duluth "Times." It is said that the reply will be issued next week.

A GANG OF BOLD TRAMPS.

They Feed on Stolen Chickens, and Sleep on Parlor Lounges.

A gang of twelve or fifteen tramps have made a rendezvous in the woods along the Central Railroad, between Westfield and Cranford. In the daytime they scour the country roundabout begging, and at night rob hen-roosts and commit other petty thefts. Last Thursday night they raided the chicken-houses in Cranford and took some valuable fowls. Their latest and most serious depredations occurred Sunday night in Westfield. By twos and threes they wandered about the town all day until the suspicions of some of the citizens were aroused and they asked Constable Marsh to question the men. He did so, but received only evasive replies, whereupon he warned them to leave the place.

One of the tramps went to Dr. Cooper's house during the afternoon under the plea of requiring medical assistance. The doctor being absent at the moment, the man was shown into the private office, but soon went into the parlor and made himself at home on the lounge. Miss Cooper went into the room and ordered the man out. There was fire in her eye, and he left.

Sunday night, at about 9 o'clock, two tramps went into the house of George Burrill, a colored man living on the "flats" and began to ransack the house and to tear things to pieces. Mr. Burrill was at church, but his son, about fourteen, got his father's pistol and fired two shots at the men, neither taking effect. As soon as the news of this affair reached the village there was much excitement, and a company of men and boys armed with revolvers and clubs started out to mob the tramps on sight. The absence of a leader, however, and the uncertainty about storming the tramps' headquarters, had a cooling effect on the crowd, which went no further than the railroad.

Several houses were tried during the night, but the bungling work aroused the occupants in time to frighten the marauders. There is talk of forming a vigilance committee for mutual protection.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

There May be an Extra Session.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 5.—Senator Donald McNaughton has returned from Albany, where, since the adjournment of the Legislature, he has been giving his attention to his bills which passed the Senate and are awaiting the Governor's signature. He said: "The matter of a special session is not yet settled, though, of course, from present appearances we will have none. There is a strong sentiment, however, for an extra session of the Legislature and it may be strong enough to induce the Governor to call it."

Sudden Death of Judge Angle.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 5.—Ex-Judge James L. Angle died last evening a short time after he had moved into his summer residence in the town of Greece, a suburb of this city.

Serious Riots at Huantla.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 5.—Telegrams from the State of Hidalgo state that serious riots have occurred at Huantla.

He Wants the Marked Ballots.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 5.—Chairman Gran of the Democratic Town Committee made a demand on Democratic Town Clerk Watson for the ballot box containing the 126 marked ballots, claimed to have been cast at the last election, and the cause of the Governorship conflict. Mr. Watson refused the demand, and said he would consult counsel before he surrendered the box.

Out for Nine Hours.

NEWARK, N. J., May 5.—Fully 500 members of the Journeymen Carpenters and Joiners' Union in this city, and at least 600 more throughout the county, have gone on strike for nine hours' pay for eight hours' work. About 150 new buildings are left in an incompleted condition by the strike.

He is Heir to $3,000,000.

LOWELL, Mass., May 5.—G. M. Gale, a painter of this place, states that he has received the information that he is one of the heirs to $3,000,000 of property in England.

Senator Call Gains Two Votes.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 5.—Senator Call's vote was increased on the last ballot to 52, a gain of two.

THE word "milliner" owes its origin to Milan.

MR. JOHN W. MASSEY, of Plymouth, Eng., formerly of Philadelphia, writes to the Record to suggest the word "televoice" as a substitute for telephone message.

THE law of evolution works in language as well as in other things. Twenty thousand words have been added to the English language in the department of biology alone since Darwin's discoveries.

THE latest linguistic importation from London is the verb "to finance," which is used to denote the process of furnishing funds for a financial institution. It is rather worse, on the whole, than "suicided."

"PSEUDOPATHY" and "pseudotherapy" have been added to the medical vocabulary by Oliver Wendell Holmes. The first of these words signifies the quack science of disease and the other means the quack method of healing.

The great popularity of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is accounted for in the millions of cures it annually makes. It has no equal. Price 25 cents.

AN ECCENTRIC ENGLISHMAN.

THE late duke of Bedford made the twelfth peer to commit suicide during this century.

BY the late duke of Bedford's will not only his body was cremated, but several boxes of personal clothing, besides boots, slippers and several walking sticks and umbrellas.

THE body of the extremely rich and eccentric duke of Bedford, whose recent sudden taking off caused a sensation in England, was incinerated in a crematory built especially for this one cremation.

THE late duke of Bedford sat in the house of commons for twenty-five years and in the house of lords for eighteen years, in all a parliamentary career of forty-three years, without opening his lips. His estate covered 118 acres in London, with about three thousand residences or shops.

THE late duke of Bedford was very much of a hermit. He rarely went abroad, and not one in a thousand of his tenants had ever seen him. His income exceeded £1,000 a day, and every morning he awoke to find himself richer than he was the day before.

ALTHOUGH the late duke of Bedford was cremated, when the bearers raised the coffin they found it as heavy as usual, the duke having left instructions that a piece of lead should be put into his coffin with a statement of the cremation, in case, if the coffin were opened centuries hence, there should arise some suspicion concerning his death.

WHAT I LIKE.

I like the gentle springtime
That comes with buds so fair,
When hyacinths and snowdrops
Breathe fragrance on the air;
When birds their nests are building
Among the budding sprays
Of lilac sweet and jessamine—
Oh, that I like always.

I like the summer evenings
When twilight falls around,
And silver rays of moonlight
Shine softly o'er the ground;
And perfumes from sweet roses
And honeysuckles white
Steal out upon the balmy air
All through the dewy night.

I like the golden autumn
When gathered are the sheaves,
And trees all decked with red and yellow
Are lovely maple leaves;
When nuts are strewn so thickly
Beneath the hickory trees,
And squirrels in the tree tops
Are swaying with the breeze.

I like the snowy winter,
When every twig that's found
Is pure and white and pearly,
And every where in the ground
Will fair, untrodden snowflakes,
And frosty is the air
That sends the white clouds flying
And scattering everywhere.

But what I like the best, dear,
Is you here by my side,
And know you think me dearer
Than all the world beside.
Though springs and summers come, dear,
And falls and winters, too,
I know your love will last, dear,
Till all the years are through.
—Vesta V. Ohlinger, in Old Homestead.

TAKING A BOARDER.

A Shrewd Husband's Method of Managing His Wife.

ONE day my wife who, by the way, is a capital homemaker, visited our friend, Mrs. Hopkins.

Now that estimable lady, being enterprising and thrifty to a remarkable degree, couldn't rest contented with her husband's liberal allowance of pin money, but must keep a few boarders, or "company" as she called them, in order to have a private income of her own to spend as she liked.

Of course she managed to fill my wife's wise little head full of the beauties of not having to depend on a sometimes forgetful husband for pecuniary aid, and also of not being obliged to render an accounting to him of expenditures and then be charged with extravagance or ridiculed for investing his money in needless "bargains" so tempting to a woman's soul.

Consequently, when my better half returned nothing must do but that she, too, should go into the boarder business and make money on her own hook like Mrs. Hopkins.

I argued against it in vain. I showed her there was little or no profit in taking boarders; that it would destroy the privacy and comfort of our home; that it would worry her to death attempting to please people always ready to find fault, and that her present work of taking care of our small family was all she was able to accomplish, and often more.

I told her she would be a slave to strangers' whims; unable to go out when she wished; forced to rise betimes in the cold mornings, and that, after all her trouble and expense in getting ready for the undertaking, the money she made—if any—would actually come from my pocket, for it would cost me more to run the house.

I informed her of other sanguine females who had started to make their fortunes by toiling for unthankful boarders, and, after a desperate struggle, had ignominiously failed, leaving their husbands overwhelmed with debts and themselves too shattered in health and nerves for any sanitarium to cure.

But the dear woman had an answer to every objection I raised and pointed triumphantly to Mrs. Hopkins as a knockdown argument against me.

She said I should allow her to develop business talents which might be very useful in case I died; that the profits she made would buy all her clothes, besides getting so many pretty things for the house and so save me lots of money; that it didn't cost any more to feed six people than five; that she would systematize the work so it would be easier, etc., etc., etc.

When she first started the crusade I knew in the end that I would be vanquished no matter how strong and right my reasons were against the boarder business.

But I wanted to put myself on record so, when the grand smash came, I could say: "Didn't I tell you so?" and get the credit of superior wisdom and foresight so necessary for a husband to possess.

I also wanted to gain time in hopes that something might turn up to prevent the rash act. I even prayed that the wonderful Mrs. Hopkins would make an assignment, or that her boarders would go on a strike before we got ours.

At the same time I had too much matrimonial experience to come out flat footed in opposition to the wild scheme and say decidedly "No!" for "when a woman will, she will you may depend on't, and when she won't, she won't and that's the end on't." No, indeed, I knew better how to manage a wife as the sequel will show.

After much cogitation I finally hit on a plan of action, and when all was ready I gave, to my wife's delight, a willing consent to try one boarder at first, making the provision, however, that no extra bills should be incurred in the stores and that the regular household allowance, with the board money added, only was to be used.

The look of joy and the kiss I got for being so good (?) almost made me sorry I had not consented before, though the cheerfulness and ardor my dear, little, unsuspecting wife displayed in preparing for the boarder made me feel mean when I thought of the deception I was about to play on her.

But under the circumstances, which I or no other husband could control (except by strategy), I felt justified, and eased my conscience sufficiently to maintain an apparent show of cordiality in the undertaking.

I had been to see an old college chum of mine who was a merry bachelor and right properly named Jack Stuffer.

In college he had been famous for stuffing—not his head but his stomach—and his reputation in that line had increased a hundredfold since. He was always hungry. A whole turkey to him was no more than a quail on toast to ordinary mortals. He had often eaten on wagers at the club and easily beaten, with two men against him. And his appetite was ever to be depended on, no matter what was set before him.

"Jack," I said, "I want you to help me. My wife is filled with the idea of taking boarders and making money out of 'em. I'm down on the arrangement, but I daren't oppose any longer. She don't know you. Now, you come and spend a week at my house—pretend you're a boarder, you know—and just clean the table at every meal; show her there's no money in the business, and—and I'll ever be grateful. The cooking, especially her pies, I guarantee to be A No. 1."

On the next Monday morning Jack's three trunks, two of them filled with bricks, came, and in the afternoon I introduced Mr. Stuffer as our new boarder, and we went into dinner.

If the minister had been there the table couldn't have held more, neither could my rosy cheeked, smiling wife have been more gracious.

Jack was beaming, and in spite of his huge size looked handsome as he entertained our little tot, Daisy, who sat opposite him at the table.

As for me I had to bite my lips in order to keep on a straight face for I knew Mr. Stuffer had purposely gone without his noon-day lunch to do justice to the occasion.

We had roast turkey, and I did the carving. Jack had finished a second liberal plateful when I saw him quietly unloosen his vest. He had already emptied the bread plate, eaten half the butter and sugar, besides playing havoc with the vegetables, etc. He was beginning to attract my still radiant wife's attention, likewise Miss Daisy, who, I was afraid, would embarrass her mother by speaking the wonder that her big eyes showed at the grand appetite before her.

Giving a sly wink at me and with a most innocent, matter of fact manner, Mr. Stuffer passed his plate for a third supply of turkey which I cut so as to leave nothing but its skeleton, while my poor wife handed over the balance of the vegetables and things at her end.

The feat was accomplished. Jack had cleared off the table.

Then he commenced on the dessert, one pie, two pies, three pies followed the turkey—still our new boarder, chatting pleasantly and telling his mock experience in previous boarding places where his present dinner would be merely a "lunch," kept on.

My wife, growing nervous, in spite of her efforts to see nothing unusual, gave me despairing glances which I, of course, failed to catch, and finally, when the larder was exhausted, Mr. Stuffer laid down his knife and fork, and, after asking what time we had breakfast, withdrew with me to the smoking-room where, when the door was shut, we laughed wickedly at the apparent success of our plot.

It turned out as I expected. Before the week was half gone my wife came to me with tears in her sweet eyes and said the weekly allowance was used up and I must let the boarder go, for she plainly saw there was no profit in the business. After frightening her by saying we had engaged the boarder for a year and would have to feed him if it took our last cent and mortgaged the house, I offered to see what I could do.

Jack left at the end of his week, and no Mrs. Hopkins can ever again persuade my wise little helpmate to bankrupt herself and me with boarders—unless some one who don't understand the difficulty of properly managing a wife sees fit to "give me away."—H. C. Dodge, in Goodall's Sun.

A Society Scientist.

Gibbons (who has introduced the topic at a social gathering)—So you believe that the reserve of the evolutionary process is the true theory—that creation is a retrogression, not a progression. But what contemporary evidence have you of that in the organized life of the world, as we have of the other?

Morgan—I am sure I have seen a man make an ass of himself.—Munsey's Weekly.

An Intellectual Giant.

"Emerson," said Gilhooly, taking Hostetter McGinnis by the buttonhole and leading him to one side, "Emerson says that 'all mental growth implies a change of mind.' Do you believe it?"

"Well, I think I do. Emerson had some pretty good philosophical ideas."

"You do; well, old man Clamwhopper is an intellectual giant. He promised to lend me ten dollars and he has changed his mind."—Texas Siftings.

The Tale of a Dog.

Mrs. Blueblood—Have you any suspicion of what caused the coolness between Miss Fulldress and her former friend, Miss Waysup?

Col. Bluntly—It was a matter of gossip, and all caused by Miss Fulldress' poodle dog.

Mrs. Blueblood—Is it possible?

Col. Bluntly—I have it on good authority that the dog was a tail-bearer.—N. Y. Spirit.

Didn't Care to Meet Her.

Tramp (boldly)—I've got to get some clothes, madam, or I'll freeze. If you've got an old coat pass it out here.

Lady—There is one in the backyard which you may have. It's on a dead tramp who came here about an hour ago and tried to bully my new servant girl.

But the tramp concluded he could get along with the clothes he had.—Jury.

A Tangled Web.

He—And you went to Norway, too?

She—Yes.

He—Not very far north, though, I suppose?

She—(fibbing)—Yes, the remotest parts.

He—You saw the midnight sun, then?

She—No. You see we were always so tired we went to bed early.—Judge.

Beyond Belief.

New Rector (St. Fashion church)—I regret to find an alarming proportion of doubters among my parishioners, Mrs. Forundred.

Mrs. Forundred—What else can you expect? The Bible says that the Four Hundred, and the people outside of it, all came from the same parents. It's ridiculous.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Bar to Sociability.

Gilhooly—Are you going to be at the ball to-morrow night, Miss Esmeralda?

Esmeralda Longcoffin—No, sir, I shall not attend. I despise these large parties where everybody you know is present. It isn't safe to talk about anybody.—Texas Siftings.

They Must, or Stayve.

"Is there an anarchist living in this neighborhood? I want to get some laundry work done and the Chinese and Irish are all off at the parades."

"What are you talking about? Anarchists never wash!"

"No; but their wives do."—Jury.

How It Escaped Her.

Smiley—I hadn't been out of the house five minutes this morning when I found a five dollar gold piece.

Yonkers—Where did you find it?

Smiley—In my pocket; my wife mistook it for a cent.—Munsey's Weekly.

Not to Be Grasped.

"I cannot understand Cleopatra—she is too great for me to grasp," said Hicks.

"Well, I hope you won't try," said Mrs. Hicks, somewhat scandalized.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Doubtful Greeting.

Hobbs (wishing to hire a suite of rooms, and thinking his friend Gilshaw can assist him)—Hello, Gilshaw, you're just the man I want to see. I've been looking for a flat for over a week.—Boston Herald.

A More Important Point.

Jack—Amy, we shall have to elope. Would you marry without your parents' consent?

Amy—Of course I would; but, oh, Jack—how about the wedding presents?—Light.

A Hopeless Case.

The Typical Dude—I shall be very well off, you know, when I come of age.

The Sarcastic Girl—Yes, but you'll never be able to prove to a court that you are of age.—Munsey's Weekly.

At the First Slush.

Landlady—How do you like the butter, Mr. Bingster?

Bingster—(the new boarder)—I can tell better, madam, after we have known each other longer.—Judge.

Fatal.

Merchant—What is the trouble with your assistant? He never seems able to find anything.

Bookkeeper—The idiot has a system!—Munsey's Weekly.

TO BE TAKEN WITH SALT.

IT is said oysters ten inches long are found in New Guinea.

A BALD-HEADED eagle that measured nine feet from tip to tip was shot at Ocosta, Wash., a short time since.

A SWAN was killed in Trinity county, Cal., recently, whose wings measured seven feet when spread out. It weighed sixteen pounds.

THEY tell you of geraniums in California that grow so tall that you have to go up into the window of the second story to gather the flowers. And a woman in Michigan has a geranium four feet and five inches high.

THE San Diego (Cal.) Sun tells of a monster black bass taken with hook and line recently near that port. It weighed three hundred and eighteen pounds, and the catcher was forty-two minutes in getting the fish alongside a steamer.

A NEW HAVEN oyster grower reports that his dredge brought up an oyster with a shell eleven and a half inches long, the other day. Such an oyster as that, says the Norwich Bulletin, can never be put in with other oysters and sold by the bushel. He should be retailed at so much a yard.

A BEAR which weighed three hundred and seventy pounds was killed by Solomon F. Perry, of Ronceverte, W. Va., who had followed the animal back and forth over Sassafras mountain for thirty-one days. The bear killed eleven dogs. The bear's hide showed twenty-seven bullet wounds.

HOWARD COLEMAN, a farmer's boys, of Little Britain, Lancaster county, Pa., caught in a steel musk-rat trap recently, it is reported, a fine fish of the bass species, which on measurement was found to be thirteen and one-half inches long, and one pound six ounces in weight. The creek has risen during the night and the water flowed over the trap.

SAPIENT SAYINGS.

SOME men are like blotting-paper; they may bear the impress of a hundred good things and yet they are worthless.

IT is oftener the case, that what a man forgets educates him more than what he remembers.

IF a man could live a thousand years he would probably spend the last fifty fretting over what he might have done in the previous wasted time.

DIRECTLY one enters a room there is a sense either of cheer or the reverse. After leaving the apartment, one may not be able to tell how it was furnished, but everyone knows the effect produced.

THERE is no happiness in the world equal to that of blessing others. Not only by giving money to the needy, help to the sick, food to the hungry, is this blessing compassed; we gain it as we give it, by sympathy, by affection, by seeing that which is best in our friends, and shutting our eyes to that which is worst, by taking joy in their good things even when our own portion is scant and poor.

TOO MANY children never accomplish anything because they fear both their parents and their teachers; too many never succeed because they are made to feel they never can. Many a child who is full of animation and life and fun and happiness is made to hate his school and school books because his teacher does not take the time and trouble to study his disposition, and thus learn how to govern him.

CLAUDE WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK PATTISON SULLIVAN YERKES, of Allentown, Pa., thirteen years old and weighing one hundred and seventy-four pounds, furnishes amusement for the town by attempting to jump over a rope thirteen inches from the floor. He can cross it at this height, but when lowered a couple of inches he gets over, after many attempts, and gets a nickel for his pains.

The New Orleans Grand Jury Makes a Report.

THE MAFIA DEFIED THE LAW.

An Uprising of the Citizens Necessary Under the Circumstances.

New Orleans a Refuge for Italian Brigands and Cutthroats—Detective O'Malley and His Associates Held—Three of the Hennessey Jurors Were Bribed—Approved by the Press of the Crescent City.

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—The grand jury, who for several weeks have been probing the incident of March 14 last, when a mob of citizens of that town shot and hanged several Italians in the Parish prison, have presented their report to the Criminal Court here.

It is a document that has excited some interest and concerning which it was believed there would be but one outcome. It reviews the Hennessy case with elaboration and exactness, and analyzes fully the causes leading to the remarkable verdict of March 13.

The grand jury present indictments against six persons chief of whom is Dominic C. O'Malley, who in person is directly charged with what the grand jury termed the mistrial and unwarranted verdict in the Hennessy case. He and his associates are held for the alleged bribery of talesmen.

On the all-important and absorbing question of the Italian secret society directly charged with the assassination of Chief Hennessy, the report is direct, forcible and not to be misunderstood. New Orleans, it says, has been a refuge for Italian brigands and cutthroats, banded together in a society whose teachings are contrary to the principals of this government.

Law must regulate these transgressors; but where the law cannot do it, through the intervention of these secret societies, then the people must exercise their sovereign rights and "issue their decree of condemnation."

Thus the action of the band of New Orleans citizens who marched into the parish prison is justified.

The Mafia, it is declared, must be destroyed.

The grand jury furthermore reports that they have discovered that three of the Hennessey jurors, if not more, were bribed.

Press and Public Pleased.

Nothing in the presentment gives greater satisfaction to the citizens here than the denunciation of "La Mafia."

When the grand jury's report was made public, on all sides were heard expressions of approval. It was a forgone conclusion that there would be no indictments for the massacre in the prison.

It was anticipated that the Mafia would be denounced, but it was not expected that such vigorous language would be used in the formal document to go on the court records.

The press with practical unanimity approves it, and says that any other finding would have made the law ridiculous. It would then have been necessary to indicted 10,000 or more people. It would have been impossible to have tried them, more than impossible to have convicted them, and the result would have been to make the law a farce.

Minister Porter to Leave Rome.

LONDON, May 6.—A special dispatch from Rome to the Chronicle says it is reported that the American Minister Porter will shortly depart from Italy, leaving a secretary in charge of the Legation.

TO SETTLE CHILI'S WAR.

Minister Egan Instructed to Offer to Mediate Between the Combatants.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Patrick Egan, United States Minister to Chili, has been instructed by Secretary Blaine to offer to mediate between the combatants in that country in the interest of peace and good order.

It is said that France and Brazil, the other great Republics of the world, have joined in the proffer of their good offices in the interest of the perpetuity of republican principles of government.

Trade Relations With Canada.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 6.—The Senate Committee on Trade Relations with Canada met in the committee room of the Merchants' Exchange this morning. There were present Senators Hoar, Gray, Dolph and Hale. Evidence was taken upon matting, coal, lumber, live stock and marine insurance interest. The general opinion of those testifying was that free intercourse of trade between the two countries would be beneficial to the people on both sides of the bo der.

Bad Case of Leprosy in New York.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Dr. Blauvelt, of the Board of Health, stated to another physician that he had a case of leprosy in Oliver street. The address of the patient he did not disclose, but he said it was a very bad case, one of the worst he had ever seen.

Found Dead in Bed.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Capt. George Jefferson Smith, a familiar character in this city, was found dead in his bed at his home during the morning. He was 84 years old and a native of Nova Scotia. He served in the Mexican war, and was a private messenger for President Jackson.

Cal McCarthy Challenged.

NEW YORK, May 6.—A cable dispatch from London says that Nunc Wallace has issued a challenge to fight Cal McCarthy at 7 stone 12 pounds for $2,500 or $5,000, either in England or America, give or take expenses.

ENTHUSIASM IN OREGON.

Grand Receptions Greet the President in His Tour Through the State.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 6.—The journey of the President through Oregon was made in an almost continual rainstorm. This did not seem to dampen the enthusiasm of the inhabitants, however, and the President received a flattering reception at each place visited.

Albany was reached at 8 o'clock, where an enthusiastic reception awaited the party. The mayor made a brief address, to which Mr. Harrison responded.

Salem was reached at 9 o'clock. This was the principal visit of the morning, and the party remained there a little over an hour. The rain somewhat interfered with the programme, but the local militia, G. A. R. and the people were out in full force and received the distinguished visitors royally.

The programme of the return trip of the President, so far as decided, is as follows.

After stopping at Tacoma and Seattle he will go to Salt Lake City, stopping one day at Boise City, Idaho, then to Leadville, Colorado Springs, Denver, Lincoln, Neb., Omaha, Hannibal, Mo., Springfield, Ill.; Decatur, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind., and Pittsburg.

BIG FIRE IN PITTSBURG.

The Entire Fire Department Called Out at Midnight.

PITTSBURG, May 6.—A fire at midnight last night destroyed the buildings from 17 to 29 Seventh street, the Pittsburg Female College and Christ Methodist Church.

Among those burned out are the City Health Bureau, the Pittsburg Cold Storage Company and the Pittsburg Grocers' Supply Company.

The entire fire department was summoned to combat the conflagration.

The 60 boarders saved all their personal effects. They are now quartered at the Home Hotel on Duquesne Way.

The total loss by the fire is estimated at over $1,000,000.

DOUBLE KILLING

A Mad Lover Kills His Inamorata and Then Himself.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Ida Bervoort a concert hall singer at Excelsior Hall, No. 207 Bowery, was shot and killed by her lover, Wilbur Schoor, just before midnight last night.

The murderer shot himself in the right temple and expired instantly. Jealousy was the cause.

Killed in a Lumber Yard.

HOBOKEN, N. J., May 6.—A sad accident occurred shortly after noon in Mills' lumber yard. Nellie Wilcox, aged 11, had brought her father, Henry Wilcox, aged 28, his dinner, and sat down against a pile of lumber with him to wait until he had eaten it. A sudden gust of wind caused the pile of lumber to topple over, and father and child were buried beneath it. Willing hands soon removed the boards, but little Nellie was taken out dead, and her father was so badly injured that he will die.

Returned for Revenge.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 6.—It was reported to the police by John Murphy, a laster, that his wife's stepfather, who nine years ago assaulted her, when a child, and who was not prosecuted on his promise to remain out of the State for 12 years, had returned to town last night and terrified the woman so that her hair turned gray in a few minutes by holding a card up to the window, on which was written: "I have located you, and have returned for revenge." The stranger is said to have since left by train.

May be a Close Season.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Communications are again passing between the United States and the British government in relation to the Behring Sea controversy, and that, in consequence, the despatch of revenue cutters and Treasury agents to Behring Sea has been delayed, in anticipation of an order declaring a closed season in the seal fisheries.

The Philadelphia Bankers Held.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—Gideon W. Marsh, president of the broken Keystone National Bank, and Charles Lawrence, formerly assistant cashier of that institution, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Bell and given a preliminary examination. They were held in $20,000 bail each for a further hearing on Friday.

Canal Boatmen Discouraged.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 6.—It cannot be said that the opening of the Erie Canal was very encouraging to boat owners. The rate on wheat to New York was 3 3-4 cents, and not enough loads were offered to supply the boatmen that were willing take that low price.

Thrown Into the River and Drowned.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 6.—A. H. Mungar, who was in charge of a log drive, was drowned near Russell, the jam suddenly giving way and throwing him into the river with two other men, who were rescued.

THE BARNABY WILL

Dr. Thatcher Graves Gets the Snug Sum of $25,000.

HE IS NAMED AS SOLE EXECUTOR

Bennett, the Adirondacks Guide, Comes in for $10,000.

Relatives of the Deceased Are Given Various Sums and Grace Church of Providence is Made the Residuary Legatee—Denver's Grand Jury Investigating the Case—The Autopsy Criticized.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 6.—The last will of Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby has been offered for probate. It is dated January 8, 1891, and witnessed by Florence W. Worrell and David F. Rose. Several minor bequests of real estate to relatives and friends are made, after which the provisions of the will are as follows:

Ten thousand dollars to John Post Reynolds, cousin of the testatrix; $10,000 to Mr. and Mrs. Bennett of Blue Mountain, N. Y.; $1,000 each to Ann Earle, Mrs. Samuel Arnold, Theresa Cole and Mrs. Carrigan; $5,000 to her granddaughter, J. B. Conrad; $10,000 in trust to Edward L. Worrell of Chester, Pa., then to be paid to such persons as Worrell may appoint, $5,000 to her daughter Mrs. Mable Conrad; $5,000 to her daughter, Maud Barnaby; $25,000 to T. Thatcher Graves, M. D. After providing for memorial windows in Grace Protestant Episcopal Church of Providence, and tombstones for her father and mother, the residue of the estate is bequeathed to Grace Church. Dr. Graves is named as sole executor.

It is impossible as yet to say whether this will is to be contested.

THE AUTOPSY CRITICIZED.

Much of the Evidence to Prove Poisoning Has Been Removed.

DENVER, Col., May 6.—Prof. Headden, who is analyzing the viscera of the late Josephine B. Barnaby, called upon District-Attorney Stevens during the morning and made the following statement. He says:

"I received for analysis for arsenic only the following portions of viscera: A piece of the liver weighing less than three and a half ounces, the stomach, empty; one kidney, the gall, bladder, and very minute pieces of brain. The amount of viscera I have been given might make it very difficult to detect arsenic under the conditions which surrounds this case.

"It is unfortunate that I feel called upon to say that the contents of the stomach were not preserved. The kidney, which I received was cut open during the post mortem. This was entirely proper, but the coatings of the stomach were not examined to see whether they were inflamed or corroded. The liver should certainly all have been given to me for investigation."

The grand jury has commenced its investigations on the cause of Mrs. Barnaby's death. It will have a difficult task before it, since all the necessary evidence has been removed.

District-Attorney Stevens avers that the prosecution will leave no stone unturned, and will push the case to the best of his ability. He says that on the evidence to be presented to the grand jury indictments will be brought against parties least suspected of being in any way implicated in the affair.

THE COLD WEATHER.

Great Damage to the Fruit Crop Expected in Many Places.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 6.—There was a heavy frost last night and the temperature went down to 30 degrees. According to reports from fruit growers and market gardeners from the surrounding towns the fruit and vegetable crops were badly damaged. The frost was so severe in Irondequoit that it formed ice in places a quarter of an inch thick. Potatoes, beans, beets and peas will suffer considerably. Some of the farmers claim that the apple crop was more or less injured, as well as peaches, cherries, plums and pears.

Orleans County May Escape.

ALBION, N. Y., May 6.—The wind which came up providentially about midnight has saved Orleans county from what would have been a very serious loss. A press representative has interviewed several prominent fruit growers from various parts of Orleans county, and from all available sources it does not seem probable that there was a white or killing frost, although water was frozen to a considerable thickness and snow and hail fell.

Damage Done to Fruit and Vegetables.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 6.—The temperature at many points in Central New York fell to freezing point during the night. In Seneca County some classes of fruit are ruined. There was a heavy frost in Madison County at several places and fruits and vegetables were ruined. There was a light frost in the southern part of this county, and some damage was done to the fruit crop. It has been snowing at intervals all day.

Severe Frosts Along the Hudson.

RONDOUT, N. Y., May 6.—There were severe frosts along the upper Hudson last night. Reports received from the fruit belt state that the strawberry crop is badly damaged and that the peach and other fruits are slightly injured. Ice a quarter of an inch in thickness formed in the ponds.

Very Cold in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 6.—The temperature at Buffalo reached a minimum of 27 9-10 degrees between 5 and 6 a. m., the lowest ever reached at this station since 1871. Ice formed to the thickness of half an inch, and from all accounts the more advanced fruit buds are killed.

Fears for the Cherry Crop.

WINSTED, Conn., May 6.—It is feared that the cherry crop all over Litchfield County has been badly damaged by the frost which was strong enough to form ice on the pools.

Three Degrees Below Freezing.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 6.—At Shrewsbury the mercury registered three degrees below freezing at 6 a. m. Cherries and plums are in bloom.

STRIKER MAHAN BURIED.

A Large Crowd Present at the Funeral, but No Trouble Occurred.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 6.—The funeral of John Mahan, the striker who was killed at Leisenring, was made the occasion of a general massing of strikers. No disturbance occurred.

Superintendent Gray, Boss Agnew and Deputy Callahan, charged with the murder of John Mahan, had a hearing and Superintendent Gray was held in $4,000 bail, Callahan and Agnew were discharged.

The forces of deputies have been largely increased at several places, particularly at Leisenring No. 3.

Seventy Italian workmen have quit at Whitney's. They have left the region.

Alleged Murderers of McReynolds.

PATERSON, N. J., May 6.—John Christian and Frank Jones, two young men, have been arrested in the McReynolds murder case. Both men witnessed the murder, but claim to have taken no part in it. The Hobson woman, who was with McReynolds at the time of the assault, says that Christian looks something like the murderer, but further than this she will make no statement. The authorities believe that she knows all about the affair. A coroner's inquest will be held on Friday night.

Captain Norton's Will.

NEW YORK, May 6.—A petition has been filed for the probate of the will of Captain Francis L. Norton, who, in his small steam vessel, left New London, Conn., November 24, 1890, for Toulon, France, with his wife, niece and a crew, but from whom no tidings have since been received. The will is dated 12 days before the captain sailed. Mrs. Harriet D. Norton, Norton's sister, of Middletown, N. Y., is the only next of kin supposed to be living.

An Infant's Body Found.

BATAVIA, N. Y., May 6.—The body of an infant was found near the creek east of the water works last evening. It had been buried in a box and covered with quicklime to hasten decomposition. From its appearance it was probably born alive, and must have been buried about six weeks. No inquest will be held, as there is little chance of gaining further information.

Newark Bosses Still Firm.

NEWARK, N. J., May 6.—The carpenters are still on strike here. The bosses remain firm and refuse to comply with the demands of the men.

GOV. BOYD OUSTED

Nebraska's Supreme Court Removes Him from Office.

HE IS DECLARED AN ALIEN.

Ex-Governor Thayer is Now the State's Executive.

The Lieutenant-Governor Will Contest Thayer's Right to the Office—Great Confusion on Account of the Illegality of All of Boyd's Acts—Affairs Mixed Up to an Embarrassing Extent.

OMAHA, Neb., May 6.—After five hours' session in chambers the Supreme Court at Lincoln rendered a decision ousting Gov. Boyd and declaring ex-Gov. Thayer entitled to the seat.

The opinion, written by Justice Norval and concurred in by Justice Cobb, grants a writ of ouster against Governor Boyd and finds that Mr. Thayer is entitled to the office. Governor Thayer took the oath and filed the bond, and Mr. Boyd turned over the office to him.

The decision of the court is based on the ground that Mr. Boyd was not a citizen of the State at the time of his election. He came from Ireland with his father, but his father had neglected to take out his second naturalization papers.

Judge Maxwell, in his dissenting opinion, holds that Mr. Boyd, being a citizen of the Territory when it became a State, became a citizen of the United States by virtue of the Enabling Act.

Will Appeal the Case.

Mr. Boyd will carry the case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The decision of the court and the resumption of the office of Governor by Mr. Thayer closes, temporarily at least, the most sensational contest over the Governorship in which the people of Nebraska have participated. Mr. Boyd was the Democratic candidate for Governor last fall, being opposed by nominees of the Republican and Farmers' Alliance parties. Mr. Boyd received a plurality of the votes, but was kept out of the office for a time because the Farmers' Alliance men in the Legislature declined to canvass the returns.

There is Great Confusion.

As Mr. Boyd approved numerous acts of the Legislature, chief among which are a bill appropriating $150,000 for drouth sufferers, $50,000 for the World's Fair, and the vetoing of the celebrated Maximum Freight Rate bill. The legality of his acts in these questions have been recalled and the greatest uneasiness prevails in railroad and commercial circles. Nothing has occurred in the State's history to mix affairs up to such an embarrassing extent.

The confusion is greater in view of the fact that several other State officials have neglected their citizenship papers, supposing their military services secured their citizenship. Tom Majors, the Lieutenant-Governor, has filed a suit to contest Thayer's right to the office on the theory that the Governor's mantle falls on the next ranking officer of the State. Gov. Boyd had made numerous appointments which are now void. Chaos reigns supreme in Nebraska at present.

A PALACE OF MUSIC.

Secretary Blaine Attends the Opening of Carnegie's New Music Hall.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The musical festival in celebration of the opening of Music Hall, Andrew Carnegie's new palace of music began last night in the main hall of the magnificent structure at the corner of Seventh avenue and 57th street. The grand foyer was ablaze with electric lights. Ferns and tropical plants were placed at the entrance. Long before the hour for opening every seat was full, and the aisles were crowded. The audience was composed of the best people of the city. Secretary of State Blaine and his wife, with Mrs. Walter Damrosch, occupied a box next to Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie. The exercises opened with the singing of "Old Hundred." Nearly 500 voices were in the chorus.

The Kaiser Alone is Master.

BERLIN, May 6.—The Kaiser, speaking at Dusseldorf at a banquet, said he was anxious for peace, and would protect the rights of labor, but, he added, "I am alone master in this country—nobody else." He also said that he was satisfied with the conclusion of the commercial treaty with Austria. His remarks were supposed to be directed at Bismarck.

Demand Lower Prices for Bread.

ROME, May 6.—A serious riot occurred in Parma yesterday owing to the rise in the price of bread. The women in the city formed in procession and marched to the Town Hall where they demanded from the officials that the latter secure a reduction in price. Before the crowd could be dispersed it was found necessary to place a number of persons under arrest.

American Cotton Blamed.

LONDON, May 6.—At the inquiry into the loss of the Thanemore, the owner, Johnson, expressed the opinion that the vessel was burned at sea owing to the bad packing of American cotton, the carriage of which he considered very risky, notwithstanding American promises of better packing.

Influenza Continues in Sheffield.

LONDON, May 6.—In Sheffield the influenza epidemic continues unabated. Nottingham has also been attacked by the disease, and numerous deaths are reported. The Government "Whip" Mr. Sidney Herbert, is ill with the malady.

Buried Stones at the Soldiers.

VIENNA, May 6.—The women of Bekes were at the forefront of those demanding the release of the riot prisoners. They spit upon and hurled stones at the soldiers and bared their breasts, crying: "Cut us down with your bayonets! We will not move without our brothers."

VERNEY PLEADS GUILTY.

The Member of Parliament Will be Sentenced to Prison.

LONDON, May 6.—Capt. Verney, Liberal member of Parliament for Bucks, pleaded guilty to-day to three minor charges in order to escape the penalty involved in his more serious crimes. The court will sentence him to a term of imprisonment, probably without hard labor, and dismiss the rest of the charges.

This is done with the consent of the authorities, who feel that, as in the case of Col. Baker, who assaulted a young woman in a railway train many years ago, any conviction of the kind is a terrible punishment for a man in Capt. Verney's position, and will end his career in England.

There is, however, a strong public sentiment that no punishment is too severe for Verney. He has probably ruined scores of innocent young women by alluring them with the hope of obtaining respectable employment. But for the fortitude and resolute courage of Miss Nellie Basket, who had been selected as one of his victims by a French procuress, named Rouillier, Verney would yet be pursuing his wicked career.

Lord James Douglas Suicides.

LONDON, May 6.—Lord Douglas, brother of the Marquis of Queensberry, has committed suicide. While traveling from Ireland to this city Lord Douglas was observed to be acting strangely. The railway officials thereupon ordered a man to accompany him to London. On arriving at a hotel in this city the unfortunate nobleman succeeded in eluding the vigilance of his attendant. Later the body of the suicide was found. He had cut his throat with a razor.

Dynamite Explosion.

LIMA, May 6.—A terrific explosion took place here in front of the residence of a well known capitalist. It is said to be the work of the extremists of the labor party. A dynamite cartridge was placed on the doorstep. The doors and windows opening upon the street, with many other windows, were shattered. The explosion caused a great panic in the neighborhood, the most democratic quarter of this city.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The grip is raging in the City of Mexico. Two opera companies were obliged to suspend on that account.

The timber surrounding Halifax, N. S., is burning in at least a dozen different places. Great damage will undoubtedly ensue.

A fire believed to be of incendiary origin, destroyed the stable of Aguar Decker, in Elizabeth N. J., and two valuable horses were burned to death.

The stock of the Star Clothing Company at Worcester, Mass., was badly damaged by fire during the night. The building was but slightly damaged.

Frank Van Brieskie, one of the three men injured by the overturning of a ladle of molten iron a few days ago, died at the Troy, N. Y., hospital yesterday.

Michael J. Callahan was sentenced in the Supreme Court at Salem, Mass., to imprisonment for the term of 10 years. He was found guilty of killing James Lane in December last.

Bertha Young, (white), and John Russell, (colored), have been arrested at Altoona, Pa., for incendiarism. The woman confessed that Russell had started the fires and both were held for trial.

Perrin H. Sumner, of New York city, the unsuccessful identifier who figured so prominently in the Edgar mystery and the Astor House suicide, has been indicted by the grand jury for attempt at subornation of perjury.

The Hon. Thomas Coggswell, of Concord, N. H., who was nominated for Railroad Commissioner, has been rejected by the Governor's Council. The vote stood 4 to 1. The Governor will not, for the present, send in another nomination for the office.

Ten young persons while returning from a dance near Chester, O., tried to cross a mill-pond in a boat to save distance. The boat sank and only five persons escaped. The following were drowned: Miss Bertha McKain, Miss Lutie Ridenour, Charles Frank and Smith McDale.

John Langlands, of Hoboken, N. J., while suffering from an attack of delirium tremens, dove headforemost from the second-story extension of his boarding house to the stone flagging, twenty feet below. He was killed instantly. He was employed in the Pennsylvania railroad shops and was highly thought of.

During the night a bridge watchman at Gloucester, Mass., fished out of the Squam river a young woman who gave the name of Mary O'Donnell. She said she had been robbed of $60 and knocked off the railroad bridge by a man who came with her from Boston and whose name she does not know.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—For New England and Eastern New York: Fair; continued low temperature; northwesterly winds.

For New Jersey: Generally fair; continued low temperature; northwesterly winds.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Fair, except showers on the lakes; no change in temperature; northwesterly winds.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Y. M. C. A. election to-morrow.

—A remark in passing! Peck is always getting in new goods.

—There will be a devotional meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms, to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

—The Edwards Zouaves will meet for drill this evening. A full attendance is requested as they expect to parade on Decoration Day.

—Every room in The Albion was occupied last night and cots were put up in the reading room to accommodate the guests. The main dining room was overfilled and many tables in the annex were in use.

—Dr. Charles R. Thiers has removed to his new home at 48 Somerset street, corner of Craig place. There with increased office room and operating parlors, he is better able to accommodate his extensive dental patronage.

—The regular meeting of the members of the German Reformed church, will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Sunday-school room. There will be reports and election of officers. All regular members are cordially invited to attend.

—Among the eighteen prisoners in the Union county jail awaiting trial are Samuel S. Beekman, the negro, and Jennie Wiley, his white paramour, who are charged with the death, through ill treatment of little Pearl Boekman, Samuel's daughter. Jennie Wiley's story is familiar to the people of Plainfield, where her wealthy relatives formerly lived.

—"Doctor Bill", after its successful run in New York for 102 nights at the handsome Garden Theatre, will be the attraction at Music Hall, next Friday evening. The double bill of "Barbara" and "Doctor Bill" will be the same as given in New York, where the casts of the two comedies were pronounced by the press and public the most perfect seen there for years. Among the most prominent names are: Selina Fetter, Isabelle Coe, Mrs. Louise Eldridge, Louise Allen (the unrivalled "Kangaroo dancer"), Jane Grafton, Nellie Lingard, J. B. Polk, J. W. Jennings, W. J. Reynier, Geo. Becks and Graham Henderson and James Ladkaye. All the scenery and costumes will be brought from the Garden Theatre, New York to Plainfield.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

One of the features of the music at Grace church, yesterday, was the admirable manner in which Master Jack Bartindale sang the solos in the anthems.

The wife of the Rev. Darwin E. Maxson formerly pastor of the Seventh Day Baptists of this city, is lying dangerously ill of pneumonia at her home in Alfred Centre, N. Y., where her husband is professor at the Alfred University. Mrs. Robert Gorton, of this city, Mrs. Maxson's daughter, is with her.

There seems to be nothing finally settled in relation to the closing subscription concert of the Melopoia, except that "The Captivity" will not be sung. Mme. Vogrich has been engaged, but whether Dippel will be is not yet certain. The programme will probably contain at least three selections that have been sung twice before by the Society.

The soloists engaged for the closing concert of the Choral Society, at Music Hall, are Clementine DeVere, Wm. H. Rieger and Ericson Bushnell. The date, as already announced in these columns, has been changed from the 14th to the 18th inst. in order to secure Miss DeVere. She, and Mr. Bushnell who is a basso, are singing in the grand music festival that opened in New York, last evening.

The Crescent Bowlers Slip Up.

The Crescent League's crack bowlers mostly roll curved and cross balls, while the Ivanhoes of Brooklyn roll straight ones. Consequently the latter could do better on the freshly oiled alleys last evening. Captain VanEmburgh talks of having the man indicted who ordered the greasing done just before the match. That was the reason the Brooklyn bowlers won so easily as the following score shows:

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyon question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

OBITUARY.

Abraham Coles.

At the office of Dr. Coles's son, 223 Market street, Newark, it was learned, yesterday afternoon, that a dispatch had been received by Warren Ackerman, Dr. Coles's brother-in-law, announcing the sudden death, in California, of the venerable Dr. Abraham Coles, one of Union county's best known and best loved citizens.

Dr. Coles and his son were members of the Pennsylvania Railroad excursion party that left Newark April 14 for a six-weeks' excursion to California. The party had been visiting the various points of interest in Southern California since April 21, and were expected to leave for the East May 14, arriving in Newark the 25th. Dr. Coles was, so far as is known, in good health when he left his home at Scotch Plains for Newark, three weeks ago, but was seized with an attack of grip while traveling, and consequent complications resulted in his death at Monterey, Cal., Sunday. Dr. Coles was one of the oldest and most eminent physicians in New Jersey, and was a very wealthy land-owner. His beautiful home at Scotch Plains was the resort of many cultured literary and professional people.

Dr. Coles was a native Jerseyman. He was born at Scotch Plains, December 26, 1813. His father was Denis Coles, a printer and publisher well known in his day, and a man of rare literary taste and judgment. Like his father, in the early years of his life Abraham turned his attention to literary pursuits, and he was the author of various works in literature, medicine and science. His first employment as a young man was in mercantile life, and he entered, as a clerk, a dry goods store. Two years of such life were sufficient to prove to him that there was other and more congenial work for him to do. He applied himself diligently to his studies, and at the age of 17 was made teacher of Latin and mathematics in a private school at Plainfield. Here he continued his studies, and turned his attention more particularly to the law, and a few years later he entered as a student in the office of Joseph C. Hornblower, who was afterwards Chief Justice of this State.

In early life Dr. Coles had shown great interest in science, and in connection with his law studies he was enabled to gratify his taste for scientific knowledge. He gave up his position in the law office to enter Jefferson College, and there devoted his time to the study of medicine, graduating in 1835. He returned to his home at Scotch Plains, and in 1836 settled in Newark, where, by his devotion and energy, he soon established an extensive and lucrative practice. He made for himself a wide reputation as a skillful physician and surgeon. In 1842 Dr. Coles married Caroline E., daughter of Jonathan C. Ackerman, of New Brunswick. Five years later Mrs. Coles died, leaving one son and one daughter, who are still living. During the following year Dr. Coles visited Europe. He was in Paris at the time of the revolution of 1848, and did excellent service as surgeon in the hospitals of the French capital. He returned to Newark the following year and continued his practice there until 1854, when he paid a second visit to Europe, remaining abroad seventeen months. When he returned, Dr. Coles associated with him Dr. Bethuel L. Dodd, a former pupil, and although he still engaged actively in his profession he was enabled to devote more time to his literary pursuits. Dr. Coles had always shown great interest in educational matters, and especially in the public school system, and was for several years a member of the Board of Education in Newark. He was also a trustee of the Newark Academy and a director of the Newark Library Association. In 1860 the University at Lewisburg conferred on him the degree of Ph. D., and in 1871 Princeton College that of LL. D.

Dr. Coles's literary work was voluminous and erudite. His love of the classics was very strong, and his bent of mind led him to the Greek, Latin and Oriental literature as a student and explorer. He wrought very faithfully in Hebrew, and his metrical versions of the Psalms were original translations as well as versified transcriptions. He translated and printed, in 1847, his own version of the famous Latin hymn, "Dies Iræ", and in 1859 he republished this in another volume, with twelve other versions by other hands, under the title of "Dies Iræ, in Thirteen Original Versions". In 1866, he printed "The Microcosm," a physiological poem; originally delivered before the New Jersey Medical society, of which he was then President. In 1847 he had published the first part of "The Evangel", which was the Life of our Lord in verse, with texts and notes, and, in 1881, he put forth a volume which, under the title of "The Microcosm and Other Poems", included all of his more important translations and original poems up to that date. His "Latin Hymns" appeared in 1868, and his "Light of the World" in 1884. His versified edition of the Psalms of David was published in 1889.

It is false! No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires's Root Beer. Some dealers recommend imitations for the larger profits they yield. What a delicious drink Hires's Root Beer Packages make.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Bacon, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

FATAL WEATHER FOR FRUIT.

Flurries of Snow, and Ice on the Ponds, in the Gentle Month of May.

Those who were misled by the summer weather of April to put away stoves and to quench the furnace fires in their houses are now wondering what's the matter with the elements anyway. It's not at all a hard matter to shiver and shake in the sort of atmosphere now prevalent, and winter flannels and overcoats are being eagerly hauled forth again to restore comfort to suffering humanity.

The present cold wave has its serious as well as its unpleasant features. The bleak winds that sent a chill up everybody's back last night breathed a fatal blight upon the embryonic fruit throughout this section, and the prospects for a big and luscious fruit crop are alarmingly depreciated. From Flemington, the heart of the Jersey peach country, comes the tidings that grave fears of the utter ruin of the crop are entertained. A Washingtonville correspondent writes that ice formed in that vicinity as thick as a pane of glass this morning, doing much damage to peaches, pears, currants, cherries, grapes, and other small fruit, which had blossomed out with the warm weather of the last two weeks. In Plainfield itself the chill gray clouds sent down flurries of snow from time to time this morning. Altogether it is unseasonable and serious weather.

Laid to Rest By Loving Hands.

At the funeral of the late S. O. Doane, yesterday afternoon, the house was thronged to its fullest capacity. On the casket containing the remains of the deceased was a handsome pillow with the word "Papa" in immortelles, together with a bunch of beautiful lilies and other cut flowers. The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut offered prayer, and the Rev. C. B. Mitchell preached a brief sermon, eulogizing and holding up as an example the Christian character and upright living of the departed. He likened the death of the deceased unto that spoken of in Job v: 26—"Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in the season". Dr. Hurlbut also spoke beautifully. The singing, which was tenderly sweet and touching, was by a choir composed of Morris VanArsdale, Arthur Freeman, B. T. Barnes and George Stevens. The selections were "Jesus, Pilot Me" and "Abide With Me." Interment of the remains was made in the Methodist Episcopal cemetery. The pall-bearers were four sons and two grandsons of the deceased.

Doctors Welcome the Pharmacists and Listen to One From Plainfield.

H. P. Reynolds, the pharmacist, went to Washington yesterday to attend the annual meeting of the American Medical Association now in session at the capital. Mr. Reynolds goes in the double capacity of delegate from the American Pharmaceutical Association and delegate from the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association.

This is the first time in its history when the Medical Association has invited pharmacists to its councils, and it is hoped that important results may ensue from the action now taken. The New Jersey medical and pharmaceutical societies have exchanged courtesies for several years, and thus, as often before, this little State has inaugurated an important movement.

Mr. Reynolds has served as a delegate to the State medical meetings, and has, therefore, had some training for the service. He is on the programme to read a paper before the section of pharmacy.

The Ladies Elect New Officers.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Ladies' Christian Work society of the Trinity Reformed church, took place in the church yesterday afternoon, and resulted as follows. The President, Secretary and Treasurer, were re-elected:

President—Mrs. Charles P. Leggett.
First Vice President—Mrs. Robert A. Meeker.
Second " " —Mrs. A. M. Gillem.
Third " " —Mrs. E. H. Bird.
Treasurer—Mrs. William G. E. See.
Secretary—Mrs. C. Frank French.

The society has closed a very successful year's work, and indications point to even greater results the coming season. Interesting and gratifying reports were read by both Secretary and Treasurer.

Lost Their Little in Grasping Hush.

Twenty-seven thousand five hundred members of the Beneficial Order of Earnest Workers, including a number of Plainfielders, are stirred up over the assignment made by the general officers. The majority of the "Earnest Workers", are residents of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. At Plainfield, Trenton, New Brunswick, and smaller towns, flourishing chapters are, or were until a few days ago, in existence. Now all are sweating in an effort to get back the unknown thousands they have paid to the officers in Philadelphia.

The officers of the society offered members $100 in return for dues and assessments to the amount of $30 or $40. There would be no hard work about it, the members were told. By a law, as certain as the law of gravity", a given number of them would drop out after paying only a part of their dues. Thereby they forfeited what had been paid in, and the total sum of these forfeited dues would eventually become enough to pay the members who stuck to the society $100 each in return for the small sum they had paid in dues. This was a brilliant theory. It seemed as if it ought to work well in practice. Members by the thousand joined, and money rolled into the coffers of the general officers.

Here's our Card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are not straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public esteem accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing you can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

BUILDING THE NEW GRACE CHURCH.

The Corner-stone Substantially Laid by Bishop Scarborough.

The spectacle of the Bishop of the Diocese wielding mason's implements drew a large number of the Grace church people and their friends to the lot at the corner of West Seventh and Sycamore streets, yesterday afternoon. The foundation walls of the handsome new edifice which the Grace Episcopalians are building were already well under way, and all was prepared for the laying of the corner-stone.

At a few minutes past five o'clock the Sunday-school classes, with banners flying, the surpliced boy choir, and the clergymen in attendance at the annual convention of the diocese, moved in slow procession from the old church building to the site of the new structure, the choir singing a processional as they advanced. When they had gathered about the corner-stone they joined in the singing of hymns and the reading of Scripture. The Right Reverend John Scarborough, D. D., beloved Bishop of the Diocese, led in prayer, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman, D. D., rector of the parish, read a list of the contents of the tin box to be placed in the corner-stone. This list included religious publications, periodicals of the day, and a list of the subscriptions to the church building fund. The Bishop then placed the box within the hollow of the stone and carefully placed the stone in the place where it is to stand perhaps for centuries. He applied the mortar with a silver trowel which had been presented to him for the occasion by the wife of Warden John B. Dumont, and which the Bishop will retain as a memento.

The Bishop read the usual Episcopalian ceremony for the laying of corner-stones, and in a brief prayer consecrated to the uses and purposes of God the structure which is to arise above the stone. In a short sermon he gave good counsel to the people gathered about, urging them to make Jesus Christ the corner-stone of their faith, their religion, their lives, and to have that holy corner-stone as solidly and as firmly laid as was the corner-stone of this material structure.

Following the Bishop's talk was a sermon by Archdeacon Mackay-Smith of New York city. At its close the Bishop pronounced the benediction, and the people retired, the choir singing a recessional.

The design for the new Grace building, which is faithfully pictured in THE PRESS to-day, is the work of architect R. W. Gibson, who is well known as the designer of the Cathedral in Albany, and whose design for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, is the favored one. While the style of the church recommended is very beautiful in its design, it is of economical construction. The style is Gothic. The ground plan consists of chancel, nave, side aisles, with shallow transepts, narthex, organ room, vestry and robing room. Side aisles serve for passage-ways only, none of the congregation being seated behind pillars or other obstructions. This enables the pillars to be erected of a substantial design and size, giving the interior a dignified effect. The transepts are introduced to give variety and picturesqueness to the design and so as to enlarge the seating capacity near to the pulpit. The masonry work of the interior is of plaster, ornamented with mouldings and carved capitals. The windows at the west end in the transepts and chancel are large tracery windows, while those in the nave aisles are comparatively small and simple. The clere-story gives a double window to each bay division of the nave. The roof has open timber work of pointed arch form, all finished in wood and stained. The roof rests directly upon the pillars of the nave, which have no arches. This arrangement enables the clere-story to be used in a height which would not permit of it otherwise, with much more effect than is usually obtained, and at a moderate cost.

Externally the building will be of New Jersey gray stone, rough dressed, with bold, pointed arches and water tables, and the trimmings will be of cut stone of fine quality. The handsome square tower designed for the front, and which will occupy a considerable space, will rise in noble proportions and terminate in battlements. The whole effect of the building as viewed from the front, will be massive and dignified.

The ground floor of the church will cover a space 125 feet long and 50 feet wide. Its seating capacity will be 750. Wealthy members of the congregation are planning for handsome memorial windows.

At the laying of the corner-stone the local clergymen evidenced by their presence their good-will and fellowship towards the parish and their pleasure in its prosperity. Among those who expressed to Dr. Rodman the congratulations of the day were the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, the Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, the Rev. W. R. Richards, the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, the Rev. A. R. Dilts, the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the Rev. Edward Love, the Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor and the Rev. T. Logan Murphy.

Summer Changes on the Central.

The new schedule which will take effect next Sunday on the Central Railroad of New Jersey will give additional facilities. Among other changes, additional trains will leave New York for Plainfield at 1 a. m., 9 a. m., and 10 a. m. The 10 a. m. is a Philadelphia express, which arrives at Plainfield at 10:47 a. m. For New York, additional trains will leave Plainfield at 10:27 a. m. and 5:43 p. m. The Plainfield and Easton express now leaving New York at 3:45 p. m. will be changed to leave New York at 4 p. m. The New York and Washington 5-hour Royal Blue Line express leaving New York, foot of Liberty street, at 11:30 a.m. will run daily, Sundays included. This train, as well as the 3:30 p. m. fast express, have Pullman dining cars from New York to Washington.

The May Term Opens.

Yesterday was the opening session of the May term of court at Elizabeth. At ten o'clock Judge McCormick announced for the information of the members of the bar that Judge VanSickel will not attend court until Monday next at ten o'clock.

The Grand Jury, which included D. W. Littell, W. L. Force and R. M. Stover of this city, was sworn. The foreman is C. W. L. Martine, of Fanwood.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

Archibald Coddington, an old and respected resident, was taken, some time ago, with the grip, to which he is slowly succumbing. He has taken no solid nourishment for nearly two weeks. But little hope is held out for his recovery.

Mrs. Henry Burnett is again confined to her room by a serious indisposition. Her recovery is doubtful.

Theodore Zeller has sold his father's estate to a Mr. Wisner, who has had enough of Wisconsin farming and has returned to the East again. He says New Jersey is good enough for him. The price paid for the farm was $2,500. R.

Episcopal Clergy Meet.

A large gathering of clergy and laity assembled at Grace church, yesterday, and opened the 107th annual convention of the Episcopal church of the Diocese of New Jersey.

The proceedings were opened by a celebration of the Holy Communion, the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., celebrant, assisted by Rural Dean Barker of Princeton, and Dr. E. M. Rodman.

After the service the convention organized for business, the Bishop reading his annual address, giving an interesting account of the progress of the church in his diocese, especially as a missionary body.

The usual routine business was gone through, when the convention adjourned for luncheon, which was furnished by the ladies of the parish in magnificent style, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

After the luncheon the afternoon business session was held, and the foundation of the new Grace church was laid, all the clergy being present, together with the surpliced choirs of Grace church and the Church of the Holy Cross, who sang at the morning service.

The Rev. R. G. Moses, rector of Grace church at Merchantville, N. J., preached a sermon to the convention.

This morning Early Celebration was held at 7:30, and morning prayer at 9. After further routine business luncheon was served.

To-morrow, Ascension Day, there will be Early Celebration held at 7:30, and morning prayer and second celebration at 10:30.

SUMMER AT ATLANTIC CITY.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's Facilities for getting there.

The spring season which is just now drifting into summer has been the most prosperous in all the history of Atlantic City. Never have so many people been attracted to its great beach from all sections of the land, and never have its hostelries been so well equipped for providing comfortable and attractive accommodations. In the present, which is usually a breathing time between seasons, visitors still continue to pour into the city, so that when the summer hosts come they will find a good-sized garrison already in possession of the fortress. There will be ample room for all, however, and the indications foreshadow the greatest summer season ever known. Preparations are being made for it now. New hotels, of the lesser grade, are building, new cottages are springing up on heretofore vacant ground, and enlargement and improvement of existing structures is the order of the day. The great board-walk, now known by the more dignified and appropriate title of the Ocean Promenade, has withstood all the storms of winter and is in a perfect condition, the streets are being improved, new facilities for amusement are under way at the Inlet, and every one of the city's 15,000 people appear to be doing something to make the great resort more charming.

The facilities for reaching it are being developed with a view to the great strain to which the summer traffic will subject them. The Pennsylvania Railroad lines are to be operated on a plan which will yield the greatest speed and promptness of movement, while guaranteeing absolute safety and comfort. The tracks are in excellent condition, the rolling stock of the most approved kind, and the management keenly alive to the best interests of the traveling public. The through New York service, which has accomplished so much in securing travel from the East, will be continued. Apart from these facilities excursions of a special or general character will be arranged from time to time from all points on the Pennsylvania system at low rates.

By these means the residents of the remote as well as the near points will enjoy every opportunity of spending some time by the sea.

Atlantic City opens her gates in welcome to all, and the Pennsylvania Railroad and its connections is the highway that leads to the sea.

The Paris Fund Trouble.

LONDON, May 6.—At a meeting of the McCarthyites it was resolved to submit the question of the release of the Paris fund to arbitrators, one to be appointed by Justin McCarthy and the other by Parnell, the arbitrators to have power to select an umpire.

The Madras Famine.

LONDON, May 6.—A dispatch from Calcutta says the terrible famine in Madras continues, and it is feared that the modsoon will fail, thereby intensifying distress.

Nine States Represented.

NEWARK, N. J., May 6.—Ex-Gov. Pond of Connecticut is presiding over the session of the First Congress of the National Provident Union. Delegates from nine states are present. The principal business of the day was the perfecting of the organization and the receiving of reports from various committees.

Dixon to Fight an Australian.

BOSTON, May 6.—A dispatch from San Francisco says the California Athletic Club has decided to match Abe Williams, the Australian bantam, against the colored champion, George Dixon. The fight is to take place in June, and will be for a purse of $5,000.

Fired On by Bait Catchers.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 6.—It was currently reported here last night that the British ship Pelican, now in Newfoundland waters, had been fired upon by the Newfoundland bait catchers in Fortune Bay.

Some Hopes for Judge Taft.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 6.—Ex-Secretary Taft passed a fairly comfortable night and took considerable nourishment. His physicians now entertain some hope of his recovery.

Indicted for Murder.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 6.—John Shay of Oceanic N. J., has been indicted for murder at Freehold. About three months ago Shay killed his wife by jumping on her.

Increased Death Rate in New York.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The grip has increased slightly during the past 24 hours and so has the mortality. The deaths up to noon numbered 171 against 116 yesterday.

A Brick Famine In Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 6.—There is a brick famine in this city. Many extensive building operations contemplated for this spring are being delayed for want of bricks.

Nine-Hour Demand Granted.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 6.—In the majority of cases the demands of the carpenters for nine hours a day and eight hours on Saturday have been granted, with pay as heretofore.

More Jersey Forests Afire.

MAY'S LANDING, May 6.—A forest fire is raging about seven miles south of this place in the vicinity of Hawkinsville. It is burning through a thick growth of cedar and pine timber.

Mrs. Cleveland's Summer Home.

BOSTON, May 6.—Mrs. Grover Cleveland passed through Boston en route to her new summer home at Buzzard's Bay. She has, however, only gone down to look things over, not to remain.

OLD AND ODD.

A LARGE oak tree, claimed to be one hundred and forty years old, has been felled at Flint, Mich.

J. J. WESTLAKE, of Wheeling, has in his possession a land grant made out February 6, 1807, containing the signatures of Thomas Jefferson and James Madison.

A RESIDENT of Paw Paw, Mich., has a receipt for a tax paid by his ancestry in 1409, but he is willing to trade the relic for a receipt for his own, dated this year.

REV. JOHN ELIOT, missionary to the Indians, wrote a letter in 1673, which was sold at auction a few days ago for five hundred dollars. At the same sale a letter of Rev. Jonathan Edwards brought only eleven dollars and a half.

WILLIAM J. MILLER, of Lisbon, N. J., has a brass spectacle case over four hundred years old. The outside case on top and bottom has a ten years' calendar (from 1478 to 1487) engraved thereon, with instructions in Dutch, the figures, letters, etc., being quite legible.

DR. F. L. HARROD, of Harrodsburg, Ky., is the owner of what is believed to be the first watch ever brought to the state. It belonged to one of Dr. Harrod's ancestors, who was the early companion of Daniel Boone, and is an open-faced silver "bull's-eye," bearing the date 1775.

LOVE PLAYED A PART.

MARY MOCEJES, of Erie, Pa., has the record of having eloped seven times from one husband.

A YOUNG man was tarred and feathered down in Mississippi the other day because he married a quadroon girl.

A GENESEE county (Mich.) young lady, who was recently awarded $1,200 in a breach of promise suit, has rewarded her chief witness by bestowing her injured affections on him. The banns have been published.

ABRAHAM SPECK and his wife, of Mill Creek, near Huntington, Pa., have been married fifty years, and the husband has taken steps for a separation, because his wife and he disagree upon the advisability of sanctioning their daughter's choice of a husband.

AT South Colchester, Ont., M. Brown, aged eighty four, led to the altar Mrs. Margaret Clickert, aged ninety-seven. The groom had buried four wives and the bride mourned the loss of five husbands. Her last husband died two years ago, aged one hundred and twenty-four years.

A WISH FOR A LITTLE MAID.

Mother nature, take this child,
Train her in thy forests wild!
Lead her by thy laughing brooks,
Fill their joy laughs in her looks.
Make her lithe in form and mien,
As the white birch, draped in green.

Let her voice as mellow grow
As the thrush-song's silvery flow.
Filling all this leafy wood
With sweet prophecies of good.
Let each breeze a message bear,
Of unseen love and care.

Keep her from thy fountains bright
Drops as of crystal, living light,
Pure and lowly though her guise,
With thy strength to make her wise.
Let her sacred maidenhood
Grow in sweetest solitude.

Let the fragrance of all flowers,
And the hush of twilight hours,
Let the glowing sky's deep blue,
And the rainbow's varied hue,
Fill her soul with loveliest grace,
And shine outward in her face!

Tenderly to her impart,
O great nature, all thy heart!
Teach her much of Love, so she Thine Interpreter may be,
A Reflection, clear and fine,
Of thy loveliness divine!

—Mrs. Merrill E. Gates, in N. Y. Independent.

LOVE AND TOBACCO.

The Gentle Passion Proves to Be Mightier Than the Weed.

[Written for This Paper.]

NCE there was a man and his wife, and their daughter and the daughter's fellow.

The wife and the fellow were addicted to the use of tobacco. The wife smoked and the fellow chewed, much to the disgust of both husband and daughter.

The man did not know at the time of their marriage that the wife smoked. He learned that some time later. He tried hard to get her to give up the habit, and she made a number of attempts and as many failures. The habit was too strong.

The fellow had learned to chew when a boy. The daughter had intended to speak to him on the subject and use her influence to get him to quit, but it was a case of love almost at first sight, and before a favorable opportunity offered itself she found herself engaged to him. But she could not bear the idea of marrying a man with such a filthy habit, and, not being able to hit upon a better plan, decided to lay the matter before her father, who had already shown that he would not be averse to the match.

The man was fat and funny, and delighted greatly in a good joke. He at once approved the daughter's plan, thinking only at first he would have some fun out of the fellow. Then another, a serious, idea seemed to flit across his brain. The daughter noticed this, but as he at once went on talking she asked no questions.

A short time after when the fellow called and asked for the daughter's hand, the man replied: "Yes, sir, you can have her, and I'll give you a quarter section of land to boot, provided two things: first, you are to quit the use of tobacco, and bind yourself never to use it again, in any way, shape nor manner; and, second, you are to induce my wife also to quit its use."

The fellow replied that he had long seen the evil of the habit, and had often thought he would quit, but had simply neglected to do so. Now was a most excellent time, and he would quit "forthwith and forever." But the man was pledged to secresy to all except the daughter, who in turn was to tell no one.

When the daughter learned of the second provision she was greatly incensed, and proposed to her lover that they simply elope, but this the young man did not like to do. He counseled patience, and said that they should at least make an effort.

A few days later the fellow proposed to the wife that he would quit using tobacco if she would. This was rejected so promptly and with so much dignity that he did not have the courage to try again, although numerous other plans were discussed by himself and the daughter.

The young couple now felt very dejected. The prospects of an early consummation of their hopes were certainly very discouraging. "The course of true love never did run smooth," and apparently was not going to do so in their case.

About this time the man, who had been watching the proceedings with the keenest interest, came to the rescue, to the great joy of the young people. He had a plan, and they proceeded at once to put it to the test.

A few days later the young couple eloped and were quietly married.

The man was furious. He stormed and raged without rest; condemned the young couple in the strongest terms; declared they should never enter his house again; he wouldn't so much as look at them again; he said he would disinherit the girl and leave his property to the blackest negro in the country. He declared his wife should not even visit them—if she did he would burn the buildings, sell the land and leave the country forever.

The wife was badly scared—as he intended she should be. She had formerly believed she had the best natured husband that ever lived, and never dreamed that he was capable of getting in such a rage.

Thus things went on for a month, the man seeming to get worse rather than better. The wife was so thoroughly frightened that she even forgot, some days, to smoke. All of which the man did not fail to see and secretly enjoy.

One day when the wife was talking half to herself and half to her husband and complaining of her troubles, the man remarked that if it hadn't been for tobacco there would have been no trouble. The wife replied that if she could get rid of her troubles as easy as she could quit the use of tobacco the house would soon be too full of the sunshine of happiness for comfort. It seemed to her just then that it would be very easy to quit. Contrary to the general rule, the pipe had no charms for her when she had anything serious on her mind.

The man noted the reply, but said nothing. He seemed to be thinking.

The wife looked at him. She was frightened. The light fell upon his face in a way that greatly magnified every wrinkle and made him look many years older than he really was. A dash of gray hair on each temple and a thin spot on the top of his head completed the picture. She saw all this, and then stopped while her mind worked. She had always thought of John as still young—she had never thought of him before as growing old—but growing old he certainly was. Had this trouble anything to do with it?—was he going crazy—"if it hadn't been for tobacco there would have been no trouble"—he had always opposed her smoking—had that anything to do with it?—perhaps it had—she had always been conscientious, and when duty called she had never been slow to answer.

"I WILL NEVER SMOKE AGAIN."

"John," she said, going up to him and putting her arms around his neck and kissing him tenderly, "I will never smoke again." John gently put his arms around her and drew her down onto his lap, letting her head rest on his shoulder, and kissed her repeatedly. At first he felt an impulse to burst out laughing, but seeing the tears in his wife's eyes he could hardly keep them out of his own.

"John," she said, "I never promised you before, did I?"

"No."

"I promise you now. And, John, you never knew me to break a solemn promise, did you?"

"No, dear."

Half an hour later the man came out the back door, wiped his eyes on his shirt sleeves and went out to the barn. When he thought of his wife's tender earnestness his face would sober up immediately, and, again, when he thought of how hugely he had fooled her he could not keep from laughing.

Things had not gone as he had planned. He had only intended to simulate anger and then compromise the matter by allowing his daughter to return on condition that his wife quit smoking. "But 'all's well that ends well,'" thought he, "Some day I'll tell her how badly I fooled her."

That evening the man slipped down to the telegraph office and sent a short dispatch to the children: "Wife and I will take dinner with you to-morrow."

In the evening after the dinner the man proposed that, as he and his wife did not take a wedding journey when they were married, and as the children had not done so either, now would be a good time for them all to go on a good long tour.

He planned this because he thought the pleasure and excitement of the trip would aid his wife in forgetting her tobacco habit. And his wife readily assented because she thought it would aid him in recovering his old-time health and happiness.

It was several years before the wife learned of the trick that had been played on her, and then she threatened to go to smoking again. At this the man got mad in earnest, and declared, almost swore, that, if she did, there would be a divorce case in the next term of court.

Then the wife, regaining her usual good humor, teasingly replied: "No doubt there will be. There is seldom a term of court when there are not several."

"And you'll figure in one of them," snapped the man.

But really she was glad she had given up the noxious habit, and never reverted to it again. J. H. Kon.

Providing for the Inevitable.

Mayor of Western town (to stranger who has just alighted from the train)—Excuse me, sir, but can't I sell you a lot in our new cemetery?

Stranger—Thanks, no. I'm only going to stay here over night.

Mayor (doubtfully)—Y-yes, but the boys here are so sudden impulsive. It is always well to be prepared.—Massey's Weekly.

As United World.

"I am sorry, Henry," said Uncle George, "that you exhibit so little proficiency in orthography. That letter you wrote to Mr. Brown the other day had so many misspelled words that it set the whole counting room in a roar."

"H'm!" said Henry. "That's just the way in this world. There were a good many words in that letter that I know were spelled right; but of course I got no credit for that."—Boston Transcript.

Shellenberger (triumphantly)—Give me dot qvater, Rosy. Dot soot has been there since I come from Sheecargo von month ago.—Judge.

A Refreshing Instance.

Janet—Oh, Geraldine, just think how we have underrated Mr. Thorley. Why, it seems he has been all over Europe, India, China, Japan and Australia.

Geraldine — Anything remarkable about that?

Janet—Yes. He's never talked any place to us but Brownsville.—Judge.

JUST LIKE ONE OF THE FORCE.

Police Sergeant—Well, what has this man been doing?

Officer O'Frog—Impersonatin' an officer, sor. Whin I found him sittin' dhrunk on a beer keg he said he had just stopped there a minute to tie his shoestrings.—Judge.

Not Pressed for Time.

The train made a stopping at the twenty-ninth crossing and then the mild-looking passenger turned and blandly inquired of the conductor what was the matter with the train.

The Conductor (surlily)—If you don't like the way this train runs you can get off and walk.

The Bland Passenger (more affably than ever)—Oh, never mind—I'm in no special hurry.—Epoch.

A Stroke of Luck.

Doodles—Just had a tremendous piece of luck.

Noodles—As how?

Doodles—Why, I met Snyder, and he struck me for two dollars.

Noodles—Well?

Doodles—Why, I hadn't a cent. Say, can you lend me five dollars?

Noodles—No; I'm in the same good luck.—Harper's Bazar.

The Force of Circumstances.

Mrs. Peterby—Can you wash?

Matilda Snowball—Ob course I kin wash, if it has ter be.

"Can you cook?"

"If it has ter be, ob course I kin cook."

"Are you honest?"

"You bet I'se honest, if I has ter be."—Texas Siftings.

A Question of Degree.

Mrs. Bingo — My dear, you are late again, as usual.

Bingo—Yes, darling, I had to stop at the tailor's and order a pair of trousers.

Mrs. Bingo—I suppose (sniff) if you had ordered a suit he would have given you a whole bottle of whisky.—Jury.

Letting the Cat Out.

Featherstone—Is your sister in?

Little Willie—Yes; but she's sewing a button on a coat and you may have a long time to wait.

"I don't see why? It shouldn't take long to sew a button on a coat."

"It does when there's a man in it."—Clothier and Furnisher.

Easy to Follow.

Pompous Author (to veteran editor)—What would you advise a man to do whose ideas are in advance of the times?

Veteran Editor (promptly)—I would advise him to sit quietly down and wait for the times to catch up.—Drake's Magazine.

The Ruling Passion.

"General Bronson is a fine lawyer, but he still shows the effects of his military training."

"In what respect—discipline?"

"No. In the magnificent way in which he charges."—Harper's Bazar.

A Deferred Settlement.

Highwayman—Your money or your life.

Mr. Slowpay—Aw—I'm sorry to say I'm out of funds just now; but can't we compromise matters? Suppose I give you a little thirty-day note.—Puck.

On Pemberton Square.

First Bostonian—I hear a great deal of fault found with the new courthouse.

Second Bostonian—Yes, but there appears to be little ground for complaint, as it was certainly built on the square.—Boston Herald.

Fatal to Piety.

Wool—Why are you so sure Blifkins' piety will be short lived?

Van Pelt—He had a birthday yesterday, and his wife gave him a fountain pen!—Munsey's Weekly.

A Considerate Wife.

Grocer—A broom, madam? Yes—soft or hard broom do you prefer?

Mrs. Tangle—A soft one, please. I always treat my husband as gently as I can.—Light.

Carried Too Far.

It is well to have things appropriate, but a man will not take this view when his wife puts puff sleeves on his smoking jacket.—Boston Herald.

TROUBLE TO COME

Italy's Consul at New Orleans Has a Grievance.

SNUBBED BY THE GRAND JURY.

His Oath of Secrecy Prevents Him from Telling What He Testified To.

He Fears Serious Complications Between Italy and the United States—He Will Send the Report to His Government—London's View of the Finding—An American Mobbed in Italy.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—The report of the grand jury, is of course, the general topic of conversation here and is approved by all classes of good citizens.

The Italian Consul here, Signor Corte, says that he is very much displeased with the report. He furnished much information to the jury, he says, which was ignored, evidently, as there is nothing in the report to indicate that it was used. Mr. Corte adds that his oath of secrecy prevents him from telling what he testified before the grand jury.

The Consul says that he will immediately transmit the report in full to his home government, and he fears that serious complications between Italy and the United States will be the ultimate result.

Washington Not Surprised.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The failure of the grand jury in New Orleans to find indictments against the leaders of the mob that lynched the Italians at the parish prison in New Orleans is the subject of general discussion here. This disposal of the case causes no surprise, for nothing else was expected. Government officials will not talk about the matter, and the Count Imperiali refuses to discuss the subject.

STONED BY ITALIANS.

An American Gentleman and His Daughter Attacked by a Mob in Italy.

ROME, May 7.—The American Legation has been informed that while Mr. William Jacques, an American from Newton, Mass., was out driving with his daughter at Florence yesterday his carriage was pursued by a mob of people, who attacked it and pelted it with stones. His daughter, who interfered in his behalf, was injured.

BOSTON, May 7.—Mr. William Jacques of Newton, Mass., who with his daughter was assaulted by an Italian mob at Florence, is the electrician of the American Bell Telephone Company. He is on a pleasure trip abroad and intends to be gone about six months. He is well known in this and other eastern cities. He is spoken of as a quiet, inoffensive man. He is highly educated and was at one time a professor of the Johns Hopkins College, Baltimore. His friends and those who know him are at a loss to account for the assault made upon him. Mr. Jacques is accompanied by his wife and two children, both daughters.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRAVELS.

Mr. Harrison and His Party Visit Washington and See Puget Sound.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 7.—President Harrison and party arrived here by boat. Elliott Bay was crowded with vessels of every description when the steamer City of Seattle, with the party aboard, arrived. The reception by the Seattle committee aboard the steamer was without formality, save a few remarks by Mayor White, to which the President briefly responded.

The President was tendered a reception at the Exposition Building at Portland. The crowd numbered over 10,000 people and was enthusiastic. The President made a long speech. Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Secretary Rusk spoke briefly. The ladies of the party were tendered a reception by the ladies of the city.

The President and party left for Puget Sound at 1 a. m. and entered the State of Washington in a driving rain storm, which greatly interfered with the arrangements for his reception at various stations along the road. At Tacoma the train was met by the Governor of the State, the Mayor of Tacoma and a committee of citizens. The line of march was handsomely and appropriately decorated. Addresses of welcome were made by Governor Perry and the mayor of the city, to which the President responded briefly.

THE ETATE SEIZURE.

Nothing is Known at the State Department About the Vessel.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Secretary Foster, when told of the seizure at San Diego of the Chilian steamer Etata, which was to receive the arms and ammunition from the Robert and Minnie, replied that he was glad of it. Nothing is known at the State Department about the seized vessel.

The Chilian steamer Etata had been receiving supplies in San Diego harbor and was seized by the United States authorities and the captain arrested. A steamer that cruised outside and the schooner Robert and Minnie were also to be seized if they came within the three-league limit, the supposition being that the steamer was a Chilian war ship and that the schooner had arms for the Chilians. But the steamer was not a war ship and the schooner took refuge in Mexican waters.

His Wife Mysteriously Disappeared.

RONDOUT, N. Y., May 7.—Mrs. Edward Kearney, the wife of a well-to-do quarryman living at Sawkill, near here, has mysteriously disappeared, leaving two small children. Family troubles are the cause. Kearney has instituted a search for her.

Kicked to Death by a Horse.

DANSVILLE, N. Y., May 7.—John Huver was kicked in the head by a horse last night while putting it in the barn and died from his injuries. He was 27 years old.

A MILLION DOLLAR FIRE.

An Iron Foundry and a Number of Lumber Yards Burned.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Fire broke out in the Doncaster Iron Foundry at West avenue and Flushing street, Long Island City, at 11 o'clock last night, entirely consuming the building with its contents. The Clark & Sampson feed mills next door also took fire and burned to the ground.

The flames then spread to the immense lumber yards across the street, which cover seven or eight acres, or 18 city blocks. Several different firms occupy this ground, among them being that of H. S. Whiting, H. S. Burroughs and the Export Lumber Company, owned by W. R. Grace & Co.

At midnight all the lumber in these yards was burned. This immense lumber district is situated on the north side of Newtown Creek. Just across the creek are many oil refineries and a terrible conflagration would have followed if they had become ignited. Fortunately this did not occur.

The loss will considerably exceed a million dollars.

WORKINGMEN PROTEST.

They Denounce the Conviction of Leader Barondess as Unjust.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Fully 3,000 workingmen crowded Cooper Union Hall last night and as many more could not find room and organized an overflow meeting, to protest against what they regarded as the unjust conviction of Joseph Barondess, the leader of the striking cloakmakers. Samuel Gompers presided.

In his opening speech Mr. Gompers said there was a feeling in New York that a great injustice had been done. The strike at Barondess was a strike at organization. Christopher Evans of the the Federation of Labor, and George Blair O'Neil of Boston, also spoke. As applicable to the present case, the latter referred in his remarks to the recent finding of the New Orleans grand jury as follows: "When justice is miscarried by the courts, the power duty rests with the people."

MRS. BLAINE'S MISSION.

The Wife of James G., Jr., Coming East for Her Child.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., May 7.—The purpose of the visit of Mrs. James G. Blaine, jr., to New York has just been learned. She went to consult her lawyer as to the advisability of holding a conference with her husband and endeavoring to secure his consent to relinquishing all claims to their three-year-old son.

Young Blaine's mother is very anxious to secure the custody of the boy, while the wife is doing everything in her power to get the child. Mrs. Blaine, jr., expressed herself to her friends in this city that she did not so much care for a divorce as she did to gain possession of her child, which she feared would be taken from her.

Schaeffer is Still Champion.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Jacob Schaeffer is still the champion billiard player of America. Eugene Carter tried to wrest the crown and the silver championship cup from him at the Central Music Hall last night, but the "Wizard" had not lost his cunning nor his cue its immaculate stroke. It took just 33 minutes to wind up the game. The score then stood: Schaeffer, 800; Carter, 481. Carter, the man of nerve, was practically not in the race.

Fight With an Insane Man.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 7.—F. J. Dowden, of Lykens, is in the city hospital here, having had an exciting experience with an insane man named Frank Gable. The latter imagined that his uncle was preventing him from sleeping and attacked him with a revolver. Dowden grappled with the madman and succeeded in disarming him, but not until he had received a couple of shots in the left arm. Gable escaped after the shooting, and has not been seen since.

A Journalist Killed by the Cars.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 7.—Thomas B. Page, a well known journalist and artist of this city, was struck and killed by the Chicago limited express at Fishkill Landing last night. His body was thrown high in the air and landed 100 feet from the spot where he was struck. He was crossing the railroad track to make a short cut for the ferryboat to take him home, having been at Matteawan to give a pupil her lesson. He was about 35 years old.

Five of the Crew Perished.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 7.—Details of the schooner reported in distress by the barge Sitka have been received. Her name is the Atlantic. She left here Saturday night in tow and parted her tow line about twenty miles from No. 10 life saving station, foundering shortly afterward. Five of the crew perished in attempting to reach the shore in yawls.

The Rogue Lord Goes to Prison.

CALAIS, Me., May 6.—The trial of Chas. Oscar Decourcey, alias "Lord Allendale," the well known swindler, was called in the criminal court. Decourcey pleaded guilty to the charge of swindling and was sentenced to two years in the State prison.

JAY GOULD HIS MARK

Charles Dixon Goes to New York to Kill Him.

ONE OF "CHRIST'S FOLLOWERS."

When Arrested by Inspector Byrnes the Prisoner Tells His Scheme.

He Was Selected by His Society to Assassinate the Money King—Says He Killed Four Men—Now Ready to Proceed to Hartford to Take His Own Life—A Dangerous Crank.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A dangerous crank, who gives his name as Charles J. Dickson, has been arrested at the request of Jay Gould. Dickson went to the house of Dr. Munn, Mr. Gould's physician, and announced that he was vice-president of an order called the "Christ Followers," and that he has a mission to kill Jay Gould. If, however, the millionaire would give him $60,000, and make certain arrangements for the distribution of his property to charity, he would refrain from assassination. He will be examined as to his sanity.

He Will Take His Own Life.

When taken to police headquarters Dixon told Inspector Byrnes that he had decided to spare the life of Mr. Gould and take his own. The society, he knew, would kill him for failing to do his duty, and he meant to forestall it. He was going to go to Hartford, Conn., and in an out-of-the-way place put a bullet through his heart. He would make it appear that he had died in an attempt to defend himself from robbers. He meant to have his coat badly torn, his watch and chain torn from his vest pocket, and his other pockets rifled. He would have two pistols beside his dead body, with empty chambers in each.

He further told the inspector that he was initiated into the order of "Christ's Followers" at Owl's Head, just over the Canadian border, in 1888. He was tricked into going there and was terrorized by 15 masked men, with pistols in their hands, into taking the oath of allegiance to the organization.

On the 13th of April last he received notice from the Arch Council to go ahead and perform his mission in New York—translating Jay Gould to a happier land.

He then incoherently told of a plot which had been sprung in Pueblo to kill him by masked men two years ago, and how he had foiled the plot by killing four of them.

ASK PARDON FOR DUNLAP.

Influence Brought to Bear to Secure the Bank Robber's Release.

BOSTON, May 7.—The case of James Dunlap, the Northampton bank robber, came up again before the Committee on Pardons of the Executive Council. The petition for his pardon first came up before the Executive Council of 1888, and it was then referred to the council of 1890, with favorable action recommended. But the council of last year refused to grant the pardon and took the method of referring it to this year's body. It will be remembered that Dunlap was sentenced in 1877 for a term of 20 years, and his commuted term became of his good behavior will expire Dec. 29, 1893.

The petition for his pardon is signed by the officers and depositors of the bank that was robbed and the surviving members of the jury which sentenced him. Oscar Edwards, of Northampton, the president of the robbed bank, was the first to plead in Dunlap's favor. He stated that the money would not have been recovered had it not been for the information given by Dunlap. He said that the sentiment of the Northampton people who lost property was in favor of the pardon, as was that of the other inhabitants of the city.

Ex-Warden Russell of the State prison testified to Dunlap's good conduct while in prison.

Catholic Editors in Session.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Managers of Catholic newspapers from all parts of the United States to the number of forty met at 10 a. m. at St. Francis Xavier's Hall. The object of the convention is to unify the interests of the Catholic journals published in the various sections of the country and to establish a central news supply agency. Mr. Conde P. Fallen, editor of the "Church Progress," presided.

Will Send a Torpedo Boat.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 7.—The Imperial authorities have changed their minds about sending the war ship Emerald to Newfoundland. Instead a torpedo boat will be sent. The Emerald received orders to proceed to Newfoundland at once, and before she left these were countermanded. The reason for the change is that a torpedo boat would be much more effective.

Four Men Seriously Burned.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., May 7.—A ladle containing two tons of iron capsized at the foundry of Osgood & Baker while the metal was being poured into a flask. John Staunton, of Athol Vt.; John Sullivan, Keene, N. H.; Edward Rouse and Michael Hackett, Bellows Falls, were seriously burned. It is thought that Staunton will die.

THE WORRELLS WANTED.

Their Conduct in the Barnaby Case Creates Suspicion.

DENVER, Col., May 7.—Mystery still shrouds the Barnaby murder. The shadow of suspicion which has rested until now on Dr. Graves of Providence, has come at last to rest upon Mrs. Worrell of Chester, Pa., and her son E. S. Worrell of Denver.

Attention was at first directed towards the conduct of the Worrells through the strange utterances of District Attorney Stevens, in regard to the case and after it became known that Mrs. Worrell was a beneficiary in the will of Mrs. Barnaby. Mr. Stevens says the manner in which the case was conducted by the Worrells is very strange. He has sent East to have Mr. Worrell and his mother return to attend the Grand Jury investigation.

"I do not mean to make any charges against anyone," he said, "but when the Worrells return we shall see what they say."

Lost His Life in the Fire.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 7.—The Park House, a boarding place at No. 147 Niagara street, caught fire from some unknown cause about 3 a. m. and was completely gutted. The house was full of boarders and the fire was so sudden that many had to escape by the windows. George Ring, aged 62 years, brother of the late Dr. Ring, escaped by the stairs, but went back to secure some of his effects. When the fire was extinguished his dead body was found in the hallway where he had been overcome by the smoke and suffocated.

Petrified Corpses in an Indiana Cemetery.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—Three petrified corpses in Greenlawn Cemetery are attracting crowds from the city whenever the vault is left open. One of the three is a colored woman, who has been in the vault fourteen years. Her features are almost perfect and her skin, formerly very dark, has turned almost chalky white. The features of the other two women have not been so well preserved.

World's Fair Commissioners.

CONCORD, N. H., May 7.—The following appointments were made at a meeting of the Governor and Council: New Hampshire Commissioners to the Columbian Exposition—Capt. E. M. Shaw, of Nashua; Hon. Charles H. Amsden, of Pennacook; Hon. Frank M. Rollins, of Manchester, and Thomas J. Walker, of Plymouth.

Big Car Shops Burn.

SIDNEY, O., May 7.—Shortly after midnight the shops of the American Wheel Company were burned. The loss on stock is estimated at $100,000. The company carries $60,000 insurance, part of which had elapsed. Two hundred men are thrown out of employment. Origin of the fire unknown.

Plenty of Small Notes.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Bureau of Engraving and Printing is now turning out a sufficient quantity of notes of small denomination to supply the current demand. Many of these new notes are daily shipped from the Treasury Department. The new $10 notes, which replace the old ones bearing the vignette of Gen. Hancock, are now being printed rapidly. They bear the portrait of Gen. McPherson.

THE SPANISH TREATY.

Sent to Washington for the Necessary Signatures.

CUBAN DEPUTIES CANNOT SEE IT

Some of the Articles Which Will be Placed on the Free List.

Captain Varney Receives a Light Sentence. Wheat Duties Reduced by France—Victory for the Gladstonians—The Pope's Encyclical on Socialism—Disastrous Explosion in a Prussian Mine.

MADRID, May 7.—The draft of the treaty of commerce between Spain and the United States was sent to the Spanish Minister at Washington with instructions to sign it immediately. It is expected the necessary signatures will be appended by the end of the week.

Although the Spanish government maintains the utmost reserve in regard to the treaty, even refusing to communicate it to the Cuban Deputies, information from a reliable source confirms the report that coal, petroleum, machinery and fats will be admitted free into Cuba and Porto Rico, and the present duty on flour will be reduced one-half in exchange for the free admission into the United States of sugar, coffee and cocoa.

The Deputies from Castile continue to oppose the treaty on the ground that it will render it impossible for Spanish flour to compete with American flour in the Spanish Antilles, but they cannot demand a veto on the treaty, as the government has power to sign it without obtaining special authority from the Chambers.

RUSSIA RETALIATES.

Calling in Her Balances on Deposit in European Capitals.

LONDON, May 7.—An increase in the Bank of England rate is probable because of the withdrawal of gold. Russia is angered by the action of the Rothschilds, and is calling in her balances now on deposit in European capitals.

The various European exchanges are greatly disturbed in consequence of Russia's action, remembering the result of such recalls in the cases of the Comptoir d'Escompies and Barings crisis.

Leading bankers are less apprehensive, knowing that such vindictive action will endanger any future Russian loan, whilst Russia knows that stocks are already too heavily held in Europe, and also that the Rothschilds' course will cause a permanent depreciation.

MORE DIPLOMACY.

Austria Has a Grievance Against the State of Virginia.

VIENNA, May 7.—In the Reichsrath Herr Masaryk gave notice that he would interpellate the government as to whether it was aware that subjects of Austria-Italy in the State of Virginia, United States of America, were treated as slaves, and if so what measures would the government take to obtain redress for such treatment of Austro-Hungarian subjects.

Public Sympathy Changed.

LONDON, May 7.—The statement given to the public by Mrs. Jackson regarding the brutal conduct of her husband while she was his prisoner at Blackburn has turned public sympathy in favor of the lady, whereas it had been strongly in favor of the husband. It is now recognized that a reconciliation between the pair is impossible, and the case will not probably be carried any higher. Upon Mrs. Jackson's death her husband will succeed to a considerable income should he survive her.

Bismarck's Power.

BERLIN, May 7.—Herr Arends, free Conservative Member of the Reichstag, has stated that Bismarck will have a powerful party behind him in that body, and that he can hardly fail to obtain profound attention for his utterances. Herr Arendt severely condemned the policy of Chancellor Caprivi, and said that the country is to be congratulated on the return of Prince Bismarck.

Captain Verney Sentenced.

LONDON, May 7.—On being arraigned before the bar for sentence Captain Edmund H. Verney, M. P., was pale and his whole manner extremely downcast. The minor plea was accepted by the Recorder, who thereupon sentenced the prisoner to imprisonment for one year without hard labor.

The Conservative Candidate Defeated.

LONDON, May 7.—The Conservatives were defeated in the election for a member of the House of Commons from the Stowmarket or Northwest division of Suffolk. Baron Stern, Liberal, received 4,946 votes against 4,123 cast for Mr. Greene, Conservative.

Duty on Wheat Reduced.

PARIS, May 7.—The Customs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies has decided that the duty on wheat shall be reduced to three francs. The reduction is to hold good for one year. The duty on corn, however, is not to be reduced.

Disastrous Explosion in a Prussian Mine.

BERLIN, May 7.—A disastrous explosion has occurred in the Serlo coal pit at Saarbrucken, Rhenish Prussia. Eight persons were killed outright and seven others were seriously injured.

120,000,000 Gallons of Whiskey.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Mason estimates that the amount of whiskey manufactured in the United States during the present year will be 120,000,000 gallons, being 5,000,000 gallons more whiskey than was ever produced in the United States in any year in its history.

The Pope's Encyclical.

LONDON, May 7.—A Rome correspondent says that the Pope's encyclical on Socialism will be published at Whitsuntide.

THE CROPS INJURED.

Growing Vegetables Frostbitten—Beans and Early Potatoes Destroyed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 7.—In an interview with prominent farmers and produce dealers in this and surrounding townships, the following was obtained:

"The frosts of last and the night previous," said a produce merchant, "have, as was anticipated, injured crops wherever they were sufficiently advanced to feel the effects. Acres upon acres of early beans and potatoes were destroyed. It is feared that the early peaches have suffered a like fate. It is too early to tell whether the apple crop has been affected by the blight. Places further inland have suffered more heavily than those near the lake shore. A gentleman who came in from Portage said to me that his late peach buds were all black inside, though apparently perfect without. He did not expect any peaches this year."

Among the farmers the following was obtained: At Penfield the peaches and early variety of cherries are destroyed.

At Pittsford farmers stated it was too early to determine whether the fruit had been destroyed but that the ground was frozen too hard to plow.

At Parma cherries and peaches have been injured.

At Fairport farmers report many acres of asparagus as being frozen and utterly worthless. The cherries and peaches are badly damaged.

At Dansville the snow covers the ground and the fruit crop is said to be badly damaged.

At Leroy cherries and apples are almost totally destroyed.

Early Strawberries Killed.

LEWES, Del., May 7.—The frost in this vicinity was very severe on fruits and vegetables. Early strawberries are probably killed. Apples, pears, cherries and plums are supposed to be badly damaged, and the few peaches still remaining are doubtless injured. Early potatoes beans and other vegetables are much hurt.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Delaware State Senate passed the House peach yellows bill for the extirpation of diseased trees throughout the State.

The new cruiser Newark has sailed for Hampton Roads, the repairs which were in progress on her having been completed.

Thirty-seven graduates had the degree of M. D. conferred upon them at the 36th annual commencement of the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia.

Daniel Fried, proprietor of a dime museum in Brooklyn, N. Y., committed suicide during the morning by shooting himself three times in the breast.

John Davis, of Dover, N. H., was held, without bail, for trial for killing his father, Samuel Davis.

Police Commissioner Dillon and Chief of Police Bollman, of New Haven, Conn., resigned during a stormy interview of the Police Board. The resignations are the result of political strife of long standing.

The factory of the Dow Manufacturing Company at Brockton, Mass., was destroyed by fire during the morning. Loss, $38,000; insurance $15,000. The firm manufactured all sorts of fancy leather goods.

Among the passengers who sailed from New York for Europe yesterday on the steamer City of Chicago were General J. S. Clarkson, President of the National League of Republican Clubs, and Mrs. Annie Besant, the lecturer.

A military company is to be formed by the students of the Sheffield Scientific School of New Haven, Conn., which will be instructed by Lieut. C. A. Totten, U.S.A., the Government attache at the school. The army and accoutrements of the Second Connecticut Infantry will be used.

John Hart, a 12-year-old slate picker employed at the Dickson coal breaker, Scranton, Pa., was crushed to death between the screens of the slate picking machinery. Two of the boy's brothers were killed in the great Mud Run disaster on the Lehigh Valley Railroad a short time ago.

A man having all the appearance of a dilapidated tramp was arrested last night in Boston for intoxication. On being searched at the station $23 in cash and bank books representing over $3,000 were found upon him. The books have the name of John Body which is the name the prisoner gave.

Mark Twain Going to Europe.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 7.—S. L. Clemens (Mark Twain) and family will sail for Europe on June 6 and will probably reside abroad for several years.

W. H. Lyon, Jr., J. L. Moore, and Albertus Swaim, Committee on Good of the Order of Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, have arranged a musicale to be held in their rooms next Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock to which members and ladies are cordially invited.

Editor W. J. Kline of the Amsterdam, N. Y., Daily Democrat, was in this city today and purchased of the Scott company one of their latest improved perfecting printing machines. Mr. Kline's paper is one of the most successful and flourishing in the State, and that he is one of the brightest and most capable of newspaper men all will believe when it is told that he was a college classmate of Corporation Counsel Marsh.

The Crescents Will Run up Against Pitcher Hetzell Next Saturday.

The Star Athletic base-ball nine of Newark opened the season last year by defeating the Crescent League's team of this city, 4 to 3 in a twelve-inning game. This year they opened at Rahway and defeated the boastful nine of that town by a score of 4 to 1.

Saturday next the Star Athletics will play here. Hetzell, who pitched last year, will pitch Saturday. The Rahways made one hit off him the other day, and last year the Crescents made only six hits in the twelve-inning game, and but two hits in a subsequent game.

A Reporter Gets a Pension.

After thirty-five years of active service as a reporter on the staff of the Newark Advertiser, Joseph H. Miller stopped work Sunday night and retired on a pension. Mr. Miller, who is sixty-nine years old, was known throughout the State, and during the civil war became famous as the "Cumberland Scout". He went within the lines of the Confederates many times, and was once sent to Libby Prison. At one time he represented every newspaper in New Jersey as correspondent in the Senate of the State. His nom de plume of "Perseverance Knox" was once famous.

If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

HOW PERFECTLY SIMPLE!

E. P. Williams Explains so Easily all About This American Tin-Plate Question That Some of the Greatest of Political Economists Insist is Complicated in its Bearings.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Among the daily readers of your enterprising journal are numerous friends of mine who seem to be somewhat disturbed by your publication on April 29, of the rubbish extracted from the mugwump journals, New York Evening Post and New York Times, with your own statements based thereon. As a business man, fully occupied in attention to my legitimate work, I cannot undertake to notice newspapers slanders in general. I am sure you would not intentionally mislead others, and will briefly give you some facts.

The New York Times article you quote is practically a collection of lies from start to finish—some intentional, evidently, and others which merely show the reporter's ignorance. George Jones, proprietor of the Times, was informed of this promptly, and he agreed to publish a letter from our young man who was belied by his reporter. The following letter was immediately sent to him, but up to date we are not aware that this promise has been fulfilled:

NEW YORK, Feb. 11, 1891.

HON. GEORGE JONES, PROPRIETOR NEW YORK TIMES.

DEAR SIR:—As stated to you in person today, and which at your request I now write you for publication in your valued journal, the conversation alleged to have taken place in this office between your reporter and myself, as contained in your issue of Sunday, Feb. 8, under the heading "Now Located in Harlem; The American Tin-Plate Liar is at Work Again", is full of falsehoods, and while there are streaks of truth it is practically a distortion of what was said. As a pretended statement of facts, it is totally misleading to your readers, besides being grossly insulting to myself and the honorable gentleman it falsely designated as a "Tin-Plate Liar", but who is one of our valued customers and friends.

The Tin-Plate referred to was made at our "U. S." Mill as stated.

Most respectfully,

CHAS. VAN BENSCHOTEN.
With ELY & WILLIAMS, New York.

The gentleman interviewed is my office manager who has by 15 years varied services here, established his character as being absolutely truthful and trustworthy.

When the incognito representative of the Evening Post entered my office, his general appearance at once created a suspicion, which was confirmed when he declined to give his name, and when I noticed his clothes were apparently made over in England.

He proved to be an amiable gentleman, as his somewhat comical report of our interview indicates, discovering which I was finally induced to explain some matters to him while assuring him that I consider his employers a company of intentional prevaricators on the tin plate question.

I am a member of the firm known as the United States Iron and Tin Plate Co., (Lim'td). We have a large mill, or collection of mills, and make several thousands of tons per annum of thin sheets of soft steel or fine grades of iron, used in making signs, tea trays, tinned spoons, gasoline stoves, sewing machine parts, etc., etc. These mills were originally constructed to make the black plates for tinning and leading into so called tin plates and terne plates under the tariff act of 1864, which placed a duty of 2½ cts per pound upon these products. In 1865, Secretary of the Treasury Fessenden nullified this provision by his infamous decision, which was a companion piece to his subsequent treachery when as a Senator he voted against the impeachment of Andrew Johnson. The result of his decision, after four years of brave struggling by the company, was its bankruptcy, and the works then became the property of those to whom they were mortgaged. Several other American makers were then forced to abandon tin and terne plate making because the duty upon these products was less than upon common black stove pipe iron, and is so to-day. The importers and foreign manufacturers, who are represented by the New York Times and Post, evidently, have been able to prevent the correction of this tin-plate outrage upon American industry and enterprise until the McKinley bill became a law. On July 1 next, the duty upon tin and terne plates becomes protective at 2 2-10 cents per pound, and inspired thereby extensive arrangements are in progress and in contemplation, by iron and steel manufacturers in the United States, which will result in a very large production. My own company has bought recently 13 acres of adjoining property to make room for additional mills and tinning stacks, and a large addition to its capital is arranged for. At a recent meeting of those intending to engage in this industry, nine concerns with a capacity of over 50,000 tons per annum, reported, and others are known to be making similar arrangements. We are not courting either friendly or hostile newspaper attention. We are simply going to work because under the new law it becomes possible to break up this British monopoly, created by the United States Government through an unfair discrimination corruptly accomplished, and corruptly maintained in our opinion. Under the old law several hundred million dollars have been sent to Great Britain during the past 25 years to pay for labor done there, which should have been created by American labor as in other forms of iron and steel production.

We have no doubt whatever that our products will be superior in quality to the British products our people have been compelled to use. We all know how utterly mean these tin plates and roofing plates have been during the past 10 years, as shown in the tinware and and roofing made of them. They rust or rot quickly because the muriatic acid is left on the black plates to eat away the iron or steel, and the coating of tin is nearly all rolled off so as to make them "cheap". We all know a poor thing is not cheap, and that a durable article is generally cheaper in the end at a higher cost. I have the pleasure to mail to you to-day a sample piece of some of our own make of "U. S." tin.

We are making this regularly and putting up more stacks to increase our output. Our plates have no muriatic acid under the coating, and they are heavier coated than ordinary British tin plates, so that utensils made from them can be guaranteed to last any reasonable length of time, much longer than the tinware for sale in the open market to-day, which is made from British tin of the quality we have described. The American iron and steel makers will undoubtedly drive such rubbish out of use, not by lower prices, but by furnishing better value and material fit for self respecting American householders to use. This is not a political question although the hired attorneys of British interests are striving to make it so. Our Democratic friends, Somers Bros., Brooklyn, N. Y., are now erecting a large works where they expect to make at least 2,500 boxes tin plates per week.

The prospects are that it will be one of the largest works in the United States, and in the points of scientific construction, it will probably be the finest concern of its kind in the world. I think it is about time for industrial traitors to emigrate, for they are of no earthly use in the United States.

Most respectfully,

E. P. WILLIAMS.

Felicitous Luncheons for the Clergy.

The luncheons of the Episcopal Convention held at Grace church the past three days have been admirably served by the ladies of Grace parish in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, as was the case at the previous Convention here. In token of their appreciation of the repeated courtesy of pastor Richards and the Board of Trustees, Bishop Scarborough proposed a vote of thanks, which was heartily and unanimously given. In a neat speech the Bishop said some very pleasant things about the Crescent Avenue elders and trustees, for their exceeding kindness in offering the use of their parlors a second time to the Convention, and made happy allusions to the subject of drawing closer together the bonds of Christian unity, expressing at the same time the hope that all professing Christians might yet be one.

The Rev. Mr. Richards made a peculiarly bright, courteous, and felicitous reply, in which he provoked a hearty laugh and great applause by addressing Bishop Scarborough as his "brother Bishop". He paid a very high compliment to Dr. Rodman, who, he said, had been the first to offer the use of Grace church to him and his flock when "by a mysterious Providence" the Crescent church had been burned very soon after the last visit of the Convention to Plainfield and to their parlors. Grace church had then seen carried on within its walls a Presbyterian prayer meeting at which neither prayer book nor surplice had been used. He reciprocated the good wishes of Bishop Scarborough, and like him prayed for the time when the church should be a unite.

Dr. Lewis Speaks for His Alma Mater.

Alumni of Alfred University, the Seventh-Day Baptist institution at Alfred Centre, Alleghany county, New York State, gave a reception last night at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York city, to the Rev. Dr. Jonathan Allen, the President of the University. Over seventy-five people were present. An association of the Alumni living in and near the city was formed. Officers were chosen as follows: President—Dr. Daniel Lewis; Vice Presidents—Prof. Cortiss F. Randolph, Dr. C. J. Minard, and C. C. Chapman; Secretary and Treasurer—Herbert G. Whipple. Speeches were made by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Armitage, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of Plainfield, and President Allen.

Some of those present were: Prof. Thomas Stillman of Stevens Institute, son of ex-Mayor Stillman of this city, Mrs. Stillman, the Rev. Dr. L. E. Livermore of Dunellen, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Chatfield, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Ames C. Lewis, P. B. McClennan of Syracuse, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dunham, Charles Potter Rogers, and other Plainfield graduates, Joseph M. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorton, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Prof. F. L. Green, Dr. Phœbe J. B. Waite, and Prof. Stephen Babcock.

New Planning for a Home for Their Rector.

Not satisfied with having begun the building of one of the handsomest church edifices in the city, the Grace church people are already talking of the erection, at some future period, of a rectory and a parish building. For the latter the old church will do duty for a time.

Bishop Scarborough speaks of the new church "as the consummation of Dr. Rodman's long rectorship and a lasting monument of his unwearied labors among the citizens".

It is false! No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires's Root Beer. Some dealers recommend imitations for the larger profits they yield. What a delicious drink Hires's Root Beer Packages make.

Here's our card.

It's an easy matter to present a card, but it isn't quite so easy to tell just what a card stands for. Shakespeare asked a very pertinent question when he said, "What's in a name?" There's a good deal in a name; your name is identified with whatever you do; if you are a straightforward and upright in action, your name suffers by it; if you are, it rises in public estimation accordingly. When we present our card we present with it a name which is really a certificate of character. We have endeavored to identify it with enterprise, reliability and fair dealing. You can trust us for telling the exact truth, whatever it may be, because we can afford to do nothing else. We can especially recommend our Spring stock of Shoes.

HARRISON'S "Town and Country" READY MIXED PAINTS,

Are unsurpassed (if equalled) in the following particulars:

They are painters' paints.
They are perfectly pure.
They may be used by an old-time painter, just as he would use White Lead mixed by himself.
They will save money to painters.
They are uniform.
They are as bright as the best tinting colors can make them.
They are permanent.
They are good for many years wear when properly applied.
They will stand unlimited brushing out.
They are cheaper than any similar color mixed by hand.
They will cover on a good surface 400 square feet, two coats, per gallon.
They will cover on a poor surface 300 square feet, two coats, per gallon.
When freely thinned out with pure, raw Linseed Oil, their spreading capacity is still greater.

When the Freight House Will be Moved.

[From The Central Times.]

When the city acquires a piece of property, that is not in the market, and which the city would not buy even if it were, then the Central Railroad Company may be induced to move the freight house and turn that which is unsightly into a garden spot. It is pretty safe to say, therefore, that the same death trap will exist, as it has existed for years, until the company sees fit to have it otherwise, in spite of all the petitions Plainfield people may sign. It is a characteristic way railroads have of having their own sweet will, and of telling the people to mind their own business, though the Central Railroad is a little more polite about it than some others in courteously imposing an impossible provision. There is one thing that will remove the freight house with its network of deadly tracks. When a number of Plainfield widows or Plainfield orphans seek damages for the loss of dear ones at this place, the railroad company will certainly move the freight house. This is the accident we all have been predicting for years. It has not come yet, but it will some time; and when it does the freight house will surely move on.

The Reason of It.

For the information of the editor of the Trenton Times—although his assumption of interest in Plainfield affairs is rather presumptious—we will say that the designation of the Central Times of this city, instead of the news, as an official paper to publish the laws of the last legislature, was done at the solicitation of the leading members of the Republican and the Democratic parties of this city.

The Republicans asked it because they do not recognize the news as in anyway their representative. The Republican Board of Freeholders of this county have refused the news their official printing; the Republican Common Council of this city have cut the news off their list, and now the State drops the news into oblivion so far as any recognition of its existence is concerned.

The Democrats asked for the appointment of the Central Times, because they respect it as an honest antagonist fighting for political victory with its party's principles and accomplishments as weapons. On the other hand, the entire community agree that the news is a dirty foe, with dirty words and dirty ways of battle.

Our Neighbor's Flags Are Always Flying.

(From The Westfield Leader.)

The public schools of this city if they have no patriotism, should at least have politeness. They have all been presented with flags, yet few fly them.—Plainfield Press.

Let us send some of Westfield's regular Color Guard to help them out, Brother Demarest. Have n't missed a day yet, rain or shine, ever since the flag was first run up. Westfield was the first in the field, too, so far as this part of the country is concerned.

No Room Left for the Local Papers.

In commenting on the list of contractor's and cement maker's advertising pamphlets and other articles deposited in the corner-stone of the new Grace church building, the Elizabeth Herald remarks that "strangely enough no county or city papers were thought worthy of being thus handed down to posterity". But they laid away a copy of the New York World beside a prayer-book!

Kind Words From the Other Side.

The Central Times, the organ of the Republican party of this city, says: "Senator Fred Marsh has been appointed Prosecuting Attorney for Union county in place of W. R. Wilson. Honors come thick and fast to this young lawyer and they do not come undeservedly. Satisfaction in his advancement is not by any means restricted to Mr. Marsh's own party."

Some Got Their Salaries, and Some Did n't.

From the schedule of assessments and receipts announced by the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey for the year ending May 1, 1891, it appears that Grace church of this city has paid with most commendable promptness its rector's salary of $2,000 and its Convention expenses of $59. Holy Cross church of North Plainfield has been similarly prompt in paying its rector's salary of $1,560, its Convention assessment of $39, and its Bishop's salary assessment of $56. Dr. Rodman of Grace church gets the third highest salary in the Diocese. The highest two are: St. John's of Elizabeth, $4,000; St. Paul's, of Camden, $3,000. Other salaries range from $200 to $1,800, per year. One church, at Mullica Hill, offers only $100 as a salary. The assessments for the Bishop's salary during the year amounted to $1,110.90. Of this sum $1,095.18 was paid. The balance due, including former arrears of $431.50, is $578.82. The total salary list of the Diocese is $61,150. About one-fourth of it remains unpaid. Some poor pastors seem not to have received anything on their salaries. Grace church at Westfield paid its salary of $800 and went into arrears of $36 on Convention expenses. The total Convention expenses arrears is $305. Twenty-eight out of the 91 churches in the Diocese contributed nothing to the Convention during the year.

New Jersey Grows Roses for New York.

From the census bulletin giving details of floral culture it appears that there are 366 florist establishments in New Jersey under 3,703,554 feet of glass, not quite half the amount reported for New York and Pennsylvania. New Jersey capital that is invested in flowers is $3,666,518, against $9,254,513 in New York and $5,641,513 in Pennsylvania. The sum of $550,242 is paid annually in wages to 1,191 men that make it a livelihood. Roses lead the list of products, and New Jersey raises 5,808,014 and New York only 4,156,906. Pennsylvania is a great rose-bearing State, the annual average being 11,043,744. In hardy plants New York leads, raising 5,692,947, and New Jersey follows, with an average yield of 4,006,602, which is much greater than Pennsylvania, the number being only 2,680,832.

The Gong Will Toot, But Not for Fire.

The city of Elizabeth has adopted and put in practice the Gamewell fire-alarm system, such as Plainfield has, and likes it very much. But having heard Plainfield's new fire-gong, and having compared its workings during a genuine alarm with Elizabeth's bell, the Elizabeth Superintendent of Fire-Alarm Telegraph wants his city to have just such a gong. The bell that Elizabeth has been using is that of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church. The church officials object to its being used any longer for fire-alarm purposes, and a change has to be made speedily. Next Monday afternoon the Superintendent of Fire-Alarm Telegraph will bring the Fire Committee of the Common Council, to Plainfield to hear the gong toot and to see it work. The tests will take place at about half-past two o'clock.

Mayor Place Advertises His Borough.

(From The Westfield Leader.)

The arguments of Mayor Place Monday evening in favor of borough government were simply a statement of what had been done in North Plainfield under that system during the years 1885—1891. The speech thus considered resolved itself largely into an advertisement of the advantages and attractions of North Plainfield as a residence; and so smoothly and naturally did the Mayor picture the charms of living in that thrifty borough that it would almost pay the citizens of North Plainfield to send him out to lecture on the beauties of borough government, and incidentally the pleasure of enjoying them at their best in North Plainfield.

Strawberries Injured by the Frost.

The cold wave is reported to have damaged the strawberries and early vegetables in many places in New Jersey. Flurries of snow fell in Passaic and Bergen counties and at Asbury Park, as well as at Plainfield. In Hackensack it was said that strawberies and other fruits had been injured by frost. Farmers near Plainfield report that the berry crop is very badly damaged. The peach crop in Washington Valley, is not damaged, the buds being too far advanced. In Hunterdon county the peach trees seem comparatively unharmed. Early garden truck received a severe setback.

Senator Marsh Still Counsels Elizabeth.

Elizabeth's City Council has accepted the resignation of Senator Marsh as City Attorney but has retained him as a special counsel with the same salary, to act as legal advisor to the city until a new City Attorney is elected. There is some hitch over this part of the programme. Ex-Alderman Connolly, who was slated as Senator Marsh's successor, does not seem to command the support of all the Democratic Councilmen.

—"The prettiest white goods I've seen! The prices are remarkably low!" That is the comment of the buyers at Peck's.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, vertigo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed two months, and still continuing, find great relief. Would not be without, and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptoms.

Handcuffed Because He Whipped a Jealous Rival.

A Newark detective came to Plainfield yesterday, handcuffed Walter Harris, a newly engaged waiter at The Albion, and took him away. Harris is accused by another colored dude, with assault with intent to kill. They both loved the same girl and fought for her. Harris says he got the best of it and that therefore his rival had him arrested.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

FOREIGNERS OF NOTE.

QUEEN VICTORIA is said to write Hindoostanee readily.

IT is said that Mr. Gladstone reads every novel published in Great Britain.

COUNT HERBERT BISMARCK, according to the Galignani Messenger, recently lost $70,000 in the Nice clubs.

PRINCE BISMARCK said lately at Hamburg: "My ideal is to be able to walk about in this large and beautiful town without seeing a single head turned to look at me."

THE Grand Duke Nicholas, the czar's crazy uncle, is getting better and will soon be removed to his house near St. Petersburg. He is sixty years old and has been in the army since he was sixteen.

ACCORDING to German papers of recent date the engagement of the hereditary grand duke of Luxembourg and a daughter of the prince of Wales will be announced soon, despite all reports to the contrary.

HON. CHARLES PELHAM VILLIERS is ninety years old and for fifty-five years has represented the borough of Wolverhampton in the British parliament, and he has no salary for the job and will have no pension when he retires.

ISABELLA II., ex-queen of Spain, is a fat and waddling old lady of circus-like girth, who seems to have forgotton all the vanities of the world and to be devoted to works of charity, the appreciation of Parisian dinners and the needs of a good partner at the whist table.

THE duke of Westminster, England's wealthiest nobleman, is engaged in a squabble with a surgeon over the cost of embalming the body of the duke's son. The surgeon wants two hundred and twenty-two pounds and six shillings and the duke is only willing to pay forty-two pounds.

RAILROAD RACKET.

THE Pennsylvania railroad system employs 7,671 engineers.

THE longest single line of railroad in the world is the new trans-Caucasian built by Russia.

THE highest inhabited place in the world is Galera, a railway village in Peru, 15,635 feet above the sea.

TO SECURE uniformity in the painting and varnishing of their passenger and freight cars some railroads employ expert chemists to analyze the paints and oils used.

SO SEVERE is the climate of South America upon iron that before railroad ties have shown signs of decay the flanges of the rails will be nearly eaten off by rust.

MORE land is owned by railroad companies (211,000,000 acres) than would make six states as large as Iowa. Since 1861 no less than 181,000,000 acres of land have been given to railroad companies.

THE Grand Trunk railway contemplates erecting a stone arch bridge by the side of the present railway suspension bridge over the Niagara river, to be used for freight purposes, leaving the present structure for the use of passenger trains only. Plans have been prepared and adopted by the company.

CHARLES WATTS, superintendent of the Chicago division of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago road, claims that the fastest time ever made on an American railway was on that road lately. His official report showed that this special train ran fifty-three miles in forty-five minutes, eleven miles of which were covered in seven minutes, or at an average of ninety-four miles an hour.

NOTES FOR THE WOMEN.

IN Lapland dress fashions have not changed for one thousand years.

QUEEN ELIZABETH started the style of wearing silk stockings and Marie Antoinette instituted the custom of wearing feathers in the hair.

MME. HENRI GREVILLE, who has seen more of this country than most French women, says the American woman makes too many acquaintances and too few friends.

WHEN it is desired to have the gloves cover the entire arm, as may occur with evening dress, they are secured to the shoulders by straps of satin ribbon that buckle on the gown.

NOBODY wears veils adorned with beauty spots now unless the dots of court-plaster are arranged with a clever eye to detail and effect—in other words, every girl is her own veil maker, and she places the small black disk in such a place as will call attention to her most beautiful feature.

A WEDDING costume worn by a London bride had a rich white silk royale train, bordered with white ostrich feathers, and opened over a beautiful white velvet skirt richly embroidered with pearls. One-half of the bodice front was of white silk; the other of velvet draped with crepe de Chine. The tulle veil was held in place by three diamond stars.

No cure, no pay, is the motto of Salvation Oil, because it cures every time. Only 25 cents.

The chaplain for Congress seems to pray hard enough, but still he does no good; not so with Dr. Bull; his Cough Syrup has never failed to cure the most stubborn cough or cold.

Sudden Death of a Prominent Man.

Ex-Senator Augustus G. Canfield died suddenly Tuesday night at his home at Succasunna, Morris county. He was fifty years old. He was a graduate of Princeton College, and studied law in the office of Attorney-General Jacob Vanatta. He practiced law a few years and then gave his attention to the care of his extensive mining interests. His father was Frederick Canfield, nephew of Gen. Mahlon Dickerson. Governor of New Jersey from 1815 to 1817, and Secretary of the Navy under President Johnson.

Senator Canfield was elected to the Legislature in 1871, 1872 and 1873, and it was largely through his energy and influence that the General Railroad law was passed. From 1877 to 1880 he was State Senator. He retired from politics when his term expired.

Bound Brook's Loss.

The news was received in this city last evening of the sudden death of George E. Gaddis, proprietor of Hotel Gaddis at Bound Brook, after an illness of five days from kidney trouble. Mr. Gaddis had many warm friends in this vicinity, who will learn with deep regret of his sudden demise. Deceased was a member of Eastern Star Lodge, No. 105, F. & A. M., of Bound Brook, and also of Somerset Lodge, No. 56, K. of P., of the same town. He was also a Chapter mason. He was one of Bound Brook's most prominent and respected citizens, and had held offices of trust in the village. A widow and one son survive him. Genial, honest and generous, his absence will be sadly felt by a host of friends.

The Policeman's Shot Proved Fatal.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., May 7.—Dennis Mahany, the Buffalo tramp, who was shot by Policeman Joey, died at 5:15 a. m. Joey was arrested and arraigned during the morning. He pleaded not guilty, on the ground of self-defense. Public opinion is against him, as it is believed he was over hasty.

Twenty Per Cent. Offered Creditors.

LYNN, Mass., May 7.—The liabilities of Dickinson, Count & Co., shoe manufacturers, at a meeting of creditors were given as $31,000, and the assets as $10,000. Twenty per cent. was offered by the firm, but was not accepted. A committee of investigation was appointed.

EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR.

Chauncey M. Depew Talks About Railroad Travel.

Fast Engines Encased in Steel Covers and Drawing Cigar-Shaped Coaches Will Probably Be Introduced—Importance of Abolishing Grade Crossings.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

There will soon be a revolution in the speed of railroad trains in America. The tendency of the times is towards more rapid transit in travel, and the great railroad corporations are going to keep "in the swim." Chauncey M. Depew, while not a believer in fast trains owing to the excessive danger in fast running, says that in ten years express trains on American roads will in all probability be making an average of sixty-five miles an hour between the big cities.

This prediction is made with the expectation of new inventions, a number of which are now under consideration by the Vanderbilt system officials. President Depew does not believe that the safety devices can be improved on to a very great extent and that with faster trains there will be more danger, although many existing deficiencies can be remedied.

"The railroad of the future will be a truly marvelous institution if we keep on improving for the next ten years as we have for ten years past," said President Depew. "It will be an outgrowth of the best conditions now existing among the various railroads of the world. To make the model railroad we must first look after the roadbed. The iron tie will come in the course of time it is more than probable, and the bed on which it is laid will be made of stone to hold the earth filling. Wherever there is liability of a washout it will be constructed of solid masonry. By getting the roadbed, first of all, in a perfect condition, using stone and iron, in place of timber and rail, we lay the first foundation for greater speed and for greater safety. We consider the roadbeds on the Vanderbilt system A No. 1, but we advance with the times. Curves and grades will be done away with to a great extent and wherever it is possible in the railroad of the future. To accomplish this, existing routes between stations will be changed and if necessary tunnels cut."

"How about grade crossings as a preventive to speed and safety?"

"Next to getting our perfect roadbed with tracks straight and level the grade crossing is of vital importance. It will have to be abolished, and on the great roads probably will be in the course of a few years more. When the grade crossings go you raise the percentage of safety to life fully twenty-five per cent. Tracks will have to be depressed through corporate limits, and this will do away not only with the crossings, but with restrictions now laid by the municipal corporations on the speed of railroad trains."

"Now as to bridges and culverts and their relation to speed and safety, Mr. Depew?"

"Well they too must be improved on to help along greater speed. There should be no wooden culverts in the railroad of the future and bridges should be made of iron and stone. This will do away with destruction of life and property by fire and greatly increase the safety of travel. Now, with stone and masonry for road beds, iron and stone for culverts and bridges and with a track as straight as existing stations will permit, running through cities in viaducts with no grade, we can talk about ruining our engines at a greater rate of speed and with greater evenness of motion."

"And now what of the rolling stock and motive power?"

"Yes, I suppose improvements will be made in rolling stock, although to look at some of the great limited trains to the west with their magnificent cars one can hardly imagine anything more commodious or comfortable. The only improvements in cars that I anticipate will be in the heating apparatus, and by reducing the weight at the same time retain the strength. It can hardly be predicted that there will be no change over the present system of heating by steam. While steam heating was a great advance over the car stove put it is likely to be bettered. It is useless to speculate on what device will bring about the change. Something new is turning up every day. It takes time to test the new inventions and harmonize them with their surroundings. Before their utility can be determined they must be tried under all the conditions to which they can be subjected. The American sleeping car weighs about forty-two tons, while the English first-class carriage occupying a relative position to our sleeper will average only ten tons. The ordinary passenger or day coach will weigh about ten tons. Handicapped by the weight in cars I think we make even better time than the English railways where the average speed is fifty miles an hour. Now, an American train like the western limited, will weigh with six sleepers, baggage cars and the usual number of coaches, fully four hundred tons. A similar train to accommodate the same number of passengers on an English road will weigh not more than two hundred and fifty tons. So the future speed of our trains must depend after, of course, the roadbed is in first-class condition, almost entirely on the weight of our trains. What we must do is reduce the weight of our cars, and at the same time retain their strength."

"What inventions have been made in this line?"

"There have been quite a number suggested. The steel car is perhaps the most important of these, and I would not be in the least surprised to see steel passenger and sleeping cars run on our fast lines in America in a few years. Mr. Buchanan, the superintendent of motive power, has in mind a steel car, which is shaped like a cigar.

"By building your car cigar-shaped and of steel you get the reduction in weight and the benefit in speed that is sure to follow a reduction of the resistance of atmosphere. The idea I believe is to have the cars linked together after the manner of the present vestibule system. The circular form of the cars will not permit the wind to eddy about and between them, which of course is a check to speed. On what we call our limited trains, with the number of cars carried by them, the engines are taxed to their utmost capacity. We must decrease the size of trains as well as reduce the weight of cars. This branch of course necessitates an additional number of trains; yet the population is not large enough to justify taking such a step. Ten years from now things will be different."

"Now as to the engines, Mr. Depew. Do you believe electricity will supercede steam as a means of propelling cars?"

"Ah, that is a very difficult question to answer. While it would not surprise me to see electricity rushing our railroad trains along at the rate of fifty or sixty miles an hour, I recognize there must be more great secrets of the mystic power revealed before we accept it. When we can get electricity cheap enough that produce it as we go at the same cost as we now generate steam, we can talk about electricity as a motive power. Many railroad men are of the opinion that the steam locomotive, as a means of propelling cars, is doomed. They say its use involves too great a waste, and that electricity is already successfully employed for the propulsion of street and suburban cars. That is all well enough and I glory in the inventiveness of our Americans, but electricity will need to be juggled a great deal more before we can run a through express train to Chicago with it."

"How about the brakes and electric signals?"

"The brakes are very satisfactory, and I see little chance for improvement in that direction, but what I have already stated applies to the brake. Everything in this progressive country is constantly advancing and new ideas are coming to the front every day. I am satisfied that the best automatic signals are very safe as they stand today. They have been thoroughly tested and not found wanting.

"The train of the future will travel at a much greater rate of speed if conditions I have named prevail in detail. But to get fast trains for the country the municipal corporations will have to lend a helping hand in aiding to abolish grade crossings and permitting road beds either under or over the highway."

THERE IS TIME ENOUGH.

The Busiest People Are Those Who Have the Most Time to Spare.

Busy people always seem to have plenty of time. Their day is only twenty-four hours long, yet out of that twenty-four hours—fourteen hundred and forty moments—they find space for an astonishing amount of work. They are never afraid to undertake a new thing. They have always a few minutes to give to a friend. They will secure an hour for some congenial occupation. It is to the busy men you go, asking can they take a part in this new project. Certainly; state what you would like done, or how you wish it, and they will lend a hand. Why, if you so desire, they will take time to tell you just what you ought to begin and how to manage it. And when one piece of work is accomplished they pass to the next with perfect readiness, and a calm confidence in their own ability.

Yes, strange to say, the people who never have time to do anything are those who never have anything to do. They would start this scheme, take part in that transaction, if they only had a little more time. They would be so glad to pay these calls, only too delighted to give that help, to learn a language, or to read a book, but they cannot make the time. And while they lament their lack of it, all the time they had is gone, and their plans are still unfinished.

After all, what more time have the busy than the idle? Has not each of us to-day? Has not each of us all the time there is?—Harper's Bazar.

HOT TALK IN ROME

The Report of the New Orleans Grand Jury Denounced.

BITTER COMMENTS BY THE PRESS

An Answer that Will be Given to the United States in Future.

The Italian Consul at New Orleans Says Nine of the Lynched Men Were Citizens of Italy—His Ground for Asking Damages—Detective O'Malley Makes Another Statement—He Courts a Trial.

ROME, May 8.—The decision of the New Orleans grand jury has caused a great deal of excitement throughout this city, and is bitterly commented upon by the press.

The Capitan Francesca, the organ of the opposition, said in a leading article: "This impudent glorification of murder, this solidarity of a whole country with a band of cowardly homicides gathered in numerous thousands to exterminate a few helpless prisoners, is no longer the cry of a people drunk with crime and blood. It is a declaration premeditated and matured by the grand jury, which was regularly chosen. It is the answer that the American government has given to the just claims of Italy.

"For the first time in many centuries an infamous crime is elevated to an institution of the State. It is declared that when assassins are too numerous to be punished they shall be gentlemen.

"The result of this theory, if it is accepted and sustained by the government of the Union, will be simply that strangers in the United States in the future must consider themselves unprotected by the law, and will be constrained to trust the defence of their rights and lives to the strength of their own arms.

"When in future the President of the United States shall demand from a European country the right to defend his countrymen, he will be answered as Italy has been answered."

Italy's Claim for Compensation.

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Signor Corte, the Italian Consul, has forwarded a letter to District-Attorney Grant, in which he claims that nine of the lynched men were subjects of King Humbert. It is upon this basis that Italy will demand compensation of the United States.

O'MALLEY'S STATEMENT.

The New Orleans Detective Talks About the Hennessy Case.

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Dominick O'Malley, the notorious detective, has sent a long statement to the press, in which he gives a history of that portion of his life which dates from his arrival in New Orleans.

O'Malley came here in 1878, and since that time has been employed by several prominent concerns. He gives a detailed account of his services to the State in the capacity of a detective and reviews at length the famous Metranga-Provenzano and Hennessy cases.

He reiterates his statement that the five Italians who underwent trial for the murder of Chief Hennessy were innocent of the crime, and says he would give his theory of the crime if he had any direct evidence to substantiate it. The day will come, he believes, when he can speak positively on this point, but for the present he will maintain a strict silence, fearing that if he should speak further on the subject he would throw suspicion on certain persons who may be perfectly innocent. He states, however, that Chief Hennessy was not murdered by members of the Mafia.

O'Malley reasserts his innocence of any connection in the Hennessy case and says he fears no investigation. All he wants is a fair trial. He alleges that his life has been threatened and been told that if acquitted he will be lynched. The remainder of the statement contains nothing new.

COSTA RICA'S REVOLUTION.

A Decree Suspends all Individual Guarantees for Sixty Days.

PANAMA, May 8.—The report of a revolution in Costa Rica is confirmed.

The following official decree has been published at the capital: "The Constitutional Congress of the Republic decrees the suspension of all individual guarantees up to sixty days, according to the judgment of the Executive Government named in section second of article third of the Constitution, approved by Jose Rodriguez, President, and Joaquin Lizano, the Secretary of State."

The following particulars of the Chilian revolution have been received:

IQUIQUE, May 7.—The news is confirmed that the French Government prevented the sailing of the ironclads President Errazuriz and the President Pinto, owned by the Chilian Government.

The South American steamships Laja and Lantaro are sailing under the British flag for protection.

England and Voluntary Schools.

LONDON, May 8.—Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at the banquet given by the Mayor of London to Governor Lidderdale, of the Bank of England, gave an indirect assurance that the Government would not interfere with the control of voluntary schools.

More Anarchists Arrested.

ROME, May 8.—More arrests of Anarchists have been made in this city. In the possession of some of the prisoners was found a pamphlet issued by Malatesta, a refugee in London, explaining the manufacture and use of bombs.

Swam Sixteen Consecutive Hours.

LONDON, May 8.—The American swimmer Dalton successfully completed his task of swimming 16 consecutive hours in the English Channel. He left the water at midnight.

FLAMES IN SYRACUSE.

Several Manufacturers Lose Heavily by the Burning of the Eagle Block.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 8.—About 8 o'clock last night fire started in the four-story brick block on Walton street owned by James W. Eager, and which a year ago cost $35,000 to build. The building is a total loss, and was insured for $18,000.

Mr. Eager occupied the first floor and basement for his heavy hardware business. The rear of the second floor was occupied by Frank Diel for the storage of stoves and hardware, and the front of the same story was occupied by Joseph Fessenger, manufacturer of paper boxes and door hangers. The third story front was occupied by Charles Gilcher & Co., manufacturers of children's shoes, and the fourth story was used for the storage of furniture by the Syracuse Cabinet Co., who had just put in their spring stock, amounting to about $9,000.

The loss was total on the building and all of its contents, and will probably reach $120,000; insured for about half its value.

SHE WANTS $10,000.

A Pennsylvania Lawyer the Defendant in a Breach of Promise Case.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 8.—A breach of promise case, which is likely to attract considerable attention, is on trial in the Supreme Court here.

The plaintiff is Nellie E. Livingston, a pretty Canadian, about 30 years old, who is suing Frank W. Knox, said to be a prominent lawyer of Punxsutawney, Pa., for $10,000 damages.

It appears that some months ago Miss Livingston advertised for a position as companion to a lady. Knox, who is a widower, saw the advertisement and answered it. He came here, met Miss Livingston, and it is said that tender episodes had occurred before he returned home.

Letters were exchanged which are as indiscreet as such letters usually are and which will be read in court. The case will undoubtedly develop interesting features.

BLOWN UP IN A COAL MINE.

Four Men Killed and Many Others Seriously Injured.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 8.—An explosion occurred at 7 a. m. in Ocean Mine, seven miles from here.

Four miners were killed, and several others were badly injured.

The fire, which followed the explosion, is still burning.

The killed are: Joseph Prathers, aged 60, Connellsville, Pa.; William Dougherty, 35, Bridgeport; Nathan Gates, 28, Clarksburg; Charles Welsh, 28, Clarksburg.

Welsh's body was recovered half a mile from the pit with his clothes entirely burned off.

Further search for the bodies has been abandoned on account of the heat.

TWO TRAINS COLLIDE.

A Baggageman Killed and Two Postal Clerks Badly Injured.

PITTSBURG, May 8.—Passenger trains No. 7, westbound, and No. 10, eastbound, on the Panhandle road collided at Tuscarawas at 11 a. m.

Daniel Longnecker, baggageman, of Columbus, O., was instantly killed. C. D. Rodgers and Otto Miller, postal clerks, of Indianapolis, and G. F. Marvin, express messenger, were badly injured, being cut about the head and limbs. Their bodies are also contused. The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped and escaped injury.

Guarded by Men With Rifles.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 8.—Labor leaders at Scottdale say that 1000 men, taken into the coke regions by operators and who now refuse to work, are kept prisoners by men armed with rifles, who will not let them return home.

Football Team Going to England.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 8.—It has been determined to send a football team from this city to England to try conclusions with some of the crack British elevens. Citizens have already raised $2,000 for the purpose.

Gov. Thayer's Political Axe.

LINCOLN, Neb. May 8.—Gov. Thayer has already removed almost every appointee of Gov. Boyd, and all the old officials under Thayer have been reinstated. Public feeling runs very high, but there will be no demonstration.

Arrested as an Accessory to Murder.

BOSTON, May 8.—Mrs. Sarah Leach, of Somerville, has been arrested on a charge of being accessory to her husband in the murder of a servant girl in their employ by criminal malpractice. She was released under $5,000 bail.

Shot His Daughter.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Police Officer Hugh Burns shot and dangerously wounded his 13-year-old daughter at his residence, 325 West 14th street. He is believed to be insane over the death of his wife, which occurred a few weeks ago.

A Murderer Believed to be Insane.

DOVER, N. H., May 8.—It seems to be clear that James McDuffee, who, two weeks ago, killed Kate Lawrence at Rochester, is insane. A medical examination will be applied for by the sheriff.

THE ETATA ESCAPES

Chilians on Board Armed and Ready to Resist.

SECRETARY TRACY'S PROMPT ACT

Rear-Admiral Brown Ordered to Seize the Vessel Wherever Found.

A United States Deputy Marshal Carried Off, but Released Eight Miles Down the Coast—An Armed Vessel Owned by Balmaceda Hovering Around the Entrance to San Diego—A Fight Probable.

SAN DIEGO, Cala., May 8.—The steamship Etata which was seized Wednesday by the U. S. Marshall, got away during the evening, taking the U. S. Deputy Marshall, who was on board, with her.

She left the harbor a little after 8 o'clock. Her departure was not wholly unexpected, but it was not believed that she would leave as soon as she did.

About 5 o'clock the captains gig containing himself and five of the crew pulled out from the foot of H street and as soon as the captain got on board the anchor was weighed and the vessel steamed out of the harbor.

The United States Marshall was not aware evidently that his authority was to be disregarded by the Captain of the Etata for at the time of her sailing he was in quest of the schooner Robert and Minnie, which craft he had been ordered to take at any point outside of the jurisdiction of Mexico.

There is no doubt now but what the Chilians were determined to leave the harbor at any cost.

One of the deputy marshals, who was stationed at the mouth of the harbor in a small boat to keep a lookout, says that when the Etata passed out the pilot was standing between two armed Chilians, while four cannon guarded both bow and stern. There were over eighty Chilians drawn up on deck ready for action.

During her stay in port the only arms displayed was one small cannon, while no more than sixty sailors were at any time seen on her deck.

Orders to Seize the Etata.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The matter of the steamship Etata has passed out of the hands of Secretary Foster and Attorney-General Miller into the hands of Secretary Tracy, who has instructed Rear-Admiral Brown, commanding the Pacific squadron, to seize the Etata wherever found, and general instructions to this effect will be sent to all officers commanding United States men-of-war on the Pacific Station.

The United States government takes the position that the Etata, in leaving the United States while in the custody of the United States Marshal, subjects herself to seizure at any time or place.

Attorney-General Miller has been informed that the United States Deputy Marshal who was on board the Etata at the time she went to sea was put ashore eight miles down the coast, the vessel proceeding on her way.

A FIGHT PROBABLE.

An Armed Vessel of the Balmaceda Party Ready for the Etata.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—The Chronicle states that it has information that gives ground for the statement that the steamer seen hovering around the entrance to San Diego is the armed transport Imperiale, now in possession of Balmaceda's party. She left Valparaiso to intercept the Etata on her return voyage to Iquique. The Imperiale is a vessel of 2,300 tons, and is said to be capable of steaming 15 miles per hour.

Senor Cassenoca, former Chilian Consul, says: "It will be found that British money is the mainstay of the insurgents against our government. The British want to obtain control of the nitrate deposits, and President Balmaceda wants them worked for the benefit of the Chilian government."

Car Builder Stephenson Very Ill.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 8.—The veteran car and carriage builder of New York, John Stephenson, is confined to his home here suffering with an attack of grip combined with a weakening of the action of the heart. Mr. Stephenson is now in his 83d year.

Dixon Declared Insane.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Charles J. Dixon, who declared himself to be vice-president of an organization known as "Christ's Followers," and who said he came here from the West to kill Jay Gould, was last night declared insane at Bellevue Hospital.

Another Murder Mystery.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The body of the man found in the river at Long Island City has been identified as that of Edward Wagner. He was undoubtedly strangled, for what reason is yet a mystery, and the body thrown into the river.

Victory for Strikers.

BOSTON, May 8.—It is reported that the strike of workers in the granite quarries at Barre, Vt., has terminated in a victory for the strikers.

ELOPERS TAKE $3,000.

Farmer Kates Heartbroken at His Young Wife's Conduct.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., May 8.—The elopement of George K. Bowen, a young man well known in Elsinboro, and the pretty young wife of Jacob Kates, a well known farmer of Lower Creek, has created a sensation here, owing to the fact that the farmer accuses the elopers with taking $3,000 of his cash.

Bowen and Mrs. Kates met at a party about three weeks ago, and Bowen called so frequently at the house afterwards that Kates forbade him the house. This injunction, however, was unheeded and Bowen kept up his visits until the husband put him out of the house.

This so enraged Mrs. Kates that she went away with Bowen yesterday. Kates is almost heartbroken.

BARONDESS OUT OF PRISON.

He Secures Bail Pending an Appeal to the Supreme Court.

NEW YORK, May 8.—A motion for a new trial was denied Joseph Barondess, the leader of the Journeymen Cloakmakers, who was convicted last week of extortion in getting $100 from the firm of Popkin & Marks, Broadway cloakmakers, Judge Van Brunt sentenced Barondess to one year and nine months in State prison.

Lawyer Howe, after sentence was pronounced, made a motion for a stay and for the release of his client on bail pending an appeal to the General Term of the Supreme Court.

This was granted by Judge Van Brunt, and he fixed bail at $5,000, which was furnished by Hannah Gluck.

Still Worrying the Delamaters.

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 8.—George W., George B., V. M. and T. A. Delamater, members of the late banking firm of Delamater & Co., were again arrested during the afternoon and arraigned in Alderman Landerbaugh's court to answer to the charge of embezzlement. The plaintiff in the case is W. S. Murray, who had $850 in the bank when the assignment was announced. It was proven that Mr. Murray deposited money in the bank late on Thursday, Dec 4, 1890, at 1:30 p. m., the assignment being announced on Friday Dec. 5, at 9 a. m. The defendants waived a hearing and gave bail in the sum of $1,200 for their appearance at court.

In Memory of Gen. Sherman.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Brooklyn honred the memory of Gen. Sherman at a meeting last night at the Academy of Music under the direction of the State and local organizations of the G. A. R., the military order of the Loyal Legion, and the resident officers of the army and navy. Members of Gen. Sherman's family sat in one of the boxes.

New York Builders Strike Unchanged.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The housesmiths' strike remains unchanged. The boss framers declined to act upon a communication received from the framers because it was unofficial. The purport of the letter was that the strikers waive the compulsory exhibition of pay rolls and extracts.

Funeral of the Late Minister Swift.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—A dispatch received at the State Department from San Francisco states that the remains of John F. Swift, the late United States Minister to China, have arrived there by the steamship Belgic. The funeral will take place on Sunday.

REPLY TO SALISBURY

Secretary Blaine Defines Our Rights in Alaska.

ENGLAND'S PREMIER IN ERROR.

The United States Has a Property Interest in the Seal Islands.

England Recognized the Interest During the First Nineteen Years of the Sovereignty of the United States—The Lawless Intrusion of Canadian Vessels Has Not Changed the Law.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Secretary Blaine last night gave out for publication his latest letter to Lord Salisbury with reference to the sealing rights of this country in Behring Sea.

It was addressed to the British Minister, Sir Julian Pauncefote, and is the plainest and most practical communication that has been made on that time-worn topic.

It confirms the dispatches previously published on the apparent agreement to stop sealing for a period in order that the seals may increase and multiply on the Pribyloff Islands.

In this connection he says: "First, how far, if at all, outside the ordinary territorial limits is it necessary that the United States should exercise an exclusive jurisdiction in order to protect the seal for the time living upon the islands of the United States, and the feeding therefrom?

"Second, whether a closed season (during which the killing of seals in the waters of Behring Sea outside the ordinary territorial limits shall be prohibited) is necessary to save the seal fishing industry, so valuable and important to mankind, from deterioration or destruction? And, if so, third, what months or parts of months should be included in such seasons and over what waters it should extend?"

President Harrison's name is used throughout this long letter. It states that the United States has never contended nor rested its case upon the contention that Behring Sea was Mare Clausum and that Lord Salisbury was in error in resting any argument upon that point.

After discussing the jurisdiction which Russia maintained previous to the sale of Alaska to this country, which she relinquished with the sale, and the jurisdiction which England herself insists upon around her own coasts, and beyond the three-mile limit wherever her colonies are situated, Mr. Blaine concludes:

Who Owns the Seal Fisheries.

"The government of the United States has steadily held just the reverse of the position which Lord Salisbury has imputed to it. It holds that the ownership of the islands upon which the seals breed, that the habit of the seals in regularly resorting thither and rearing their young thereon, that their going out from the island in search of food and regularly returning thereto, and all the facts and incidents of their relation to the island, give to the United States a property interest therein; that this property interest was claimed and exercised by Russia during the whole period of its sovereignty over the land and waters of Alaska; that England recognized this property interest so far as recognition is implied by abstaining from all interference with it during the whole period of Russia's ownership of Alaska, and during the first 19 years of the sovereignty of the United States.

"It is yet to be determined whether the lawless intrusion of Canadian vessels in 1886 and subsequent years has changed the law and equity of the case theretofore prevailing.

"I have the honor to be, with the highest consideration, Sir, your most obedient servant, JAMES G. BLAINE."

SPEEDING EASTWARD.

The Presidential Party Reach Boise City This Morning.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, May 8.—The train containing President Harrison and party arrived here this morning and will remain until this evening, when the President will start for Salt Lake, reaching there Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

The trip to the Northwest and Puget Sound was most fatiguing and uncomfortable, on account of the rain. The beauties of Portland, Tacoma and Seattle were in mist and fog, while clouds covered the mountains and mud the ground, so it was impossible to do any walking and very little sight-seeing. The Dalles gave the party a grand welcome. A salute of twenty-one guns, fired by the Dallas Light Infantry, announced the approach of the train to the largest city of eastern Oregon, and the entire population, augmented by thousands from the surrounding country, gave the President a most enthusiastic welcome. There decoration and school children awaited his coming, and although only fifteen minutes was given for the stop, that one-quarter of an hour was a busy one.

The Presidential party experienced the disagreeable effects of a mild sand storm at Cililo, Ore., a small salmon canning station on the Columbia River. A high wind scattered the sand in every direction and made the distinguished visitors very uncomfortable.

The Mackay Suit Terminated.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The suit of John W. Mackay, the millionaire, against Casius H. Reed and Edward S. Stokes, composing the firm of Reed & Co., proprietors of the Hoffman House, to recover $352,597.78, the amount of a promisory note, has abruptly terminated by the plaintiff declining to proceed as the jurisdiction of the court was doubted on account of the transaction occurring between residents of the same State.

Power of the Rothschilds.

LONDON, May 8.—The boycotting of Russia by the Rothschilds has caused a great sensation, and no doubt is expressed that the suspension of the Jewish expulsion from Moscow is due to the firm step which that wealthy family took.

SHE TORE UP THE LETTER.

An Exciting Scene in a Divorce Trial in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 8.—In the Superior Court, before Judge Prentice, the divorce suit of Charles M. Foster, of Springfield, Mass., against Alice M., his wife, was tried. Foster left his wife a year ago because he thought she was too fond of the society of other men.

While the case was on trial Mrs. Foster observed a letter she had written to her husband some time ago among Lawyer Wright's papers. As quick as a flash she seized the letter and despite the protestations of the court and her own and the other lawyers she tore it into fragments.

Judge Prentice ordered Deputy Sheriff Spiegel to stop her. He seized her wrists and she struggled and fainted. The scraps were picked up and placed in an envelope to be pasted together.

During recess a truce was patched up and Mr. Foster by agreement takes the 7-year-old daughter to Springfield with him, and in future the couple will live apart.

GUILTY OF BRIBERY.

Scranton's Select Council Expels Three of Its Own Members.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 8.—Patrick Golden, Thomas McGrail and James Kelly, members of the Select Council, were expelled last night from that body by a vote of 15 to 8.

They had been adjudged guilty of bribery in connection with the recent election of a city engineer by a committee which investigated the charges.

Convention of Bookbinders.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The United Bookbinders of North America, K. of L., met in convention here and discussed the eight-hour question, which was finally referred to the National Executive Council. At the election which followed F. McQuinn of Boston was elected District Master Workman, and Mr. Espey of Washington representative of the General Assembly, the date of which meeting is not yet known.

Well Supplied With Funds.

PARIS, May 8.—In an interview to-day a prominent member of the Council of the Belgian workingmen's organizations denied that the strikers of Belgium are being assisted in the present struggle by funds sent to them from England and the United States. The Belgian strikers, he said, had ample funds with which to carry on the fight to the bitter end.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

It is said that England has sent an ultimatum to Portugal.

The Bank of England has advanced its discount rate to 4 per cent.

A farmer named Michael Barry of Bloomfield, N. Y., was struck by a train on the Batavia & Canandaigua Railroad during the night and instantly killed.

The law just passed by the Legislature will drive from business in Massachusetts 120 "bond investment" companies chartered in other States, mainly New Hampshire.

Chancellor McGill of New Jersey has decided that sales of land by sheriffs and other public officers after 12 o'clock on Saturday are unlawful. This sustains the Saturday Half Holiday act.

William Marsh, the son of H. O. Marsh, president of the Iron National Bank, of Morristown, N. J., was held at the Tombs, in New York, for getting money on a worthless check. Six months ago he broke into his father's house and robbed his mother of her jewelry.

By a vote of 82 to 24 the National Convention of Machinists in session at Pittsburg, Pa., refused admission to negroes. Canada requested admission, and the association was made International to permit the Canadian machinists to join.

Sir John Gladstone, nephew of the Hon. William E. Gladstone, and Mr. and Mrs. Corbet of Scotland, have arrived at Niagara Falls en route to New York. They are at the Prospect House and will remain a few days to view the great cataract.

James P. Voris, a wealthy resident of Upper Nyack, N. Y., sued for absolute divorce from his wife on the grounds of adultery. The jury, after being out all night, came into court and announced that they had failed to agree. They stood six to six.

The house of John Klein, a farmer living near Virginville, Pa., was burned during the night with all its contents. It is supposed that the house was first robbed and then set on fire by burglars. Mr. Klein, besides losing $563 in cash, will lose about $3,000 by the destruction of the property.

The steamship British Prince from Liverpool has just landed nearly 1,000 passengers at Philadelphia. Among the passengers were five Hungarians, who stated that they were under contract to work in the establishment of John S. Kocran, of Buffalo, and that they were en route for that city. They were held under the provisions of the contract labor law.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - Managing Editor.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The retail license on tobacco ceased May 1.

—Special attention is called to Peck's new white goods.

—The Plainfield Bicycle Club will enjoy a run to Westfield Saturday evening, leaving the club-house at 8 o'clock.

—A concert by the original Jubilee Singers will be given at the Dunellen Presbyterian church next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

—Dr. R. L. Willett, a veterinarian who comes to Plainfield with the best of recommendations, has opened an office at 65 North avenue.

—Through the agency of real estate broker Mulford, the Putnam avenue residence of Leo Daft has been sold to Dr King of New York.

—The chance that Rogers Bros. are offering the public for to-morrow only is ladies' shoes worth $1.50 for 99 cents, and misses' shoes at 25 cents per pair.

—A nut off a carriage wheel was picked up by J. W. VanSickle on North avenue, opposite THE PRESS office, this morning. The owner may procure it by calling at his store for the same.

—By their new advertisement to-day the United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association show that they are still fighting high prices and are selling goods at a great saving to purchasers.

—It does not affect the quality of Peck's goods, nor make them better nor worse, but all the same it is very pleasant to hear the continued chorus—"Peck's goods are the best."

—Alexander Willett has a fine new stock of everything desirable in footwear at his new stand, 7 Park avenue. The assortment is large, and both goods and prices will prove satisfactory to patrons.

—The poorest show of its kind that ever took five hundred dollars of the people's money out of town, was Frank Robbins' circus that struck Plainfield yesterday. It did not have even a ring to perform in.

—There will be a hard fight for victory on the Crescent League's ball grounds tomorrow afternoon between the home nine and the Star Athletics of Newark. The latter is undoubtedly the strongest team in the State.

—All Methodists and Epworth Leaguers who ride a bicycle, are expected to turn out to-morrow at 2 p. m., for the First Epworth Bicycle Run. They are to meet in front of the Methodist church and there decide to what point the run will be made.

—Under a new law of this State churches, lodges and charitable institutions are to be assessed the same as other properties, but are not to be taxed. This is done to secure the valuation of such real estate, that it may be placed on the record.

—The firm of Milliken Bros., of which Samuel Milliken's Sons of Central avenue are members, have received from the Plainfield Street Railway Company an order for 275 trolley poles such as has been erected in front of Roberts's stables on North avenue.

—A cordial invitation is extended to any of the young people of the city to join the Bible Normal class of the Young People's League, conducted by Charles B. Brown. The class will meet to-night at 7 o'clock in the parlors of the First Baptist church. The subject will be "Review of the Book of Leviticus."

—The Postal Telegraph Company, in extending its line from Plainfield, is erecting its poles throughout Monmouth county, and offices will be established in all the principal towns. The line will extend as far south as Asbury Park, and, if business warrants, it will be extended still farther. One of the company's principal offices will be in Red Bank.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The funeral of ex-Senator Augustus C. Canfield will take place at Succasunna, Morris county, at 10:45 a. m., Saturday, May 9.

Mrs. S. C. Peck has gone to Milford, Conn., where her husband's father lies ill with the grip. It is the first time he has called a doctor in fifty years.

The funeral services of the late George R. Gaddis will take place at Hotel Gaddis, Bound Brook, N. J., Saturday, May 9, at 10:30 a. m. Interment will be made at 1:30 p. m., at Lamerton, Pa.

E. H. Booth, of Bergen Point, has leased a home at 69 Madison avenue, this city, for the Summer at least. He is a brother of A. H. Booth, President of the New Jersey Athletic Club.

The Rev. F. G. Warnick, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, and editor of the Union Motor, will start to-morrow afternoon for West Chester, Pa., to visit relatives. The Rev. A. T. Johnson, of New York, will fill his pulpit Sunday.

The wedding of the Rev. George M. Angleman to Miss Ella Cory took place at the home of the bride's parents on Grant avenue, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, in the presence of only immediate relatives. The bride and groom left for their home in Kansas City soon after the ceremony. They received many handsome gifts.

PLAINFIELD'S CHARTER SET ASIDE.

Judge VanSyckel Decides That the Water Supply Co., and the Gas Light Co., May Tear Up the Streets of Plainfield.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

TRENTON, May 8.—Decision in the certiorari proceedings brought by the Plainfield Water Supply Co., against the City questioning the Council's right to adopt an ordinance preventing the Company's contractors from opening the streets wherever and whenever they please, was rendered by Judge VanSyckel this morning.

The decision is in favor of the Water company and implies that the City's charter has few rights that anybody need respect. It also covers the similar case of the Gas Light company against the city exclusively recorded in yesterday's PRESS.

Whipped Them On Their Own Alley.

In yesterday's issue THE PRESS said that the New Brunswick bowlers would catch it, as the Plainfield bowlers were going over in a stage to roll them. The score below proves THE PRESS was right as usual. The only feature of the game was Thier's fine bowling. In his sixth frame he had more pins to his credit than VanEmburgh, Keller, Rogers, Vail, Haven, Hallock or VanWinkle had when they finished. The score:

The Synod Sustains the Church.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck of this city preached a missionary sermon before the Particular Synod of New Brunswick in session at Somerville, Wednesday. The Synod comprises the one hundred and twenty Reformed churches of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Rockland county, N. Y. The following synodical officers were elected: President—H. N. VanArsdale, Paterson; Vice President—E. C. Scudder, Asbury Park; Stated Clerk, I. P. Brokaw, Freehold. Most of the session was occupied with the discussion of the appeal from the Classis of Philadelphia, which had decided to disband the Third Reformed church of that city. The appeal was sustained by the Synod by a majority vote, and the church will not disband.

Where They Draw the Line.

The following, from a New York paper, cannot have any reference to the Plainfield commuters who travel in club cars. THE PRESS is not at all sure about the poker part, but it knows they draw the line at shirt sleeves.

If you live in the suburbs, and travel between New York and your home by rail daily, the proper thing is to join a car club. Many of the railroads on which commuters travel have them. A number of men club together and hire a special car. They put in electric lights and movable wicker chairs and lounges. No outsiders are admitted, no matter how crowded the other cars may be. The members of the club are at liberty to invite friends. They have card tables, and it is whispered that poker is not objected to. In summer a man can sit in his shirt sleeves, and he is always sure of pleasant traveling companions.

Let's Have That List for Publication.

Schorb and McCready of this city, who assaulted Charles Barry recently and badly bruised him, are still held for trial which has been adjourned by the Court at Somerville until next Friday to afford the prosecution an opportunity to procure more evidence. A strange feature of the case is the production by the defense of a paper said to be signed by "prominent people" of this city and North Plainfield, "indorsing" Schorb and McCready. The general public will be curious to know just who signed such a paper.

The Bill is "Dr. Bill", To-night.

The great New York Garden Theatre success comes to Music Hall this evening when "Dr. Bill" will hang out his shingle with office hours from 8 to 10:30 p. m. The cast of the piece is unusually strong, and includes Selina Fetter, Isabelle Coe, Mrs. Louis Eldridge, Louise Allen (the famous "Kangaroo Dancer"), Jane Grafton, Nellie Lingard, J. B. Polk, J. W. Jennings, W. G. Reynier, George Becks, Graham Henderson and James Lackaye. Doctor Bill's remedies prove popular with theatre-goers.

Gave The Visitors all They Wanted.

Several negroes from Bound Brook were insolent to a sturdy sailor lad at the North avenue station last night, and as a result the sailor took the ringleader out into the freight yard and gave him a sound thrashing. He offered to wallop the other fellows too, but when they saw the bruised, cut and battered condition of their comrade they all concluded it was time to go home, and boarded the first train that came along for Bound Brook.

Fractured Her Leg While at Play.

A three-year-old daughter of Clarkson Hope, of West Fourth street, while playing, yesterday, about a new house being erected next door, fell through the open floor beams and received a very bad fracture of the leg, near the knee. Drs. Cooley, Endicott and Long attended the little sufferer.

NEVER LOST BUT ONE.

A Record That Has Never Been Equalled by Any Bowling Team in the State.

During the season which opened December 16, 1890, and closed last evening, the bowling team of the Crescent League rolled fourteen games and lost but one. Their defeated contestants have come from New York, Brooklyn, Elizabeth, Westfield, Somerville, New Brunswick and Bayonne.

Below is given the individual records of the ten men who have rolled in seven or more games. Others who have rolled in matches are Dilts, who at the opening of the season bowled five games with the remarkable average of 165; Williams, three games with an average of 127, and Lowry, three games with an average of 120. The record:

	Games Rolled.	Total.	Highest Score.	Average
Pelletreau	12	1,888	201	157
Thiers	14	2,157	186	154

Climbing Up Towards the Crescents' Lead.

At Fanwood Wednesday night the New Jersey Athletic Club's whist team, of Bergen Point, were defeated by the Fanwood Club by the score of 289 to 288. By this game Fanwood's average number of points per game is increased from 263 to 270, and Bergen Point's from 256 to 262 2-5.

The record of the tournament to date is now as follows:

	Games Played.	Total Points Scored	Average
Crescent League	6	1695	273½
Westfield A. C.	6	1450	241⅔
N. J. A. C., Bergen Point.	5	1312	262½

Think Somerset County Fairly Assessed.

The State Board of Taxation visited Somerville yesterday and met a number of the Township assessors. Each assessor was put under a cross examination as to the methods used, and what was his judgment on the value if found. The State Board came to the conclusion that Somerset county was the most fairly assessed of any it had yet visited. One of the members said that the personal property was more thoroughly reached than the Commissioners had seen elsewhere. In most of the townships they found that the farming land was assessed to its full value and even beyond.

The City Hotel Probably Sold.

William Kelly, an extensive property owner in this city, Long Branch and elsewhere, is negotiating for the purchase of the City Hotel at the corner of Second street and Park avenue, of John Moore. The property includes the land adjoining so far as the Crescent League club-house, and the price is about $35,000. The buildings at 36 and 38 Park avenue are owned by Mr. Kelly.

Living Issues.

Dr. A. H. Lewis will discuss, to-morrow morning, at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, "The Woman Question in the Methodist Church" and "The Inspiration Question in the Presbyterian". He will repeat the sermon at Dr. Ketcham's church Sunday evening.

They Can't do Better

The new Board of Chosen Freeholders will organize on Tuesday next. Director Hubbard of this city will probably be re-elected by acclamation, and Charles W. Dodd, who is the finest jail warden in this or any other State, will be re-appointed.

Saturday Land Sales Unlawful.

Chancellor McGill has decided that under the new Saturday half-holiday law in New Jersey all sales of land by sheriffs and other officers in that State after 1:20 Saturday afternoon are unlawful and cannot be confirmed.

Cal Wood Taken from State Prison.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., May 8.—Cal Wood, the slayer of old man Pasco, was brought from Dannemora prison to the Warren County jail last night. He refuses to talk. He will be tried at the next term of Oyer and Terminer in June. His attorneys have withdrawn from the case. An effort was made to have the district-attorney accept a plea of guilty of murder in the second degree, but was not successful.

Probing the Barnaby Mystery.

DENVER, Col., May 8.—The grand jury continued its investigation in the Barnaby case. Quite a number of witnesses were examined, but nothing of importance was brought to light. All of the Providence people whose names have been mentioned in connection with the case are on their way to Denver to appear before the grand jury.

Ate Oatmeal from a Poisoned Bowl.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 8.—Mrs. Hayden, her mother, Mrs. Redden, and her son Martin, residing at 25 Maple street, partook of some oatmeal taken from a bowl in which Paris green had been kept. Mrs. Redden died during the morning after enduring terrible agony. The other two, though convalescing, are not yet out of danger.

After suffering for years with the worst form of Dyspepsia, such as bloating, dizziness, ver igo, acid stomach, etc., I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. BOSTON, May 8.—The bill to repeal the Public Bar law was passed in the Senate. The vote was 21 to 13.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

Water-Testing.

Having lately added to my chemical outfit I am now—better than heretofore—prepared to test and report upon the quality of Drinking-Waters. If desired, testing will include Relative Hardness, Organic Impurities, Ammonia and Chlorides, (with estimate of latter, if required).

A FAMOUS DRIVEWAY VANISHING.

The great number of Plainfield people who in seasons past have enjoyed the exhilarating sea breeze and charming ocean drive at Long Branch and anticipate experiencing in summers to come the pleasures and galeties of that and neighboring resorts, will be interested to learn just what is being done to save the famous old drive along the bluffs from utter destruction at the hands of the mighty Atlantic waves.

The State Geologist of New Jersey, James Smock, is thoroughly familiar with the crumbling beach at Long Branch, which the residents are going to try to save at enormous expense. He has studied the entire Atlantic coast from Sandy Hook to Cape May, and in his estimation the most distressing exhibition is at Long Branch. He was asked by a reporter, a few days ago, whether the proposed series of jetties and bulkhead will save Ocean avenue from the grasp of the sea. It is impossible for him to say at this juncture whether or not the bulkhead will save the crumbling beach. It has been tried with some success at one point at Atlantic City and with failure at another. Long Branch is peculiarly situated, and in fact dangerously so. By the aid of a geological map Mr. Smock showed how the change was being worked by the tide on the New Jersey coast. All along the shore from Cape May to Sea Girt there is a fringing beach of low lands, which consists principally of sand dunes, and which is more or less changeable, but the difference between the tide line and the building line is sufficient for the idiosyncrasies of the sea, without damage to property. At Sea Girt these fringing beaches cease and the sea comes in direct contact with the main-land. At Long Branch the sea, in days gone by, cut away what fringing beach there was, and is now cutting away the main-land.

The ocean drive on the bluff, with its delightful exposure to the sea breeze and its charming view of the vast expanse of surging waters, which has been for years the pride of Long Branch, and the chief charm for Plainfield visitors, is each year becoming narrower, and in a short time will be impassable. There are currents at work that have cut away within one hundred years at least three-quarters of a mile of fringing beach and upland. The old tide line was at least that distance from the present tide line. The State Geologist has the testimony of old residents of Long Branch, who state that they farmed on land which is now one-half out in the water, showing a tremendous eating away of the beach in half a century. The disposition of the tide is to cut away that shoulder of the coast which is made by the indentation of the Raritan Bay at Sandy Hook. The bluff at Long Branch has a layer of gravel and upper crust of good clay. The sea simply cut out the gravel and the road gives away. From the pier to the west end this work of destruction has been going persistently on for ten years. The State has looked into the matter, and unless some permanent change of tide is secured Long Branch village will sooner or later crumble away. Atlantic City had an experience of the same kind fifteen years ago. The Absecom Light-house was in danger, and the Government to save its property hit upon the idea of extending jetties out in the ocean for the purpose of changing the tide, which was strong and treacherous at that point, being near the inlet. The waves then dashed about the bottom of the light-house, but now the tidal line is nearly a half mile distant. The current was changed at this point, but it began its destructive work a few miles further down the beach, and no remedy has yet been found.

The records of the State Geologist's office show that the changes in the upper coast from Sandy Hook to Asbury Park have been numerous during the past century. In 1764 the Sandy Hook Light-house stood near the end of the point, while now it is nearly a mile distant in a northwesterly direction. This changing current has been the subject of much study on the part of the United States Coast Survey. They are again going to take up the work of marking an exact coast line so that it can be, in future years, compared with the tidal line, so as to see just where the change along the beach is made. No matter what is done, it must be considered only temporary for ten years or more, because the history of the coast shows that the operations of the tide change about every decade. It is possible that by the time this work is completed, the work of destruction will begin elsewhere, probably above or below the proposed bulkhead.

That the tide line is gradually coming in cannot be denied. There is much evidence to sustain the general statement. The appearance of trees in the mud, with their roots imbedded in hard bottom, many feet below high water mark, is frequently noted. The occurrence of Indian shell beds on said bottom, wholly submerged in the meadows to some depth, and, better still, the finding of old bridges and crossing of poles or corduroy roads several feet below the surface shows conclusively that the tide has been coming in and that there is a rise of the water level.

Along the Jersey coast there are some remarkable evidences of this change. In Deal Lake stumps have been found at a depth of ten to twenty feet in digging for peat. On the north shore of the Metedeconk River an old meadow sod has been found at a depth of eight or ten feet below the surface. In the famous Mosquito Cove, near Barnegat, dead logs have been found on the upland border. At a distance of three feet under the mud huckleberry brush has been found. Forked River, near the village is full of stumps, which are found at a depth of three feet. The old inhabitants, and their words must not be doubted, say that the cedar swamp which surrounds the river grew nearly a mile farther east than it does now, and has since been submerged.

There is some remarkable evidence of this encroachment of the tide near Tuckertown, in the marsh bordering Great Bay. Here many knolls and islands of upland, which were once wooded, and now level with the surface of the meadows, the timber has died off, and the stumps are now in the marsh, and Samuel Headley, of Tuckertown, is authority for the statement that stumps have been found near Ballinger's Creek, eighteen inches below the surface. Capt. Joseph Gelder of Beesley's Point states that the water level in some parts of Cape May county is over six inches higher than it was twenty-five years ago.

The origin of almost every beach is a sand bar of considerable magnitude, which has been formed at a greater or less depth by currents depositing sediments under favorable conditions, and subsequently brought above water by the waves, at the present day or at some remote period, and where the beaches adjoin the upland is obviously due to the action of the waves gathering together the finer material from the sea bottom and the upland border. The formation once above the water, the wind, blowing on the shore, catches up the dry sand and carries it inland until, meeting some obstacles, it is dropped out of the reach of the tide. This process is almost constantly repeated for years until the sand hills and dunes are formed, such as Asbury Park, Atlantic City, and Ocean Grove, before the hand of man made the same mounds blossom with cottages. This primitive state of affairs can now be seen along the long beach from Barnegat City to Beach Haven.

The changes about Sandy Hook have been numerous. The monarch of the sea has kept himself entertained in that locality. Near the head of the Horseshoe the shore is wearing away rapidly. Capt. J. W. Edwards makes the statement that the east shore of the Supermaceti Cove Life-Saving Station has gone out 300 feet during the last thirty years, being a greater gain a mile southward, and a less gain northward. About a mile above the Highlands the beach has been washed away and remade a dozen times. The changes of the inlet have been many—too many, in fact, to enumerate. In the vicinity of the Seabright Life-Saving Station, No. 3, the shore has worn away upwards of three hundred feet in twenty years, and Seabright's shore is still being encroached upon. At Monmouth Station the wear is not so much, not being over ten feet a year.

Russell White thinks that the wear immediately north of Deal Lake has been about 1,000 feet in twenty years. From Elberon to Deal Beach the banks down to the level of the strand are covered with beach grass. There has been very little change at Asbury Park or Ocean Grove. From Shark River to Spring Lake some trifling changes have been noticed. Wearing away is noticed at Spring Lake. The wear at Sea Girt is mostly in winter, and during the summer the beach regains all it previously lost.

At a recent meeting of Long Branch residents, held for the purpose of seeing if some scheme to save the Long Branch waterfront could not be devised, plans were exhibited for the bulkhead and jetties proposed by the Long Branch Board of Trade Committee. The former is to be two and one-half miles long, and the jetties, about 100 feet long, will be not more than 300 feet apart. The total cost is estimated at $172,000 a mile. It is estimated that the construction will protect the bluff at least fifty years, but it may not more than ten or twelve. The property-holders on Ocean avenue are expected to contribute three-fourths of the amount needed, and the corporation will contribute the rest. So that the seashore drive that Plainfield people in summer time find so delightful that for a brief period they can forsake even their own lovely driveways, may yet be saved—for a time. But some day—and not many generations hence—the famous old drive will be no more a delightful reality, but only a pleasant memory.

Laura Crowned Queen.

The young ladies of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, last evening, gave an inter-State coronal contest. The house was well filled, and those who participated in the exercises did well.

Miss Laura B. Robinson was crowned queen, having sold votes to the amount of $22.10. She is a member of the church, and an active worker.

Every feature of the entertainment was commendably rendered. Each young lady wore a crown and carried a flag.

Miss Fannie Nelson, who sold 155 votes, was next to Miss Robinson, and Miss Ella Doyle was third, having sold 95 votes. All deserve credit for their earnest efforts. An excellent committee served refreshments.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyon question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

SHE SAID "GO AWAY, MAN!"

And the Burglar, Thinking She Had a Intel. Went.

When the people in the pretty little town of Westfield, N. J., learned a few mornings ago that burglars had been among them they were shocked. And later, when it was known that a small colony of tramps was encamped in Ripley's woods, about half a mile from the station on the Jersey Central road, they became nervous. Westfield is not fortified against burglars, and there was a real scare. It is almost over now. Some nights of security have nearly dispelled it. But the prudent citizen—says the New York Recorder—still tries his locks and his wife still looks under the bed before retiring. There is a difference of opinion as to whether the burglaries were the work of regularly enrolled members of the house-breaking fraternity or of the tramps. Whichever it was, they began operations last Sunday night.

The first alarm came from the house of George Burrill, a colored man whose residence is in the coal yard, near the rail road tracks. About 8:30 p. m., howls and the report of a gun were heard. A half dozen men near by thought that Burrill was killing his wife. They ran to the house. Its only occupant was Burrill's young son. He was up stairs, and he called to the rescuers that he was so scared that he would n't come down. "Break in the door", he said. They knocked a panel out of it and unlocked it. He then descended. He said he was almost asleep when he heard two men at the foot of the stairs. He picked up his father's shotgun and went to the head of the stairs. He pulled both triggers. He missed the men, if there were any, but the shot hit his mother's Sunday shoes and made sieves of them.

But there were genuine burglaries later on. Elisha Taylor's house, on South avenue, was entered. Fifteen dollars in cash were taken. The occupants of the house were not disturbed. Kilbourne Tompkins had $10 in the pocket of his vest, which was on a chair near his bed. It was gone in the morning, and his clothing was scattered about the room. About 2 o'clock the Widow O'Rourke and her daughter, Maggie, heard the lamp on the parlor table of their house rattle. They sprang out of bed and went to the stairway. At its bottom stood a man. Maggie deceived him. She led him to believe that she had a gun.

"Go away, man," she said, "or I'll shoot you dead." Then she said to her mother: "Here, mother, hold this pistol while I yell." She went out on the roof of the piazza and yelled so loudly that she started the dogs to barking away over in Scotch Plains. To-day Westfield is proud of Maggie O'Rourke. The man ran away and the neighbors came up. The trouble was over, but Maggie and her mother sat up all night.

Cyrus Wilcox's house is on Prospect street. At 3 o'clock Mrs. Wilcox awoke and saw a man standing near her bed. She was too scared to speak. The burglar hunted around the room, found $19 in cash and left. Then Mrs. Wilcox awoke her husband. The burglars were seen or heard at the houses of Joseph Sherman, Charles Hann and John Wilkinson, but none of those gentlemen lost anything.

The anger of the populace was directed against the tramps. After breakfast Monday morning an informal mass meeting was held in front of the post-office. There was much excitement. It was resolved to move on the tramps, to clean them out, to disperse them. But no one volunteered to lead the hosts. The constables were appealed to. Westfield is protected by three constables. They don't get much practice. Mr. John Marsh is the chief constable. He is also the Central Railroad detective, the surveyor, the assessor and the town auctioneer—the Pooh-Bah of Union County. Constable Charles Farrington is the town butcher and Constable Edward Wilcox is the town painter. They could do nothing. They were too busy with other matters. It was said yesterday that one of them had intended to visit the camp of the tramps the next morning, but that he got up too late.

The tramps did n't worry. They visited Cranford and robbed some chicken roosts. They begged salt and pepper from the people of Westfield. They cooked meals three times a day at their camp, and at night they slept peacefully in Ripley's hay barracks. They became insolent. But Wednesday one of them ran up against the wrong man. He went to the house of Charles Courtney. Mr. Courtney is popular in Westfield, because he is young and rich and handsome. Beneath a sportsman's suit of brown corduroy he conceals mighty muscles. The tramp asked Mrs. Courtney for food. She told him to go away. He said he would when he got ready. Just then Mr. Courtney appeared. Two seconds later the tramp got ready, Mr. Courtney's fist had influenced him. After that the tramp colony thinned out. The freight trains carried away a number of deadhead passengers.

Those who say that the burglaries were not the work of tramps suspect Charles Edwards, the degenerate son of a former citizen of Westfield, widely known as "Pop" Edwards. Charles has served a term in prison. It is stated that he was seen in Westfield Sunday, and that he demanded money of his mother. Not receiving it, he is reported to have declared that he would get it somewhere.

There were no tramps or burglars to be seen in Westfield yesterday afternoon, and the town was again calm. Young women rode contentedly over the smooth roads on bicycles or drove yellow carts down to the station to meet their commuting fathers and brothers and friends. The nose of the town telegraph operator was buried in a volume entitled, "Deadwood Dick's Doom".

OUR BIRTHDAY.

I've a secret to tell you Dolly;
Let me whisper it in your ear;
To-morrow will be our birthday—
Your birthday and mine, my dear!
As soon as the sun peeps over
The hill where the blackberries grow,
I'll be eight years old, my Dolly,
And you will be one, you know.

Don't you remember, Dolly—
I'm perfectly sure you do—
When I woke last birthday morning
The first thing I saw was you?
You sat on the edge of a work-box,
Waiting, you lovely child!
And when you saw I was looking
You stretched out your arms and smiled.

And you're just as lovely as ever,
Though your curls are very thin,
And your poor legs wobble sadly,
And your left eye's fallen in;
And if to-morrow morning
Another doll comes here,
We'll be kind to her, but she shall not
Supplant you, Dolly dear.

We'll go to bed quite early,
And try to fall asleep;
And if we hear things rustle,
We must take care not to peep.
And when we wake in the morning,
I will kiss you, dear, and say:
'Many happy returns, my Dolly!—
You're a whole year old to-day."
—Charles Prescott Sherman, in Little Men and Women.

WHERE ELSIE FOUND HIM.

A Little Girl's Search for the Maker of the Winter Window Pane Pictures.

The morning after the first very cold night had come, and Elsie was looking with great delight at the frost pictures on the window.

"Who did it, Phil?" she asked her brother.

"Jack Frost," said Phil.

"O, how pretty! When did he do it?"

"In the night, when you were fast asleep."

"Where is he now? I want to see him."

"You can't see him. Nobody ever sees him."

There were beautiful castles and towns and lakes and bridges. And in one place there were trees which looked exactly as if you might walk under them and pick wild flowers and hear the birds sing. And some of the panes were covered with delicate lace. After breakfast Elsie put on her coat and cap and mittens and went out of doors.

"O, see!" she cried. "The little brook is all covered up with glass. Who did it?"

"That isn't glass," said Phil. "That's ice, and I'm glad of it, for I'm going to have a good skate on it. Jack Frost did it, and see how hard he has made the ground."

Elsie could not skate, so, after watching Phil for a little while, she went into the house to look at the frost pictures again. But they were all gone. Mamma told her that it was the moisture in the air of the room which made them. The cold outside freezes it upon the panes in those pretty shapes. When the room gets warm they melt away.

"Then where is Jack Frost?" asked Elsie.

"People talk about Jack Frost just for a fancy," said mamma. "But there is really no such person."

Of course Elsie believed every word mamma said, but she could not help thinking there must be somebody to make such pretty pictures. He might be somebody like Santa Claus, a person in whom some believed and others did not. Probably mamma had never been awake in the night to see him. She made up her mind she would watch, so when she went to bed she kept her eyes fixed on the pane, sure she would keep awake until he came to make more pictures. But the next thing she knew the gaslight was gone and the sunlight was peeping in. Elsie sprang up and stared at the window. There they were—all the frost pictures again, but this time different ones.

She kept on the lookout for Jack Frost. One morning she said: "The trees are all over little white feathers."

"That's Jack Frost," said Phil.

Sometimes a glass or a pitcher would be found broken in the morning.

"That's Jack Frost," said Susan, the girl. "He has been drinking out of them."

Elsie thought it was not good manners in Jack to break them when he came to get a drink. At last it rained all one day, and the next morning as Elsie looked out she cried: "Oh, the trees all over diamonds."

"Jack Frost," said Phil.

Every thing was shining and glittering in the sunlight. Elsie went out to see if she could not at last get a glimpse at Jack, for surely he could not be far off. In a minute she came rushing back to mamma.

"O, mamma, I've found him!

"Found whom, dear!"

"Jack Frost. Come and see." She led mamma out.

"See, there's his tail. He's hiding up there on the top of the porch."

A long icicle was hanging down from the porch.

Mamma laughed as she patted Elsie's cheek and said: "I guess you've found Jack Frost at last."—Interior.

TULA'S GUEST.

The Way a Kind Dog Fed Another One from His Store of Bones.

I went out-of-doors early one morning, as was the custom with our sea-living and seafaring people, to make a study of the weather, and the probable way of the wind for the day. We did this frequently at this season—plowing-time—and when we were very tired of the east wind, which hindered all out-of-door progress. The wind was east now, as it had been for several days; the waters of the bay were pale and sullen under its nipping touch; the tide snapped and slashed at the shore, and round the pier where the boats were tied, whose masts bobbed unchangingly one way. The martins lighted on the ridgepole of the barn, to watch the worms "come out of the west," like young Lochinvar.

The long village street was not astir, the post-office door was not open, and the shutters of the store were still up. I stood by the unleafy elms and watched the efforts of a cold, watery sun coming through a band of stern clouds, and then I saw a dark object moving up from the end of the street. It was our dog Tula, black but not over-comely, for he was a dog of many breeds, the result of which made him a perfect cur. But we were all fond of him, and our neighbors endured him, for he was very friendly in the way of making visits. We never discovered anything remarkable in his character or conduct until this adventure which I am about to describe, and which is all true.

Tula was not alone. Another dog ran beside him of the same size and, I should say, of the same lineage. As they came toward the house they trotted as evenly and soberly as a trained span of ponies. I had opened the gate of the yard on the street side, and Tula with his companion turned into the path as neatly as any "whip," and still swift in gait made for the garden, a favorite lounging-place with Tula, and I followed the pair. Down by the asparagus bed, past the grapevine trellis, along the raspberry copse, behind the currant hedge to the border of the orchard, and there they stopped. I remained in the rear, partly hid by the canes of the currant hedge, although through it all Tula seemed unconscious of my presence. He began to dig the ground smartly, and dug till he unearthed a bone. Then he lay down, his head on his forepaws, and watched his hungry guest gnawing the bone so long buried for his own use.

This is a little story or fact to record, but in these days everything pertaining to the intelligence of our lower orders—the animals—is of interest. When I went back to the house, and at breakfast related this experience, we all looked at Tula, who had come in as he usually did at that time, but Tula looked no wiser, made no sign, only gaped fearfully, turned round three times on the rug and took a nap.—Elizabeth Stoddard, in Harper's Young People.

MASON THE GREAT.

How Little Frank Learned a Lesson Bloody Victory Could Not Have Taught.

"Come 'long now," cried little Frank Seldon, getting astride his hobby-horse and waving mamma's shawl, tied on to an old broomstick, for a flag. "Come 'long; I am going to be 'Zander the Great, and you must be my soldiers."

Frank's older brother, Harry, and his two little sisters gathered up their drums and horns and soldier caps, and got ready to follow "Alexander the Great" to war. "Come 'long, Mason," shouted the little general; "we'll leave you, if you don't look out."

Mason and Celia Semmes had come over from the little cottage across the road into their neighbor's big, paved backyard to join the plays. "Cele," Mason, "you can just leave Dorothy and Celeste in their carriages; babies can't go to be soldiers."

"Cele can't come, either," said the little general, stoutly, "'cause Cele limps and can't march fast."

Celia's dark eyes filled with tears, and she turned off to the stone seat beneath the window. She was a stout, strong little maid; but one leg was a trifle shorter than the other, and this made her limp as she walked.

Mason's cheeks were red, and his eyes shone bright. "Never mind, Cele," he said, putting his arm around her. "I'm not going to play soldier. Soldiers are mean old things; they only kill and hurt people."

"I could play a wounded soldier," said Celia, with a trembling lip. She dearly loved to play with the others.

"All right," cried Mason; "and I'll play the doctor that stays to take care of you."

"Ah, my soldier boy," said mamma, coming to the basement window that overlooked the stone seat, and shaking her head at Frank, "you are not fit to be a leader. Alexander the Great was so kind to others that he would not drink water before a thirsty soldier. A flag won't make you a hero, nor a drum, nor a trumpet; but kindness and gentleness will. Ride around to the stone seat now, and lower your flag to Mason the Great."

And, as presently the little lame soldier was playing gayly with the rest, "'Zander the Great" must have learned a better lesson than any bloody victory could have taught him.—Sunbeam.

Puss Made a Mistake.

One of our household pets, a green heron, confined by a long cord to a tree in the yard, spent much time by day standing upon one leg, his shoulders hunched up, as though asleep—a most stupid-looking fowl. Fristen, the cat, was much struck by his singular appearance, and watched him furtively for a week or more before venturing nearer. She was puzzled how to classify the new-comer. A capture did not look difficult, as he did not fly away when she approached. So one day she sidled closer.

"Plunkett's" eyes slightly opened, but he moved not a feather. Puss crouched, and advanced a step.

Still there was no motion. Nearer she crept, her tail beginning to twitch and her hind legs working for a spring, when, a loud "Quawk!" wings outspread and flapping, and long bill stretched wide, the drowsy bird was transformed into an avenging fury. He sprang at puss, and she fled up a tree in a flash.

She decided that she must have been mistaken.—Boston Pilot.

A Clever Boy.

One day Willie carried his shoes to the cobbler's to have them mended. He entered the little shop unnoticed, for the minister was there talking with the cobbler. Willie heard the minster say: "So your daughter is to be married soon! Whom is she to marry?" "Mr. Winter," answered the cobbler. "Oh," spoke up Willie, with a shake of his small shoulders and a tremor in his voice, as if he were attacked by a sudden chill: "Won't she shiver!"—Youth's Companion.

—Mrs. Billus—"Now, Archibald, you must behave yourself while your uncle is here." Archie (rebelliously)—"Do I get anything for behaving?" Mr. Billus (appearing suddenly)—"No; but you will get something if you don't behave!"

A SAVIOR OF HER SEX.

When pain becomes a constant companion; when there is no repose for the sufferer, by day or night; when life itself seems to be a calamity; and when all this is reversed by a woman, whose only ambition is to do good to others, has she not won the above title?

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S Vegetable Compound cures all those peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women, all organic diseases of the Uterus or Womb, and Ovarian Troubles, Bearing-down Sensations, Weak Back, Debility, Nervous Prostration, etc. Every Druggist sells it as a standard article, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1.00.

Send stamp for "Guide to Health and Etiquette," a book of 125 pages.

F.E.C. KIDNEY BLOOD & LIVER REMEDY
$1.00 A BOTTLE, SIX FOR $5. TRY IT TO-DAY

DELICATE women need not be told how much they would give to get and stay well. If their blood is free from the poisonous ferments of the Kidneys and Liver, they will never know what "weakness" is. The blood is the source and sustainer of health; it cannot be kept pure except the Kidneys and Liver do their work naturally, and to aid them nothing equals the herbal, guaranteed

THE BARNABY CASE

The Great Mystery May Soon be Cleared Up.

DR. GRAVES STARTS FOR DENVER

He Goes Voluntarily to Appear Before the Grand Jury.

His Visit to the West Causes Considerable Surprise—He Will Have to Explain About Forwarding the Bottle—Another Statement Coming About the Poisoned Whiskey—Miss Hanley's Notoriety.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 9.—The mystery surrounding the sending of a bottle of poisoned liquor to Mrs. J. B. Barnaby, at Denver, which caused her death, will in a few days be cleared up.

Last night Dr. T. Thatcher Graves and his wife left for Denver, and this morning the Pinkerton detectives and the Conrad family followed, so that they will be but a few hours later than the Graves party in reaching Denver. Miss Hanley, the maid Dr. Graves secured for Mrs. Barnaby last summer, is not to accompany the party, as the Pinkerton men have not regarded her as of any importance as a witness.

An important discovery, which may lead to a solution of the mystery, has just been made. A bottle, which was identical with the one which contained the poison sent to Mrs. Barnaby, was found in a drug store. It contained some medicine put up by Dr. Graves.

That Dr. Graves should start for Denver to appear before the grand jury caused considerable surprise, but that he should do this of his own volition was even more surprising. While he goes voluntarily, he did not decide to do so until after a great deal of pressure had been brought to bear to convince him that it was the best thing he could do, considering what had been said and the information obtained by the detectives, and he was urged to make some explanation of the forwarding of the bottle. The public must not be surprised if the statement is soon forthcoming that the bottle, when mailed, contained only whiskey, but that it was tampered with after its arrival in Denver.

Miss Hanley, on account of the unpleasant notoriety attached to her name, has been compelled to leave her boarding place at the request of the landlady.

STILL ANOTHER CRASH.

The Spring Garden Bank of Philadelphia Closes Its Doors.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—There is considerable uneasiness among bank depositors over the closing of the Spring Garden Bank, following so closely after other bank failures here.

The doors of the Spring Garden Bank were closed at 11:30 o'clock. At that time Bank Examiner Drew came to the door and posted this notice:

"This bank is closed by order of the Comptroller of the Treasury until further notice."

The last check was paid at 11:30. In a few minutes a crowd had collected and the street was impassable.

In answer to a request sent in to President Kennedy for some information as to the reasons for the bank's closing he made the following statement:

"We have decided to place the bank in the hands of Mr. Drew, the National Bank Examiner. This step has been forced upon us principally by the large withdrawal of deposits during the financial stringency which commenced last September, and the continued dullness of business since. To meet these demands on our reserves, it was found impossible to realize rapidly on our assets. We have been below in our reserve for some weeks past, and can see no immediate prospect of increasing it. We still owe a balance to the Clearing House Committee for outstanding loan certificates, payment of which is being pressed. These facts, coupled with the disturbances of the past week, have caused increasing uneasiness on the part of some of our depositors, together with the weakening of our credit with the other banks. We hope the suspension will be only temporary."

The Penn Trust Company has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. The Trust Company is now a State institution, separate from the Penn Bank, but it was originally an outgrowth of the bank in this, that the stockholders of the bank were also largely stockholders of the Trust Company.

There were rumors flying around that the Girard National Bank was in trouble, but Vice-President Caldwell publicly states that the bank was never in better condition than it is to-day and that they are able to pay every dollar they owe.

The crash was a great surprise to the general public, as at the last sale of its stock the price obtained was $121.50. The capital stock of the institution was quoted at $750,000 and there was a supposed surplus of $130,000. A dividend of 2 1-2 per cent. was paid upon the capital stock at the last annual meeting.

Claims to be 124 Years Old.

BARABOO, Wis., May 9.—Door County, in the northern part of this State, has living within its borders about as old a person as can be found in this country. She is an Indian woman named Angelica Bear, who claims to have reached the advanced age of 124 years. She is not able to speak English. There is no doubt that she is very old.

Downfall of an Ex-Congressman.

SAGINAW, Mich., May 9.—T. E. Tarsney, ex-Congressman from this district and one of the most prominent lawyers of Saginaw, has been taken by his friends to a retreat for the intemperate. For several years past he has been addicted to the use of liquor, and it has finally taken such a hold upon him that he is now unfit for any mental labor.

EX-SENATOR MILLER'S RETURN

He Says the Nicaragua Canal Will be Completed in Six Years.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Ex-Senator Warner Miller arrived in this city last night and spoke quite freely of his trip to the Isthmus in the interest of the Nicaragua canal. Mr. Miller said after their rescue from the wreck they were landed in Greytown, where the mayor gave the party a banquet.

From Greytown they made a trip over the route of the canal and were much pleased with the work done and the prospects. Only 29 miles would have to excavated. The rest of the canal will be through the course of the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua. The canal will be completed in six years.

In conversation with Secretary Tracy at Washington on Thursday, the Secretary told Mr. Miller that the canal was now a necessity, or else the United States would have to maintain two navies, one in each ocean.

EIGHT LIVES IMPERILLED.

Destructive Forest Fire Now Raging Near Houtzdale, Pa.

PHILLIPSBURG, Pa., May 9.—A forest fire two miles from Houtzdale destroyed the tipple, shaft, several railroad cars and other property belonging the United Collieries Coal Company, and for an hour the lives of eight miners were imperilled by being caught in the shaft, which was surrounded by fire.

A strong wind is blowing the flames in the direction of Whiteside Run, on which there are located four extensive coal operations. Should they reach Whiteside the loss will not be less than $75,000.

GEN. BUTLER'S NOTE.

He Did Not Meet It, and His Property is Attached.

LOWELL, Mass., May 9.—The Prescott National Bank, of this city, has placed an attachment on the property of Gen. Butler for $12,000.

The money consideration was given about four years ago on a personal note, which the bank discounted.

When the note fell due it was not paid for some reason not at present explainable.

Brutal Outrage by Masked Ruffians.

PORTLAND, Me., May 9.—A special from Topsham, Me., tells of a brutal outrage perpetrated upon a French family residing in that town by a gang of masked men, who wrecked the windows with stones and did other damage. One of the fumates was a woman in a delicate condition, who was struck in the breast with a stone, causing the death of the child. The ruffians are believed to be young men belonging to the best families in the vicinity. They have fled.

Editor Sleicher's Investment.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Announcement is made of the sale of a proprietary interest in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly by W. J. Arkell to J. A. Sleicher, who has been its editor since the paper was purchased from Mrs. Frank Leslie over two years ago by Mr. Arkell and Russell B. Harrison. Mr. Sleicher has bought a fourth interest in both the American and German editions for $100,000.

Five Houses Burned.

PITTSBURG, May 9.—A fire at Glenfield, eight miles below Pittsburg, last night, burned $30,000 worth of property. The fire started in Phillips brothers' store. An engine was sent from Allegheny City, but before it arrived a bucket brigade had extinguished the flames. Five houses were burned. An effort was made to check the flames by blowing up a small frame building, but the flying sparks only increased the danger.

No Hope for Ex-Minister Taft.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 9.—Ex-Minister Taft's condition remains unchanged, and his physicians are gradually giving up all hope of his recovery. He takes but little nourishment and only his wonderful vitality seems to maintain him. Solicitor-General Taft, his son, is expected to reach here from Washington to-night.

Dull in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A lull in business prevails in all the executive departments, which will continue until the end of next week, when things are expected to become very lively. In almost all of the departments important questions are awaiting the return of the President.

Searching for His Eloped Wife.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., May 9.—David Wallace, a Sheridan farmer, is in this city searching for his wife, who eloped Wednesday with a Cleveland drummer, taking with her $700 of her husband's money. Wallace married the woman about two years ago at Cleveland.

TOO LATE TO CHASE

The Charleston Has Not Sailed After the Etata.

NO ORDERS FROM WASHINGTON.

The Chilian Vessel Did Not Have a Fighting Crew.

Customs Officials Say the Published Stories About Her Having Arms Are Ridiculous—Secretary Tracy Will Not Discuss the Matter—The Policy of the Government Still an Official Secret.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—At 8 o'clock this morning the steamer Charleston, which had been ordered to proceed to sea ostensibly to try her new guns, but really to arrest the flight of the Chilian steamer Etata, had not sailed. All her men are aboard, and the commander is awaiting orders from Washington. The general opinion is that the Charleston could not catch the Etata.

The news sent out about the manner of the Etata leaving San Diego was more sensational than the facts warranted. She had no concealed arms or cannon with which to make herself formidable, nor were there any men concealed about for use in an emergency.

She had 65 men when she came into port, but about a dozen of them deserted, so she left with about 60 men. The pilot who took her out was not impressed, but went aboard voluntarily by prearrangement. She was in communication with the Robert and Minnie while in port, but the United States Marshal did not seem to have known it.

The marshal said that his orders to detain the Etata were emphatic, but she was allowed to lie in the stream two days with steam up, and, when ready, had nothing to do but weigh anchor and go.

The customs officers made the usual search of the Etata when they boarded her, and say that the statements about her having arms and men concealed are ridiculous. The Etata left here headed toward the San Clemente Islands, where she will probably meet the schooner Robert and Minnie with the arms and ammunition.

Still an Official Secret.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The policy of the government with respect to the Chilian steamer Etata is still an official secret. Secretary Tracy will not discuss the matter.

There can be no doubt that the government is anxious to show all possible zeal to recapture the vessel in order to avoid any unpleasant consequences that may arise through the presentation of a claim for damages in behalf of the Chilian government.

It is not possible to get a definite answer to the question "Will the Charleston be sent after the Etata?" All of the information to be had on the subject is that the Charleston two weeks ago was ordered to coal and get ready for sea at the earliest possible moment.

IN UTAH TO-DAY.

The President Spends the Forenoon in Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE, May 9.—The Presidential train arrived here at 3 o'clock this morning and at that hour many people were astir, but care was taken that the President was not disturbed.

The reception to the President and party began at 9 o'clock by a breakfast at the Walker House. The President was escorted to the hotel by Gov. Thomas and a large committee.

After breakfast there was a procession and every house along the line of march was profusely decorated. The addresses of welcome were delivered by the Governor and Mayor. The President made an eloquent response and was enthusiastically cheered.

There was much enthusiasm exhibited at all stops before reaching this city. At Pendleton, Ore., the President made a brief reply to an address of welcome. Postmaster-General Wanamaker also made a brief address. The Chiefs of the Gayuses and Peo and Umatilla Indians made brief speeches at the close of the Postmaster-General's address.

At Umatilla, Indian Mission, the train halted for a few minutes, while the Indian children sang a patriotic song in honor of the President. A royal reception was given at La Grande.

Will Retire from Politics.

NEW YORK, May 9.—State Senator William Robertson was interviewed at his home in Katonah, Westchester County, in regard to a report that he intended to retire from politics. He admitted that the report was true, and gave as a reason for getting out of politics that he wanted to devote his entire time to his law practice.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Six Hotels, Forty-five Stores and Twenty-five Residences Burned.

ALLISTON, Ont., May 9.—Six blocks of buildings were burned here last evening. They contained six hotels, 45 stores, 25 residences, the post office, market buildings and fire hall.

The fire originated in the stables of the Queen's Hotel and spread so rapidly as to be soon beyond the control of the small fire brigade. The loss will reach into the hundreds of thousands.

Browning's 79th Anniversary.

BOSTON, May 9.—The 79th anniversary of the birth of Robert Browning was observed during the evening by the Boston Browning Society with a dinner at the Brunswick, at which addresses were made by Col. Higginson, Dr. C. C. Everett, Rev. Dr. Everett Hale, Rev. Charles G. Ames, Mrs. Mary E. Conn, President of the Philadelphia Browning Society; Miss Harriet T. Mills, of the Syracuse Society, and Miss Emma Endicott Morgan, of the Chicago Society. Several poems were read, as were letters from Lowell, Whittier and Holmes.

The Heirs Will Suffer.

PORTLAND, Me., May 9.—An investigation of the affairs of the late Rufus Prince of Turney, ex-State Senator, proves that they are in a very bad condition. His estate is estimated at only $15,000. Since 1861 he has been administrator, executor or guardian of ninety-five estates. In thirty-three of these cases no record appears of any settlement. In ten cases no inventory of the estate was ever filed. In the remaining unsettled cases there appears to be due to the heirs $75,000.

Rich Find in a Wheat Bin.

NEWCASTLE, Ind., May 9.—William Wrightman, living near Middletown, who has kept several hundred bushels of wheat stored in his barn for a year, while removing the wheat for market found in the grain an old pocketbook containing $11,500 in gold coin and paper currency. How the money came there is a mystery.

ITALY SEEKS HELP

To Appeal to the Powers About the New Orleans Affair.

THE ITALIAN PRESS INDIGNANT.

A Claim that There is No Protection for Foreign Subjects Here.

Death of Mme. Blavatsky in London—The Nitrate King Thinks the Chilian Insurgents Will Win—Queen Victoria Sends a Goat for a Present—Germany's First Move About the World's Fair.

ROME, May 9.—The Italian government is about to address a circular to the European powers submitting the conduct of the United States government in the New Orleans affair to their judgment. Italy will thus be the initiator of an international agreement to compel the United States to find means to guarantee the protection of foreign subjects.

The Italian press is indignant at the report of the New Orleans grand jury. The Popolo Romano says that it will be impossible hereafter for any civilized country to make a treaty with the United states based upon reciprocal protection of the lives of citizens of either country.

One thousand two hundred emigrants left Naples for New York on board the steamer Victor and 200 others by Italian vessels.

MME. BLAVATSKY DEAD.

The Founder of All the Theosophical Societies Expires in London.

LONDON, May 9.—Mme. Blavatsky, the well known Theosphist, is dead.

Mme. Helene Petrovna Blavatsky, the renowned founder and leader of the Theosophists, was born at Ekaterinslav, in Southern Russia, in 1831. Her father was a Col. Peter Hahn, and, when only 17 years old, she married Gen. Nicephore V. Blavatsky, who was at one time Governor of Armenia.

She was one of the most learned women of her country, speaking a number of languages. She was well versed in all the higher studies and became a believer in Spiritualism in its early days. In 1875, while sojourning in Vermont at the house of Eddy Briggs, the Spiritualist, she met Col. Henry Olcott, who was then collecting material for his work, "People from Another World."

She claimed with him to have seances with many wise and profound Eastern sages of ancient fame, who indicated to her that there was a great work to be done if the proper persons could be found for its accomplishment. Under the advice of the spirits they returned to New York and established the Theosophical Society, whose principal object is to bring the world to a universal religion.

Mme. Blavatsky at 80 was a woman of large proportions, with a well shaped head and piercing eyes. She always wore a large seal ring on the third finger of the right hand, which was supposed to be possessed of remarkable occult power. She was well liked by those who knew her, and by her followers was looked upon as an ideal woman, born to lead mankind from the darkness of isms to the light of a religion that would bring perfect happiness on earth.

COL. NORTH'S OPINION.

The Nitrate King Thinks the Chilian Rebels Will Eventually Succeed.

LONDON, May 9.—Colonel North, known as the nitrate king, complains that the statement published to the effect that he had expressed a belief that the Balmaceda Government would sooner or later crush the insurrection now existing in Chili, misrepresents him. Colonel North denies that he made any such prediction. Inasmuch, however, as such a report has been put in circulation the Colonel adds: "I think it well to say now that from my private advices I learn that the best blood is among the Parliamentary party which the people favors as against that led by President Balmaceda. Therefore, I am rather inclined to believe that the insurgents will eventually succeed."

Presented With a Royal Goat.

LONDON, May 9.—The Queen has taken a queer freak in making a present of a goat to the Second Battalion of the Welsh regiment stationed at Davenport. The officers of the regiment, while expressing deep gratitude for her Majesty's kindness, are entirely at a loss to know what to do with the royal goat, which introduced itself to its new owners by butting and knocking down the colonel while at drill. The officers have no taste for goat's milk, and do not think that it is a valuable addition to the regimental equipment. However, they have the goat, and have sent a formal address of thanks to Her Majesty.

The Wheat Supply.

LONDON, May 9.—It has been discovered that the government has underestimated the wheat import for the eight months ending April 30, the actual supply exceeding the official returns more than 500,000 quarters.

Germany and the World's Fair.

BERLIN, May 9.—The grant of $25,000 to defray the cost of steps to be taken to enable Germany to be properly represented at the Chicago World's Fair, has been approved by the Budget Committee of the Reichstag.

The Pennsylvania Road Will Appeal.

PITTSBURG, May 9.—The appeal of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from the settlement of the State's accounting officers for the tax on the capital stock for the years 1872 to 1887 inclusive was decided by Judge Simonton at Harrisburg. By the court's opinion, the claim of the State, which was about $1,000,000, is cut down about one-half. The company will appeal to the Supreme Court.

Strikers Disguised as White Caps.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 9.—A gang of strikers disguised as White Caps last night took possession of a striker's house occupied by a Slav non-union workman named Krone, and, after brandishing revolvers, made him take an oath that he would do no more work.

Female Factory Inspectors.

BOSTON, May 9.—The Governor appointed Mrs. Fanny R. Ames, of Boston, and Miss Mary E. Hailey, of Lawrence, factory inspectors in accordance with an act just passed by the Legislature. Both ladies were strongly recommended for the position.

The Dow Will Sustained.

BOSTON, May 9.—The will of Caroline T. Dow, which contains bequests aggregating $400,000, was sustained by the Middlesex County Probate Court. Several grandchildren who had only been left $300 each tried to break the will by alleging undue influence. The case will go to the Supreme Court.

A Queer Invitation.

OTTAWA, May 9.—Mr. Mills, Conservative member for Annapolis, intends to give notice of a resolution declaring that the New England States should be invited to join the Maritime Province and become part of the Dominion.

Trenton Potters' Strike is Ended.

TRENTON, N. J., May 9.—After a contest lasting 21 weeks the strike of the potters has been settled, and the men will resume work next Monday. Mutual concessions were made by the manufacturers and the union.

Ex-Assemblyman Crowley Dead.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 9.—J. L. Crowley, twice member of the State Legislature, secretary of the National Undertakers' Association, and one of the most prominent men in that business in the country, is dead.

Punishment for the Boy Murderer.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Paul Holz, the boy who cut his father's throat while the latter was asleep, was found guilty of murder, and his punishment was fixed at 14 years in the penitentiary.

—About thirty young Methodist Episcopalians went to Elizabeth last evening to attend an Epworth League rally at St. James's church.

—A man by the unusual name of Smith, from Dunellen, got drunk on Plainfield whisky last night, and was fined $4 by Judge Codington this morning.

—The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Warren Union Mission, meets on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend.

—Dr. R. L. Tucker, a graduate of the American Veterinary College, New York, has opened an office at 65 North avenue, and is prepared to treat all cases where the services of a skilful veterinarian are needed.

—From the top of the new stand-pipe of the Plainfield Water Supply Company at Netherwood one may obtain a fine view of the most charming landscape. To the observer from the tower the surrounding country, lying 140 feet below him, presents a most pleasant picture.

—There was nothing poor about the play at Music Hall, last evening, except Louise Allen's dancing. Yet it aroused unbounded enthusiasm. The audience should have seen Sadie Martinot do it, and they would have realized the fact that vulgarity is unnecessary to make that dance effective.

—The Rev Mr. Mitchell's Junior League crowded Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon, and began the spring term of work. It was a beautiful sight to see the children, wearing handsome new silk badges, pass along the street, going home from the chapel. Mr. Mitchell knows how to attract and hold the children.

—Two lads who had been throwing stones through the windows of the Crescent rink building, were arrested by Capt. Grant and taken before the City Judge, who suspended sentence on them this morning. Other arrests will probably follow, and some of those who have been breaking in the building will be sent to jail.

—The people of Grace Protestant Episcopal church are very proud of their surpliced choir, and naturally want full credit given for the excellent work done by the singers during the recent Convention of the Diocese. The published report that the choir were assisted by singers from the Church of the Holy Cross is an error growing out of misinformation given to the reporters by some of the clergymen.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

William D. Murray and the Misses Murray have been traveling in Kentucky.

Miss Mabel Woodruff of East Second street, is visiting friends in Philidelphia.

Miss Morse of Brooklyn is visiting her sister, Mrs. Armstrong Mulford, of East Fifth street.

The Rev. Mr. Hickman of Trenton will preach at the Dunellen Presbyterian church to-morrow, morning and evening.

Bishop Vincent will visit his many friends in this city in June, and will preach morning and evening, June 21, in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Architect Charles Smith will soon begin the erection of a fine residence for John G. Musgrave at the corner of Mercer and Sycamore avenues, Washington Park.

The Rev. E. W. Burr, D.D., pastor of the St. James M. E. church, Elizabeth, who is to preach at pastor Mitchell's church to-morrow, will be the guest of P. Minturn Smith, of Madison avenue, while in the city.

Does It Portend an Epidemic?

Charles, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McCarthy, died yesterday of scarlet fever, in the third year of his age, and Edna May, the eight-year-old daughter of Charles A. and Dora B. Sturtevant also died yesterday. There have been four recent deaths of that malignant disease in the neighborhood of Orchard place, Liberty and New streets. It is reported that other children in the same locality are ill with the fever. M. M. Dunham of the Board of Health has been very active in having all proper precautions taken against the spread of the disease, and it is hoped that an epidemic may be avoided.

The Penalty of Not Advertising.

Some Hebrew merchant who came from the great metropolis to Plainfield a short time ago and opened a store on West Front street with stock that was unpaid for, has had his goods seized by a deputy sheriff representing his creditors, and the store has been closed. As he did n't advertise, no one knows his name, save the deputy sheriff, and he won't tell.

It is false! No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires's Root Beer. Some dealers recommend imitations for the larger profits they yield. What a delicious drink Hires's Root Beer Packages make.

MERELY A FORECAST.

THE COURT INTIMATES WHAT ITS DECISION WOULD BE.

Corporation Counsel Marsh's Point Sustained, and the Plainfield Water Supply Co. is Told That it Must Make Out a Case Before it Can Have a Verdict.

It appears that THE PRESS's Trenton correspondent was rather previous in his despatch yesterday asserting that the Court had rendered a decision averse to the City of Plainfield in the cases against it of the Water Supply Co., and the Gas Light Co., questioning the validity of an ordinance (so far as they were concerned) restricting and regulating the tearing up of the streets for the laying of pipes.

Readers of THE PRESS will remember that in his brief in the Water company's case, City Attorney Marsh called the attention of the Court to the fact that the matter was not properly brought before it. The Court says that is so and therefore gives no decision in the case, although it plainly states that its decision would be against the city. But that is as far as the Water company's case has gone.

As to the Gas company's case, it has just begun, and the Court has simply given that company the privilege to bring up at some future time, an ordinance of the city for argument upon the question of its validity. The case will come up regularly at the November 1891 or February 1892, term of the Supreme Court. It brings up the same ordinance in dispute as in the Water company's case, but, on motion of the city, the Court ordered that the Gas company's writ should not operate as a stay as to anybody other than the Gas company.

The City made this motion because it believes that the Gas company's case is merely brought to help out the Water company.

The Water company's case has not been decided, and until the company prove something more than they have, the case cannot be decided in their favor. The Court, however, stated to counsel, that the questions involved had been fully considered by the Court and the conclusion was reached that the ordinance could not stand because it attempted to prohibit the exercise of powers expressly conferred on the Water company by the Legislature with which the City's charter did not conflict; and, furthermore, the ordinance was unreasonable.

The Court said it could not decide, however, because the City had made the point that the Water company had not brought before the Court the evidence necessary to entitle the company to a decision. The ex parte affidavit upon which the writ was allowed could not be used as evidence, and hence there was nothing before the Court but the ordinance and the charter of the company. These simply presented an abstract question of law without showing any practical need of the Court's decision.

Although the case had been printed, argued and submitted on both sides, the Court thought that the Water company should be permitted to take testimony to prove the facts set up in the ex parte affidavit referred to, and the Court would accordingly allow the case to be reopened for that purpose.

The Corporation Counsel in an interview this morning, told a PRESS reporter that the city cannot deny the facts stated in the Water company's affidavit. He had made the point referred to by the Court purely as a technical point to enable the city to reap whatever advantage might be gained in that way. The city has gained by it this advantage: The Court stated that if the city admitted the facts, the Court would decide the case in accordance with the views above stated, but would not allow any costs against the city. Of course if the city requires the Water company to take testimony to prove the necessary facts, and the case then goes against the city, it would carry with it a heavy bill of costs.

The views of the Court coincide exactly with the opinion of Corporation Counsel Marsh given at a meeting of the Council, December 2, 1890, and published as follows in these columns at the time:

In the opinion of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, who addressed the Council at considerable length on subject, the question of the validity of the ordinance hinges on the charter granted to the Plainfield Water Supply Company in 1869. This—he said—was a charter of very extraordinary powers, and virtually gave its possessors the right to lay pipes for water-works wherever they saw fit. In 1874, the Water Supply Company having meanwhile failed to continue in active organization, a supplement to the charter was secured from the Legislature, stipulating that none of the Company's prerogatives should be injured by any past neglect or lapse. In 1877 the perfected charter of the City of Plainfield was granted, giving the municipal authorities power to regulate and to prevent street obstructions and to govern similar matters. The question whether that city charter limited or repealed in any way the Water Supply Company's charter was one which possessed argument for both sides. The Water Supply Company would probably claim that the charter rights could not be reperied by corporation ordinances; and there could be no doubt that it was as impossible for the city charter to annul the charter of the Water Supply Company as it was for it to annul the charter of the Jersey Central Railroad. The city charter had the power to make reasonable regulations, but this ordinance sought to do more than that. It virtually attempted to repeal the franchise of the Water Supply Company. The Common Council had undoubtedly the right to say in what manner water mains should be laid, but that it had a right to say "You shall not lay any mains" was a question.

By reason of the technical point decided in the City's favor, the City is now in a position to accept without cost the Court's intimation as to what will be the result of further litigation. But it seems probable that the majority of the Council will not just now decide to submit.

Through the Real Estate Agency of E. C. Mulford.

Counselor Ward, a New York lawyer of prominence, has rented ex-Councilman Myers' house at the corner of Seventh and Sycamore streets.

W. W. Knickerbecker and family, of New York, will occupy the residence at Front and Washington streets for the Summer.

F. W. Bunyon, editor of the Central Times, has leased a home at 106 West Front street.

W. S. Todd, of Brooklyn, has rented the Mulford house on Richmond near Front street.

The Young Men's Catholic Lyceum have sold their house on Fifth street and purchased a much larger one at the corner of Sixth and Liberty streets.

Mrs. Keeney and daughter have taken Mrs. Vosseller's house at Sixth and Franklin streets.

Mr. Samuel Sproulls and bride will soon move into a handsome home on Sandford avenue.

New Quarters for the Baptist Class.

The new building adjoining the rear of the First Baptist church, is rapidly approaching completion.

The first floor is about finished, and to-morrow the handsome class room, with a seating capacity of 80, will be occupied by Chas. B. Brown and his class of young men, for whom this room was especially designed. From a membership of four, in last January, this class has increased in numbers to nearly 60.

All the members are urged to be present at to-morrow's services.

Buried His Wife and Went Back to Jail.

William Kenny, of this city, was recently committed to the county jail for sixty days. When he had served about half the term his wife died, and the jail committee had sympathy for him and released him in order that he might attend the funeral services. That was Wednesday. Yesterday morning Kenny was again committed for sixty days, having been arrested for disorderly conduct.—Elizabeth Journal.

A Sermon and a Supper.

The Rev. E. M. Rodman, of Grace church, participated in the celebration of Ascension Day at St. Luke's church, Roselle, Thursday evening, and the names of Sir Knight F. O. Herring and other Plainfielders appear in the Elizabeth papers' list of Knights Templar attending the services especially prepared for them. From the church the clergy and Knights went to VanCourt Inn and had a jolly supper.

A Glimpse at Mercury at Sunset.

The planet Mercury will make a transit across the sun's disk this evening. As the sun will set at 7:02 and the transit will not occur till 6:55 the period of observation in this city will be very limited. Seen through a smoked glass Mercury will appear like a black mole on the face of old Sol.

Fully Satisfied with Mr. Dunham's Roads.

The Union County Board of Freeholders have accepted from County Engineer Dunham of this city the new Union county roads, and the bills of contractors E. M. Lynch and Thomas A. Nevins, President of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, have been ordered paid.

Death of Alphonse J. Laine.

Alphonse J. Laine died after a lingering illness yesterday, at the age of 40 years. Funeral services will be held from the residence of his brother-in-law, James Raddin, 22 East Front street, Monday afternoon at half-past two.

Overtops the Crescent City's Boys.

Harry Curry, of South Bound Brook, is a taller man than any of Plainfield's big fellows. With the soles of his bare feet squarely on the floor he towers up to the height of 6 feet 7½ inches. His age is 25.

The Veteran Expressman Paralyzed.

Peter Hoagland, the veteran expressman, was stricken with paralysis a few days ago at his residence on West Front street. His left side is affected, and he is entirely helpless.

The First of the Season.

An excursion to Ocean Grove and Asbury Park by the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school, accompanied by its mission schools of Hope and Bethel chapels, has been arranged for Wednesday, July 8.

Training for the Big Event.

A party of bicyclists passed through town this morning on their way to Philadelphia, training for the great century run of June 13. To-morrow Capt. F. L. C. Martin, with Capt. Fuller of Brooklyn, will go over the course on their wheels. They will return by train at night.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

Water-Testing.

Having lately added to my chemical outfit I am now—better than heretofore—prepared to test and report upon the quality of Drinking-Waters. If desired, testing will include Relative Hardness, Organic Impurities, Ammonia and Chlorides, (with estimate of latter, if required).

"Red Pat" Paints Red with Lavish Hand.

When the pleasure-loving people of that wild old borough, Dunellen, want genuine excitement, they usually go and stir up a famous local character known familiarly by the sobriquet of "Red Pat". The latest diversion Patrick has been furnishing for the villagers deserves credit for originality and uniqueness. After filling himself up with bad whisky and parading with his maudlin funniness through the streets to the infinite delight of those who like that sort of thing, he sought out the foulest-smelling sess-pool in the borough and deliberately plunged in head foremost. When he was fished out, a most disgusting and pitiable object, he grinned broadly and told everybody what fun it was. When he had been under the streaming pump spout half an hour, and was a trifle sweeter and soberer, he started out in search of more rum, and not having any cash he trotted out his old billy goat and tried to sell or raffle it. The goat furnished more frolic by tumbling Pat into the gutter and giving men and boys a lively chase through the streets, but finally it was caught, and Patrick found a purchaser in a fish peddler, to whom the goat was traded for a pint of bad whisky and four shad.

They Might Eat Sausage, But Use Towels Never.

Bound Brook has been visited by burglars whose tastes seem to be very discriminating. From the fact that the woods are just now full of tramps, that the nights are chilly, and that the shiftless fellows like snug beds and warm provender, the Bound Brook Chronicle infers that the big tub full of nice new pork sausage, the six shirts, the six sheets, the eighteen towels, and the two razors, that L. D. Cook lost, and the warm blankets and carriage robes whose absence is bewailed by "Uncle Steve" Gillespie, were appropriated by the knights of the road now quartered in the outskirts of the borough. In seems quite natural that the tramps should have stolen the blankets and sausage, and also the hams, pies and cakes missed by Ed. Stryker of Middlebrook; but what could they want of eighteen towels? Is it possible that through lack of familiarity with the articles they thought them something good to eat? And the six masculine garments—imagine a tramp with a clean shirt!

Escaped Railway Dangers to be Crippled by a Hen.

When E. Hicks Camman began traveling daily back and forth between Bound Brook and New York city, over the Jersey Central, he deemed it the part of a wise and prudent man to secure a policy insuring himself against accident, and regularly for several years he paid his premium, and traveled and traveled and never had a mishap. Wednesday morning he got up a trifle earlier than usual, took a delightful walk about in the fresh morning air, and as a bit of diversion went out into his father's barn and worried a sitting hen. The hen got fighting mad, however, and chased him off a high haymow. In landing on the hard board floor he damaged his internal mechanism considerably and severely sprained an ankle. And now, through this most unexpected source, he begins to enjoy the fruits of his years of premium-paying. During the three months he will be laid up he will draw $25 per week. Those chicks will be full fledged when he next sees their irascible mother.

Strawberries and Vegetables Suffered Most.

Prof. E. W. McGann, chief of the New Jersey Weather Service, has received, at his New Brunswick office, information from all parts of the State regarding the effects of the recent cold wave upon fruits and early vegetables. About 50 per cent. of the early strawberries have been destroyed. The late-blooming large fruits have been slightly damaged, the early-blooming not so much. Concord grapes have been somewhat injured. About 90 per cent. of the potatoes, tomatoes and beans have been killed.

Dunellen Methodists Form a League.

The young people of the Dunellen Methodist church have organized a chapter of the Epworth League. Officers have been elected as follows:

President—W. C. Kinsey.
Vice Presidents—I. J. Stites, Miss Louisa Apgar, Miss Ella Fisher, Mrs. T. J. Todd.
Secretary—Frank Covey.
Treasurer—George Schenck.

The league will hold business meetings the evening of the first Friday of every month, and a devotional meeting each Sunday evening at 6:45. A training class will meet Mondays, at night.

Uncle Sam Takes a Lesson in Spelling.

Postmaster Mason has called the attention of the new Borough Council to the fact that arbitrary Uncle Sam, through his Post-office Department, is writing that good old name "Bound Brook" in the very incorrect and inartistic form of "Boundbrook"; and the Council have very promptly and very properly acted on Postmaster Mason's suggestion and have insisted, in a very firm letter to the postal authorities at Washington, that in the future the town name and post-office must be written with two big B's.

Honest Assessments in Somerset.

The total valuation of real estate in Somerset county is given at $13,000,000, and of personal property at $6,000,000. The State Board has complimented the assessors on the fact that the personal assessment in Somerset far exceeds, proportionately, that of Morris, recently visited, which has many citizens making much more pretensions of wealth.

McPherson for President.

(From the Chicago Herald.)

An interesting piece of gossip is that Senator Gorman is not committed to Hill as against Cleveland, but is grooming a dark horse in the person of Senator McPherson of New Jersey. Mr. McPherson is a very ambitious man, and some of his friends predict that he will carry off the nomination away from both Cleveland and Hill. It was noticed last winter that the Senator, while a strong anti silver man, avoided lifting up his voice in the silver debate. Without any great difficulty, in the opidion of his friends, therefore, he will be able to satisfy the East on his previous record, and the West on his conservatism of last winter. The McPherson men say Hill and Cleveland will get into a snarl in New York and eat each other up; that Hill will have the delegation, and by hanging to it make Cleveland's nomination impossible and his own as well, and that McPherson will run off with the prize.

Justus Cooley's Plans for Just Taxation.

Justus H. Cooley, Assessor of North Plainfield borough and township, reports to the State Board of Taxation a total assessed valuation of $1,640,700 on real estate, $261,550 on personal property and $85,000 on debts. Dr. Cooley thinks that if a man sells a lot at so much a front foot that price should regulate the price of his other land on the same front. He suggests that debtors should be allowed no deduction exceeding the amount of their personal property, or that only debts of record be considered.

Two Happy Brides.

[From The Bound Brook Chronicle.]

Charles Lewis and Miss Elizabeth Bountree, both of New Market, were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's mother, Wednesday night. The Rev. J. A. Cubberly performed the ceremony. The happy couple will reside in Plainfield.

Mr. Lewis, of Westerly, R. I., and Miss Ida Titsworth, of New Market, were married, Wednesday evening, at the residence of Mr. Garrison on Centre street.

Will Have a Branch at Plainfield.

The Standard Union Specialty Company filed articles of incorporation yesterday at Elizabeth with the Clerk of Union county. The incorporators are George M. Hathsway, Alfred E. Paillard, and Willard B. Stevens, all of New York, and Frank F. Baynon of West Second street, this city. The company's business will be transacted at New York and Plainfield, and its capital is placed at $100,000.

Joe Pike Arouses Sporting Blood.

Joseph Pike, of whose ability as a bicyclist Plainfielders have heard a great deal, since his remarkable story of his remarkable run to Newark was published in THE PRESS, is now said to be training for the big road race at Irvington. He expects to capture first prize, and local sports trusting in his assurances promise to wager their money on his success.

But His Plainfield Church Goes on.

The Bound Brook Chronicle says: "The Rev. J. B. Cleaver and family have removed from Plainfield to the farm lately purchased of H. A. King, just east of Bound Brook. Mr. Cleaver is a man of enterprise and push, and has great faith in the future prosperity of our community. He and his family are valuable acquisitions to our town."

Will Need Cotton for Their Ears.

Some of the more or less skillful marksmen in the Plainfield Crescent League are going to begin a series of shooting events on the base-ball grounds next week Wednesday. Blue rock clay pigeons will be the targets. Boroughites living near the grounds and objecting to noise will need cotton for their ears.

New Officers and a New Hall.

The new hall of the Fanwood Club will be opened with a brilliant entertainment the latter part of this month.

At the recent annual election of the club the following officers were elected:

President—J. C. Stevens.
Vice President—Clarence W. Smith.
Secretary—Harry Robinson.
Trustees—George Hamlin, George R. Brown.

Wants Money for His Damaged Name.

The New York Tribune in a recent issue said that the leader of the gang of burglarious tramps at Westfield was Harry Edwards. Inasmuch as Harry Edwards is a highly respected citizen of Ripleyville, he feels that he has been grossly libeled, and has had his counsel, Chauncey B. Ripley, bring suit against the Tribune for heavy damages.

Have you ever tried Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain? It has cured many and will cure you. Price 25c a bottle.

Cured of Consumption.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 9.—James McAnally, a Koch lymph patient, will be discharged from the West Penn Hospital on Monday with a certificate from his physician as being cured of consumption. McAnally has been under treatment for three months. Two other lymph patients, both women, left the hospital to-day with certificates of cure, but the hospital authorities withheld their names.

Over Eighty but Still Vigorous.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, although an octogenarian, is as vigorous as a woman of 60, and immediately after a thousand-mile ride is not too much fatigued to entertain many Chicago friends, who are calling on her at the Palmer House. She is returning from a visit to her son, Herbert Ward Beecher, at Fort Townsend, Wash.

HIS FATHER WAS INSANE.

The Man Who Threatened Jay Gould's Life Well Connected.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 9.—Charles J. Dixon, arrested in New York as an insane person for threatening the life of Jay Gould unless the latter paid him a certain sum of money, is the son of the Rev. Dr. Dixon.

The latter died in the insane asylum at Long Meadow, Mass., where he was a patient.

United States Senator Dixon is also the uncle of the man that has threatened Mr. Gould.

Charles J. Dixon visited his relatives, who are very wealthy people, last week. At that time he showed no signs of mental derangement.

He was at one time prominent in social circles in this city, and belonged to a number of military and other organizations.

His visit last week was the first he had made in several years. He had been in the west.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

There is no revolution in Costa Rica. Perfect peace and order prevail.

The bill limiting the height of buildings in cities to 125 feet was passed to be engrossed by the House of Representatives of Massachusetts.

The firm in the China trade in London, whose failure was reported yesterday with liabilities amounting to $1,000,000, is that of Adamson, Bell & Co.

The dry goods store of Hirsm Kats at Olean, N. Y., has been closed by the sheriff on a judgment of $1,200 in favor of Burke, Fitzsimmons, Hone & Co. of Rochester.

Thomas Magee, a professional nurse, alleges that he has discovered a plot to imprison wealthy John Ladue, of New York, and coerce him into making a will in favor of his daughter.

The Health Department of New York city has arranged to have the Greek who was supposed to have had the leprosy sent back to Mexico, where he came from.

The Massachusetts State Board of Health reports that there were seventeen deaths from hydrophobia during the past year. This is the highest number of deaths from this disease that has ever been reported in Massachusetts.

The Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., in session at Milwaukee, Wis., decided by a vote of 114 to 81 that saloon men and liquor makers may be eligible to the order as in the past. Reports of the State officers showed that the order is in a flourishing condition.

Three drunken fishermen assaulted Dr. Wilbur, aged 87 years, of North Scituate, R. I., and so beat him that his life is despaired of. The ruffians threw stones at him and jumped on him. They were arrested and threats of mob law are freely indulged in.

The National Stove Manufacturers' Association, in session at Philadelphia, adopted a resolution to strictly maintain the price of stoves at the same figure as last year. Officers were elected as follows: President, Jesse Orr, Reading; vice-presidents, E. W. Peck, Rochester, N. Y., George H. Holland, St. Louis; treasurer, S. T. Peckham, Utica, N. Y.; secretary, D. M. Thomas, Columbia.

A PRAYER FOR FAITH.

Oh, Thou, who holdest in Thy mighty grasp
The wide-spread waters of the boundless deep,
Whose blessed smile is in the sunshine seen,
Whose awful power awakes the fearful storm—
Who scatterest o'er the mantle of the night
The glittering gems that meet our upward gaze,
Whose voice comes to us in the zephyr's breath,
And greets us in the wild tornado's roar—
Whose glorious handiwork o'er all the earth
Is seen,
In every plant that at Thy bidding grows
To please the eye or furnish needful food—
In every bird that skims the ether blue,
To charm the ravished ear with songs of praise—
In every beast that roams the forest wild,
Or with meek patience toils for thankless man—
Thou Infinite! whose presence in all space is felt,
At once mysterious, awful, grand, sublime, and beautiful,
If I, a dying, worthless clod of earth,
Might dare to lift an humble prayer to Thee,
I'd ask that Thou wouldst teach me what I am,
And save me from the touch of vanity and pride,
Those twin fiends who, since the first angel fell,
Have lured weak, yielding man to misery and woe.
Save me, oh, Father, from the skeptic tempter's power,
Who, with his specious reasoning, would sap my faith—
And since I can not Thy dread essence analyze,
And make Thee palpable to touch and sight,
Let me adore Thee as a little child,
Who can not reason, but who yet can feel
Thy presence when he kneels to Thee in prayer.
I pray for faith, oh, Father! Faith to feel
That Thou art with me in this mortal strife—
Faith to believe that if misfortune lays
Her heavy hand on my devoted head,
'Tis done for some wise end known but to Thee—
Faith to believe if earthly friends desert,
If loved and trusted ones fly from my side,
That Thou wilt closer draw, and give that peace
Which none here can bestow or take away—
Faith to perceive Thy hand in all that may befall,
And to exclaim, in reverence and love:
"It is the Lord, and I am still content!"
Oh, glorious faith! Oh, sweet and heavenly trust!
Be with me to the end, and bear my soul,
In confidence and peace to its eternal home!
—Francis S. Smith, in N. Y. Weekly.

KEEP YOUR ENGAGEMENTS.

A Virtue in Which Many Christian People are Woefully Deficient.

Chief among the qualities sometimes termed the minor virtues is punctuality. It is a virtue in which many Christian people, otherwise admirable, are woefully deficient. One of the rarest things in the world is to find a man or woman careful in making engagements and scrupulous in fulfilling them exactly. Whether they are utterly without sense of obligation in the matter, whether they are victims of bad memory, whether they are simply the slaves of bad habit, may be a question. A bad habit may be corrected, a bad memory may be supplemented by various expedients, but a defective sense of moral obligation in the matter of keeping engagements is so desperate a case as to call for active missionary work.

Punctuality is a thing of so great importance that it should hardly be classed among the minor virtues. One who is not punctual in fulfilling engagements is, first of all, a liar. He has deliberately pledged his word to do a certain thing at a certain time. If he violates this pledge, when he might have kept it, what can this be called but lying? It is true that a man may be prevented from keeping an appointment by circumstances quite beyond his control—a train may be behind time, an accident may occur, a watch may stop. But even in such cases a close examination will often show that the failure is due to lack of foresight. One needs to make a certain allowance for possible obstacles, to be sure of keeping his word. In the aggregate, however, the most exasperating failures to be punctual are marked either by design or by carelessness, and it is hard to say which is the more exasperating kind. Both are forms of lying.

Lack of punctuality is also theft. Something always depends on an engagement, else why is it made? The one who breaks it robs others of the advantage that would have accrued from its fulfillment, robs them of time, robs them of opportunity. For if the engagement-breaker had not made his agreement, somebody else would have been sought and found to do the thing. That opportunity has been lost, and perhaps the loss in irreparable.

Certain engagements are rather implied than expressed, but they are none the less morally binding on that account. One who attends a place of public entertainment does so with the implied agreement that he will be in his place at the appointed time, and will not rob others of their right to quiet enjoyment by coming in late. One who attends public worship does it with a similar implied agreement. One who accepts a social invitation makes an implied pledge of the same kind to his host. The violation of these obligations, and others like them, though shockingly common is a moral delinquency that calls for more frequent and vigorous condemnation than it usually receives. Lack of punctuality, though sometimes fashionable, is never respectable, since it argues ill-breeding on the one hand and a selfish disregard of others' rights on the other.

Failure to be punctual soon grows into a habit. The man who is never ready to pay a note after three days' grace would not be ready after thirty. The people who are late at an eight o'clock concert, would be late at ten o'clock. The people who come trailing into church fifteen minutes late, would be just fifteen minutes late if they chose their own hour. Like all virtues, punctuality is only to be achieved by a resolute, a persistent purpose, a constant practice. But like all virtues, again, it may in time be so thoroughly acquired as to become a second nature and demand no conscious exertion. Habit is all but omnipotent. Therefore let us form good habits, and not bad, in this matter of keeping engagements.—N. Y. Examiner.

HOW TO HELP OTHERS.

Many Little Kindnesses That Are More Appreciated Than Big Gifts.

Mr. Parks is one of the oldest men in a church in one of our largest cities. He has wealth, education and a sincere wish to do his duty. He can make money, and gives it liberally to organized charities. He is just and polite to every one, but he is a nonentity in the church and in the community, and he knows it. He feels that, though he has some business influence, he has no influence over men, not even over his own family.

He knows nothing of his boy's struggles in college, and takes no interest in his girl's pursuits or fancies. In fact, he takes no personal interest in any one. If he should meet one of his clerks on Broadway he could hardly name him.

He wonders why, with his wish to do good, he should so stand apart from other human beings, as if he were one of the stone statues in the park.

John Nasby is one of his book-keepers. John is slow and plodding; a man who will probably remain a poor book-keeper all his life. He has but little money to give away, and is very sorry that he has no more, for there are such hosts of people whom he loves that need it. He does what he can for them. He is so eager in his sympathy, so full of courage and devices to help, that all who know him come to him with their perplexities and troubles.

This morning, for example, he was up before day to explain Bob's problems in algebra. During breakfast Susy poured forth to him her grievances against her teacher, and was tenderly comforted and advised. As he went out of his door, the milkman stopped him to consult him about a mortgage on his farm.

As he bought a paper from the old woman at the corner, he gave her a bottle of liniment for her rheumatism, and when he took his seat at his desk, the office-boy whispered: "He is all right, now, sir," with a beaming face. "He" is the boy's father, who had a cataract over both eyes. John gained him admission to a hospital, and he has sent him home cured.

So John goes to his work with a fire in his heart ready to warm everyone who comes near him, rich or poor, white or black.

It was a common belief for many ages that a mysterious fluid existed in the bodies of kings, which enabled them to heal diseases by their touch. Science disproved this superstition long ago. But it is true that a mysterious spirit in the souls of certain persons gives them the healing touch, and that without it, strive as they may, they can neither cure nor help.

It is simply love for their fellows, giving their sympathy as help, as Christ gave Himself for men.—Youths' Companion.

Diversity No Disparagement.

There is a great diversity in Christian experience, with which the young in grace are not always familiar. Persons of differing temperament, environment and character will have different phases of experience. There is one city in the world where the sun always rises and sets at the same time. That city is Quito, the capital of Ecuador, in South America. In every other place the sun rises and sets at different hours. That city could not therefore be a law to any other locality. How suggestive all this to sunrise in the soul. It is not at the same time in every life, nor are the circumstances always the same. So there are certain great laws of spiritual experience, yet experiences as varied as temperaments. Because the experience of a young Christian may not be just that of another, therefore should be no disparagement.—Chicago Standard.

Get in Touch With God.

"When you lay hold of God in prayer you know that His hand touches the dear ones you pray for, however far away they may be. God is with the absent son or daughter, the wife or husband, and we touch the distant loved one when we touch Him. This is one of the inspirations and joys of those who worship God in faith."—Rain's Horn.

CLIPPED FROM THE RAM'S HORN.

Love always writes its name in its own blood.

The religion that has no joy in it does not come from God.

No man can ask God for much who is not willing to do much.

Every guideboard pointing toward Heaven says: "Start now."

The road to Heaven is up hill all the way to the man who looks back.

Everybody who tries to make others happy gets paid for it in Heaven's money.

It is not what we give to God, but what we keep from Him that makes us poor.

No man is altogether right in his religion who makes a wrong use of his money.

One of the most terrible things about sin is that it makes us dissatisfied with God.

It looks as though there are some things that the devil could learn from a hypocrite.

If you will do good whenever you have an opportunity you will generally be very busy.

The devil don't want a much better ox to plow with than the Christian who grumbles.

If the devil can get a man to worship himself he don't care how much he goes to church.

When man discovers what he is he is miserable, but when he discovers what God is he is happy.

The man who does little things for God with fidelity will be given the power to do great ones.

When one dose of religion has lasted a man forty-seven years, it is well to keep an eye on him in business matters.

If you are ashamed of your religion, you can write it down for a fact that you ought to be, for you've got the wrong kind.

If you don't live your religion at home, it won't do your wife and children much good to hear you talk about it in prayer meeting.

DEMI-NEWSBY FOREIGN NOTES.

RUSSIAN peasants will be prohibited by law shortly from selling or mortgaging their lands.

A DISPATCH from Zanzibar says the conclusion of a treaty with the prominent chiefs by which the latter agree to abolish slavery at Vitu is officially announced.

AN association has been established in London to send colonies of poor Jews to Palestine. So many are going to Jerusalem that it is one of the most rapidly growing cities in the world.

GAMBLING at Monte Carlo still flourishes. The capital stock of its great playhouse is six million of dollars, and the stockholders have just received a dividend of thirty-two per cent. for the past year.

A CURIOUS epidemic has appeared among the natives of Griqualand. If alarmed by any sudden noise, such as a whistle or shout, the natives will start violently, contract their features and stiffen their limbs, jump about and waltz like dervishes.

A SENSATION has been caused in the German foreign office by a suit brought by a broker named Jacobsohn against a barrister named Neuern for 2,000 marks' commission for securing Neuern a position in the service. Neuern has been dismissed on account of the scandal.

IN Germany experiments have recently been made with small locomotives for towing heavy boats on canals. Instead, however, of attaching the rope to the locomotive it is attached to a heavy towing car, which is drawn by the locomotive. The plan is said to be satisfactory.

THE Hindoos are about to adopt a modern notion in forming a "Hindoo tourists party" for visiting Europe, America, China, Japan and the states. "The Hindoo noblemen and gentlemen" who are invited to join the party are assured that they will be able to travel without violation of caste rules.

JAPAN had a plethora of epidemics during 1890. Influenza reached her shores in February. Cholera followed with over 31,000 deaths. Dysentery affected 38,873 persons, with 7,263 deaths, a ratio of 18 94 per cent. Typhoid fever occurred 22,784 times, with 5,369 deaths, 23.56 per cent.

LEIPSIC is to have an international exposition in the summer of 1892 for the apparatus and methods of the Red Cross societies, the most improved means of feeding and clothing soldiers, hygiene, and popular cooking. It will be in the Crystal palace, a structure of about twice the size of Madison Square garden.

THE SEASON'S SMILES.

MRS. DEFLAT—"What is that horrid smell?" Mr. DeFlat—"I judge from the odor that it's one of those odorless oil stoves."

PASSENGER—"Conductor, why don't you call out the stations plainer?" Conductor—"Say, this road don't hire me for no elocutionist! See?"

LITTLE EDITH—"Mamma, what's a poorhouse?" Mamma—"A poorhouse, Edith, is an imaginary place of papa's, where he intends residing next week."

DR. KILLEM—"Did the medicine I sent to your husband cause him to rest easy?" Mrs. Widderweeds (sadly)—"Yes; unless the medical students have disturbed him."

"THIS is regular nightmare weather," said Jorum yesterday. "How do you make that out?" asked Quorum. "Why, it's equine-nocial," answered Jorum with a horse laugh.

WINKLE—"I understand that the lady next to you is a fine musician." Binkle—"Eh?" Winkle—"They say she composes." Binkle—"Great Cæsar, no! She discomposes everybody in the flat."

A SOLICITOUS Daughter.—Old gentleman at head of stairs—"Sally, ain't it time to go to bed?" Sally—"Yes, father dear; don't put it off another minute. Your health, you know, is not robust."

CUMSO—"Are you cutting the sensation articles out of that paper before taking it home to your wife and daughters?" Banks (handling the shears): "No; I'm cutting out the millinery advertisements."

BROWN—"And I saw there a curious affair. Really, I can't describe it. It hadn't the likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth." Fogg—"Oh, I see. It was a prize cup won in some yacht race."

AFTER the earthquake at Ischia, they disinterred an old woman, unharmed. "God bless you!" she cried, as they helped her out; "but for pity's sake," she added, impetuously, "dig a little deeper and save my—" "What! Is there anyone else alive here?" they inquired, anxiously. "My hen!" continued the old dame.

FREAKS OF NATURE.

A FOUR-WINGED duck was hatched a short time ago at Bar Harbor, Me.

A SHREVEPORT (La.) beet of the blood-red variety weighs forty-six pounds. It grew on Silver Lake soil.

A FLOWING well from which a strong current of cold air constantly gushes is the latest curiosity near Greensburg, La.

A KINGSTON (N. Y.) man has an egg 6½ inches round, 8¾ inches long and weighing 4¼ ounces, which he claims was laid by a hen which he owns.

AN extraordinarily large Polar bear, the fur of which is a bright pink color, has been captured in northern Siberia. The animal will be sent as a present to the czar.

THE Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution has the hardihood to publish this item: "Capt. A. C. Bell, of Americus, says he has a turnip in his garden measuring seven feet across and with a top so high and strong that the small boys climb it. A pair of mules will have to be used to pull it up."

A FARMER of Carrollton, Ga., while cutting wood the other day, found something unexpected in a perfectly sound piece of wood. He was cutting when three live frogs jumped out. He proceeded to examine the wood, but found no decay place, no knot near the residence of the frogs.

THERE are about 12,000 nickel-in-the-slot machines in use in this country and they comprise fifty varieties.

A PRINTER put a penny in the slot of a machine intended to prove a man's striking power, and then punched the pad offered to receive the blow. The spring didn't work, his wrist was broken, and the jury gave him $50.

THE English postal authorities have introduced nickel-in-the-slot machines for the sale of postage stamps. The town council of Iverness has just given permission for the erection of the first machines.

BOOMING THE FAIR

It Will be Greater Than the Paris Exposition.

EVERY COUNTRY INTERESTED

The Old World Preparing for a Wonderful Display at Chicago.

Assurances Complete for One of the Greatest Exhibitions Ever Seen—Reports Coming in to the Bureau of American Republics—Guatemala to Send Its National Band of Two Hundred Pieces.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago bids fair to be the greatest exhibition ever held in any country; greater even than the Paris exposition of 1889.

Advices already received at the Bureau of American Republics here attest a remarkable and astonishing interest in the exposition on the part, not only of the South American republics, but continental Europe and China and Japan as well. Every country on this continent south of the United States from Mexico to the Argentine Republic has been heard from and all are making great preparations to place exhibits at Chicago.

In Europe, Great Britain has already appointed a commission, with the Prince of Wales at the head of it, to prepare a wonderful exhibit for the fair. The Russian government has set apart two millions and a half, and leading merchants and manufacturers of St. Petersburg and Moscow are pledged for so much more, for the purpose of sending here the greatest, most diversified and novel exhibit ever before collected by a single government. Germany will be present with a wonderful display, and France has given assurance of bringing a great exhibit.

On this continent Mexico will probably lead her sister republics in size and diversity of display and has appropriated $1,000,000 to do so. Mexico, Colombia, Guatemala, Salvador and Costa Rica will erect their own buildings at the Fair, and Barbadoes, Jamaica, and the other British West India islands propose to place their exhibit in a typical building, which they will erect, to be called the "West Indian Court."

Altogether, and already, although the opening of the Exposition is two years hence, the assurances are complete for one of the greatest exhibitions the world has ever seen.

Will Send Its Band to Chicago.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Lieut. George P. Scriven, special commissioner of the World's Columbian Exposition to Central America, reports that the government of Guatemala will send its national band to Chicago during the exposition. This band is the third largest in the world, that of Austria being first and the Mexican National band second. It is proposed to increase the number of instruments to 200, when it will be larger than the Mexican band. The government of Guatemala has also arranged as a feature of its representation at Chicago to send a group of natives who will live on the exposition grounds as they live at home, carry on their industries, bring their materials from Guatemala with them and give exhibitions of their music, games, etc.

COLORADO ENTHUSIASTIC.

A Large Delegation from Denver Meet the President at Glenwood Springs.

LEADVILLE, Col., May 11.—The Presidential train arrived this forenoon and was met by a large delegation of citizens.

The President spent Sunday at Glenwood Springs, where delegations from Denver, including the Governor and ex-Senators Hill and Tabor, met the party and will escort it to Denver. The President was presented with a large plate of Colorado silver, with a shield of gold in the centre, beautifully engraved, tendering him the freedom of the city of Glenwood Springs. The citizens of Aspen presented him with a souvenir of native metals and ores bearing the words: "Free coinage and honest money."

A delegation of Leadville ladies presented Mrs. Harrison and the other ladies of the party with a souvenir spoon of Colorado silver.

OUR NEW NAVY CRIPPLED.

The Full Limit of Recruits Allowed by Law Reached.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 11.—Orders are expected from the Secretary of the Navy in a few days directing a reduction in the crew complements of all of the new vessels of the navy. The cause of this order is the inability of the Navy Department to man the several war ships about to go into commission.

Among the number are the Lancaster, ordered as flagship of the American squadron in Asiatic waters; the gunboat Concord, and armored turret ship Miantonomoh. The public interests demand that these ships be at once placed in a condition ready for service. All they now need is sufficient men to work the batteries. In order to obtain this number, it has become imperative to drain from the crews of vessels already in the service.

The law allows the navy 8,250 men, of which number 750 are apprentices. During the past six years over 25 new war ships have been designed, built or are in process of construction. Many of the old vessels are in service still and continue to demand large crews. There is no difficulty of obtaining men if the law will but admit of their being enlisted. The number allowed is now on duty almost to a man, and recruits, many of them trained men-of-war's men, are daily being refused enlistment, owing to the limit of 8,250 having been reached.

PROGRESS OF PLANTING.

The Area Already Seeded Less Than the Average of a Series of Years.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The report of the Department of Agriculture for May relates to the progress of planting.

The proportion of the proposed breadth already planted on the first of May was 77.5 per cent., which is less than the average of a series of years.

Many correspondents report planting one or two weeks late. It is especially late in North Carolina and Tennessee; fully one-third of the area yet to be seeded north of the Gulf States. From Georgia west to Texas the State averages vary only two or three per cent.

The figures are as follows: Virginia, 40 per cent.; North Carolina, 63; South Carolina, 78; Georgia, 80; Florida, 92; Alabama, 80; Mississippi, 77; Louisiana, 78; Texas, 79; Arkansas, 76; Tennessee, 71.

The delay is due, in all sections of the cotton belt, to excessive rainfall in February and March, which made early plowing impracticable, and to a very general deficiency in April, rendering the soil dry and cloddy, and hindering germination. The seed bed, as a rule, has been imperfectly prepared, and is in relatively poor condition.

Reporters intimate, as a result of the unfavorable spring, that a reduction of acreage may be expected. This may depend somewhat on the opportunity for completing the area during this month, and the prospective profits of a large breadth of cotton.

DISCOVERED IN TIME.

A Sheriff Baffles the Attempt of a Noted Criminal to Escape From Jail.

WOODSTOCK, Vt., May 11.—A new sensation has been added to the already long criminal career of Robert Fitton, well known throughout the New England States and the eastern part of New York State for his open defiance of law and order.

He had been confined in the jail in this place for some time and a few days ago managed to effect an exchange of cells with another prisoner. In his new quarters was a window two by three feet square made secure by double bars of great strength. Sheriff Taylor noticed that a curtain had been put up, which fact aroused his suspicions and Fitton's cell was examined. The bars had been sawed off and a section of the inner grating had been removed, requiring but fifteen minutes more work to enable Fitton to regain his liberty. Since this discovery he has been locked in the dungeon at night.

ONLY ONE SURVIVOR.

A Steamer Founders With Fifty-five Colonists on Board.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 11.—A special from Tacoma, Wash., says: The steamer Lucy Lowe has foundered on the Straits of Tuan de Fuca with fifty-five colonists on board.

The party, numbering fifty-six, left Tacoma to settle on land near the mouth of the Guestashes river, but were beaten back by high seas and became short of food.

John N. Grant, of Tacoma, the only survivor, returned here yesterday. He believes the entire party has been lost. A search party is being fitted out.

Shot and Killed Her Husband.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Last Friday Alfred Towsley was arrested at Austin, a suburb of Chicago, on a charge of disorderly conduct and locked up in the police station. Yesterday Mrs. Towsley, his wife, called on him at the station and after a brief conversation with him, drew a revolver and fired twice at him, both shots taking effect in the man's heart and instantly killing him. The cause of the shooting was Towsley's inhuman attempts to criminally assault his 13-year-old stepdaughter, Edna Towsley. Mrs. Towsley made no effort to escape and was immediately placed under arrest.

Murdered by Her Drunken Husband.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 11.—James Stewart, of Chartiersborough, murdered his wife Mary, aged 30, Saturday night. Stewart came home drunk at supper time. He terrified his wife with curses, and when she tried to escape threw a burning lamp at her. The lamp struck her on the breast, exploding and burning the woman so severely that she died yesterday morning after a night of awful agony. Stewart was brought to Pittsburg and locked up.

Dr. Graves Reported Under Arrest.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 11.—It is said that Dr. T. Thatcher Graves went to Denver, not for the purpose of testifying before the grand jury in the case of Josephine A. Barnaby, but to be within the jurisdiction of the Colorado authorities. He is tacitly under arrest, and, if the evidence now in hand can be relied on, Dr. Graves has confessed to having sent the mysterious bottle to Denver.

Killed Himself in a Cell.

STAMFORD, May 11.—James Sutton, a workman, arrested for disorderly conduct, shot himself dead in his cell with a pistol which the officer who searched him failed to find. Despondency over his wife's recent death unsettled his mind.

TOWNS ENDANGERED

Forest Fires in Pennsylvania and Michigan.

ENTIRE COUNTIES LAID WASTE.

The Village of West Kane, Pa., Threatened With Destruction.

Millions of Feet of Lumber Destroyed—Gas and Oil Wells Ruined—Gangs of Men Fighting the Flames—People Standing Up to Their Necks in Water to Escape the Heat.

KANE, Pa., May 11.—Since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a destructive forest fire has been eating its way through the Kane oil fields, destroying the best part of the northern half of the producing territory.

C. W. Schofield and Koster's property on lot 335 is entirely consumed. Stettheimer & Co. on the Brown lease lose 16 rigs. Two-thirds of J. P. Chappeau's lease, owned by Preston and others, are in ashes.

The fire continues with unabated fury, advancing northeasterly on lots 284, 385, 420 and 421.

Another furious fire is advancing on Porter pump station from the south and northwest. Hundreds of men are in different parts of the field fighting the fire. A high wind makes their efforts futile.

Thirty Million Feet of Lumber Burned.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 11.—Advices received from Keating Summit, Pa., state that the most disastrous forest fire known for 50 years is raging within a short distance of Mustin in the immense timber tract of J. C. & M. W. Goodyear, of this city. Thirty million feet of lumber and 30 cords of bark were burned within 10 miles of the railroad track. Telegraph and telephone service is badly crippled, and it is impossible to get details.

Forest Fires in the Oil Region.

OIL CITY, Pa., May 11.—Four gas wells, eight oil wells, several tanks and about five square miles of forest have up to this morning been burned by forest fires, which started Saturday morning between Coal Hill and President and broke out afresh yesterday. Gangs of men from the surrounding counties have been sent to fight the fire. No estimate of the loss yet even approximated.

SWEPT BY FLAMES.

The Lower Peninsula of Michigan Ablaze With Forest Fires.

Detroit, May 11.—A fire is raging in the upper central counties of the Lower Peninsula, the like of which has never been known. The line of flames reaches almost without a break from Mason county, on Lake Michigan, to Iosco county, on Lake Huron, with the forests of Lake Osceola, Clare, Gladwin, Ogemaw and Alcona, where General Alger owns large interests, all ablaze.

Another fire of scarcely less magnitude exists in the Upper Peninsula. The incline of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroad through Marquette, Houghton, Baraga and Ontanagon counties is in the path of the flames. Two railroad bridges have already gone on that line, and the telegraph lines are in bad shape.

Fears are entertained that the fire will reach the town of Meredith in Clay County. Tait township in Iosco County is also in danger. Last night the flames swept into Oscoon and burned out $200,000 worth of property. Two houses and 7,000,000 feet of lumber were burned.

A report from Bear Lake states that the houses there were set on fire by sparks blowing in from the forest fires fully a half mile away, and the people were driven into the lake for protection, standing up to their necks in water to escape the fierce heat.

Great apprehension is felt at Ausable. An appeal for help has been sent to Alpena. It is feared that the city will be swept away if the wind shifts. Millions of acres of pine are burning. Additional reports now coming in show that a widespread district is devastated.

NOT A BAD FAILURE.

The Comptroller Speaks Well of the Spring Garden Bank.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Comptroller Lacey says that he regards the failure of the Spring Garden National Bank of Philadelphia as "an honest failure and not a bad one."

He had heard, he said, nothing to shake his confidence in the stability of the Girard National Bank of Philadelphia, which he regarded as one of the most substantial banks in that city.

Bishop-Elect Brooks' Successor.

BOSTON, May 11.—The name of Canon Farrar, of London, is prominent as the successor at Trinity Church of Phillips Brooks, just elected Bishop of the Massachusetts Diocese. Other names have been suggested, such as Dr. Arthur Brooks, Dr. John Brooks and the Rev. Mr. McVicker, of Philadelphia, but no one as yet can generely be said to be foremost, unless it be Canon Farrar.

A TALK WITH MR. GOMPERS

What He Says About the Eight-Hour Movement and the Strikers.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 11.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, is now in this city. He comes to Pittsburg for the purpose of conferring with the officials in charge of the building trades strike. He said:

"The eight-hour movement is proceeding admirably."

"How many members of the Federation of Labor are on strike throughout the country?"

"The estimate I made one week ago was 130,000. Since then several of the strikes have been settled and the men are back at work. To-day the number is not over 90,000, and I think 80,000 would be nearer the correct number. This number includes the mine and coke workers of the Connellsville region. There are in the Federation of Labor 750,000 men, so that the total number of strikers in the different parts of the country is small in comparison with the membership of the organization. With only 80,000 or something more than one-tenth out of work, so far as financial support is concerned, each strike might continue almost constantly."

President Gompers will go from here to Beaver Falls, Pa., and from there to other Western points.

THE SUSPENDED MINISTERS.

They Will Appeal to the General Assembly of the Church.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—The right of a Covenanter to vote will again be tested. The seven suspended ministers have by no means given up the fight. Notices have been sent out that the General Assembly of the Reformed Presbyterian Church will be held on May 28 at the Eight Street Church, the Rev. David McAllister, pastor. Delegates will be present from every part of the United States, and to these will the suspended ministers appeal from the decree of the Presbytery in Pittsburg.

In several of the Western congregations the feeling is said to be strongly in favor of the right to vote, as they realize that it is through the ballot that they can best secure an amendment to the constitution to have God recognized in it. There will probably be a strong minority to support the suspended ministers and the result will be a hot fight.

It is certain that none of the framers of the east-end platform have recanted and they are preparing fervid and eloquent addresses to move the General Assembly in their favor.

WRECKED BY FIRE.

Leggett's Big Grocery House in New York Badly Damaged.

NEW YORK, May 11.—A most disastrous fire visited the wholesale grocery house of Francis H. Leggett & Co. at the junction of Varick and Franklin streets and West Broadway last evening.

After three hours of hard work the fire was gotten under control, but the immense stock of groceries in the building was almost a complete wreck and the building was badly damaged.

The damage to the stock is estimated at $400,000, while the building was damaged to the extent of $30,000. The stock was insured for $500,000.

Death of Hon. Peter Ward.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 11.—Hon. Peter Ward died at his home in this city yesterday after a long illness. He had an operation performed for cancer at the base of the tongue last fall, and he never fully recovered from the shock. He was a noted railroad contractor. Politically he was a Democrat, and as such was elected mayor of the city and State Senator for the Thirteenth District, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Henry R. Low. He leaves a family of adult children. Mr. Ward was 63 years old.

Alarming Increase of Typhoid Fever.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Seventy deaths from typhoid fever was the record for the past week as against 17 for the corresponding week of last year. At the County Hospital 14 typhoid fever patients were received yesterday, making the total number afflicted with the disease now at that institution 155. It is impossible to estimate the number of cases in private families, but physicians agree that the disease is increasing to an alarming extent and that one of the main causes is the bad condition of the drinking water.

Senator Quay's Successor.

PITTSBURG, May 11.—A story is published here to the effect that ex-Congressman Bayne of Allegheny City will be a candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Quay, when the latter's term expires, and with the Senator's support. Ex-Congressman Bayne will leave on a two-years' tour of Europe in a couple of weeks, the object of which is said to be principally to avoid any factional fights that might arise in the meantime.

The Colliery Fire Still Burning.

LANSFORD, Pa., May 11.—All efforts made to smother the fire in the Lehigh Coal Company's No. 4 colliery at Summit Hill have proved unavailing. It is believed that the missing miner, Hugh Sharpe, has perished. Preparations were made to flood the mine, but this means of extinguishing the fire will only be resorted to after all others fail.

The Omaha Sails Away.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 11.—The U. S. S. Omaha left the harbor yesterday. Her commander received numerous cipher dispatches from the Navy Department. It is understood that these contained instructions to cruise around the Coronado and the San Clemente Islands and find out, if possible, where the Robert and Minnie met the Itata.

Coke Operators Active.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 11.—The coke operators are very active, which gives rise to the opinion that some new works will be started at once. General Managers Lynch and Brennan were in conference all day, and it is said that they will endeavor to break the strike effectually this week. New men will probably be the weapons.

A BATTLE OF BRAINS

The Dr. Briggs Heresy Case Called Up To-Day.

TWO REPORTS TO BE SUBMITTED.

The Theological World Deeply Interested in the Dispute.

It is Said that the Real Question is About Revision of the Creed—Dr. Briggs Describes Dr. Shedd as an Iceberg in Flames Who Would Accuse Even Calvin—Trying to Avert a Trial.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The celebrated case of Dr. Briggs will come before the New York Presbytery, which meets this afternoon, and the views of that eminent scholar will be discussed and passed upon.

The committee which was appointed to consider Dr. Briggs' inaugural address at Union Theological Seminary last January will present its report and its recommendation. The Presbytery will have to vote on the adoption and disposition of the report, and this will bring up the whole matter for review and discussion.

The majority report will be averse to Dr. Briggs and will recommend that he be put on trial for the sentiments expressed in the address. The minority, headed by Dr. McIlvaine, will recommend that no action be taken.

In the main the opposition to Dr. Briggs has come from the anti-revisionists. They will probably be supported by some of the more conservative revisionists. The conservatives reckon very much on the support of the elders, the lay members. They have impressed, or tried to impress, on these lay members that Dr. Briggs wants to destroy the Bible.

One of Dr. Briggs' friends, a gentleman of high authority in the Presbyterian Church and familiar with the whole controversy, says the real dispute is about revision of the creed, not about Dr. Briggs.

Dr. Briggs will be present at the meeting of the Presbytery, and he and his friends will do all in their power to avert a new trial. This morning Dr. Briggs issued a pamphlet describing Dr. Shedd "as an iceberg in flames, who would accuse even Calvin, and who thinks too much of damnation and too little of redemption of souls."

AN EXCITING SERMON.

The Rev. Father Tracey Makes Threat From the Altar.

BURLINGTON, N. J., May 11.—There was a scene in St. Paul's Catholic Church in this city yesterday. It was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. Father Tracey, the pastor of the church. The priest has not been on good terms with some members of his flock for many months, and in the course of his anniversary address became highly excited.

"I will grind to the dust," he shouted, "the rotten hearted devils of the congregation and hold up their wretched characters to the light of day. While I am not as great a man as Moses I have just as much authority over my people."

The outburst was a surprise to many in the audience. At the priest continued his tirade many men and women arose and left the church.

The sermon is the talk of the town.

CLEVELAND IN BUFFALO.

The Ex-President is Visiting His Old Home.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 11.—Ex-President Cleveland arrived here this morning from New York and will be the guest of the German Young Men's Association, which to-day and to-morrow celebrates its semi-centennial anniversary.

A committee met the ex-President and escorted him to the Hotel Iroquois. During the afternoon he will visit personal friends and relatives.

Early in the evening he will be escorted to Music Hall, where he will deliver an address at the opening exercises of the German Young Men's Association. Then he will return to the Iroquois, where at 10 o'clock a banquet will be given in his honor.

TROUBLE IN BELGIUM.

Hundreds of Thousands Attend the Suffrage Meetings in the Large Cities.

LONDON, May 11.—Thirty-eight suffrage meetings were held yesterday in Brussels and other cities of Belgium, and the attendance numbered hundreds of thousands. Many of the speeches made were of the most violent character, the speakers urging that the working people must at any hazard assert their right to a share in the government.

The upper classes were warned that their oligarchy was approaching a close, and that nothing short of universal suffrage, promptly granted, would be likely to avert a revolution.

A Socialist orator in Brussels asserted that the day was not far distant when royalty would be brought down as it had been brought down by the French revolution, and that the bayonets employed to prop up the throne would be turned against those who sat on the throne. These utterances were enthusiastically applauded.

At Ghent, where the suffrage agitation has heretofore been comparatively undemonstrative, the people assembled in thousands, and in such a threatening manner as to call for the interference of military and police to prevent rioting. In Antwerp, Ghent, Liege and Charleroi, as well as Brussels, the garrisons were kept ready for instant service and the police were reinforced by gendarmes.

Two Prisoners Escape.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 11.—Two prisoners, James Phenix, alias "Blood and Thunder," and Micael Conway escaped from the county jail here Saturday night, and although the police are scouring the country for the men they have not yet been captured.

NEW ORLEANS IS ANGRY.

The Mayor Will Ask that Italian Consul Corte be Recalled.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—M. Corte, the Italian Consul in this city, addressed a communication to W. H. Chaffee, chairman of the grand jury, charging, among other things, "that an extra judicial body appointed by the mayor premeditated from the beginning the killing of the prisoners; that the same body assembled on the night of the 13th of March to take, in cold blood, the necessary steps to kill for political purposes defenseless but fearful adversaries," etc.

The above statement has given to the mayor of the city the greatest possible offense. The extra judicial body to which reference is made in the Consul's communication is none other than the committee of fifty appointed by the mayor immediately after the killing of Chief Hennessy to investigate the matter and bring the guilty parties to justice. That it should be characterized as a murderous body for political purposes, and so created by the mayor of the city, has occasioned the greatest indignation in municipal circles.

One of the results of the letter has been that the committee of fifty has already commenced the preparation of a report which will give in detail its connection with the investigation, the work accomplished and the cause of its appointment. This report is to be submitted to the mayor and council at their meeting to-morrow night, and on the basis of this report the mayor will take the necessary action leading to the recall of the Italian Consul at this port.

ORDERS FROM WASHINGTON.

Sailing Instructions Forwarded to the Cutters Rush and Bear.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The sailing instructions of the revenue cutters Rush and Bear have been mailed from the Treasury Department to San Francisco.

The special instructions to agent Stanley Brown and Williams were mailed to Mr. Williams at his home in Ohio on Wednesday last.

Mr. Williams, who sails by the Rush, has, it is said at the Treasury Department, already left for San Francisco, and will arrive there in time to leave on the Rush on Thursday the 14th inst. Unless there is some unexpected delay the mailed sailing instructions will also arrive Thursday morning.

Supplementary instructions, which cannot now be determined on, but which may assume shape after the receipt of certain despatches from the British Government, which are awaited, will be telegraphed from Washington by Thursday in case they can be accumulated in time. Otherwise the Rush will touch at Portland, Oregon, or Seattle, Wash., and receive the supplementary orders.

So far Secretary Foster declines to divulge the nature of either the sailing or other instructions.

More Trouble for Chili.

BUENOS AYRES, May 11.—Chilian troops have violated the neutrality of the territory of the Argentine Republic by invading the province of San Juan de la Fronters. An official investigation is being made.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Careful estimates place the damage by frost to the strawberry crop at Dighton, Mass., at $25,000.

William J. Cull, superintendent of the Albany (N. Y.) fire alarm system, is dead at the age of 50, of pneumonia.

Director of the Mint Leech sees nothing to alarm him in the flow of gold from the United States to Europe.

Louis Latte has been arrested at Kansas City and has confessed to having robbed the mails for a period of five years.

A cheese exchange has been organized at Jamestown, N. Y., for the purpose of centralizing the cheese of Western New York.

The timber surrounding Halifax, N. S., is burning in at least a dozen different places. Great damage will undoubtedly ensue.

Adolph Woolner, the vice-president of the Whiskey Trust, is dead at his home in Peoria, Ill., after an illness of about ten days, with inflammation of the bowels.

The Pacific express jumped the track near Sunbury, Ont., A man named McAlpin was killed and four others injured. Two cars were burned.

The German Reichstag has by a vote of 146 to 144 accepted the proposition of the Centrist party, which involves the gradual extinction of the sugar bounties.

Frank P. McClough has bought the World's Museum in Boston and will conduct the house in the future. Nothing has been learned of the missing ex-manager, Frank J. Pilling.

A jury was secured in the Garrison murder case at Wheeling, W. Va. Over five hundred talesmen have been examined, and it has cost over $8,000 to secure the twelve men to try the case.

Forest fires are causing great havoc in Michigan. Millions of acres are in flames. Many towns are in great danger. Railroad bridges and telegraph poles have been burned. The center of the State and upper peninsula are burning.

A despatch to the London "Chronicle" from Adelaide, Australia, says that Baron Hirsch's scheme of sending Jews there is much commented on. The colonists are strongly hostile to an influx of Russian Jews.

Several negroes attempted to poison the family of Capt. Henry Ballentine near Caledonia, Miss., by putting arsenic in the drinking water. The plot was discovered and the negroes fled. They were captured, however, and four of them were lynched after making a confession.

Action of the Stone Cutters' Assembly.

HAVERHILL, Mass., May 11.—The Stone Cutters' Assembly has decided not to order their men out of the factory of Wallace, Elliott & Co. in support of the International Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. It was also voted to petition employers to grant a Saturday half-holiday from June 1 to October 1 with full pay.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, Managing Editor.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Always ahead—Peck.

—90 in the shade, on the downtown streets, to-day.

—Both city and borough Councils are to meet to-night.

—The Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C A. will meet to-night.

—A shad was recently caught in the Raritan River at New Brunswick, weighing 8½ pounds.

—Wetumpka Commandery, Knights of Honor, will meet in Wetumpka lodge rooms this evening.

—The Plainfield roads were crowded with bicyclists yesterday, from Brooklyn, New York and Newark.

—The Young People's League of the First Baptist church will hold their monthly sociable to-morrow evening.

—A Lodge of the Knights of Honor will be instituted in Somerville, Wednesday evening, in which ceremony prominent Plainfield Knights will take part.

—The First Baptists are trying to decide between Lake Hopatcong and Asbury Park as the mecca of their excursion train this year. Hopatcong will probably be selected.

—A North Plainfield lad by the name of Graves killed a black snake more than four feet long, on the mountains, yesterday, and displayed the body to an admiring crowd of people.

—Edsall announces in his advertisement to-day that there has recently been a great reduction in the price of zephyr ginghams. He is offering special bargains in these goods, in fine styles.

—Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F. meet to-night. A lodge from Orange will pay them a visit, and Plainfield Lodge will entertain them in their banqueting room after the lodge adjourns.

—Some of the lumber sheds at Boice's coal yard were afire twice Saturday night, both times from locomotive sparks. Boys put out the first incipient blaze, and night-watchman Dunavan the second.

—The Gormans have in times past given some of the best minstrel shows ever seen in Plainfield, and that of this week Wednesday night at Music Hall will doubtless be enjoyed by a deservedly large audience.

—Ex-policeman Robert Randolph is lying ill of pneumonia at his home, 74 East Third street. His wife lies by his side seriously sick from a relapse of the grip. They are worthy objects of the charity of Plainfield's kind people.

—To smokers desiring a good cigar, by the box or half box, at wholesale prices, samples will cheerfully be shown by W. L. Titsworth, of 39 East Fifth street, whose card appears in the advertising columns of THE PRESS to-day.

—The small boy has few swimming-holes in this vicinity, nowadays. What good places there used to be are now guarded jealously by men with guns and dogs. All the people would hail with delight the advent of free baths, with a generous swimming-pool, in Plainfield. The baths would be self-supporting.

—On Friday evening of this week at eight o'clock, the third anniversary of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Warren Union Mission will be celebrated in the chapel. The programme will consist of music, reports of different committees, and an address, followed by a general social time. Invitations have been sent to twelve societies to be present on this occasion.

—Yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Holy Cross was given the first elaborate musical rendering of the Second Service in a proposed series of such to be given at least monthly, or as may be announced. There was a large congregation present. The music was a credit to the choir master, W. H. Miner, as well as to the members of the choir, who acquitted themselves admirably.

Another Death From Scarlet Fever.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McCarthy, who lost a child aged two years and seven months Friday, lost another, a daughter, Jennie B., aged three years and seven months, this morning, of the same disease, malignant scarlet fever. The attack which proved fatal to Jennie was the worst type of the disease. She was ill only 24 hours, and on Saturday afternoon visited Charlie's new-made grave and said, "There lies my little brother".

"Church row", the block on New street between Front and Second streets, where several of the scarlet fever patients have been housed, has been placed under quarantine by the Board of Health, and policemen keep people from passing through.

The Dwarfs Win Two Games.

The Dwarfs defeated the Young Songsters Saturday morning by the score of 17 to 15. The Dwarfs were: G. Smith, p; J. Feytal, c; Kirkner, 1b; C. Smith, 2b; Serrell, 3b; Baker, ss; Dorman, lf; S. Smith, cf; Crane, rf.

The Songsters were: Albertis, p; C. Rice, c; Freeman, 1b; J. Bartindale, 2b; McClure, 3b; F. Rice, lf; W. Bartindale, cf; Langdon, ss; Davis, rf.

In the afternoon the Dwarfs defeated the Resolutes by the score of 32 to 23.

ELEVEN WELL-FOUGHT INNINGS.

But It Was the Crescents' Game, All the Way Through.

Thirteen months ago to-morrow the Star Athletic base-ball team of Newark defeated the team of the Plainfield Crescent League by the score of 4 to 3, in a close and exciting twelve-inning game. They came within an ace of repeating that record last Saturday, but the Crescents, after getting into a very bad hole, pulled themselves together and got out of the depths as gracefully as they had tumbled in.

The first run of the game was made by the Stars in the second inning, on a base on balls and an error. There was one man out when Yahn stepped to the bat, made two strikes, and got to his base on balls. He got to second while Nealis was being put out at first; and when Lufbery let a daisy-cutter from Cahall's bat go through his legs Yahn scored.

In the fourth inning it looked as though the Plainfielders were going to make a run, for after McIndoe had made a long foul to left field that came very near being a fair hit he was struck by a hot ball in the side and went over to have the first base man rub him down. He made a magnificent slide to second, just escaping being put out, and reached third on Hammill's single. He tried for home, and would have been out had not Martin, who was coaching, caught him bodily in his arms and thrown him back to third. When Gregg made the second man out on a little fly, and it looked as though Jones was going to strike out at the plate, McIndoe tried hard to score on a ball that passed the pitcher. The attempt was a grand one, but it failed.

The Crescents had a chance in the fifth inning to tie the score of 1 to 0 by a genuinely earned run, but a bad break in base running lost it.

Gregg's fine running catch of Costigan's long hit brought the Plainfielders in from the field, with Jones at the bat. Freddy bunted the ball, which rolled along the foul line all the way to third base. Shortstop Moran, one of the Metropolitans, was going to pick the ball up as Freddy started for first, but by good judgment let it roll, and the cry of foul brought Freddy back. The "gentle Jones" then gave the ball a terrific whack to left field, and reached second base easily. But when Bonner struck out, Freddy got worried and over-anxious, and though Lee was at the bat, with only one man out, he made a rash attempt to steal third when there was no earthly chance of his succeeding, and the third base man stopped him short in his career. Had Jones waited at second he could easily have reached third on Lee's neat daisy-skimmer, which the crowd hailed as a "dandy hit", and would have scored on Simmens's single. Martin struck out, and Lee and Simmens were left on bases. That double-bagger and those two singles were wasted.

In the sixth inning Lufbery, McIndoe and Hammill tried to recover the fortune of their team by hard hitting. Each made a long hit, but centre fielder, left fielder and right fielder, respectively, captured the flies.

In the seventh inning the Stars made their first hit of the game off Hammill, but it did them no good.

Fresh disaster for Plainfield loomed up in the Stars' half of the eighth inning. Nealis got his base on balls, and stole second to the satisfaction of the umpire, though it looked as though he was out. Cahall made three strikes and retired. Costigan made a two-base hit and brought in Nealis. Hetzell made another two-bagger, and Costigan scored the only earned run of the game. Hetzell reached third on a steal, but got no farther, as Lee caught him off base just after catching a fly from O'Connell's bat.

But the score was 3 to 0!

There was a murmur of approval from the Newark contingent, and an intense and anxious silence from the crowd of Plainfielders, as the Crescents walked in to take their innings. As Costigan reached for his mask he whispered "We're having a regular snap!", and Hetzell replied "A regular pudding!" But there was a stern glitter in every Crescent eye, and Simmens got a determined grip on the bat and sent a liner towards third base man. While that worthy was fumbling with the ball Simmens reached first. Martin followed with a safe bunt to the left. While Martin was playing with the base man and keeping the ball down his way, Simmens stole third amid great applause. Then Simmens scored on a passed ball, and the Plainfield crowd went wild with excitement. Martin made an attempt to reach third, but the umpire declared him out, and a storm of hisses was given. Lufbery sent a hot grounder through the hands of the second base man, and reached first. McIndoe waved his bat once through the air and had two other strikes called for waiting. Hammill's hit, which was properly first base man's, was fumbled by the pitcher, and while Hetzell was pitching to Gregg Hammill stole second and Lufbery third. Then Gregg's safe hit brought in two runs, and the spectators couldn't control themselves for the excitement and joy that filled their hearts. Silk hats and derbys were thrown high in the air, and tumultuous huzzas rent the atmosphere. "Gregg's all right", was the cry, and "the quiet Michael" had to take off his cap in response to the repeated salutations. The inning was ended by Jones flying out.

But the score was tied!

A sharp battle for the mastery was that which followed. For two innings and a half not a run was made. Each side retired to the field almost as soon as it went to the bat. When the Crescents' half of the eleventh inning came one of the Crescent League officials said "Freddy, score!" Jones responded by sending a grounder to left field, getting first easily. Bonner's hand was so sore he could hardly hold the bat, and he struck out. Jones got second on a wild pitch, and reached third on Lee's little bit past the pitcher. Lee walked to second while Simmen took his base on balls. Martin made a safe hit, and Jones started for home. Costigan didn't hold the ball thrown to him, and Jones scored on the error.

And so the game ended, and a great game it was. The spectators said they did n't care ever to see a finer one.

CRUSHED BY THE CARS.

Aged Mr. Hill Loses a Foot at the Dunellen Station.

John Hill, father-in-law of ex-Street Commissioner George M. Angleman, met with a shocking accident Saturday evening. He was on his way to visit a son in Somerville, but by mistake boarded a train going no farther than Dunellen. While walking up and down the track at the Dunellen station, awaiting the arrival of a Somerville train, he unguardedly got in the way of a train that was being drilled back and forth, and was thrown to the ground, with a leg across the rail. The wheels crushed his foot into a shapeless pulp, and as soon as he could be conveyed to the Muhlenberg Hospital the injured member was amputated, above the ankle. Dr. Long was the surgeon in attendance. Owing to Mr. Hill's age, which is 82 years, it was feared that the shock of the operation might prove fatal, but Matron Walrod, at whose hands the patient is receiving the best of care, reports very favorably concerning his condition. As soon as possible Mr. Hill will be removed to his home with Mr. Angleman, on Washington street.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Rowland Cox sailed for Europe Saturday.

C. W. McCutchen and family have returned from a western trip.

Miss Gertie Tier of Rahway is visiting her relatives at Tier's Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Blackford, of Grove street, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening. A large number of guests were present, and each brought a handsome gift. The evening was a most enjoyable one.

W. N. Runyon, who is one of the best singers on the Yale Glee Club, and who sang so acceptably at the club's concert in New York city Saturday night, was the guest over Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Runyon of East Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Cassel, of the Ashland House, New York, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Cadmus, of Duer street. They are delighted with Plainfield, which they had never before visited. Mrs. Cassel is an aunt of Mr. Cadmus.

The Rev. and Mrs. Davis, of Shanghai, China, where they have charge of the Seventh-Day Baptist mission, returned to this country Saturday, after a ten years' absence, and are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hubbard, of West Fifth street. Mrs. Davis is a sister of Mrs. Hubbard. The missionaries brought with them a nine-year-old son, Theodore, who was born in China, and who never before saw any countries but China and Japan. He nevertheless speaks English with the nicest precision. Mr. Davis will spend two years here for the benefit of his health.

A Chance for a State Scholarship.

A competitive examination for free scholarship to the New Jersey State College at New Brunswick will be held in the court house, Elizabeth, Saturday, June 6, 1891. The examination will be in arithmetic, including the metric system, through square and cubic root; algebra, through progression; all of plane geometry; English grammar, including spelling; descriptive geography; history, chemistry, and physics. A short English essay will be required. Further information may be obtained of Supt. B Holmes, Elizabeth, N J.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

WOMAN'S WORTHY WORK.

Another Useful Year by a Faithful Band of Laborers.

The tenth anniversary of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church was celebrated last evening. The past year of the society's existence has been its best, and much good work has been accomplished, as the appended reports will show. The pastor and the congregation fully appreciate the society's labors, and in a few brief remarks at the anniversary celebration the Rev. Mr. Schenck highly complimented the society on its past and gave encouraging words for the future.

The Rev. C. H. Poole, Secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church of America, was the speaker of the evening. His address was not in the least dry or tedious, but was intensely interesting from start to finish. Mr. Poole is a pleasant-faced, edifying, fluent speaker. Those who absented themselves for fear of being inflicted with "a dry talk on missions" missed a genuine treat.

The interesting reports which follow show the variety and extent of work done by the society. The first is that of Mrs. C. F. French, secretary, and the second that of Mrs. Jennie S. See, treasurer:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

We meet to-day on the tenth anniversary of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, and it has been a happy work that we have done.

Our meetings have been well attended, and much interest has been manifested in the sewing meetings, which have been generally held at the homes of the ladies, where we have enjoyed many pleasant hours together, while working for others.

We have at present a membership of 47. During the past year we have lost no members, and but one has left us for other fields of work; while six new names have been added to our roll.

By the aid of a regular pledged amount for the chairman of the sewing committee, we were enabled to make up a quantity of new garments during the year.

Last November a box of clothing and other useful articles was sent to Mr. and Mrs. Meulandyke, of Fremont, Michigan, whom we found very grateful recipients of our labors. This box was valued at $275.78, and was considered the best box ever sent from this church.

The Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters also sent a Christmas box for Mr. Meulandyke's Sunday-school, valued at $60. Our collection for domestic missions this year was especially donated for shutters for a parsonage in the west, and a small collection was sent for foreign missions.

Last month (April 28), a barrel of cast-off clothing was sent to the Schofield colored school, at Aiken, South Carolina, valued at $64.

In March, the ladies held a bazar, for the purpose of raising money to help pay the floating debt on the church, and the sum of $439.50 was realized, which was handed to the treasurer, Mr. Gayle.

At our last business meeting it was decided to hold a number of afternoon teas at the homes of the ladies who might so desire, and that an offering of twenty-five cents be expected from each, the proceeds to be used towards paying off the floating debt.

One of these teas has been held, and proved to be both a pleasant and financial success, and it is hoped that at the next a still larger number of the congregation and friends may attend.

Social meetings have been held in the lecture room, which were enjoyed and well attended. The reports from the visiting committees how that a great many of our congregation have been called on by the ladies of the society.

The poor of the church have been cared for, and at Thanksgiving six families were provided with provisions. All our committees have worked faithfully; and now have we not cause for encouragement? Let us all strive for still greater things, and be faithful to Him who saith "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Dead at the Age of Ninety Years.

Mrs. Nancy Hays Scudder, who was born in Westfield in July, 1801, died of pneumonia at her home, 365 West Twentieth street, New York city, Wednesday, and was buried to-day. She was the daughter of William Hays, one of Westfield's original settlers. At the age of 22 she was married to William Scudder, who for years was a well-known contractor and builder in New York city, and went to Newark to live. Mr. Scudder died forty-five years ago. Mrs. Scudder had been confined to her room for the past two years, but her mental faculties were clear until the end. She leaves four children, five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, &c., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.

STEPHEN BURHANS,
Sexton Wayne st. Ref'd church, Jersey City

PLAINFIELD'S PENNANT, PROBABLY.

But Elizabeth, Fourth on the List, Has Won Greatest Number of Games.

Considerable criticism has been made by men who know how to handle the cards, because of the method that has been adopted of determining the winner in the Central New Jersey whist tournament. The critics think that it is hardly fair to give first prize, as is to be done, to the team scoring the highest total of points. They hold that the test of an expert whist player is not how big a score he can run up, but how genuinely scientific a game he can play. Some of the best games in the tournament, they add, have resulted in very low scores, and in thus disregarding the mere number of points being made and devoting themselves entirely to the most skillful manipulation of the cards the really best players in the contest have worked to their own disadvantage, so far as the championship goes, while really proving themselves the most masterly of the contestants. It is therefore urged by those interested in the outcome that the proper thing to do would be to award first prize to the team winning the greatest percentage of games, as is done in other sports. The argument is made that the system of reckoning the standard of the competing clubs by the total number of points scored is as unjust as would be the application of the same method to baseball tournaments. As has already been published in THE PRESS, according to the adopted standard, first prize going to the team securing the greatest total of points, the record now stands:

	Games Played.	Total Points Scored	Average
Crescent League	6	1635	272½
Fanwood Club	4	1080	270
N.J.A.C., Bergen Point	5	1312	262 2-5
Elizabeth Ath. Club	5	1308	261 3-5
Westfield Ath. Club	6	1450	241⅔

According to this, the Plainfield Crescents lead, and have been leading all along. But if, as has been suggested, the standing were determined by the average number of games won, the record to date would be somewhat different, as follows:

	Games Played	Games Won	Games Lost	Percent
Elizabeth	5	4	1	.800
Plainfield	6	4	2	.666
Bergen Point	5	3	2	.600
Fanwood	4	2	2	.500
Westfield	6	0	6	.000

By this schedule Plainfield would drop from first to second place, Bergen Point would remain third, Elizabeth would jump from fourth to first, Fanwood would fall from second to fourth, and Westfield would stay where it is, at the bottom.

The only game Elizabeth has lost has been to the Crescent League. She has defeated Westfield twice, Bergen Point once, and Fanwood once.

Plainfield has beaten Westfield twice, Elizabeth once, and Fanwood once. She has lost two games to Bergen Point.

Bergen Point's victories have been two over Plainfield and one over Westfield. Her defeats have been one to Elizabeth and one to Fanwood. The Fanwood game was the closest and most exciting thus far in the tournament. The score was 289 to 288.

Fanwood has won one game apiece from Westfield and Bergen Point, and has lost to Plainfield and Elizabeth.

Westfield's defeats have been two to Elizabeth, two to Plainfield, one to Fanwood, and one to Bergen Point.

Seven more games will finish the tournament. Fanwood has four to play, Plainfield and Westfield two, Elizabeth and Bergen Point three. Westfield is virtually out of the race. She cannot hope to catch up. The Plainfield team think they can maintain their present average and win the pennant.

Obsequies of George R. Gaddis.

The funeral services of the late George R. Gaddis, of Bound Brook, were largely attended last Saturday. There was sorrow in the face of every resident of that borough over the sad event. The coffin was surrounded with costly and beautiful floral offerings, there being no less than thirteen set pieces of appropriate designs. Prayer was offered and an impressive sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. T. Schock, of the Reformed church of South Bound Brook, after which the Rev. Mr. Davis of the Presbyterian church spoke consoling words to the family and friends in which he eulogized the deceased in fitting and just terms. He described him as the warm-hearted, generous friend, the faithful official, enterprising citizen, loving husband and father, in such a manner as to cause the tears to flow from many eyes.

The remains were conveyed on the 12:40 p. m. train to Somerton, Pa., and were interred with Masonic honors by members of Amwell Lodge, of Lambertville, N. J., of which the deceased was a member. Members of Somerset Lodge, No. 56, Knights of Pythias, attended in a body, and accompanied the remains to their last resting-place, carrying with them the floral offerings.

The circumstances regarding the sudden demise of Mr. Gaddis are explained as follows: He had been to Philadelphia and in his endeavors to catch a train on his return had exerted himself so that he perspired freely, and sitting by an open car window contracted a cold which resulted in pneumonia.

Among those present at the funeral services from Plainfield were Seymour G. Smith, President of the Common Council, ex-Councilman Samuel Wilbur, ex-Postmaster W. L. Force, Thomas H. Keller, John Force and Mrs. James H. Force.

You can't make a new arm with Salvation Oil, but you can cure the bruises with it. 25 cents.

BOWLING ON THE GREEN.

Players Prepare for a Delightful Season on Christian Schepflin's Lawn.

There is only one place in the country where the Scotch game of bowls is played, and played, too, with all the science and skill traditional with the game in the British Isles. That place is the bowling green on the grounds of Christian Schepflin at Dunellen. The green is not quite seventy feet square, and is sodded, rolled and trimmed to a divinely perfect condition. The players arrange themselves in sides, usually of four each, and each man generally has two bowls. These are of lignumvitæ wood. They are not perfectly round, and, to make them still more fascinating things to handle, one side is weighted so that in no way can a bowl be made to take a perfectly straight course. They weigh about five pounds each. A smaller ball that is perfectly round and colored white is placed at one end of the green. This is called the jack. The players stand at the other end of the green and try to send their bowls so that they will stop as near as possible to the jack without knocking it off the green. This would be sufficiently difficult if the bowls could be sent in a straight line, but instead the player has to allow for the curve it will take and the condition of the ground. Some number is decided on beforehand to make a game, either 7, 14, 21 or 31.

The season has just been opened by the Middlesex County Bowling Green Club. The officers for this season, elected at the annual meeting last Saturday, are: H. B. Willis of New Brunswick, President; Fred Weigel, Secretary, and J. B. Betts, J. E. Powelson and M. W. Reider, Executive Committee. Among the members are F. J. Richter of Newark, Dr. H. G. Wagner, C. S. Hoffman and J. B. Betts of Bound Brook, A. W. Pettit, T. B. Boorsaem, L. A. Powelson, B. M. Pettitt, E. D. Christian, Dr. W. E. Linstedt, P. Convery, W. S. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. F. Weigel, P. W. Fick, Dr. C. M. Slack, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Barber of New Brunswick, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Reider and F. P. Haffner of Dunellen. The only rival of the Middlesex is the Dunellen Bowling Green Club, but the Dunellen Club has for three years held the championship medal. There are known to be two or three bowling green clubs in Canada, but they have not yet challenged Dunellen.

After a series of friendly games, Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Schepflin gave their guests a delightful banquet.

Base-Ball Brevities.

"Cyclone" Ryan, who pitched for the Norwich team against the Crescents last year, was in the box for Boston, the other day, and the New Yorks got only 3 hits off him.

Lever, who could never make a hit for the Crescents, is doing great work with three-baggers and home runs on the "Mets".

Umpire Berriman has an ugly felon on his left hand.

Gregg did great fielding, Saturday, and his batting was well timed.

Hammill was n't pounded to any great extent. He struck out more men than did Hetzell.

In the twelve-inning game of April 12, 1890, Livingston for the Crescents struck out 13 men, and Hetzell struck out 12. Two of the Stars' runs were earned. In the game of Aug. 16, 1890, when the Stars were whipped by the score of 2 to 9, both runs were earned, and the Stars played an errorless game. Hetzell then struck out 7 men, and Gregg struck out 5.

The seat of Hetzell's Knickerbockers gave out, during Saturday's game, and he had to put on the pair Weigand used to wear. The people recognized them at once. Some of Hetzell's subsequent plays were just the kind Wiegand used to make. The people recognized them too.

Some say the reason the Stars lost was because of Wiegand's "pants."

Walked Miles Each Day to School.

A contributor to the Trenton Times, signing himself "E. M. H.", pays a glowing tribute, in a column article, to the memory of the late Dr. Abraham Coles of Scotch Plains. The correspondent was a medical student under the venerable physician, and therefore speaks from personal knowledge when he emphasizes the deceased "as a model to young men, and as an example of a spotless life devoted to the highest lines of culture and usefulness".

Continuing, he says:

"A country boy at Scotch Plains, he was used only to the rustic life and hard work of the home, and had nothing to allure him to special study. Yet the elder Dr. Craig of Plainfield has told me how, beginning about the year 1826, he might be seen each day going and returning the three miles or more from Scotch Plains to Plainfield in order to avail himself of a classical school. He seems not to have had either the means or the encouragement to go to college, but had to concentrate on the medical profession, which he early chose.

"It was by his own plodding industry and his habits of precision that he came to be a classical scholar of the highest taste and most thorough exactness.

"Settling in Newark, N. J., notwithstanding his diffidence and reticence, he slowly came to be recognized as a power for good and as a rising man. He could not called ambitious. He loved medicine, he loved authorship, he loved religion, because through these his love of man, his cultured taste, his love of God, could find expression."

Business at Washington.

All who desire to correspond with Senator McPherson on matters of business relating to claims before the department, pensions or other cases, will address him at Washington as usual. Mr. Matthews, the Senator's private secretary, will remain in Washington during the summer and will give close attention to any correspondence sent to Senator McPherson. No one need hesitate to write on legitimate business matters, for the Senator and his secretary take great pains in attending to such things for the people.

An Old Resident Dead.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., May 11.—Cyrus White, one of the oldest and most prominent business men in this city, died last evening from congestion of the brain. He was born in Richford, Vt., in November 1814.

Held Up by Masked Men.

GUTHRIE, O. T., May 11.—The northbound train on the Santa Fe road was held up last night at 11:30 o'clock by five masked men. The gang is supposed to have been the notorious Dalton boys, who have been seen in this neighborhood recently. They boarded the train at Wharton, detached the engine and express car, and then proceeded two miles south and robbed the express car of all the money it contained. It is believed that the amount stolen is not very large. The passengers were not molested.

The Late Minister Swift at Rest.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—The funeral services over the remains of the late John F. Smith, United States minister to Japan, were attended by army and navy officers, Regents of the State University, the Governor's staff and Masonic lodges. Rev. J. Sanders Reed officiated. After the services the remains were escorted to the Masonic cemetery by the Second Brigade, N. G. C., when the members of the California Lodge F. and A. M. conducted the funeral services.

Took His Harem Along.

VIENNA, May 11.—Zia Bey, the new Turkish ambassador at Vienna has had his harem brought to this city. It includes five women supposed to be his wives, together with a numerous array of female and other servants. Just before leaving Constantinople for his post, Zia Bey was presented, as a mark of esteem, with a cast-off wife of the Sultan.

An Incendiary Fire.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., May 11.—Elliott Robey's flouring mill, William Smith's general store and Mattie Rooly's millinery store at Mapleston were burned yesterday. Loss, $11,500; insurance, $6,000. The fire was of incendiary origin.

Gold Excitement in Illinois.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 11.—The gold excitement along the Middle Fork, about eight miles west of this city, has again broken out. T. J. Smith, who lives at Newton, reports that the prospectors had found gold in paying quantities in a four foot seam of sand and gravel on the farm of P. Michael, about a mile east of Newton, a small hamlet eight miles northwest of Danville. Thomas George, a wealthy farmer, had an old Californian and four other men on the Michael farm washing out gold. The largest grains are of the size of peas. The farmers in the Michael neighborhood are wild with excitement.

Another Duel for Rochefort.

PARIS, May 11.—Henri Rochefort, in the Intransigeant, blames Isaac, the sub-prefect at Avernes for ordering the troops to fire on the rioters at Fourmie. A duel will result from the charge.

Pilot Dill Arrested.

SAN DIEGO, Cala., May 11.—Pilot Dill, who took the Itata out of the harbor, has been arrested at San Pedro. Supercargo Burch has also been taken in custody. He was arrested at Los Angeles and says he landed the arms, but declines to say at what point. It is thought this was done at Catalina or San Clement's Island.

Japanese Cadet at Annapolis.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Among the graduates of the Annapolis Naval Academy next month will be Kaga Kazu Nire, a young Japanese, who was educated at Annapolis at the expense of his Government, and will graduate thirtieth in a class of forty-eight.

Fell Thirty Feet and Was Killed.

BUFFALO, May 11.—At Niagara Falls Patrick Donnelly, an employe of tunnel shaft No. 1, was instantly killed while being lowered into the shaft by the bucket cable slipping. He fell thirty feet.

"GOING HOME."

[Suggested by a double family bereavement, at the end of a long and happy married life.]

A weary with the weight of years,
Worn with the forceful waves of time,
A mind a'cloud and wandering feet
Went forth with childlike faith sublime,
To find the haunts of childhood days
Still held by memory's lengthening chain.
These wandering feet went out to search
For old-time hopes and haunts again;
The past anew in thought had come,
Bringing to mind an old-time home.

But, ah, that home had passed away,
Those hopes and haunts were now no more;
While forms and faces of past years
Had reached full soon the "shining shore,"
The weary soul renewed its strength,
Waiting a summons soon to come
From Him who knoweth when to call
His weary pilgrims to His home,
To realms of everlasting day,
Where memories never fade away.

While farewells here and greetings there
Had only then been freshly made,
Another call came to that home
And was most cheerfully obeyed;
A ferryman grim came quickly back
Across death's ceaseless, swelling tide,
To carry forth the one bereft,
For meeting on the other side
The bride of years three-score and more,
At home, together, for evermore.
—John Wentworth, in Good Housekeeping.

A HARD NUT.

The Difference Between Apprehend and Comprehend.

Our Reason Tells Us One Thing and the Senses Flatly Contradict It—Some Facts Which Are Not Always Facts.

The difference between apprehending a thing and comprehending it is a familiar distinction. We apprehend a thing when we seize on to it and feel its reality; we comprehend it when we have encompassed it, defined it, and made it our own. I can comprehend the fact that if the law of gravitation be true, a body at the center of the earth will have no weight, and I can apprehend the fact that at that point there would be no up and no down, but I cannot comprehend it. Our senses, our experience say that in digging through the earth, if this were possible, we would be going down all the way; but our senses and our experience are upset the moment we emerge from the surface on the other side, for we see we should be standing on our heads. We cannot comprehend this puzzle; we cannot adjust our minds to this fact. We are turned around, and we cannot tell how it happened. The man who reaches the north pole will have abolished all direction but one, north is gone and east and west are gone, only south remains. He can move in no direction but toward the equator. We say the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, and we think we are enunciating a universal law. But if the discoverer of the north pole were to see the sun, he would see it rise and set in the south, and the man at the south pole would see it rise and set in the north. Thus is so much of our knowledge merely relative.

Just so with regard to up and down off in absolute space, in fact with regard to all direction; we apprehend the fact that we should lose direction, but we cannot comprehend it. Is man's mind, in some way, under this law or necessity of the earthly sphere, so that he can see and admit certain contradictions, without ever being able to reconcile them? Are all his views, notions and distinctions as relative as up and down or as east and west? Is it so even in mathematics? Is there no absolute truth? The contradictions of the sphere seem to come into all our thinking. To say there is no absolute truth would involve just this contradiction. I am affirming such a truth in the very denial. To the senses, to the experience, the earth is an unlimited plane, with the sky above it; there is and can be no other side. We see the people at the south pole walking inverted, like flies upon the ceiling; yet abstractly as an indication of science we know the world to be a sphere, but never as a concrete experience. In our view of every question we are so apt to think our own judgment as final, that we are upon a plane, and that there can be no other side, or if there is the people there are willfully walking inverted.

Both sides may be equally true—how hard to learn this fact. We cannot learn it; we may admit it as an abstract proposition, but we can never realize it as a concrete reality. We are under the bondage of the law of the sphere. We can by no means agree from what point in the moral or intellectual sphere longitude shall be reckoned. Every man reckons from his own doorstep. Great thinkers impose their point of view upon us for awhile, but we are always coming back to our own doorstep. This impossible contradiction of the sphere runs through all our thinking. We must admit, abstractly at least, that people's relation to the earth and sky may be just as normal and proper as our own, who hold to just the opposite of what we do. Probably none of our notions would hold good away from the earth in absolute space, or in the spiritual sphere. We may expect to enter Heaven divested of all our earthly knowledge and preferences. A line absolutely horizontal would soon leave the earth, and absolute right would soon carry us away from this self-contradictory sphere.

The same in regard to space. We can apprehend that space is limitless, that there are no bounds to the material universe; but the effort to comprehend it sets the head in the whirl. It is like trying to conceive of a stick with only one end. After we have fixed our limit, what is there beyond? With time it is the same. We can conceive of neither beginning nor ending of time. Indeed, is not the beginning of anything unthinkable? It is experience and not reason that tells us that there are beginnings. When I was a boy I read a sermon or pamphlet by Rev. John Pierpont that combated the notion that matter was created out of nothing. He said if matter began absolutely then no time could elapse between its being and non being. It would have to be something and nothing at the same time, which is an absurdity. But do we not find ourselves in the same dilemma about the beginning of anything, the beginning of the clock to strike or the fire to burn? The clock begins to strike; but the beginning occupies no time; hence it must strike and not strike at the same time. The moments touch, there is no space between them. The sun rises, but where can thought get in between the moment it is below the horizon and the moment it is above? The two moments are one.

The old sophists used to prove that a body cannot move. It cannot move where it is, and it cannot move where it is not; but experience proves that it can move, as it were, on the line between the two. In thought matter is infinitely divisible, time is infinitely divisible; therefore bodies cannot touch, therefore things cannot begin, etc. But experience corrects this reasoning and shows us bodies do move, and do touch, and do begin.

We can conceive of degrees and differences, but limits, for the most part, baffle us. We cannot conceive of anything so hot but that it might be hotter, nor so cold but it might be colder. Nothing so high or big but that it might be higher or bigger; nothing so low or small but it might be lower or smaller. Yet we can conceive of absolute darkness and absolute silence. In Mammoth cave I think I experience both. Why we can conceive of absolute darkness and not of absolute cold, I do not know. One reason why you cannot convince an ignorant man that the earth is round and turns round is that his senses are stronger than his reason; whereas in the trained mind the reason always rules the senses. When the senses declare so and so is the fact, the reason asks: Is it the fact? Can it be the fact?

It requires no little mental effort to see that the earth is a sphere in the face of the fact that the eye all the time proclaims it to be a plain, and that when it revolves the top side will not be turned under and the world capsized. There is no under to the earth, because under means toward the earth. If two worlds should come in contact, then—a conceivable thing—would the people upon each see the other world overhead? How otherwise? This contradiction staggers the unreasoning mind, but we see it must be so. It is a terrible state of affairs. Our notions are not merely reversed, they are reduced to chaos, like an arch in ruins. The earth and Mars, for instance (supposing them to be of the same size), approaching each other and then colliding, the inhabitants of each seeing the other growing in the sky above, and then the shock of each planet falling upon the other, and the impossible-to-conceive state of affairs, with up and down abolished; my neighbor's mill-pond overlaid by the mill-pond of a miller of Mars, and neither spilling out, and each proprietor thinking his premises underneath the other. We must not be misled by the image of two ships or two vehicles coming alongside of each other; there is no confusion or contradiction to the senses here. To the case I suppose our experience affords no parallel; we can only see it by an effort of the imagination, and we cannot at all adjust our senses to what our reason tells us must be the fact. No wonder this question of the rotundity and the revolution of the earth is so puzzling to ordinary people, and that the majority of even the educated accept it on trust. Imagination, after all, cannot go beyond experience. By no mental effort can we get away from this earth and realize our condition.

We cannot in imagination see the size of the earth; we can only picture to ourselves so much of its surface as we have seen from some mountain top, or else we see it as a map, see it in miniature. The mind cannot take in size any more than it can distance, except as an abstraction; that is, it cannot get a vivid emotional sense of these things. The mental vision is limited by the the physical vision. I cannot, for instance, see with my mind's eye at one glance the stretch of land that lies between Albany and New York, except by reducing the scale. The imagination runs along from point to point, and flies like a bird, and the landscape unfolds before it.

Even this little planet upon which we live is on such a huge scale that the tremendous speed at which it moves seems like eternal rest. To the unreasoning mind it is a pure fiction, because the senses find no evidence of it. On a still day row out into the middle of the river, when the tide is setting strongly up or down, and, resting upon your oars, fix your eye upon the water near you. Apparently all motion has stopped, the water is in perfect repose; drop a leaf upon it or one of your oars, and there is no motion. But lift your eye to the shore, and you see that you are moving rapidly, that the whole body of the water is sliding along and carrying you with it. Just so we should become aware of the motion of this earth of ours if there was any near by shore that was not moving, upon which we could fix our eye. But there is not. We are upon a river that has no banks, and in a boat that is carried by a tremendous tide.—John Burroughs, in N. Y. Independent.

Denied for a Reason.

In Germany it cannot be said with truth, as it is said in England and other monarchical countries, that "the king reigns, but does not govern." The German emperor fulfills many of the actual functions of government. Not long ago the newspapers of that country ascertained this fact, and at the same time received a little rebuke which was not sugar-coated. In Germany the telegraphs are the property of the government. The proprietors of a large number of daily newspapers, believing that they were required to pay too high a charge for their telegraphic messages, petitioned the government for a decrease of the press rates. The petition was referred to the Emperor William. He considered it a few moments, and then wrote upon the margin: "The present rate is not too high. The useless dispatches that the newspapers publish every day prove this superabundantly." The newspapers did not obtain their reduction.—Youth's Companion.

A BEAUTIFUL WRECK.

A sad scene with which to terminate a brilliant evening. They have returned from a reception. She had felt restless and nervous during the day, but, realizing the demands of society, resorted to an artificial stimulant, one of those Quack Poisons that flood the market under various names. The picture shows the reaction.

Women, this is a fearful fact! Avoid the misery that must ensue from the use of Quack Medicines. They only increase your suffering, and complicate your disease. We extend to you a remedy that never fails, combined with the experience of Mrs. Pinkham.

OVER 120 MILES AN HOUR.

How One May Some Day Travel at Twice a Locomotive's Speed.

One of the questions most interesting to electrical engineers to-day is that of high speed electric traction, and experiment and practice show it to be attainable. Two ideas have been borne in mind. The success of the electric street railways, of which about 800 are already in operation in America, and upon which speed equal to that of ordinary steam trains has been reached, has suggested that by giving the electric current its greatest play, enormous speed may be kept up in traversing long distances. One of the ideas, therefore, has been to transport mails and express matter in this manner, and apparatus has been devised by which a long iron car has been sucked into and then repelled from each of a series of electric solenoids, just like a lead pencil being shot through a succession of rubber or wooden rings. By this means a very high rate of speed for the small car has been attained. But the second and even more fascinating idea is to hurl electric passenger cars through the air at such a rate that a journey between New York and Chicago would occupy only a few hours, and the result is much nearer than the public has any notion of.

Now, taking the actual figures yielded by the experiments already made at Baltimore, and working out the requirements of a service between New York and Chicago, it has been found that a double track equipment complete for 1,000 miles, with twenty trains each way per day, could be put in for $66,000,000, or $66,000 per mile. The total operating and maintenance expenses per train of three cars would be about $400, each train going at the rate of 125 miles an hour. The receipts from the two carrying cars per train would be $500, leaving $100 profit on each of the 40 trains, or $4,000 per day, which figures out a fair return on the apparently big investment named, without any very wild calculation as to patronage. The feature of such a service would be the running of very frequent trains and the cutting down of the time required for the trip of 1,000 miles to just about eight hours. A like service of 500 miles, connecting Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, would be more profitable, and it is likely that the first road will be built with this route in view. This scheme, just outlined, has been pronounced by the very first electricians and experts in this country to be entirely feasible and practicable as an engineering enterprise.

A prominent civil engineer has expressed the opinion that safety from derailment at very high speeds would be best secured by very slightly curving the line of road just sufficiently to cause the flanges of the wheels to bear constantly on one side. With that construction he considers that any possible speed that could be got from electric motors, say up to 200 hundred miles an hour, would be perfectly safe.

THE TEMPORARY FOOL.

He Exists But for a Day and Then Regains His Dignity.

From time immemorial we have been counselled in one way or another to beware of fools. Disagreeable consequences are mentioned of answering one kind of fool according to his folly, and of refraining to answer another kind. Yet in spite of the general prejudice, says Youth's Companion, there is a variety of fool which is expected to mirror most of the Christian virtues. He is supposed to be absolutely good natured under ridicule, and never justly revengeful. When attacked, he is expected to smile with his tormentors, and join in the general laugh.

Though he be by nature a modest man, he must bear with equanimity the cross of finding himself suddenly dragged into public notice, with the eyes of a score or more of people turned on him at once.

He must be self sacrificing, willing to yield his own dignity for the amusement of others. If he but resent ill usage by a word of remonstrance, he receives contempt as a crusty bear and a despiser of ancient customs.

This species of fool is born on the morning of April 1st, and like certain summer insects has a brief existence of one day. If his general insensibility to ridicule, his meekness under abuse and his unfailing good temper should continue in the same measure throughout the year, one might call him a miracle. As it usually happens, however, he is content with a brief exercise of such virtues, and the temporary title of April fool.

AN ORDINANCE

To change the grade on East Third street from Church street to Richmond street.

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield by their Common Council, do enact as follows that the grade on East Third street from Church street to Richmond street, be changed as follows:

Beginning at the established grade at the northeasterly curb line of Church street elevation 45.80 feet above the city base; thence with an ascending grade of 0.60 feet per 100 to a point distant 100 feet in a southwesterly direction from the southwesterly curb line of Washington street elevation 47.40 feet thence with a decending grade to the established grade at Washington street elevation at the westerly and northerly curb corners 46.34 feet, and the southerly and easterly curb corners 46 feet; thence with an ascending grade to a point distant 300 feet in a northeasterly direction from the northeasterly curb line of Washington street elevation 48.13 feet; thence with a decending grade of 0.50 feet per 100 to a point distant 500 feet in a southwesterly direction from the southwesterly curb line of Richmond street elevation 50.31 feet; thence with a decending grade of 0.50 feet per 100 to a point distant 300 feet in a southwesterly direction from the southwesterly curb line of Richmond street elevation 48.56 feet; thence with a decending grade to the established grade at the southwesterly curb line of Richmond street elevation at the westerly curb corner 45.87 feet, and at the southerly curb corner 45.71 feet above the city base.

The centre grade to be 0.50 feet higher than the above described curb grade.

Section 2. That all ordinances, so far as they conflict with this ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

Section 3. That the Street Committee is hereby authorized to have the above described grade drawn upon maps.

Adopted by the Common Council May 4, 1891.

Approved by the Mayor May 5, 1891.

A. GILBERT, Mayor.

Attest—JOSEPH B. COWARD, City Clerk.

THIS IS WHY.
Ontario Center, N. Y.
May 7, 1890.
F.E.C. Medicine Co., Rochester, N.Y.:
For seven or eight years my wife has been troubled with some kind of kidney trouble. She tried many different remedies but all in vain. She continued to grow worse. Last fall I induced her to try the F. E. C. Remedy, and before using one bottle she began to improve, and now, after using six bottles, she is entirely cured. I have recommended it to many and it has benefitted in every case heard from.

PERISH IN FLAMES

A Trainload of Fire Fighters Rush to Their Death.

SEVEN ARE ROASTED ALIVE.

Thirty Others of the Party Badly Burned and Many Are Missing.

A Terrible Ride Through a Wall of Fire. The Cars Ditched Into a Blazing Furnace of Logs—Four Villages Wiped Out by Fire in Michigan—Acres of Timber in Flames.

CONDERSPORT, Pa., May 11.—The pretty little lumber and farming towns of Austin, Costello, Galeton and Moore's Run are on the verge of a panic, two especially being threatened with annihilation from fires that seem to form an impenetrable wall on every side.

At Moore's Run, on the picturesque Sinnemahoning road, a train load of seventy-five milling men sent from Austin had been fighting back the fire with every means at their command. They made trenches, piled up earth, and lighted back fires, but were finally obliged to retreat.

Hemmed in by Fire.

The men hastily boarded the train and started to make a run to another point, when it was found they were hemmed in by the forest on one side and a huge skidway of logs on the other. It was decided to dash past the burning skidway and the engineer and fireman, with faces covered with dampened cloths, and their hands and arms wrapped in wool, mounted the little engine and pulled out through the wall of fire. The seventy-five exhausted men gathered in groups on the flat cars for protection, or lay on their faces on the floor. As the blazing furnace of logs was approached the heat became unbearable and the smoke so blinding and stifling that the men were obliged to cover their faces with cloths.

Toppled Over Into the Fire.

The engineer had forgotten that such great heat would spread the rails, and he pulled the throttle wider open in the hope of sooner escaping from the torment of heat and smoke.

There was a lurch, an ominous heaving, and a shriek as the train toppled over into the fire. The cars caught fire so as many cigar boxes would, and the men within them, half blinded and scarcely realizing anything except that they were being slowly roasted to death, struggled desperately back upon the track, where, only for a time at least, safety lay.

Those uninjured from the wreck and only smarting from the pain of intense heat turned their burned hands to aid their more unfortunate fellows.

Slowly Roasted to Death.

Superintendent Badger was found fastened down in the wreck. He had evidently slowly roasted to death.

Six others also perished, and 30 others of the party were probably fatally burned. Seven men are missing and their fate is yet unknown.

Relief parties started for the scene as soon as the news was known.

VILLAGES WIPED OUT.

Great Destruction by the Forest Fires in Michigan.

NEWAYGO, Mich., May 12.—The villages of Otis, Fields and Park City have been completely wiped out by forest fires. The hotel and depot at Lilley are all that remain of that place.

The above named places are villages of about 300 each. So far no reports of loss of life have reached here.

From all sections come reports that the fires are still raging.

Forest Fires in Wisconsin.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., May 12.—An immense amount of pine has been destroyed by the forest fires in this vicinity. The fire reached the suburbs of this city and destroyed some property of small value. South Superior, now St. Louis, was thought to be doomed, but a big new hotel and the few stores in the place were saved by the people digging trenches and stopping the progress of the flames in the underbrush.

High Price for Fighting Fire.

WARREN, Pa., May 12.—Forest fires have been raging in this vicinity since Saturday afternoon. Property owners are paying $1.25 per hour for men to fight the fire. At this hour the fires are thought to be nearly under control. The loss will be $200,000.

Acres of Timber in Flames.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., May 12.—All efforts to extinguish the flames in the finely timbered mountain land on the west of this place have been abandoned. Hundreds of acres are in flames. The loss will aggregate many thousands of dollars.

Made Milan Pay His Debts.

LONDON, May 12.—Ex-King Milan met with a great disappointment at Vienna when he presented to the bank which does business for the Servian government in that city a check for 600,000 francs. It appears that when Milan was king he contracted debts to the bank for about 300,000 francs. In honoring the check this amount was deducted, greatly to Milan's disgust, who claimed that the State ought to pay the debt. He took the 300,000 francs under protest.

HAGAN'S FIRST DEFEAT.

The Philadelphian Badly Whipped by Larkins of New Jersey.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Jimmy Hagan, Philadelphia's crack fighter at 133 pounds, met his first defeat in the prize ring last night. Jimmy Larkins, the famous cross country runner of New Jersey, defeated him in the fourteenth round.

The battle took place before the members of the Granite Club, of Hoboken, an organization only recently started and composed of all the influential sports about New York. The purse was $1,500.

The men entered the ring at 10:45. Jere Dunn was referee. Walter Campbell and Jimmy Fogarty were the seconds for the Quaker City lad. Tom Murray and Jack Hines attended to the wants of Larkins.

The betting was even at the start but after a few rounds were fought it was evident that Hagan had no chance and the New York and New Jersey crowd tried to coax the visitors into gambling at $100 to $80, and finally at 2 to 1.

Hagan was trained to a hair's point. Larkins, if anything, was a trifle too fine. It was one of the best battles ever seen in this vicinity, and the red paint canvass which covered the 24-foot ring was dyed in red gore at its completion.

It was give and take from the very start. After the fifth round Larkins had everything his own way. Towards the close of the encounter Larkins pounded his opponent all over the ring. It was a most brutal exhibition after the tenth round, and in the last many of the spectators had to turn away; the Philadelphian lad's face being a mass of blood. He was knocked down nine times in the last round, and finally out of pity Jere Dunn stopped the affair and declared Larkins the winner.

THIRTEEN MEN PERISH.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 12.—Advices just received from Newfoundland give particulars of the disastrous marine casualty which occurred on that coast. As far as the loss of life is concerned, it is the worst that has happened there for years.

The Swedish bark Helga, 569 tons, Capt. Stutstak, bound to Quebec, struck on Renews Island during a dense fog and a tremendous sea. The unfortunate men clung to the rocks, and, notwithstanding the raging billows, several boats manned by volunteers, put off to attempt rescue, but no boat could reach the perishing men and one after another gave up the fight and dropped into the sea, until out of 14 composing the crew, but one was left.

This man, Alexander Allanson, after much battling with the waves, was finally washed within reach of the people on shore and kindly cared for. The people of Renews have succeeded in recovering nine bodies. These included that of the captain. They were all interred on the beach opposite the spot where the calamity took place. The vessel is a total loss and but little of the wreck was washed ashore.

NEARLY A DOUBLE MURDER.

A Canal Boat Captain Kills a Man and Tries to Kill a Woman.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 12.—Jealousy and whiskey were the elements out of which murder was evolved last night here. A canal boat captain, John Glazier, shot Thomas Wilson through the heart, killing him almost instantly. Glazier fired also at a young woman, the cause of the tragedy, but missed her.

The shooting occurred at William Fullerton's saloon. The man had been drinking with the woman. The girl after the shooting ran away. Wilson's body was taken to the Morgue and Glazier, who had not made an attempt to escape, was locked up.

Dr. Briggs' Fight.

NEW YORK, May 12.—So far as yesterday's proceedings of the New York Presbytery went, the only result of the proposed trial of Prof. Charles A. Briggs of the Union Theological Seminary for heresy was an onslaught by his brother professor, Dr. Hastings, and himself on his enemies in other Presbyteries as well as this one.

The Flag Was Removed.

EXETER, N. H., May 12.—Principal Fish of Phillips-Exeter Academy notified the students that unless a flag, which was displayed on the spire bearing the figures "91 and '93," was instantly removed, he would expel a score of students who have been guilty of misconduct. The flag was removed.

A Baby's Lucky Tumble.

NEWBURG, N. Y., May 12.—A two-year-old child named Annie Cochrane, while playing at a window on the fourth story of a house on Chambers street, fell to the ground. Strange to say, she was not killed, and an hour after the fall was playing as though nothing had happened.

Twenty Lashes and Imprisonment.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 12.—In the Court of Sessions for Newcastle county held here, William H. Bradshaw and Alexander Wortenburg, both colored, were each sentenced to one year's imprisonment, one hour in the pillory and twenty lashes, for burglary.

LOOKS LIKE A FIGHT.

The Chilian Cruiser Esmeralda Has a Mission.

TRYING TO PROTECT THE ITATA.

If the Charleston Comes on the Scene There May be a Conflict.

The Orders to Captain Remy to Capture the Itata in Any Event—The Charleston and Esmeralda Evenly Matched in Fighting Strength—The United States Vessel Has a Splendid Crew.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—It is now definitely known that the Chilian cruiser Esmeralda is in port at Acapulco, which probably explains why the Navy Department was so secretive regarding the Charleston's orders.

Had the orders to Captain Remy been made public the representatives of the Chilian insurgents would have promptly advised the Esmeralda of the intention of the American government to seize the Itata.

It is now deemed probable that the Esmeralda will cruise north toward San Lucas in the hope of falling in with the Itata before the Charleston can arrive and to protect her from seizure. In the event of the three vessels meeting it will require fine management to prevent a conflict.

The orders to Capt. Remy are, it is thought, to capture the Itata in any event, while on the other hand it is believed the Esmeralda will fight if she reaches the scene in time as she has much at stake. The latter vessel's commander, a portion of her crew and part of her secondary battery are on board the Itata, which will act as a strong incentive on the part of the Esmeralda to prevent the conveying of the Itata to American waters.

The Charleston and the Esmeralda are about evenly matched in fighting strength, the latter having a little heavier armament, but this is thought to be offset by the fact that the Charleston is the swiftest ship and has a splendid crew and a fighting commander.

Information About the Itata.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—It is reported that the government has information to warrant the belief that the Itata will be next heard of as touching at a Mexican port.

TOO MANY CHILIANS.

Pilot Dill Says He Was Forced to Take the Itata to Sea.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 12.—Pilot Dill says that he had no alternative but to take the Itata to sea. He says the captain put three armed Chilians on either side of him and remained himself with a revolver to see that he did not run the ship aground. He says he saw fifty or sixty armed men on board, but there may have been more, and two cannon on the forward deck. He was told that there were six more cannon and two Gatling guns on board.

Dill says he is confident that the vessel would have resisted any attempt to detain her as a matter of life or death. He says the Itata was a veritable man-of-war when he took her out of the harbor, but had the appearance of a merchant vessel when he brought her in.

Capt O'Farrell of the schooner refuses to make any admissions; says he did not know he was violating any law, but refuses to say what become of his cargo beyond the fact that he has a clear receipt for everything, and that he would not have been captured had he had his full crew. Federal officers are very reticent, and decline to say what orders, if any, have been received from Washington.

AN OVATION IN DENVER.

Colorado's Great City Entertaining the President and Party To-day.

DENVER, Col., May 12.—After a night's rest at Colorado Springs President Harrison and party reached this city this morning and will spend the day here.

The President was given a most hearty reception. A large and enthusiastic crowd of people met the train at the depot. The party was conducted immediately upon arrival to carriages and driven to the hotel. The streets and buildings were handsomely decorated.

This afternoon there will be a grand parade and a demonstration of all the school children in the city will be a special feature.

Bank Wrecker Classen May be Bailed.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Supreme Court refused to grant a mandamus to Peter J. Classen, the convicted bank embezzler of New York, to compel Judge Benedict to settle a bill of exceptions in a certain manner. The court also sustains its right to grant Classen a stay of execution, and makes an order permitting him to be bailed.

A Newspaper Sold.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 12.—The Newburgh Register has been sold by John A. Mason to Francis A. Willard of Booneville, N. Y. The paper will remain Democratic.

AMONG HIS FRIENDS.

Ex-President Cleveland Welcomed by Buffalo's Citizens To-day.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 12.—The 50th anniversary of the German Young Men's Association of Buffalo was celebrated last night in Music Hall, the home of the organization.

The association is the outgrowth of the Apprentices' Society, which was formed early in the thirties for the cultivation and improvement of its members. In 1841 the name of the organization was changed to that which it at present bears.

An added interest was given to last evening's celebration by the presence of ex-President Grover Cleveland, who had come in response to an invitation to join his old friends and fellow-citizens in their jubilee.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock the reception committee called at Iroquois Hotel and escorted Mr. Cleveland to Music Hall, where his entrance was warmly applauded. The exercises were almost entirely musical.

After the orchestra had rendered the coronation march "Die Folkunger," Mr. Cleveland was introduced and made an address.

He congratulated the association whose guest he was, praising German pluck, energy and the literature of a people who, he said, were interwoven with the growth and progress of the United States. The common baptism of blood and partnership in peril duridg the late war made the German a part owner in the saved Union. Not German any longer, but German-American, even the head of the municipality had won his way by honest industry and economy.

Mr. Cleveland received liberal applause at various points in his address.

This morning Mr. Cleveland was given a reception at the Mayor's office. In the evening he will attend the opening of the Cleveland Democracy's new club house, and will deliver an address. Later in the evening Mr. Cleveland is expected to attend a banquet given by the German Young Men's Association at Music Hall.

AN ACTRESS ON FIRE.

She Was Heating a Curling Iron When the Spirit Lamp Exploded.

PATERSON, N. J., May 12.—Miss Mabel Fenton, an actress who was to begin an engagement last night at Jacob's theatre in this city, met with a distressing accident while preparing her toilet in her dressing room at the theatre.

She was heating a curling iron with a spirit lamp when the latter suddenly exploded. Stage Manager Stone was attracted by the lady's screams and hurrying to her dressing room he found Miss Fenton enveloped in flames. Mr. Stone seized an overcoat which happened to be near at hand and smothered the flames by wrapping the coat around her.

Miss Fenton was badly burned about the chest, neck and arms, and endured intense suffering. She was conveyed to her hotel where she is still in agony from the terrible burns she had sustained. The attending physicians do not consider her condition as dangerous.

THE FIGHT IN IRELAND.

McCarthyites to Contest Every Seat Held by the Parnellites.

LONDON, May 12.—The McCarthyites have solemnly resolved in executive meeting assembled, that since Parnell has rejected every suggestion for releasing the funds now held in Paris, they are forced to the belief that he is opposed to applythose funds to the support of the evicted tenants.

They therefore view with extreme urgency the approach of a general election, and they appeal to Ireland to aid the evicted tenants; and they hereby summon a convention of the Federation in every county of Ireland to meet as a committee and select candidates for all seats whose present holders have violated their party pledge.

DR. GRAVES IS QUIET.

He Arrives in Denver Closely Watched by Detectives.

DENVER, May 12.—Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, the medical adviser and friend of Mrs. Baraby, whose death here by poison is likely to prove one of the most celebrated cases in criminal history, arrived in this city last night.

While he came apparently of his own free will, he has been dogged by two detectives throughout the journey, and is practically under arrest. He refuses to talk.

No Racing at Monmouth Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 12.—Division Superintendent Crawford, of the Pennsylvania railroad, has stated to a personal friend that there would be no racing at Monmouth Park during the coming season. The friend did not want to rent a summer cottage if the race trains were run as they blocked the regular trains. He was advised to rent the cottage.

Laughing at Italy's Demands.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The appeal of the Italian Government to other European Governments to unite in demanding from the United States protection for resident aliens is laughed at in Berlin, says a despatch, in view of the great increase of Italian emigration to America. It is believed that Germany will refuse to take part in any such demand.

Yale Will Not Meet Harvard.

NEW HAVEN, May 12.—Captain Calhoun of the Yale Club reiterates that the reason for Yale's refusal to meet Harvard's baseball team on the diamond is because Harvard has failed to keep the agreement entered into at Springfield between that college, the Princetons and the Yales for a series of baseball games.

$150,000 Blaze in New York.

NEW YORK, May 12.—About 10 o'clock last night fire was discovered in the five-story building on East River between 44th and 45th streets, occupied by Schwarzchild & Sulzberger, butchers. Most of the stock and machinery was burned causing a loss of $150,000.

RIDDLED WITH SHOT

A Denver Brickyard the Scene of a Fatal Encounter.

EIGHTEEN STRIKERS WOUNDED.

A Desperate Battle With Negroes Who Were Heavily Armed.

Conflicting Statements About the Big Lumber Boycott in New York City—Cigarmakers Secure an Advance in Wages. Keene, N. H., Has Its First Strike—Labor Troubles in Various Places.

DENVER, Col., May 12.—A terrible fight took place during the forenoon between a party of striking brickmakers and a gang of colored men who had been engaged by F. N. Davis, the proprietor of brickyard, to take their places.

Davis, his son and seven negroes, all heavily armed, were going to work when they were intercepted by a band of strikers and ordered back.

Davis warned the strikers to get out of way. The latter refused and Davis and his men opened fire. One of the strikers was killed and 17 others more or less injured. The Davis party were all arrested.

Davis says the strikers had guns, but the latter deny it.

THE LUMBER BOYCOTT.

Conflicting Statements About the Trouble in New York.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Members of the Lumber Dealers' Association, true to their word, shut down their yards and locked out their employees, although the statements varied considerably as to the extent of the lockout.

A. T. Decker, Chairman of the Dealers' Labor Committee, said that eighty firms had shut down, locking out 2,500 lumber handlers, and Walking Delegate Haggerty claimed that they had visited the yards throughout the city, and there are only a few yards that have closed, affecting 300 men, many of whom are non-union.

It is difficult to harmonize these statements, but lumber is being delivered in the city by some firms, and the locked-out men have not established any meeting place, so it is difficult to properly estimate the number. One thing is certain, though, the action of the lumber dealers has caused no excitement among builders.

Cigarmakers Secure an Advance.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 12.—The Cigarmakers' Union of this city, whose membership is composed of unions throughout the northern part of this State, have notified the manufacturers of a demand for an advance in rates to go into effect on Wednesday. The manufactures have signified their willingness to accept the new schedule of rates.

First Strike in the Town.

KEENE, N. H., May 12.—All the employes in C. B. Lancaster & Co.'s shoe factory are on strike. The men belong to the International Union of Boot and Shoe Workers, and the strike was caused by the posting of a notice making the shop a free one. This is the first strike that has ever taken place here.

Strike Against a Reduction of Wages.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 12.—The men employed in the New Windsor brick yards went on strike on account of their wages being reduced $5 per month. Several left the city to seek employment elsewhere. No change has taken place at the Roseton yards.

Laborers Wages Increased.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 12.—An increase in wages from $1.50 to $1.75 for nine hours' work per day has been granted to the laborers employed on the public works.

EIGHT MEN KILLED.

Terrible Results From the Explosion of the Steamer Tancarville.

LONDON, May 12.—The latest reports from Newport represent eight men to have been killed and twenty-five wounded by the explosion on the steamer Tancarville. One hundred men and boys were employed in and around the ship.

Great blocks of timber and masses of iron were hurled through the air with terrific force, some of them being dashed against the workshops, fifty yards distant from the Tancarville. Much damage was caused in this way. Many workmen who, at the time the explosion occurred, were at work in the dock-yard shops, were struck and severely injured by pieces of the flying debris.

Watching Anarchists in London.

LONDON, May 12.—Startling revelations are looked for regarding the uses made by French and German anarchists of the refuge extended to them in London. The police have located three of the most prominent of the plotters, and are closely watching them. It appears that the people make London a headquarters for their schemes against the peace of Continental Europe, and that the outbreaks at Clichy and Lyons were planned in the British capital. The Russian secret police maintain a detective branch in London, and a close watch is kept on the movements of Russian refugees.

Mr. Gladstone is Sick.

LONDON, May 12.—Mr. Gladstone is on the sick list. Yesterday he was seized with an attack of illness marked by a recurrence of fits of shivering. Mrs. Gladstone, alarmed at the symptoms, had Dr. Andrew Clark, the distinguished Scotch physician called in, and after an examination of his patient's symptoms declared that Mr. Gladstone must not leave his room for several days.

MR. BLAINE IS BETTER.

The Secretary of State Will Go to Washington To-Morrow.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Secretary Blaine is much better to-day, but is kept very closely to his rooms. Dr. Dennis said the Secretary's indisposition was due to nothing more serious than a severe fit of indigestion.

Mr. Blaine is very anxious to return to Washington to-day, but Mrs. Damrosch will endeavor to persuade him to rest a few more days before returning to Washington.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Albert Sargent, one of the oldest carriage manufacturers in the United States, died last evening at Merrimac, Mass.

A man answering the description of Michael Conway, the escaped Newport burglar, has been arrested at Fall River, Mass.

The road resort known as the Glen House, about one mile from Pittsfield, Mass., was burned during the night. Loss, $10,000.

William Case, aged 50, a well known farmer near Ithaca, N. Y., was gored to death by a Swiss bull, which he was leading to water.

The number of deaths reported in New York during the past twenty-four hours was 167. Only two of these were from grip symptoms.

Rev. Sam Small says the story that he misused the funds for the Utah Methodist University and has resigned the presidency thereof is "a devilish lie."

Connecticut's peach crop will be a failure. Two weeks ago there was every prospect of a large crop. The peaches are now rotting on account of the frost.

Music Hall to be Resurrected.

The annual election of a board of directors of the Music Hall association was held last evening. Out of a total of 800 shares, only 213 were voted. The ballot resulted in the re-election of the old board as follows, with the exception of A. T. Gallup in place of W. R. Potts:

A. Gilbert, O. T. Waring, W. J. Boone, W. E. Lowe, M. W. Tyler, L. V. F. Randolph, J. B. Dumont, B. A. Hegeman, J. W. Murray, C. A. Marsh and A. T. Gallup.

At eight o'clock the hour fixed for the annual meeting of the stockholders, there were present, A. Gilbert, O. T. Waring, L. W. Serrell, R. H. Cook, B. F. Goriell, A. T. Gallup and R. M. Stelle. The future management of the hall became a subject of discussion because Manager Marsh has declined to serve in that capacity any longer. The result of this consideration of the matter will probably be that the hall will be put in new hands, thoroughly renovated, the higher priced seats reduced, the best companies engaged for next season, and every effort made and means adopted to make Music Hall the most popular and prosperous opera house in the State.

The Toot Suits.

Chief Doane and Assistant Waters gave an exhibition of Plainfield's fire-alarm system and "steam gong" to a party of Elizabeth officials yesterday afternoon. Their city has the same system of "sending in" the alarm, but a bell is used instead of the whistle.

The visitors consisted of Elizabeth's fire committee: Isaac Van Hart, Thomas T. Tillou and Joseph Flynn; Arthur H. Hayes, treasurer of the electric light company; Superintendent Root of the telephone company, and last, but not least, Nathaniel H. Astfalk, the finest fire chief in New Jersey barring Chief Doane.

All of the party expressed to a PRESS reporter their thorough satisfaction with the steam gong. The alarm was sounded from all parts of the city, instantly and accurately. At the next meeting of the Elizabeth council, yesterday's visitors to Plainfield will undoubtedly recommend that that city adopt a toot instead of a ring as its fire alarm hereafter.

Neither Time Nor Distance Makes Them Forget Home.

Two homing pigeons belonging to C. E. Faber, that were started a year ago in the 200 and 300 mile concourse races, never came home until last week. They were flown in May, 1890. The one who was in the shorter fly arrived in its owner's loft again after a total disappearance, May 6, 1891. The one who was in the 300-mile race arrived May 8, 1891. The latter has a strange band on its leg numbered 394. The birds have undoubtedly been cooped up by some thief for a year past for breeding purposes. Yet though hundreds of miles away, and domesticated in a new home for twelve months, the birds have come back to their loft here as soon as released.

Mrs. Cuff Jumps Out the Window.

City Physician Manning and Dr. Tomlinson, this morning, signed the papers that will authorize the transfer of Mrs. John Bullmer, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. Sylvester Cuff, to the insane asylum.

Mrs. Cuff has been there before. Recently, however, she has been considered quiet enough to live at home. Sunday night she jumped through the closed window of her bedroom, carrying the sash with her, and struck on the picket fence below. She now lies abed very badly cut.

LET THE CITY OWN THE WORKS

THAT'S MAYOR GILBERT'S PLAN IN REGARD TO SEWERAGE.

But He First Wants the People to Vote on the Question at the Polls, and He Thinks that No Sewers Will be Needed Inside of Twenty Years—A Remarkable Message, and an Interesting Letter.

At last night's meeting of the Plainfield Common Council the following communication from Mayor Gilbert, which, though seemingly innocent in intent, nevertheless caused considerable excitement among the Councilmen, was presented and read:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 11, 1891.

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:—On the 7th ult. I was invited to attend an informal meeting of the members of the Common Council for the purpose of conferring with them with regard to the introduction into our city of a water and sewerage system.

Until this meeting I had not fully realized that your honorable body seriously contemplated taking so important a step without giving the people an opportunity to consider the matter fully, and to confer with you relative to the selection of a system that would be best adapted to the wants of Plainfield. Much less had I realized that you would be willing to go ahead without the advice of an expert selected in the interest of the city to advise you with reference to the practicability of plans.

Considering as I do that the question of providing Plainfield with a system of sewers is the most important one that we will have to deal with in our day, I deem it my duty to present to your honorable body my views relative thereto, with the sincere hope that if you conclude to carry forward this project at the present time, you will proceed as cautiously and deliberately as the importance of the subject demands and with an eye single to the interests of the city. The importance of this matter can not be overestimated. Its relation to the future growth and prosperity of the city requires that no step shall be taken without the most careful and painstaking investigation.

The first step of importance, it seems to me, should be to call a meeting of our citizens to confer with you not only as to the advisability of sewering the city at the present time, but also as to the selection of a system that will be best suited to our needs. In a multitude of counselors there is wisdom, and in disposing of so important a matter we need all the wisdom that we can command.

The next step should be the appointment of a committee from your honorable body, for the purpose of making a thorough investigation of the various systems now in use in different cities and towns, in order that we may have the benefit of the most perfect system that can be found. This committee should be empowered to employ an expert of good repute and standing to guide and direct its investigations, to make plans and estimates, and otherwise to assist the committee to reach a definite conclusion concerning this important project.

The committee should be a thoroughly representative one, and large enough to consider every question that has any bearing on the subject. Especially should it consider the advantages that would accrue to the city if it could construct, own and control, its own sewers, and the possible advantages that would follow the construction and ownership of the sewers by a private corporation.

The sewerage question is one of the most difficult problems that we are confronted with, and no Common Council would be justifiable in disposing of it without giving the people the fullest opportunity to approve or reject any system that may be proposed. "By and with the consent of the people" is the principle to follow in dealing with so important a matter as this.

We cannot afford to make any mistake in the premises. A defective sewerage system, or sewers improperly constructed, would result in greater injury to the growth and prosperity of Plainfield than to remain without sewers 20 years longer. The health of the city would suffer more during one year under such conditions than we can estimate.

For these reasons I desire to emphasize the suggestion that when the time comes to take hold of this project we should secure the services of a person competent to advise us, invite the fullest competition, and give ourselves the benefit of all the knowledge that it is possible to obtain on the subject. In this way and no other will it be possible for Plainfield to get the best sewerage service—and the best is what we want and ought to have.

I desire further to fix your attention on the advantages to be derived from having our sewers built and owned by the city. If built by the city the work will be more thoroughly done than by a private corporation for the reason that the interests of a private corporation will be to construct them as cheaply as possible. The city will have in view the health of the people; a private corporation will consider only interest and profit.

If the city owns the sewers, it will also control them and maintain them at all times in good serviceable condition; should they be owned by a private corporation their condition at all times will depend upon the profitableness of the enterprise. Under the city's ownership every householder can be compelled to connect with the sewers; under the ownership of a stock company no one can be lawfully compelled to connect.

The city would give the people the advantage of low rates; while under a franchise, rates would be fixed to insure profit.

Under the ownership of the city the compulsory connection feature would bring the sewers into much more general use; the revenue therefrom would be correspondingly large. This would make it possible for the city to establish a sinking fund and liquidate the cost of sewers in a few years.

But notwithstanding my own judgment is strongly in favor of the construction, ownership and control of the sewers by the city, and that the Legislature has authorized cities to issue bonds for this purpose, I should only favor such a step with the consent of the people expressed at the polls. I do not think that the interests of Plainfield will suffer if the question is postponed until the people are ready to take it up and settle it for themselves.

The question is of such vital importance to the health of the city, that looking at the matter from a purely business standpoint, the people may conclude if an opportunity is given them, that it will be a great mistake to have our sewers built and owned by a private corporation; that if sewers are an urgent necessity at the present time, the whole subject should be taken hold of and handled in the most thorough and business like manner.

Either directly or indirectly the people must pay for the sewers if they are ever constructed, whether by the city or under a franchise. If paying for them directly will result in great gain to the city it needs no argument to prove the wisdom of such a course.

What I claim, and all I claim is, that the people through a larger representative committee than a majority of your honorable body, should have an opportunity to investigate the whole subject and decide for themselves:

1st.—Whether sewerage should be introduced at the present time.

2d.—What system should be introduced.

3d.—Whether the franchise should be given to a private corporation.

4th.—Whether it would be wiser to build and control our own sewers—borrowing the money at a low rate of interest—with a sinking fund provision to liquidate the indebtedness in a given term of years.

Surely the people can be more safely trusted to decide these questions aright than a majority of any Common Council that can be elected.

I submit herewith a copy of a letter on this subject received from E. M. Hunt, M. D., President of the State Board of Health, which I have no doubt will interest your honorable body, as well as the general public.

Respectfully submitted,
A. GILBERT, Mayor.

OFFICE OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.
TRENTON, N. J., May 6, 1891.

To the Hon. A. Gilbert, Mayor.

DEAR SIR:—

We hear with great regret that Plainfield contemplates putting in a system of sewerage by a company who are left somewhat to choose their own methods. I do not know what influence has brought this about, or what party is at present in power, but I must express my regret. After some sharp experiences in New Jersey, I thought our cities and towns had settled to the conviction that they can build their own sewers cheaper and safer than it can be done in any other way. Mt. Holly and Trenton have recently put in their own systems with great advantage under expert supervision, only calling consulting engineers to plan or approve the work. Princeton within the last three weeks has adopted a system which is economic and complete and which will be finished by fall. Bridgeton has just sent for Mr. Hering and a prominent Philadelphia engineer to advise with them as to a system for their city.

I can now point to some cities which are reaping the fruits of bad contracts. In these days when we know how to build sewers cheaply and without jobbery there is no need of farming them out any more than there is for contracting with outside parties for building the town, putting out fires, or cleaning the streets. I know neither the names of your company nor your Councilmen, but I should feel that we were derelict in our duty if we did not warn against methods which in the future involves so much of health and prosperity.

I have the honor to be
Yours most obedient,
EZRA M. HUNT.

At the conclusion of the reading of the message Mr. Ackerman moved that 1,000 copies be printed in pamphlet form for circulation among the people. It was an admirable document,—he thought—on a matter of unusual importance, and ought to reach every household.

Mr. Hetfield ejaculated that he never before had heard of such a proposition. Mr Ackerman was—he added—trying to pose as the people's champion. As a matter of fact the whole tenor of the Mayor's communication was for the bonding of the city to the tune of $250,000, for that was what the city's owning its own sewerage system meant; and he was perfectly willing that the people should know that the Mayor favored such bonding and that the Councilman wanted the people to know it: but he did n't propose to vote away money for any such unusual and unnecessary purpose as was suggested.

Mr. Ginna said that he was not aware of the existence of any scheme for the bonding of the city. But he was glad the gentleman had broached that subject, for it gave him a chance to deny a pure and unadulterated fabrication that had already been published and spread broadcast. What he referred to was the story that certain of the Councilmen had at an informal meeting of April 7 advocated a scheme for the building of sewers by bonding the city. At that meeting—he continued—not one single word had been said, not one single proposition had been made, looking towards the bonding of the city. The only mention of bonding had been like this: He had intimated that the city ought to control its own sewers, and Mr. Moffett had replied that that could n't be done except by bonding, and Mr. Hetfield had added that anyone favoring such a scheme would better bid good-bye to future political aspirations.

Mr. Ackerman suggested that the Mayor did not advocate bonding the city unless the people expressed themselves in favor of it at the polls.

Mr. Hetfield said he knew of no law by which such an election could be held.

Mr. Bushmore was puzzled to see how any information concerning the meeting of April 7 got to the newspapers. It was a private conference,—he said—and no reporters had been present. Only Councilmen had attended, and yet the papers had been given information and had piled on what might be called insult.

Mr. Hetfield did n't think that the Councilmen were called on to explain away newspaper criticisms. If they were, they'd be pretty busy all of the time. But concerning this case, if his recollection served him aright Mr. Ginna and the Mayor and others at the meeting of April 7 had favored the city owning the sewers, and he had stated then that that could not be done except by bonding the city.

Mr. Ackerman said that anyhow Mr. Hetfield's figure of $250,000 was too high, as 17 miles could be built for $125,000.

Mr. Ginna thought that besides there was plenty of time yet to consider the question; sewers were not absolutely need now.

No one but Councilmen Ackerman and See voted in favor of circulating 1,000 copies of the Mayor's message, but President Smith said that as there were some good things in it that might serve as a guide in the future he would refer it to the Committees on Water, Printing and Stationery.

The School Ma'ams Lift Taxpayer Bill did Not Pass.

There seems to be a discrepancy or misunderstanding somewhere, says the Elizabeth Journal, with reference to the tenure of office of public school teachers in this State. Quite a number of papers have substantially stated that public school teachers have now a life tenure upon their positions, and in proof they quote a new law which in substance provides:

That all teachers employed in the State, holding first-class certificates, who shall have been regularly appointed or elected to their positions, and who shall have served acceptably in such capacity for a period of two years or more, shall hold their positions and continue to serve as teachers during good behavior, and shall not be removed or displaced without their consent, except for good and sufficient cause after trial or hearing by and before the superintendent of public instruction of the county, with the right of appeal thereafter to the state superintendent of public instruction, whose decision shall be final; and it shall not be necessary that such teachers shall be elected annually, but shall continue to serve subject to the provisions of the act, and during the faithful performance of their duties they shall receive just and proper compensation for their services.

Now this would be "important if true," but State Superintendent Chapman, speaking upon another matter entirely, is reported as having said incidentally, "The bill introduced establishing a tenure of office for school teachers did not become a law." If the superintendent is correct, as is highly probable, the matter is settled.

Another New York Hit.

The even success of Miss Morton's play, "The Merchant," at the Madison Square theatre New York city, since the opening night, is completely fulfilling managerial expectations. Plays that can call out big audiences every night are not common nowadays. "The Merchant" is the talk of the day in theatrical circles—and outside as well—and as a distinctly American play by an American author and produced by an American manager, it is a matter of common congratulation. To the critic weary with coarse and noisy horse play of so-called farce comedy, and the utterly mindless sensationalism of the realistic melodrama, there is something infinitely and gratefully refreshing and invigorating in this lovely play as of a breeze upon the foreheads or a stream murmuring sweet sounds in the ear. Advance sales are steadily increasing—that is a sure token of "The Merchant's" popularity. The play is going to stay—quite a while. A considerable share of the distinguished success that greeted the performances during the week was due to the admirable manner in which the drama was acted.

A Lad's Ear Torn.

Willie, a little son of C. W. Smith of 21 East Fourth street, was found wandering about the streets yesterday afternoon, with his ear torn, and his clothing bloody. At first he said that a dog had bitten him, but it is thought that he received the hurt in a fall. The tear in his ear was sewed up by Dr. Carman, and a slight cut back of the ear was also dressed. The injury is not considered in any way serious.

Yes, I heard Patti, of course I did, but the public don't know what cures her cold when she wets her little slippers. It is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. 25c a bottle.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

WATER-WORKS WAR GOES ON.

JUSTICE VAN SYCKEL'S OPINION NOT SUFFICIENT FOR THE COUNCIL.

Outside Legal Talent to be Employed in Attacking the Charter of the Water Supply Company—The City Declines to Sit Idly by and See its Ordinances and Charter Rights Swept Arbitrarily Aside—Meanwhile Mr. Low is to be Granted the Only Municipally Authorized Water-Works and Sewerage Franchise.

The recent semi-official announcement from Justice Van Syckel has not by any means settled the water-works question to the satisfaction of the Plainfield Common Council, and at last night's meeting steps were taken which indicate that a merry fight may yet be expected. The Councilmen—or at least a majority of them—seem determined to find out just what rights the city has under its charter, and whether the Plainfield Water Supply Company is to override arbitrarily what privileges the city used to think it had.

The matter of Justice VanSyckel's opinion was officially brought to the attention of the Council by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, who reported that the opinion of the Court was substantially that the Water Supply Company was entitled to a decision in its favor provided it could prove by evidence what it claimed in its president's affidavit; if the city was ready to admit the facts claimed by the company, the Court would have to decide that the ordinance under which the city sought to abridge and annul the charter rights of the company was unreasonable and could not stand, but would not allow any costs against the city; but of course if the city required the company to proceed with the taking of testimony to prove the facts necessary to a decision in the company's favor, then that decision would carry with it a heavy bill of costs for the defeated litigants to pay.

The clerk had no sooner finished reading Mr. Marsh's report than Councilman Ackerman moved that the report be accepted and that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to prepare legal acceptance of the forecast of what the Court's opinion would be, so that there would be no further litigation.

To this Councilman Hetfield objected, and suggested that as the matter was an important one, requiring careful investigation, it ought to be laid on the table.

Counselor Marsh said that a prompt decision by the Council was necessary. Justice Van Syckel had wanted him to decide for the city the day the opinion was read, and only with difficulty was the Court persuaded to wait until the present meeting of the Council. If the Council do not decide to-night,—he concluded—to submit to the Court's ruling, the taking of testimony will be begun to-morrow.

In response to the questionings of some of the Councilmen, Mr. Marsh said that the testing of the Water Company's charter could not be accomplished in this case. The only way to test the validity of the company's charter was through the filing of a bill in equity, or through the securing of a writ of quo warranto through the Attorney-General, or through a bill in Chancery. And since the history of the organization of the company seemed by the records to be all right, and since comparatively recent legislation had wiped out all flaws in the company's past and had given a renewal of perpetual life, there seemed little probability of succeeding in any attempt to attack the charter.

Councilman Ginna was of the opinion that there was no question what the decision of the courts would be; it would unquestionably be in favor of the Water Supply Company. If the city stopped now, there would be no costs but its own, which were trifling, to pay; if it went on, added costs would be incurred. What was the use of continuing so hopeless a fight? Why not stop the warfare now?

With these views Councilman Ackerman earnestly coincided, and announced himself as opposed to proceeding in the matter any further.

But Councilman Hetfield was of a different mind. "We've had no opinion"—he said.—"We've had merely an intimation, a suggestion. And if we are to sit down and take that as a decision of the courts we might as well make up our minds to fold our hands idly and meekly submit to having all our ordinances summarily killed. Let the company go ahead and prove its case."

The probable expense of litigation was the bugbear that loomed up before Councilman Rushmore, and he protested emphatically against it. Some of the Councilmen—he said—were very cautious about spending a paltry $10 for printing copies of the Mayor's message, yet ready to squander hundreds foolishly. Yes—added Councilman Ackerman—and even more than hundreds; this would run up into the thousands.

On motion of Mr. Hetfield the matter was tabled by a vote of 6 to 5, and by the same vote a recess of nominally fifteen minutes, but really of half an hour, was taken.

Those voting aye in each case were Councilman Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith and Spangenberg. Those voting no were Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See.

When the Council had reassembled Mr. Spangenberg introduced a resolution which was finally adopted in the following shape:

Section 1, Resolved, that the Committee on Water, Printing and Stationery be empowered to employ special counsel to advise with the Corporation Counsel in the case of The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, Defendant, as to the advisability of taking an appeal in the above case, or compelling the prosecutors to proceed and complete their case, also as to the advisability of commencing quo warranto proceedings through the Attorney-General of the State, to annul the charter of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, and if said advice is favorable to said city of Plainfield then said counsel is hereby authorized to have such quo warranto proceedings commenced or appeal taken or to compel the Plainfield Water Supply Company to complete their case.

Section 2. And the said committee are hereby further authorized to have prepared by such special counsel such ordinances as are necessary for the granting of a water-works and sewerage franchise to J. M. Low and his associates.

While the resolution was being considered, some very warm debate took place. Councilman Ackerman scented another bill for the tax-payers to foot, and thought it very unwise for the city to employ special counsel, which was always very expensive, when the corporation already had a very able attorney of its own.

Councilman Rushmore considered the resolution a gross reflection on the character of the Corporation Counsel. President Smith remarked that he hardly thought that. Well—said Mr. Rushmore—that's my opinion.

The resolution speaks for itself—remarked Mr. Smith.

And commented Mr. Rushmore—it was a most indefinite piece of—well, he'd hate to call it by what he thought was its right name.

It gives unlimited power—suggested Mr. Ackerman—to employ any counsel, and expense might be incurred as high as $25,000.

Then Mr. Ginna was heard from, and he said in very emphatic tones that it was a most extraordinary resolution, and in some respects an outrageous action. Mr. Marsh was a thoroughly competent attorney. Justice VanSyckel had in no unmistakable language given an intimation of what his opinion would be. What was to be gained by further counseling and litigation?

This was to be gained—said President Smith—: the knowledge whether or not the city ordinances were worth the paper they were written on.

The resolution casts no reflection on the Corporation Counsel—Mr. Hetfield explained.—We all respect him and his opinion. But other Common Councils have had special counsel to assist the regular counsel, and it had never yet been considered any outrage. Indeed, Mr. Marsh was the only Corporation Counsel in the city's history who had never yet been assisted in important cases.

Mr. Hetfield further said that he was unalterably opposed to the Council's sitting down and swallowing as decisive the mere suggestion of one of the Supreme Court Judges that this company could come in and squelch summarily the city's ordinances. He desired to get the advice of other counsel with the Corporation Counsel and take such legal steps as were necessary to defend the city and its laws. He didn't like unpleasant intimations of "outrage" to be made concerning matters which had been done repeatedly.

Mr. Ackerman thought that the fact that Mr. Marsh had never before been assisted proved his signal ability to conduct unaided the case in point.

Councilman Spangenberg said that no reflection whatever was intended against Mr. Marsh, who was a good lawyer, an able attorney.

The two sections of the resolution were acted on separately. Councilman Ackerman made three futile attempts to postpone action on it, but his several motions to put off its consideration indefinitely, to lay it on the table, and to set down July 6 as the date of voting on it, were each lost by the following vote:

Ayes—Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore, See—5,

Noes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Section 1 was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore, See—5.

Before Section 2 was voted on, Mr. Rushmore asked if the Corporation Counsel had not already been instructed to draw up just such an ordinance.

Mr. Hetfield answered that he had, but had not yet had time, according to his statement, to prepare an ordinance with which he was satisfied.

Mr. See asked why a special counsel was needed.

Mr. Hetfield replied "We can get it done inside of a week then. It's been dragging a week now."

Mr. Rushmore clamored for the reading of a communication that Mr. Marsh had sent in with his incomplete ordinance, so that the public might know what were the counselor's opinion concerning the granting of a franchise to Mr. Low. This aroused Mr. Hetfield. "It's foolish, ridiculous, nonsensical, boy's play!"—he exclaimed—"this constant cry about the public, this continued posing as the people's champion. The Councilmen have all read Mr. Marsh's letter, and it merely recites what I have stated, that he is not satisfied with the ordinance he has attempted to prepare, and the letter is attached merely as an explanation of the state of the ordinance. Mr. Marsh did n't want the ordinance read without the communication, but as we have n't touched the one there's no need of bringing up the other."

An attempt to amend Section 2 of the resolution so that the special counsel should act jointly with the Corporation Counsel was lost by a vote of 5 to 6, Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore and See voting aye. The section unamended was then adopted.

Ayes—Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffett, Roberts, Smith, Spangenberg—6.

Noes—Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston, Rushmore, See—5.

As soon as the vote on the resolution was completed Councilmen See moved to adjourn. Councilmen Ackerman, Ginna, Johnston and Rushmore alone voted with him, and the session was prolonged on, over routine matters, till midnight, when adjournment was taken to Monday, May 18.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF THE COUNCIL.

No Man May Legally Sign Two License Applications in One Year.

Corporation Counsel Craig A Marsh last night reported to the Common Council that having examined the State law on the subject he was still of the opinion that anyone having within a year signed a license application was not eligible to sign a second one, whether the first had been granted or refused. As some of James O'Neill's petitioners had signed other applications (though refused ones), in the spring, O'Neill's application was referred back for correction.

The Council confirmed the Mayor's appointments of David S. Stewart as special policeman at Hope chapel, and Abel Ketcham as pound-master, vice John Naylor, resigned.

The Mayor returned without his approval the ordinance to establish a grade on North avenue at Netherwood, as clerical errors had been discovered. An amended ordinance will probably be adopted later.

Ordinances to macadamize West Third street and Arlington avenue were adopted on first and second readings, and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Reappearance of Gorman's Minstrels.

The fine minstrel company organized by the Gormans, that opened its road-season last fall in this city, will appear at Music Hall again to-morrow evening. Chief among the features of the programme will be "Lorillard Reception," introducing "The Drummer Boys of Shiloh" and "The Champion Colored Zouaves," with drum solos, songs, choruses, military evolutions, new marches and silent drill. There will also be a "spectacular dance," entitled "The Dancer's Dream," which it is expected will greatly enhance the already enviable reputation of the Gormans for novelty. There will be an artistic song and dance sketch, entitled "Twilight in Dixie." "The Midshipmen's Frolics," performed by six nimble footed young men, neatly costumed in sailor rigs, and "Lucinda's Holiday," a breezy sketch full of bustle and life, are among the other novelties. George Gorman will appear in two new characters, "The Dandy Coachman" and the "Mail Carrier"; John Gorman will have two eccentric characters; Arthur Rigby, who made such a hit last season as the "Mascot," will have parts that will show him off to the best advantage. He will also have a very taking monologue. Billy Lyons, female character, will have ample opportunities to display his artistic ability. For the concluding portion of the entertainment James Gorman has exerted his talents in the production of a burlesque on "The Gondoliers," entitled "The Gambolliers." In this George Gorman will have an Irish role which will give him a chance for the portrayal of that peculiar type of a good-natured Milesian by which he has won many a hearty laugh. John Gorman will impersonate the Juke of Lazy-Taro, and the entire company will be in the cast. Incidentally, Reto will introduce his original silver pedestal ladder act, and the transatlantic wonder, Layman, "the greatest living Panopticum," will present his remarkable performance.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, &c., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.

The Spanish Treaty.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The statement telegraphed from Madrid that a treaty of commerce between Spain and the United States for Cuba will be signed to-day is not confirmed at the Department of State. Both the President and Secretary Blaine are absent from the city, and no action will be determined upon until after their return.

Decision Against New York Murderers.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The United States Supreme Court has affirmed the order of the New York Circuit Court denying writs of habeas corpus in the cases of the prisoners, Jugiro and Wood, now in Sing Sing prison under sentence of death by electrocution.

Passover Bread Not Exempt.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12.—The Customs Department, it has transpired, refused the application of Toronto Hebrews, who wanted to import unleavened bread for the Passover feast free of duty. The Department decided that the importation must be taxed 20 per cent. ad valorem.

The New Orleans Consul Recalled.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Italian Consul at New Orleans, it is understood, has been recalled by his government and the duties of Consul in that city will be discharged by a Consul at some other point.

SAY SO.

If anyone kindly goes out of his way
To do you a favor, result as it may,
While waiting a chance the kind act to repay
Don't forget to be thankful and—say so.

'Tis a small thing to utter the thanks of the heart,
But 'twould carry sweet healing to many a smart,
If more we would practice this delicate art,
Don't forget to be thankful and—say so.

O husband, how long must your patient wife wait
For the kind words which tell her how highly you rate
Her sweet ministrations? Lest it soon be too late,
Pray begin to be thankful and—say so.

And, wife, for the love that is loyal and true,
For the unceasing care freely given for you,
It would seem that the very least thing you could do
Would be to feel thankful and—say so.

And toward the kind parents whose hair has grown gray,
In unceasing devotion you ne'er can repay;
Pray give to your gratitude generous play,
Oh! feel deeply thankful and—say so.

Kind words, how we prize them! like summer sunshine
They strengthen and bless us, support and refine.
O, the rarest of gems in society's mine
Is to feel very thankful and—say so.

Words truly are small but oft-times wondrous things,
Unlocked from the lips they take themselves wings;
Shall they strew sweets like honey or sow barbs and stings?
Pray be thankful for favors and—say so.

—Dart Fairthorne, in Western Rural.

MILLIONS IN IT.

Uncle Sam's Big Treasury and What It Contains.

The Biggest Silver Mine in the World and the Men Who Guard It—Could the Nation Be Successfully Robbed?

Secretary Foster is now as much at home in the great treasury department as though he had been born there. His big office, overlooking the Potomac, is as quiet as a church and the business goes on as smoothly as the oiled locks of the massive vaults which hold the millions upon millions of gold and silver coin in the vaults below.

He has to have 20,000 men to help him, and the wires run from his office to every part of the country. In the customs service alone he has 4,000 employes. There are 3,500 men at work in Washington, and his internal revenue agents are scattered up and down the lakes, over the country and through the southern mountains, to the number of nearly 3,500 more. The life-saving service is under him, and he has 1,000 men who do nothing but melt gold and silver bullion, and coin money at the mints. He has ships in his revenue marine bureau. He watches over the lighthouses along our coast, and he takes charge of every dollar that is paid in for government taxes in any way, and gives out every cent that is spent by Uncle Sam in any undertaking.

How much money do you think the government has on hand?

Well, when Treasurer Huston came into his office as United States treasurer he gave a receipt for just what he found here, and this receipt was the largest ever given in the history of the world. A fac-simile of it is framed and hung up in the treasurer's office, and English visitors put their hands to their heads in amazement and feel to see if their eyes are really open when they look at it. It is a receipt for $771,432,619.45¾. This is about the amount which is on hand in this massive building to-day. It is the balance which Secretary Foster has under him and which remains just about so much, notwithstanding the millions upon millions which come and go.

Uncle Sam deals in big figures. I looked at a check recently for $37,000,000, which was signed by the treasurer, and there are something like $300,000,000 of gold and silver in the vaults of this mighty department.

Leaving Secretary Foster's office I went, with one of the guards, out into the court which lies in the center of this massive treasury department just over the great vaults. The treasury is built in the form of two hollow squares, and around this court rose three-story walls on all sides. It was roofed only by the skies and it was flagged with great blocks of stone as big as a center-table. If covered, I judge, a quarter of an acre, and as I walked over it I had beneath me the biggest silver mine in the world. In the vault below there were $90,000,000 of silver in boxes and bags, and under my feet, separated only by a foot or two of stone, was gold by the millions. Guarding it were the great fort-like walls on every side and within the treasury policemen who walk continuously to and fro and watch the great doors which lead down to the entrances of these vaults.

Leaving the court I went down into these big vaults. They are already packed to bursting. The vast vault which was built a few years ago has its chambers all filled, and the aisles are now being packed with silver bags. Each of these bags contains 60 pounds of silver dollars and they are stacked one on top of another for all the world like the bags of a flour mill and like so much wheat.

It was the intention to store the whole $90,000,000 in bags, but it was found that the roof leaked and a number of small boxes about 1 foot square and 18 inches long have been made. These are of 1 inch pine and each box contains $3,000. There are 45,000 of these boxes piled one on top of the other in this vault and they have to be very strong and well-made. Where bags are used there is a continual movement going on in the silver and the displacement of a single bag would cause a movement of millions.

I saw this big vault built. It has thick walls of brick and cement, and its foundation is of cement. It covers more than a quarter of an acre, and is 12 feet deep. In its interior there is a cage of iron lattice work, the bars of which are made of wrought iron, and which were riveted together with red-hot rivets after the lattice-work was put up. It took 160,000 rivets to fasten the iron work of this vault together and the lattice had to be very strong as the silver is very heavy. The amount of silver now in the vault weighs over 3,000 tons, and you could put these $90,000,000 on one side of the scale and 35,000 men weighing each 180 pounds on the other side, and the silver would outweigh them. It would take 175 freight cars to carry this silver to the seacoast if America should be conquered by England and this treasury vault looted.

The silver dollars in this vault would carpet an area of more than 30 acres, and if they were piled one upon another, they would make a solid column of silver more than 150 miles high. A million dollars of silver is no small quantity, and when you have $90,000,000, your vault has to be as strong as stone and iron can make it. And still this is only a small part of the coin in this treasury, and there is another vault which contains $59,000,000 more of silver and $26,000,000 in gold.

In addition to this there are millions in greenbacks, in silver certificates and in bonds, and the men who could rob the treasury would indeed possess wealth beyond the dreams of avarice.

The question as to whether the treasury could be robbed has often been discussed. There is no doubt but that many of the vaults are far behind the times in their safety appliances, and there are hundreds of cracksmen in the country who could open them.

It would, however, be a very brave man who would attempt to rob the treasury. A tunnel might be dug from somewhere near the Potomac river under the treasury building, but the robbers would have to drill through a floor of cement and chilled steel, and they would have to have a railroad to carry away the silver in order to make it pay. After they had taken a few thousand dollars the bags and boxes containing the remainder would turn about with such a noise as to apprise the treasury guards of their action, and as these guards are on hand day and night it would be almost impossible to get anything to speak of without discovery. There might be a combination with the guards and a fortune in greenbacks or silver certificates taken, but these are all numbered and the thieves would be sure to be identified.

There are 60 guards in the treasury department, and these are divided into different watches. They have to salute each other from time to time, and a whistle would bring an army of guards to any part of the treasury at any moment.

Not long ago the treasurer attempted to go down into the vaults to see whether the men were on duty. He suddenly found a barrel of cold steel at his head, and the guard who held the other end of the revolver made him stand still and hold up his hands. He said that he was the treasurer of the United States, but the very polite watchman with the revolver said that might all be, but he did not know the treasurer, and he would have to wait until he called one of the other guards to identify him. He then gave a whistle. The other guards rushed up, and the treasurer was released. It is by no means a safe thing for even the treasurer to go around about the vaults at midnight.

It would seem to be an easy thing to get away with some of the greenbacks of the treasury. Still, with millions on hand and with no apparent guards to speak of, Uncle Sam seldom has a loss. It is almost incredible that year after year these one and two thousand dollar clerks go on handling millions and still there is no leaking and no stealing. I visited the cash vault of the treasury the other day, and I saw pile upon pile of greenbacks all practically in charge of one man, and there were millions of dollars represented by them. I was shown half a dozen small packages of bills which could have been crowded into a cigar box and which were worth $500,000. As I held them in my hand the amount was so great and the pile so small that I could not realize its immensity. I was shown single notes that represented $10,000, and I stopped in the cash room and talked with the thin-faced young man who acts as the receiving teller. He told me he took in millions of dollars a day in checks and cash, and that all the money in the country, in one shape or another, came to him.

I spent some time in the cash vault, and took a look at the reserve vault, which has something over $1,000,000 in greenbacks, and then went on into the vault where the national bank securities were kept, and watched a young tourist caressingly handle $1,500,000 in bonds, which the keeper of this vault showed me. This young man kept the sheets of securities in his hand just as long as he could, and he attempted to make conversation with his keeper in order that he might hold them the longer. He will tell when he gets home how he had a million and a half dollars in his hand at one time, and the eyes of his fellow-citizens will bulge out in envy.

In the story of Aladdin is told how a wicked old man made a fortune by changing old lamps for new. The people are doing this with Uncle Sam all the time. You can get new greenbacks for old ones at the treasury any day, and there are hundreds of clerks who do nothing but count old bills, do them up into packages, have them punched with holes showing they are not to be used again, and then cut in two with a sort of a meat-ax cleaver to render them perfectly worthless.

Before leaving the treasury department I took a look at a kettle of mush worth $400,000. The mush was made of ground greenbacks, and it contained the mashed and pulpy remains of the day's work of the redemption division. It had been ground for five hours, and when it is finished it will be shipped off to the paper mills to be eaten up by them and drawn out into new paper for new greenbacks. It is the costliest mush in existence, but its greatest value is in its raw state.—Philadelphia Press.

CAMEO CUTTING.

A Visit to the Roman Studios Where the Work Is Done.

Specimens of Wonderful Skill in Carving Onyx and Shells—Lifelike Portraits of Historical Personages and Noted People.

After falling into raptures over a few ruins, the visitor to Rome usually turns his attention to cameos and loses himself heart and soul in admiration of all the gods and goddesses that were ever heard of, from Jupiter to the veriest little love. He has seen cameos here or there all his life and paid little attention to them; but here in their birthplace, their home, he develops a passion for them that would affect a heart of stone, which these gods and goddesses always possess. And truly cameos are to be admired; down them who will, fashion or no fashion, as an exquisite work of art there is nothing more beautiful.

One of the most interesting cameo studios, says the Jeweler's Review, is that of Francesco Clapponi, on the Via Sistina. Signor Clapponi has had twenty years of practice in cameo cutting, and your correspondent is indebted to him for much valuable information on this interesting study. He has been called the modern Michael Angelo by some of his American admirers, and not undeservedly, for more exquisite work than his would be hard to find. His specialty is portraits, and these develop from the stone quite as truthful as from the crayon work, in which he is also an expert. One of his best works is a portrait of Queen Marguerita, of Italy. The likeness is exact, and the famous pearls, string after string, about her neck stand out in individual perfection. Portraits of the queen of England, the composer Liszt and other people, not forgetting Cook, of circular voyage fame, are others of equal merit. The most exquisitely finished portrait is of Mary Stuart, after an antique painting. The relief is in flesh color, against a dark red background. Every point in the high lace ruches at the throat stands out delicately, while the entire lace is almost transparent—is, in fact, when held to the light.

Cameos are sometimes of shell and sometimes of stone. Those of shell are most common and are more easily made than those of stone, because the shell is softer and yields more readily to the drill. The shells are of the conch order and are brought from the sea at different ports of Italy. The stone comes mostly from India, some from Germany. It belongs to the family of quartz, (panded), and comes in various combinations of color, the rarest being flesh color and red; the most common one black and white. The stone comes cut in different sizes ready for the artist to begin work on. They cost from two to thirty or more francs each, according to size and quality.

After a plaster cast has been made from a drawing or portrait the artist sketches from the cast on the stone he is about to cut and proceeds to chip away all surplus portions of the upper layer of color. He does this by means of a drill fastened in a machine worked by the foot. The drills used are very fine and while at work the artist looks through a magnifying glass. These drills require constant cutting down and the application of diamond dust, as the stone is so hard. The stone, too, requires constant rubbing off, for the drill blackens and so misleads the artist unless continual care is given. It takes from three to thirty days to cut a stone cameo. The artist must understand drawing and measurements well, as after the first outline cutting he is almost wholly dependent upon the exactitude of his eye. The finishing work is very delicate. A miscut, and a nose is spoiled, an ear taken off, or the fascinating curl of a mustache forever lost. It is sweet and poetical to wear a loved one's face cut in cameo, but woe to the artist who by a slight deviation makes Genevieve's mouth too large or converts the classical nose of Clarence into a "snub."

Intaglios are very much in favor at the present time. They are just the reverse of the cameos, the subject being cut below the level of the stone. Many of these are made for the purpose of seals, and give a perfect impression. It has been said that Moses wore an intaglio ring, and we have no more reason to doubt than to believe it. No one suspects Moses of not doing the proper thing, and if he had the good taste to wear an intaglio, he is all the more worthy of admiration. However, intaglios are known to have been of very ancient origin.

Intaglios are cut in stones of one color, and are best when the stones are translucent. They appear in most delicate shades, and the sunken engraving is sometimes wonderful in its minuteness. Many famous paintings as well as statues are copied in this manner, and the production is often as marvelous as the original. The "Aurora" of Guido Rini is almost as beautiful cut into dark stone as when in light relief in colors. Where so many figures are grouped it is really a wonderful thing to produce them in such minute proportions as seen in these intaglios. Whatever other arts the Italians may be proficient in, that of stone cutting is followed to perfection, and such beautiful works cannot be governed by the whims of style. However, Dame Fashion smiles with the infatuated visitor on cameos and promises to favor them for some time to come.

The Origin of "Calico."

The word "calico" has a queer origin. Many centuries ago the first monarch of the province of Malabar gave to one of his chiefs as a reward for distinguished services his sword and all the land within the limits of which a cock crowing at a certain temple could be heard. From this circumstance the town which grew up in the center of this territory was called Calicods, or the cock of crowing. Afterward it was called Calicut, and from this place the first cotton goods were imported into England, bearing the name of calico.

"Don't you think you would make more money and enjoy better health in doing housework?" "Yes, I rather think I would," answered the "saleslady." And yet your false pride—" "Oh, pride has nothing to do with it. I don't want to be bossed by another woman, that's all."—Indianapolis Journal.

STANLEY, Yates Co., N. Y., June, 1890.

I was suffering from general debility fifteen months, had eight doctors treat me, took all sorts of medicine, slept hardly more than one hour nights, sweat a good deal, got not work that it seemed the last of my life, my heart troubled me so that I couldn't sit up nor walk. After I took the second bottle of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic my appetite returned, slept nearly all night, the sweats and heart trouble disappeared, and now am happy to say that I can work again and enjoy good health. CHASING THE ITATA.

The Charleston is Making Eighteen Knots an Hour.

SHE IS HEADING FOR ACAPULCO.

The Pursued Vessel is Expected to Transfer Her Arms to the Esmeralda.

Secretary Tracy Says He Does Not Anticipate a Fight but is Prepared for One—The Escaped Vessel Must be Captured—The Charleston Able to Cope With the Esmeralda.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—A bulletin has been posted here that the United States cruiser Charleston and the Itata had been sighted at sea off the Mexican coast both heading for Acapulco.

There seems to be no doubt that the Itata is bound to Acapulco to join the Chilian insurgent cruiser Esmeralda, which is said to be taking coal at that port.

The general impression here is that if the Esmeralda should interfere with the capture of the Itata a naval battle will follow.

The United States ship San Francisco has arrived at Iquique, and the Omaha left San Pedro, Cal., for this port last night.

The Charleston's Hot Chase.

SAN DIEGO, Cal. May 13.—The steamer Crescent City, plying to Cerros Island, off the lower California coast, for a mining company, has just arrived here.

She sighted the Charleston about six o'clock Monday evening 80 miles south of here. This indicates that the Charleston is making 18 knots an hour.

The Itata is expected to transfer the arms got from the Robert and Minnie to the Esmeralda at Socora Island, south of Cape St. Lucas, on Sunday evening. The Itata took aboard about 600 tons of coal here, and it is claimed that she can steam 14 knots an hour on 30 tons per day.

SECRETARY TRACY TALKS.

He Says the Charleston is Fully Able to Fight the Esmeralda.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 13.—Secretary Tracy, who is in this city on private business, was interviewed regarding the reports of the orders given to the commander of the cruiser Charleston in the matter of the capture the Itata, and the ability of the cruiser to cope with the Esmeralda in the event of the latter's interfering to protect the runaway vessel.

He scouted the idea that the Charleston was inferior to the Chilian vessel, and said she was fully able to cope with the Esmeralda, as were two other cruisers of the United States navy now in the Pacific. These latter were the San Francisco and Baltimore, and they were more than able to hold their own with the insurgent craft, though it was not likely they would fall in with her.

He added that the Charleston has orders to capture the Itata wherever she may be found upon the high seas. This includes all waters outside the three-mile limit or ports of foreign countries.

$160,000,000 FOR PENSIONS.

Commissioner Raum Says that He Will Have a Surplus This Year.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Commissioner Raum, of the Pension Office, has written a letter to Secretary Noble in which he says that after an examination of the accounts current of the several pension agents for the present fiscal year, and after a careful approximation of the probable payment for April, May and June, he has reached the conclusion that the total payments for army pensions during the present fiscal year will not exceed $160,000,000. The total appropriation for this service is $125,769,093, leaving an apparent surplus of $9,769,000.

The commissioner has instructed the pension agents to pay as many vouchers as possible during June, in order to have few claims go over into the next fiscal year. He says the allowance of so many claims under the act of June 27th, has materially reduced the amount of first payment on pension certificates.

All Depends on Gov. Campbell.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 13.—A Columbus, O., special says Congressman Bunting of the 23d district, New York, held a consultation with Gov. Campbell. Mr. Bunting is a Cleveland man. In an interview he said: "It is well understood in New York, that in case Gov. Campbell and the principles he represents should be successful in Ohio this fall, Mr. Cleveland will be nominee for President. Should Mr. McKinley be elected, David B. Hill will be the nominee of the convention."

The Rumor About Secretary Noble.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—At the Interior Department it was stated that there was no truth in the dispatch that Dr. Cole, a leading citizen of Montana, and one of Helena's richest men, received a letter from Washington, which stated that Secretary Noble would resign in a couple of months and Thomas H. Carter of Helena would be the new Secretary of the Interior.

Mexico Will Not Receive the Itata.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A dispatch from the City of Mexico says that when the Itata reaches any Mexican port she will not be allowed to land. She will be allowed to purchase a small quantity of victuals but no coal. The government, it is stated, is resolved to observe strictly the treaty obligations with Chili and not to harbor insurgents.

Death of Rev. Horatio Wood.

LOWELL, Mass., May 13.—Rev. Horatio Wood died last evening of pneumonia, aged 88. He graduated from Harvard in 1827, and from the Divinity school there five years later. He organized the ministry at large and was visiting clergyman from 1844 to 1862.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRAVELS.

He Spends the Day in Omaha and Will Arrive in Indianapolis To-morrow.

OMAHA, Neb., May 13.—The President was tired out when he retired on the train last night after his day's visit in Denver, because all day long he was jolted and tossed about in an open carriage over the muddy and unpaved streets of that city.

Governor Thayer and hundreds of citizens welcomed the Presidential party to the city this morning. The President was enthusiastically cheered on his way to the hotel. There will be a big parade and reception this afternoon.

This city will be the last long stop the President will make before reaching Washington. He stops at Indianapolis for forty-five minutes to-morrow, reaching Washington on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

MAY RESULT IN BLOODSHED.

The Juniors of Oberlin College Armed With Revolvers and Hatchets.

OBERLIN, O., May 13.—There is a big row among the students at Oberlin College which may result in bloodshed.

A few days ago the juniors began missing their silk hats and the tenets were attributed to the seniors.

The trouble brewed for a time and burst out in earnest during the morning, when the juniors armed themselves with hatchets, revolvers, axes, shotguns, etc., and began parading the streets, threatening to kill several members of the senior class. The juniors attended prayers in the chapel, arrayed in the cowboy habiliments and are still on the warpath.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of several of the unruly students.

THE DELAMATERS INDICTED.

Three Bills for Embezzlement Found Against the Mendville Bankers.

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 13.—The grand jury returned three true bills against G. B., G. W., T. A. and V. M. Delamater for embezzlement.

In court a motion was made for a continuance of the cases against the Delamaters. Hon. George A. Jenks of Brookville, Pa., and Hon. A. B. Richmond, of this city, made eloquent pleas for the defendants.

Hon. H. J. Humes, counsel for the prosecution, took up the political and personal career of the late candidate for Governor, and made a very fiery address.

George Wallace Delamater is constantly in court and appears no more than an idle spectator.

The Hughes Murder Trial Begun.

SARATOGA, N. Y., May 13.—The jury in the murder trial of Patrick Hughes of Helena, Mont., was completed at Ballston last evening, and the taking of evidence began this morning. Hughes and a companion, named Michael Henrahan, went to the house of an old farmer near Schuylerville, last November, while in an intoxicated condition and demanded admittance. While attempting to drive them away the old man was shot by either Hughes or Henrahan. At the conclusion of Hughes' trial Henrahan will be tried on the same charge.

Married a Connecticut Belle.

NEW YORK, May 13.—In the private parlors of the Murray Hill Hotel, last evening, occurred the wedding of Ogden Armour of Chicago, eldest son of Philip Armour, to Miss Loleta H. Sheldon, only daughter of the Hon. Marvin J. Sheldon of Suffield, Conn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Greensulus of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Chicago.

Official Report from the Coke Region.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 13.—The Governor has received a report from Adjutant General McClelland in which all is reported quiet in the coke region. The story that men were kept prisoners and obliged to work against their will, the Adjutant General says, is untrue. He found the men contented at the alleged places of imprisonment.

Hibernians Hold Secret Sessions.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The annual national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians is in session at Tammany Hall. There is a large attendance of delegates. M. F. Sherlock, of Syracuse the national delegate, is present. The sessions are secret.

Will Send Ex-Gov. Waller to Europe.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The foreign exhibits committee has decided to send ex-Gov. Thomas M. Waller of Connecticut to London to represent the Columbian Exposition. The duties of the office will probably lead Gov. Waller pretty much over Europe.

Work of the Florence Mob.

NEWTON, Mass., May 13.—A cablegram has been received by Mrs. Jacques, the mother of Wm. M. Jacques, stating that the elder daughter, Miss Louise, was seriously but not dangerously injured by the mob in Florence and that the family have gone to Rome.

The Scotch-Irish Congress.

LOUISVILLE, May 13.—No less than 1,500 delegates are expected to be in this city when the Scotch-Irish Congress assembles to-morrow. Robert Bonner is president of the Congress.

HAMLETS IN ASHES

Fire Still Sweeping Through the Pennsylvania Woods.

MANY PEOPLE ARE MISSING.

Over Four Thousand Acres Aflame Near Huntington, Pa.

The Town of Middleburg Wiped Out and the Town of Gaines Scorched—Havoc in Timber Lands—Hundreds of People Homeless in Michigan—Cars Without Number Melted to Ashes.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., May 13.—The woodland in many parts of the county is being rapidly swept away by forest fires. Within a radius of this place over 4,000 acres are estimated to be aflame.

The mountain fires are beyond all human control and can only be extinguished by a rainfall. The sections suffering most are in the East Broad Top region, where the fire extends nearly to Wells Tannery in Fulton County, and on Tussey's Mountain, Ray's Hill and Warrior's Ridge.

In Broad Top Solomon Koch, William Koch, and Eli Bates' farm buildings have been seriously threatened for nearly eight hours, and in Trough Creek Valley Isaac Taylor, Wilson Houck and Michael Martin's properties are momentarily threatened with destruction. The farmers in the whole burning district have sustained irreparable loss to fencing and hundreds of acres of growing grain have been ruined.

Fire Fighters Fail.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 13.—The heavy force of men that have been fighting the forest fires in the mountain region south of this city have made little impression upon the flames.

The town of Middlebury, near Wellsboro, was wiped out, and the town of Gaines was severely scorched yesterday, two stores, a meat market, Snyder's saloon and some small dwelling houses being destroyed. No estimate of the loss has been obtained.

A man suspected of having fired the woods was arrested but he escaped during last night.

DEVASTATED BY FLAMES.

Towns Swept Away and Hundreds of People Homeless.

WHITE CLOUD, Mich., May 13.—It is now believed that the five upper townships in Newaygo County have been swept away by forest fires.

Fields station, with its four sawmills and general store is no more, and its 300 inhabitants are without home or roof to cover their heads.

Otis is but a collection of smoking ruins, with the two hundred people who called the place home standing around in despair. Park City, in Lincoln township, went out in fire and smoke yesterday morning.

Lilly Station is hardly worth the name of station. Freight cars and logging trains melted away into ashes on the tracks where they stood.

DEACON COOPER'S DOWNFALL.

After Being Arrested on Several Charges He is Declared Insane.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 13.—Alexander Cooper of Sterling, deacon of the Methodist Church of that place, who was arrested a fortnight ago on the charge of assaulting a woman member of the church, was brought to the jail here yesterday on the double complaint of assault and battery upon a neighbor and striking his own daughter.

Cooper was placed in a room in the hospital ward to await examination as to his sanity. No sooner was the door locked upon him than he became violent and smashed the chairs, hurled cuspidors at the grated doors and twisted the gas fixtures from their fastenings. When the warden and Sheriff Lindsley entered the place to quiet him he struck the latter in the jaw, knocking him down.

In the morning he was visited by Dr. Hoffman, who decided upon examination that the deacon's reason had become dethroned, and he was thereupon committed to the Morris Plains Asylum. Cooper has been a deacon of the little church at Sterling for nineteen years.

Stabbed the Officer.

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., May 13.—Officer William Blaker was stabbed and severely injured by a prisoner named John Brehany, whom he was taking to Pottsville. The prisoner attempted to escape but the officer, though desperately wounded, grappled with him and succeeded in handcuffing him and conveying him to jail.

Death of Gen. Lemuel Todd.

CARLISLE, Pa., May 13.—Gen. Lemuel Todd, a distinguished lawyer of this city, is dead, aged 74 years. He was twice elected to Congress and was chairman of the first Republican State Committee in 1856. He presided at the Republican State conventions in 1863, 1868 and 1883, and was also a candidate for Governor but was defeated.

CLEVELAND TALKS.

He Delivers an Address Before the Democratic Club of Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 13.—The Cleveland Democracy formally opened its new club house last night. The building was ablaze with lights and redolent with the perfume of flowers and plants, which abounded in profusion. The exercises were of a nature to bring out whatever enthusiasm was pent up in the 1,600 members of the club, and they gave free vent to it on every possible occasion.

At a few minutes before 8 o'clock ex-President Cleveland, escorted by the reception committee, entered the club house. His entrance was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm which increased to an ovation as the distinguished statesman bowed in response to the welcome of his friends and admirers. When the storm of applause had died away the formal ceremonies were begun.

The president of the club, Herbert P. Bissell, delivered an address upon the purposes and growth of the organization and of welcome to the guest of the evening. Mr. Cleveland replied. He said: "As the smoke of the last stubbornly fought battle cleared away, no soldiers on the field were found surrounded by more tropies of victory than the forces of the Cleveland Democracy." He followed up these remarks with a long speech on public extravagance.

GAVE HER A COWHIDING.

The Young Lady Used a Club and the Councilman Forgot Himself.

WELLSTON, O., May 13.—Peter Gallagher, superintendent and line boss of the Comet Coal Company and ex-councilman, gave Miss Foster a cowhiding in the public road.

Mr. Gallagher, while in the council, was the means of having a road established which passed through the beautiful farm of Miss Foster, since which time the young lady has on every occasion, he says, taken it upon herself to insult and obstruct Gallagher while on his way to the mines.

Yesterday she stopped his carriage and began clubbing him, when he lost control of himself and gave her a cowhiding. Both persons are among the best people.

DR. BRIGGS DEFEATED.

The New York Presbytery Says He Must Stand Trial for Heresy.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Dr. Briggs must go to trial on the charge of heresy. The majority report of the New York Presbytery demanding that he be placed on trial was adopted.

When the vote was announced Dr. Briggs made a protest and said he would make a complaint to the Synod, concluding his remarks as follows: "I will have justice if I have to go to the Supreme Court of the country."

A committee was appointed by the Presbytery to prepare the charges against Dr. Briggs.

Catholic Knights of America Meet.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—The Supreme Council of the Catholic Knights of America convened during the morning in biennial session in St. George's Hall, 13th and Arch streets. The order has for its objects the uniting of all Catholics of every profession and business; to give all possible moral and material aid in its power to members of the order by holding instructive and scientific lectures; by encouraging each other in business, and in establishing a benefit fund from which $2,000 shall be paid at death. The Council has about 23,000 members, divided among 42 States. The convention will last four days.

Sudden Ending of the Demarest Case.

NYACK, N. Y., May 13.—After hearing testimony for the people in the forgery case of Assemblyman Frank P. Demarest, Judge Cullen dismissed the case from Rockland County on the grounds that the court had no jurisdiction, the crime having been committed in Erie County. The court then committed Mr. Demarest in the custody of county jail for 30 days to await a warrant for his arrest from the county of Erie, the prisoner's bail being fixed at $5,000, which was furnished.

Vessel and All on Board Lost.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., May 13.—The schooner Kimball sailed from Manistee on the evening of May 6, for Northport, loaded with shingles and salt. She has not yet arrived at her destination. Shingles have been seen floating between Cathead Point and Manitou Island, and a trunk has come ashore. Besides the crew, a number of prominent citizens of Northport were on board. The owners think that the vessel and all on board were lost.

Fought a Duel in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 13.—A duel with swords was fought in a room at the Palace Hotel Monday night by two men evidently in the theatrical business. The proprietor of the hotel, learning what was going on in his house, stopped the affair, not, however, until after one of the combatants was slightly injured. Dispute over a woman was the cause.

Big Crowd at the Launching.

NEWBURG, N. Y., May 13.—The new steel screw ferry boat Bremen, of the Hoboken Improvement Company Line, was launched at 2 o'clock from the Marvel yards in this city. The launch was witnessed by a great concourse of people, among them 200 prominent steamboat men from New York with their families.

Spain's Terms for Future Treaties.

MADRID, May 13.—It is officially stated that Spain will insist on her colonies being excluded from future treaties with European powers, and will decline to assent to any stipulation for "favored Nation" treatment.

Gladstone Still Feverish.

LONDON, May 13.—Mr. Gladstone is this morning reported to be still feverish, but otherwise he is progressing very favorably. The influenza with which he suffers is of a mild type.

MURDEROUS ATTACK

A Japanese Attempts the Life of the Czar's Son.

STRUCK TWICE WITH A SWORD.

The Helmet Worn by the Heir to All the Russias Saves His Life.

A Report that the Assassin is a Lunatic—Japan's Emperor Hurries to Tender His Sympathy to the Wounded Russian Prince—The Czarina Prostrated When She Heard the News.

SHANGHAI, May 13.—The following particulars have been received of the attack on the Czarewitch:

The Czarewitch had gone to the picturesque resort called Otau, on Lake Biwa, six miles from Kioto. There a native policeman named Tsuda Sanzo, attacked the Prince, striking him on the head with his sword without intent to murder.

Owing to the thickness of the sun-helmet worn by the Prince the sword was deflected, and described a cut down the side of the forehead, not of a serious character. The imperial party hastened back to Kioto and got surgical assistance.

The culprit is believed to be insane. The Japanese Emperor and his ministers hurried to Kioto to express their sympathy.

The News in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 13.—The Czarina was prostrated when she heard the news of the attack on her son. From the first she was opposed to the journey, and averred that she had a presentiment of evil. But the Czar insisted that his heir must travel and see the world.

Always Expecting an Attack.

In connection with the report of the attempt madeon the life of the Czarewitch, it is remembered that ever since he started on his journey around the world his official suite has been in a constant state of anxiety lest just such an attempt should be made.

It has been reported that a perfectly innocent man was cut down by the swords of the officers of a Russian man-of-war, because, in the discharge of his duty, he approached the Czarewitch with what appeared to them threatening haste. On another occasion, it is said, the entire Russian party was thrown into a panic by the explosion of a sodawater bottle.

In China, by reason of the strained relations which exist between that country and Russia, it was feared that there always existed the chance of some unfortunate occurrence which would mar the pleasures of the imperial Russian visit, but that a Japanese should attempt the life of the Czarewitch was a thing not contemplated.

OUR CANADIANS WANTED.

The Dominion Government Trying to Induce Them to Return.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 13.—Mr. Shepard, the special emigration agent in the New England States, in an interview with a reporter, spoke of the efforts of the Canadian Government to induce the Canadians who are settled in the United States to return. He said that the work was progressing favorably, and that thousands are willing to come back if they had the means.

Altogether there are about 291,000 Canadians in the New England States. Fully 93,000 are out of employment, and many are badly off.

These people were induced to go to the United States on the belief that they would get better wages and plenty of employment, but they soon found out that this was a delusion.

Throughout New England to-day wages are lower than they are in Canada.

In the latter country there is plenty of work for good steady men, and the cost of living is a good deal cheaper.

Flogged His Wife.

VIENNA, May 13.—Zia Pasha, the Turkish Ambassador, has created some scandal by causing one of his wives to be so severely beaten that her cries resounded through the neighborhood. The castigation is said to have been performed by a black nondescript, who came with the household from Constantinople, and it is rumored that the tendency of the fair Turkish woman to gad abroad in Vienna had something to do with the performance.

Russia's Financial Schemes.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 13.—It is said that cordial relations continue between the Russian Minister of Finance and the Rothschilds. It is not the intention of the Government to make reprisals, and such contracts as have been made to withdraw gold from England were entered into before the load was abandoned by the Rothschilds.

A Bomb Excites Lisbon.

LISBON, May 13.—Great excitement was created here about noon when a dynamite bomb exploded near the office of the Minister of the Interior. The shock was tremendous, and caused great alarm and excitement, but no serious results followed. The police have as yet been unable to obtain any clue as to the author of the outrage.

The Thunderer Detained.

GIBRALTAR, May 13.—The British war vessel Thunderer is detained at Gibraltar because of the numerous cases of influenza which have appeared among her crew.

Boulanger Warned.

BRUSSELS, May 13.—Belgium has threatened to expel Boulanger unless he will be silent on the subject of politics.

The Baccarat Scandal Trial.

LONDON, May 13.—The baccarat scandal case will come up for trial before the Durham Bench on June 1.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A destructive drouth prevails in the South Side counties of Virginia.

Several collieries in the Schuylkill coal region which have been idle have resumed.

E. Wilson, piano dealer of Boston has assigned. Liabilities, $70,000; assets, $200,000.

Two thousand persons are attending the Railway Conductors' convention now in session in St. Louis.

The Chicago Cigar Manufacturers' Association has refused to arbitrate with the striking cigarmakers.

The bill to extend the charter of the present Cape Cod Ship Canal Company was rejected by the Massachusetts Senate.

The contractors and builders of Wilkesbarre, Pa., have agreed with the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union to adopt the nine-hour day.

Secretary Tracy will go to Portsmouth, N. H., July 4 so as to be present at the celebration. It is also stated that the white squadron will rendezvous there at that time.

Alfred Leavitt, for thirty years the keeper of the lighthouse at White Island, Isle of Shoals, and of Boon Island light, is dead at his home in Hampton, N. H., aged 73 years.

Edward W. Hallinger, the negro pugilist, who murdered his paramour, Mary Paterson, in Jersey City April 5, and who pleaded guilty to the crime, was sentenced to be hanged June 30.

The mystery of the disappearance of William Barstow, of Providence, R. I., who left his residence a week ago Saturday, has been solved by the finding of his body in the water at Mills Wharf in Providence. It is evidently a case of suicide.

Allen Sly and O. A. Barton of Clyde, N. Y., were found early in the morning in an unconscious condition at the Clyde Hotel, caused by inhaling gas. Going to the hotel at a late hour they blew out the gas and retired. They will probably recover.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—For New England and Eastern New York: Generally fair, except showers on the coast; stationary temperature; variable winds.

For New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland: Showers; stationary temperature; east winds.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Fair; slowly rising temperature; variable winds.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FORCE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DEMAREST, . . Managing Editor.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Ladies well know that Peck's is the only store to find their embroideries.

—Several Salvation Army cadets paid a pleasant visit to cadet Grosclaude at Montclair, Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Whitely were made happy yesterday morning by the advent of a daughter.

—The Boys' Club now opens evenings at 7:30 and closes at 9:15. Several new games have been added to the rooms.

—Emma Way, of Vine street, fell through a show window at Henderson's store in the borough, last evening, and was severely cut.

—There will be a meeting of the Edwards Zouaves this evening at 8:30, for drill, to prepare for Decoration Day. A full attendance is desired.

—An entertainment will be given to the members of the Boys' Club next Saturday evening. It will consist of songs and readings, commencing at 7:45 o'clock.

—Men digging post holes on Park avenue near the Campbell club-house, this morning, struck a vein of brightly glittering stuff that looked like gold. But 'twas only mica.

—The Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters will give a strawberry and ice-cream festival at No. 59 North avenue, Thursday and Friday, afternoon and evening, June 4 and 5.

—All the latest fashions in orange and souvenir spoons and individual butter spreaders may be had at Dickinson's, the jeweler and optician. He has a fine display of them in his window.

—This was recently said by a most charming young woman of this city: "It's awfully funny! Grandma had only boys. Mamma was the only girl—at least of those who grew to manhood."

—A group of boys were frolicking about a big street roller in motion on Mountain avenue, Westfield, yesterday, when one of them slipped and fell under the heavy mass of metal. His foot was badly crushed.

—The hotel accommodations in The Elkwood having been completed, proprietor Miller has now thirty-five handsomely furnished rooms at the disposal of his guests. Board in connection either table d'hote or to order.

—The Unions of Grant avenue will play against the Pond Machine Tool Works Grants in a game of base-ball, Saturday afternoon, at 3:45, on the Unions' grounds, corner of Grant avenue and South Second street.

—Seven prisoners for intoxication paid $36 in fines to the city Monday and Tuesday. One signed the pledge to be henceforth a total abstainer, and placed himself under a physician's care for treatment during the trying period.

—Union county's new roads were fairly alive with wheelmen Sunday. Westfield avenue, from Elizabeth to Plainfield, had over 300 cycles on it at one time, and the scene was likened, by one of the riders who knows, to that on the famous Ripley road in England.

—Mrs. Dr. Edwards, the celebrated clairvoyant, announces in another column that she will remain in this city only until next Tuesday morning, and that she will never again return for business. Therefore now is the last chance to consult this wonderful woman.

—John French, an old man who has of late worked for Mrs. Chase of East Front street, fainted away at the Salvation Army meeting last night and had to be assisted to his home. He has been failing rapidly the past few weeks, and is said to be dying of old age.

—Patrick Muldoon's mustang got out of its stable on West Third street early yesterday morning and by its antics frightened milkman Melick's horse so that that animal took refuge on the front steps of Sullivan's saloon, after upsetting the wagon, damaging the vehicle, and spilling all the milk.

—For twenty years the late ex-Senator Canfield, of Morris county, drove a gray mare. The animal was very fond of her old master and was very kindly treated. Last week she dropped dead suddenly at the Succasunna railroad station of heart failure. Two hours later her master died of the same trouble.

—John Nichols and William Mosher, who are known to the piscatorial fraternity as "Iron John" and "Amateur Billy", dropped their lines in the briny deep at Bound Brook, last Saturday. The catch was large, as usual, and among the number was a 5 and a half pound German carp, taken in out of the wet by the Amateur.

—Last Saturday night's run of the Elizabeth Wheelmen was one of the largest and most enjoyable held in years. Seventeen men comprised the party, and the ride was to Plainfield. At Westfield they met the Plainfield Club, and the entire party, numbering about forty, rode on together and made a short parade through the streets of Plainfield.

—A very interesting game of base-ball was played Saturday afternoon between the Professionals of Scotch Plains and the Juniors of the Pond Machine Tool Works. The score of 19 to 18 was in favor of the Professionals, who, although men, did not beat the Juniors by a very big margin. The battery for the Professionals was Hand and Ball; for the Juniors Poose and McComas. The umpire was Albert McComas.

GONE WITH ANOTHER MAN.

A Happy Home Deserted by a Faithless Wife.

The borough of North Plainfield has a sensation in the elopement of the wife of Wm. B. Avery with John B. Gable of this city.

Mr. Avery is a prosperous stationer in New York city. His country residence at No. 47 Westervelt avenue is one of the finest in that aristocratic neighborhood. Mr. Avery has always provided liberally for his wife's every want, and furnished her with horses, carriages, fine furniture, jewelry, elegant costumes, and every luxury which her tastes demanded.

Why a woman with not a wish ungratified should prove faithless to so kind and loving a husband, Mr. Avery cannot understand; and his wife's strange infatuation with Gable is all a mystery to him.

The woman seems madly in love with her paramour. They fled together last Friday. Gable has since returned to town secretly at night and has boasted to firemen and other friends that Mrs. Avery was "dead stuck" on him and would do anything for his sake. He exhibited pawn tickets for jewels and other goods that Mrs. Avery had had him dispose of to pay their expenses.

Mr. Avery says that he is now satisfied that Mrs. Avery has been away with Gable before. He was never suspicious until recently, and now that he knows the truth he will apply at once for a divorce.

In to-day's PRESS he forbids the public to trust his erring spouse on his behalf.

Gable is an awning maker and upholsterer by occupation, and has been engineer of Gazelle Engine No. 1, but has turned his keys over to the department and has handed in his resignation. He has a wife and family at 47 Cottage place.

Avery is a man of the highest standing in the community, and both he and Gable's deserving family have the fullest sympathy of the public.

BY THE WAY.

—At 8 o'clock this evening the Plainfield Bicycle Club will enjoy a run to Cranford.

—Adjutant Leyh of the Salvation Army has been enjoying a visit from her sister, Capt. Leyh.

—The regular business meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the rooms tomorrow afternoon at 3:30.

—The Plainfield Board of Health authorize THE PRESS to state that not a single case of scarlet fever exists in Plainfield to-day.

—A borough woman had her pocket picked at the corner of Broadway and Murray street, while on a shopping trip to New York Monday.

—One of Mount Holly's curiosities is a man who never lent a cent in his life, never smoked a cigar nor used tobacco, never drank a drop of liquor, and never used a cuss word.

—The annual meeting for the election of officers and directors of the Y. M. C. A. will be held to-morrow evening at eight o'clock. All classes of members are urged to be present.

—Dr. H. K. Carroll will speak on "The Temperance Outlook" at the regular weekly meeting at Reform Hall to-morrow evening. The well-known ability of the Doctor will doubtless insure a full house.

—A large frog stopped up the water-pipes in the Y. M. C. A. building at New Brunswick recently. The janitor unscrewed a joint of pipe to make an investigation, and the frog was blown into his face, followed by a flood of water that almost took away his breath.

—During the recent scarlet-fever scare a woman who had been told by a physician that belladonna was an excellent preventive of the disease, for one exposed to take, took an overdose of the drug and nearly died. Prompt medical attendance was all that saved her.

—Lieutenant Watkins, of the Salvation Army, who is known as "the English girl" by the people among whom she works, but who is of Welsh nationality, has been quite ill, but in spite of her sickness she has pluckily attended to her Army duties, and has been active in seeking and saving sinners in the dark corners of the city.

—In a free fight that followed a dispute over a base-ball game at Rahway, Saturday evening, Michael Stewart was struck on the head with a brick, and his skull was fractured. He may die. William Alexanders, colored, was struck on the head with a bat and badly hurt. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of all who were concerned in the row.

A Pin-cushion Loaf.

One small pin raised a deal of commotion in South Camden, the other night. Cornelia Pernis, a stout, good-natured colored woman, was eating supper. She took a bite of baker's bread, and something stuck in her mouth. There was the utmost confusion for a time, but at last Cornelia was taken to Cooper Hospital, and the surgeons, after a deal of work, dislodged a pin.

The Past Year of Grace Parish.

On Sunday last, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector, read the parochial report of the work of Grace church parish for the past year, including the following statement:

Families in the parish, 133; individuals, about 500. Baptisms—Infants, 13; adults, 5. Confirmed, 43. Marriages, 8. Burials, 27. Communicants, 339. Receipts, $12,620.

The League's Greatest Social.

Never have the parlors of the First Baptist church contained more young people than assembled there last night, the occasion being the monthly sociable of that wide-awake organization, the Young People's League.

Every one seemed thoroughly to enjoy the fine entertainment prepared by L. W. Randolph and his able assistants of the Social Committee.

Mr. Marx's exhibition of the phonograph captivated all. The sociability of every one present was a subject of much favorable comment. The following excellent programme was rendered:

Address of welcome.....Pres. L. H. Biglow, Jr
Quartette—"Maiden of Fleur de Lis."
Mr. and Mrs. Biglow, Miss Edith Harold, Mr. Wm. E. MacClymont.
Encore—"The Owl."
Recitation—"A Mother's Prayer,"...Miss Elliott
Phonographic addresses and solos—
Exhibited by Mr. Marx.
Sociability with refreshments.
Piano solo—"Minuette".....Mr. MacClymont
Phonographs.....Mr. Marx
Quartette—"Good night, Good Night, Beloved."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. T. S. Davis returned to-day from a short vacation trip.

Eugene Everit of La Grande avenue arrived home to-day from Atlantic City, much improved in health.

J. B. Dumont has been elected a member of the Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange, to serve four years.

Miss Phillips is very acceptably filling the place of matron Walrod at the Muhlenberg Hospital during Miss Walrod's vacation.

Miss Ida H. Sofield of 68 West Second street returned last evening after a three weeks' enjoyable visit with her grandparents at Perth Amboy, N. J.

Sinclair Stewart of Park avenue was one of the prominent guests at the launching of the handsome new-style screw ferryboat Bremen at Newburg yesterday.

Last evening Miss Florence M. Randolph, of West Front street, gave an evening social to a large number of young people. The friends parted at a seasonable hour, all agreeing that they had spent a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Becker, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who have been spending a few days at The Albion, left yesterday afternoon for their home. Mrs. Becker is the sister of Senator Hines of Wilkesbarre, and niece of Mrs. Peter Hines of Liberty street.

Borough Police Protection Wanted.

Now that the borough has a regularly appointed marshal in Thomas Rutledge and a police justice in Thomas Crosley it is to be hoped that the police protection that of late has been so sadly lacking will now be accorded to the North Plainfielders.

During the past week several ladies have been openly insulted on the borough streets, and one who was seized by the arm by a ruffianly fellow got rid of her assailant only by screaming loudly and whacking him in the face with her parasol.

Night before last a young man on a bicycle was stopped by a local tough, and money was demanded. The bicyclist managed to get away without injury or loss, but the disappointed robber threw stones after him and almost hit him.

It is said that bad gangs infest the dark corners near some of the bridges and demand money of the foot passengers they waylay.

Go to This Church To-night.

The pastor of the Congregational church wishes to give notice to his people that Mrs. Isabel Spenser Freeland of Boston will be present at the meeting this evening and will speak on the subject of "Open Church Doors". Mrs. Freeland is a member of the Berkley Temple Congregational church, which became famous as one of the pioneers in aggressive Christian work in novel lines, and comes with the highest testimonials of the Rev. C. A. Dickinson, the Rev R. S. Storrs, D. D., the Rev. A. H. Bradford, and many others. The pastor desires every member of his congregation to be present, as this is a rare opportunity.

C. L. GOODRICH.

A Bad Blow for the Court to Make.

Justice Alexander Rhodes, of Riverside, Burlington county, and Justice Lowe were sitting in Strehler's hotel, engaged in conversation, when a young man named Cooney Kebler entered and began swearing at Rhodes, because of a recent decision he had rendered in his court. Rhodes arose and hit Kebler in the mouth. Unfortunately Kebler's mouth was open, and the Justice's hand in coming in contact with his teeth was badly lacerated. Local blood-poisoning has since set in, and Rhodes's hand and arm are swollen to twice their size. His condition is critical.

The Women's Missionary Society.

PITTSBURG, May 13.—The eighth annual convention of the Women's General Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Church of North America convened in the Third United Presbyterian Church, this city, last night. The church was crowded and everything suggested a successful convention. About ninety delegates from all parts of the United States are in attendance.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for Dyspepsia, &c., and have been cured by them. I cheerfully recommend them to all who suffer from the same.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

Call at once, as you now have your last chance in this city, to see the greatest Seer now celebrated and most favored Clairvoyant in the World,

Mrs DR. EDWARDS,

Known in this country from Maine to Mexico. She was born with the wonderful gift of second sight, and with a veil. She is the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter. She reveals every mystery; tells you if the one you love is true or false. She removes every grief, settles lovers' troubles, and causes speedy love marriages. She gives reliable information to gentlemen in all business transactions, and informs them how to make profitable investments and acquire speedy riches. She tells lucky lottery numbers. She has an ORIENTAL EGYPTIAN TALISMAN, which is noted all the world over for, as a specific charm for the unlucky. All who are in trouble or sick, should call without delay.

PUBLIC AUCTION SALE,

To settle the estate of J. A. Whitman, deceased, I will sell at auction on TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1891, at 11 a. m., on the premises.

This property is situated on East Front street, between Leland and Raymond avenues Plainfield, N. J., opposite mansion of Mulford Cole—consisting of 6 acres of land under cultivation, with large House of 12 rooms, containing all modern improvements. Also, stable, carriage house, etc. Beautiful lawn, 2nd foot frontage on main road. This is a rare chance, and one of the finest places to be had in Plainfield; 45 minutes from New York; 31 trains to and from New York daily.

I will also sell on the same day, after the sale of the house, the entire furniture, bric-a-brac, piano, etc contained in the house; also, one fine horse, 7 years old, broke, and good ladies' driver; one phaeton, 1 two-seated carriage one sleigh, one express wagon, 3 sets single harness, farming utensils, etc.

The house, grounds, etc., will be open for inspection until the day of sale. This place has a great future before it, as the electric road intends passing the door.

Sale positively and without reserve to the highest bidder.

P. S.—Lunch served at noon.

HARRISON'S "Town and Country" READY MIXED PAINTS,

Are unsurpassed (if equalled) in the following particulars:

They are painters' paints.
They are perfectly pure.
They may be used by an old-time painter, just as he would use White Lead mixed by himself.
They will save money to painters.
They are uniform
They are as bright as the best tinting colors can make them.
They are permanent.
They are good for many years wear when properly applied.
They will stand unlimited brushing out.
They are cheaper than any similar color mixed by hand.
They will cover on a good surface 400 square feet, two coats, per gallon.
They will cover on a poor surface 300 square feet, two coats, per gallon.
When freely thinned out with pure, raw Linseed Oil, their spreading capacity is still greater.

A PLAINFIELD PASTOR'S PLAN.

Protestants Must Get Together. He says, Or Fall Before Their Enemy.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis has an interesting paper on "Christian Unity" in a recent issue of The Church Union. He says:

* * * Protestantism claims to be a reformatory movement, out from Roman Catholicism. It can never justify the movement which gave it birth, nor escape the well-directed charge of schism, unless it finds ground for a broader, better, and more enduring union than the church from which it has withdrawn. Protestantism, divided and dividing, is confronted by its ancient enemy, compact, subtle, adjustable, changing its skies, and to some extent its methods, but never its purpose of making the world human Catholic. Against such an enemy, Protestantism can have no future without greater union. * * *

I venture the following as a practical step toward Church Union. Let there be a world-wide commission appointed, say by the agency of the Evangelical Alliance, which shall include the representatives of the various Protestant schools of thought. Add to these not less than five men of known candor, learning and honesty, who are not members of any denomination, clear-headed students of history. Let that commission begin a systematic examination of the Bible, particularly of the New Testament, to determine what Christianity was, actually and germinally, before it was perverted by paganism. Give at least ten years' time to the examination of the first two hundred years from the birth of Christ. This would antedate existing symbols. I believe such an examination would develop a platform broad enough, a polity adjustable enough, a system of faith simple enough, to make it possible for Protestant Christianity to hasten the answer to Christ's prayer for unity. All movements like Protestantism must be separative at first; but if the movement is justifiable, if it is based on fundamental truth, the second stage will be unity. The close of this century ought to see such union ripening. If no such union can be accomplished, Protestantism is a failure and Christianity is not an universal religion.

Knights Templar Grand Commandery.

The thirty-third annual conclave of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar met in Masonic Temple at Trenton, Tuesday, Grand Commander Leonard L. Grear, of Passaic Bridge, presiding. He reported a flourishing outlook and sixteen Commanderies in the State, with a membership of 1,500. The following officers were elected:

Joseph Fulper, Washington, Grand Commander; Wm. T. Muchmore, Morristown, Deputy Grand Commander; James McCain, Trenton, Grand Captain General; Thos. Godson, Newark, Grand Prelate; Edward Mills, Camden, Grand Senior Warden; Robert Dingwell, Newark, Grand Junior Warden; Frederick G. Weise, Bordentown, Grand Treasurer; Charles Bechtel, Trenton, Grand Recorder; Wm. J. Lockwood, Paterson, Grand Standard Bearer; Albert J. Briggs, Riverton, Grand Sword Bearer; J. V. Alstrom, Asbury Park, Grand Warden; Samuel G. Bennett, Trenton, Grand Captain of Guards.

The Past Grand Commanders' Association elected J. S. Roberts, now of New York, President, and Charles Bechtel, Trenton, Secretary and Treasurer.

Praise for Secretary Manning's Thursday Talks.

The following bit of eulogy of a most excellent Plainfield institution is published in The Sabbath Recorder, a religious paper published at Alfred Centre, N. Y.:

The Young Men's Christian Association holds a prominent and important place among the beneficent institutions of Plainfield. One interesting and profitable feature of the good work it is doing, is an occasional practical talk given gratuitously to young men, by men of experience in the particular line of which they speak. These are sometimes business talks by business men, and sometimes talks on health by local physicians. In how many of our towns and villages, even where no such organizations exist, might there be much good done by this method of work, in improving and preserving the health of young men, and in elevating their aspirations, and giving practical tone to their ideas of business in whatever vocation it may soon be theirs to pursue.

Claim the Company Was Negligent.

The relatives of John Hill, who had his foot crushed by the cars at Dunellen Saturday evening, are highly indignant at what they deem the culpable negligence of the railway company. They say that instead of walking along the track and being thrown down by a drill engine he was alighting from the train which he had boarded by mistake when without warning the cars were jerked suddenly ahead and he was thrown to the ground with his foot across the rail and underneath the wheels. A suit for damages may result.

Called Noah a Hyprocrite.

Because John French, the gardener, called Noah Pike a hyprocrite and offered to punch his head, Noah had John arrested. This morning John told Judge Codington that Pike owed him fourteen shillings for work done, and that because of Noah's repeated refusals to pay him he got righteously indignant, called him appropriate names, and told him all the satisfaction he wanted was to thrash him. The Court suspended sentence; but cautioned French to control his temper.

—S. H. Smith, a colored man who lives near Netherwood, ran a nail into his foot while working at 202 Park avenue yesterday. Lockjaw is feared.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

A Bear's Wanderings in New Jersey.

The famous young bear, Kitty Hill, is said to be now in the Bear Swamp, having created much consternation among the farmers of Lawrence.

This bear seems to live a charmed life. It mingles more or less with civilization, yet is its own master. It is the bear that escaped two summers ago from the Trenton City Park under sensational circumstances. She was then a cub, purchased for the park in the Pocono Mountains by Councilman Edmund C. Hill, who started the little zoological garden. When the bear arrived at the Clinton street station by express, the box was roughly tumbled from the car, and it fell apart. The cub showed her teeth, and was at once given the right of way. She dashed across the lawn, and, finding an opening in the fence, entered the yard of the hotel near the depot. She went through the kitchen and wandered into the bar-room, which was at the time filled with tipplers. The presence of the cub cleaned out the bar-room quicker than one could say Jack Robinson. The cub followed to the street, but was met with a reception of flying brick, and then it took refuge in the Mercer Cemetery, opposite the station, where it held fort against several hundred excited men and boys, and was finally lassoed by a colored man. The bearpit at the park was not yet ready for the cub's reception, so it was locked up in the old barn, and the newspapers out of admiration for the precociousness of the cub called it Kitty Hill, after Councilman Hill, Chairman of the Park Committee. Two days of confinement wore Kitty's temper, and one day Kitty unlatched the barn door and walked out. She reached the canal that winds its way in front of the park, and jumped in. The park guards gave a lively chase, and Kitty saved her bacon by swimming from one side of the canal to the other, until she distanced them; then she took to the woods. Since then she has been a veritable tourist, and has managed to keep out of range of bullets and clubs and lived on the fat of the land. She has disturbed the suburban quietness of many places, but defied the ingenious plans of men to capture her. Her appearance during the past week in Mercer county, only a few miles from the park, is a matter of surprise.

The Coming Big Race.

The Irvington-Millburn road-race now absorbs the chief interest of wheelmen. For a number of years the race has been the principal wheeling event within a hundred miles of this city, and has yearly attracted a large number of spectators. Last year they numbered not less than 5,000. The number of contestants in 1889 was thirty-four, twenty-three of whom covered the full twenty-five miles, and twenty-eight twenty miles. Twenty-nine were in the race at the fifteen-mile post and thirty-two covered ten miles. In 1890 there were sixty-five starters, fifty-one of whom rode the entire distance. Information obtained from trustworthy sources places the probable number of wheelmen who will start in this year's race at 100, and the total number of entries at 140. The prizes this year will be more costly than ever before. The pneumatic and cushion tire will make their appearance in this race, and, though penalized four minutes each, will probably lower all the existing records on that course.

The winners for the past three seasons and their clubs, together with the official handicap and time made, are as follows:

	Club.	Handicap.	H. M. S.

No Oleomargarine This Summer.

People who visit the seaside resorts of New Jersey this Summer will not have to eat oleomargarine for butter. State Dairy Commissioner McGuire is taking steps to prevent its being served to guests in the big hotels at Long Branch, Asbury Park, Atlantic City, Cape May, and other places. He will notify the proprietors of these hotels of the requirements of the law, and will hold them responsible for all the oleomargarine found in their establishments.

The deputies of Commissioner McGuire have learned that the agents of oleomargarine factories have already made contracts to supply many of the summer hotels with this counterfeit butter. Commissioner McGuire says that he will prosecute all persons whom he learns violates the law in this respect.

To Prosecute "Beneficial" Societies.

Vigorous action is about to be taken by the State against certain of the short-term beneficial societies that have flourished so largely in this and other cities. Acting under orders of Governor Abbett, Colonel Harvey, State Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, has ordered that writs of capias be issued against the officers, local secretaries and agents of the various societies, charging them with violating the insurance and banking laws of the State. The writs are in the nature of a civil suit for the recovery of $500 penalty for violating the insurance laws.

Cuss of the Toadstool.

A thoughtless man, rambling through the woods in the outskirts of Plainfield, caught sight of a cluster of giant toadstools growing at the foot of a tree and began to slash them with his walking-stick.

"Now, what on earth did you want to do that for?"—asked his companion.

"Why, they're no good. They're poisonous, and unsightly, too"—replied the cane-wielder.

"Well," retorted the thoughtful man, "they're one of the most useful things that grow. They are excellent proof of the old chestnut that everything in nature has its use and value to man."

"It's the first time I ever heard of it", said the thoughtless man dubiously; whereupon the thoughtful one at the very first opportunity took the thoughtless one into a drug-store. Heaped high in a glass case on one of the counters were hundreds of odd-shaped things that looked like pieces of chamois-skin. They were odorless and almost as soft as velvet to the touch.

"What are they?"—asked the thoughtless man in surprise. "Dried toadstools"—replied the thoughtful man.

"Nobody ought to be without them"—chimed in the druggist.—"There isn't a better simple cure for nose-bleed than a bit of toadstool thrust into the bleeding nostril. Toadstools make excellent dressing for certain kinds of wounds, are highly valued by surgeons, and are in big demand in hospitals. Germans use toadstools exclusively as pipe-lighters also. The dried fungus makes perfect tinder. It is cut in long strips, and these in turn are clipped at the edge in a sort of fringe and tipped with phosphorus and sulphur just like match-heads. By rubbing the fringe against any rough surface it ignites just like a match and burns like punk. If you thrust a bit into the bowl of your pipe you can light the tobacco with ease in the highest wind and biggest storm. In fact, the harder it blows the better your pipe will light. Hunters and fishermen find this sort of a match much preferable to any other. A dried toadstool makes a curiosity, too, for it is astonishing how few people know what it is when they see it."

A Baby Convict.

The New Jersey State Prison is sheltering the most interesting baby convict in the United States. A little mite of a chap, with a bright, sunshiny face, is locked up in one of the cells just off from the prison centre. He is dressed in conventional red and black stripes, and has to do the lock-step with hardened sinners. This baby convict is Charles Kroekel, who is, according to his own computation, only fourteen years old, but others who know him claim he is only eleven. His size and general child-like appearance suggest that the latter may be a fact, for he is very small, but very clever for his age.

Charley is a deaf mute, whose criminal career began when he was nine years old. He showed a precociousness in somuch that he could pick any lock he could get hold of, and his mania ran to locks, and latterly to those which locked up something worth stealing.

Keeper James Patterson of the State Prison finds that this little chap is somewhat of an elephant on his hands. He has been in the State Prison only a week, and it has not yet been decided what to do with him. He is sentenced for a year at hard labor, but just what kind of labor to put him at is now bothering the official. It was at first thought that he would make a good prison messenger, but he is as slippery as a weasel. He can flatten his little body out and slip between window bars. The prison authorities are afraid some day he will make his escape by the way of a drain pipe. For the present the deputies will keep their weather eye on him.

Charley's patents are honest people in Egg Harbor City, and there Charley began his criminal career by breaking into all the stores.

We heard a mechanic say that he would not be without Salvation Oil at any time, as it kills pain at once. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Let all well-meaning parents protect their helpless little ones, and always keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. 25 cents a bottle.

The Almanac Jokes Get a Rest.

The Lowell Times says of the minstrel company that is to appear at Music Hall, this evening: "The performance by this organization at the Opera House was satisfactory to the large audience that witnessed it. The old-time first part was omitted, and the almanac jokes got a rest. There was no lack of singing during the evening, however, and the company is strongly equipped in this particular. J. M. Norcross, the veteran basso, who has been before the public for thirty years, still maintains his reputation as one of the best singers in the profession; the Gormans in their character acts do everything with skill and finish. Arthur Rigby's monologue was so amusing that the audience held him as long as he would stay, and the sentimental songs of John Hyams and Alex. Cameron were well rendered gems. Reto's contortion act and Layman's transformations added variety to the excellent programme, a pleasing and noticeable feature of which was the prevalence of white faces."

Utilizing Furnace Gases.

At three or four of the Scotch iron-works, the Furnace Gases Company are paying a yearly rental for the right of collecting the smoke and gases from the blast furnaces. These are passed through several miles of wrought-iron tubing, gradually diminishing in size from six feet to about eighteen inches, and as the gases cool there is deposited a considerable yield of oil. At one establishment in Glasgow they pump and collect about sixty million feet of furnace gas per day, and recover, on an average, twenty-five thousand gallons of furnace oils per week, using the residual gases, consisting chiefly of carbon monoxide, as fuel for distilling and other purposes, and a considerable yield of sulphate of ammonia is also obtained.

Y MOTHER'S MEMORY.

mother died ere I could scarce
breathe her beloved name, d o'er my childhood's sunny path ark clouds of sorrow came;
bark of life was wrecked upon
disfortune's hidden reef, ere bright manhood on me dawned
had wept tears of grief;
d now I seek my mother's grave, hat not one soul may see
w dark the shadows are that throw their somber hues o'er me.

e birds are in the merry glen,
The April flowers bloom;
t their beauties leave, to sit beside my mother's tomb;
d there I watch, in solemn thought,
some bright star in the sky,
d think within its depths I see
My mother's gentle eye:
d happy dreams within me rise,
My sorrowing heart to cheer;
think—although to me unseen—
Her loving spirit's near.

SHREWD SMUGGLER.

Was Caught at Last and Gives His Little Game Away.

ming Tricks That Completely Deceived the Most Experienced Officers—Not as Much in It for Inspectors Now as Formerly.

First-class professional smuggling, the custom house authorities, is idly becoming a lost art. In the ggregate, perhaps, there is a large antity of dutiable goods smuggled ough this port, but it is done in all quantities and by persons who do t make a business of violating the venue laws.

his is generally well known, the cus- ms inspectors making seizures of utiable goods are entitled to rewards r their work. These rewards vary th the valuations made by the official praisers.

Not many years ago the average anal income of an inspector from this urce far exceeded the amount paid m as his salary. But at present the stom house inspector, like the Wall reet commission broker, replies, when yone asks him how he is getting long: "Well, things are pretty dull. am eking out a living, but there is othing in the business any more. I onder if the good old times will ever ome again!"

I chanced to meet a few nights ago a ell-known member of the collector's aff, who was an inspector when Ches- r A. Arthur was collector and who eturned to his old place under Colonel hardt. He was surrounded by a roup of customs inspectors in an up- own cafe, and all were bewailing the act that there was much less money ow in Uncle Sam's service for the boys than there was "in the good old days." Major Blank agreed entirely with the general sentiment.

"Why," said he, "from 1868 to 1876 we had a seizure of considerable consequence almost every week, and if we did not get two or three rich seizures every month we did not consider that we were doing any business at all.

"I think the cleverest man who ever gave us a long chase to catch him was a French Jew who devoted himself entirely to smuggling diamonds. The man was worth many thousands of dollars. He could have retired from business and spent the remainder of his years in ease and luxury, or he could have established a big legitimate business and carried it on successfully. But he had made his money in this way. There was an immense profit in the sale of the smuggled brilliants, and as he had been uniformly successful he preferred to remain a smuggler. If there ever was a man who made smuggling a fine art it was this fellow. He was just in the prime of life, and was as shrewd and clever as any man I ever came in contact with. We were sure he was engaged in smuggling. His trips to France and back were too frequent for a man who was engaged in a legitimate business.

"We searched him time and time again, but nothing was found either in his trunks or on his person. Finally we made up our minds to have him watched in Paris. The collector put himself in communication with the United States minister at the French capital, and a few weeks later received a letter from the late E. B. Washburne, who was then our minister to France, informing him that he had had our man watched and that he had been purchasing large quantities of diamonds. The minister stated that, from information brought to him, the value of the gems was close to a quarter of a million dollars.

"Soon after we received a telegram telling us that our man had sailed with his stock of precious stones. Did we feel good? Well, now, do you know the commission on that seizure would make many a man consider himself rich? Our trap to catch Mr. Smuggler was complete. At least we thought it was. We sent three specially instructed inspectors down the bay to meet the steamer. As soon as they boarded her they spotted our man, and they never took their eyes from him till the boat reached her dock. The moment the gang-plank was put in position two of our men walked up to the suspected man, slapped him on the shoulders and informed him that he was a prisoner.

"He remonstrated, but they told him that they knew their game and he must come along. Well, sir, we spent the greater part of a day searching that fellow. We stripped him. We ripped open his clothing. We searched every nook and crevice in his trunks, but not a single stone did we find. The three disgusted inspectors simultaneously swore and I joined in the chorus. We were sure he had the diamonds still, but we had nothing on which to detain him. The impudent rascal put his finger to his nose as he sauntered away and remarked: 'You fellows thought you were smart, didn't you?'

"Two weeks later we learned that our prisoner's agents here had literally flooded the market with very valuable and high-priced diamonds. Then we knew he had gotten the best of us. I stayed awake nights trying to imagine how he did it, but was forced to give it up.

"In less than three months our man again appeared upon the scene. This time he was given away by one of his partners on the other side. The Collector received an anonymous letter from Paris telling him just how the smuggler proposed to operate. The fellow had cheated him, the writer of the letter said; but even then he would not have given him away but for the fact that besides cheating him he had persuaded his sweetheart to leave him, and this was a treachery that he could not forgive. 'When your man gets into port,' the letter said, 'he will feign illness. On his back he will have a big plaster, put there, of course, as he will tell you, by the ship's surgeon. Take off this plaster and inside of it you will find forty-nine large and valuable stones.' In a short time the smuggler arrived and again we made him prisoner. He acted exactly as the letter stated he would act, and when some one touched him in the back he winched as if in terrible pain. We were ready for his acting, however, and soon had his coat and shirt off. There was the plaster, and beneath it the inspectors found forty-nine glittering gems just as the letter stated they would. The man was hustled off to Ludlow street jail and the diamonds sent to the appraiser.

"We were all jubilant, and the chief inspector, who had made the seizure, went home and told his wife what a beautiful sealskin sacque he was going to buy her. The next day when I reached my office the first thing I reached for was a big envelope from the appraiser, containing a statement of the value of the diamonds. We had variously estimated them the day before at from $60,000 to $100,000. When I opened the envelope and read the official appraisement you could have knocked me over with a feather. This is what it said:—'The forty-nine diamonds you sent me for appraisement are made of glass. Their net value is about seventy-five cents.'

"I could not help admiring the fellow's cleverness. He had written the anonymous letter himself, of course, and had entrapped us completely. We never thought of looking in the handbag he carried, and he had walked off with his diamonds. We had to let him go free again.

"Well, sir! it was two months after this before we caught the man. He kept up his smuggling regularly. Finally we let him pass several times without paying much attention to him. He became bold, and one day we discovered a big lot of diamonds in the back of a hair brush. This time we really had him. I felt so much curiosity to find out how the fellow had beaten us the first time I have described that I went to the United States district attorney and persuaded him to consent to have a year taken off the man's sentence if he would tell. We all agreed that the knowledge would be of great bedefit to the service.

"The man agreed. He was cool as a cucumber when he told us. 'Why,' he said, 'it was the easiest and simplest thing in the world. You see I knew what you fellows were up to. I posted myself as to that. I found out you were having me watched in Paris, and I knew there would be a complete search. When I sailed from France I simply bought a round-trip ticket. I made an agreement with the steamship people that I was to have the same stateroom coming back which I had occupied in coming over. Then I secured the diamonds in a bag, made an excavation in the wall of the stateroom, put the diamonds in it and puttied up the hole. Then when the ship sailed my wife came down to bid me good-by. I was too modest to kiss her good-by on deck and she accompanied me to my stateroom. I told her about the diamonds, and, womanlike, she would carry them ashore with her. Wasn't it easy?' "—N. Y. Herald.

A JAPANESE BELLE'S BATH.

She Scrubs Herself with Bran and Pours Water Over Her with a Dipper.

This is the way a Japanese belle takes a bath, according to a traveler:

The pretty little maiden lit the stove under the bath, got down her little bag of bran, and laid ready her best kimono and her new obi. By this time the water was boiling, or nearly so, in the cedar tub, so she took away the stove, threw some of the water over her, sat on the floor beside the bath, scrubbed herself with bran, deluged herself with water again, and then for two minutes in she went, scattering the drops all over her with her wooden dipper.

But there was no time to waste even over the delights of the bath; her hair had to be redone, and this took some time, for our musumi was a Kyoto girl, and Kyoto girls are not only the prettiest but the best turned out girls in all Japan, so she was not satisfied with her fire-woman till her black locks shone like silk and her coiffure a la Fujisan was as stiff as camellia oil could make it.

And after her hair was done it took here some time to arrange her obi—it would not come right; first it insisted on tying itself into a crooked knot instead of a beautiful butterfly bow; then when the knot had been smoothed out, and by chance it sat straight, it was too flat and not stiff enough.

However, a Japanese girl does not know how to lose her temper, not even over her most irritating obi, and at last, coaxed with showers of laughter and subtle hands, it sets as it should; her breakfast does not take long, and then she runs over the mats, slips the cord of her sandals between her big toe and number two, and clatters down the street.—N. Y. Journal.

ESKIMO DIET.

It Is Not Altogether Barbarous When You Acquire the Taste.

I had read about Eskimo eating habits, begins a writer in Goldthwaite's Magazine, how once upon a time, for instance, an Arctic explorer offered some Eskimo girls some sweetmeats, which were rejected, while tallow candles were eagerly accepted and eaten. Now I was to see an Eskimo eat. With many smiles Peter entered the cabin and sat down at the table. I should have apologized to him on account of the scantiness of our fare, for we had no candles and there wasn't a bit of tallow on deck even, let alone in the cabin, but I noticed that the butter plate was heaping full, the sight of which made me wish for some of my friends so that we could make a pool on the number of bites he would take in swallowing the roll. Then Peter sat down and without ceremony helped himself to a lot of baked beans, a piece of dry bread and a large piece of very lean salt beef, all of which he bit into and swallowed as a hungry 'longshoreman might have done. Then he took more beans and more bread and more lean beef, and with them several cups of coffee with a great deal of sugar to each cup. He was a long time getting to it, but he finally began on the butter. He had poured his last cup of coffee and was looking about for something to eat with it, when his eye fell on a plate of cake. Taking a small piece, he put a small lump of butter on it and slowly ate the combination with the coffee. To the reader of a geographical magazine it may seem strange, but the fact is, until I saw this man at the table, I had really expected to find the Eskimos of south Greenland showing the habits and tastes of those living a thousand miles farther up the coast. I had not quite expected to find them living in snow houses, but I had a misty idea that an Eskimo was a little black Indian, whose chief delight among the things brought from a civilized country was the tallow candle. The staple food is seal meat and blubber. Next to that is the little fish taken in the fiord and dried for winter use, known to them as the augmatfat and to the learned as salmo villosus. A favorite way of eating the dried augmatfat is to take it by the tail, poke it into the oily blubber for awhile and then chew it down. Awful, isn't it? It is almost as bad as eating sardines. There is a deal in a name. Blubber is disgusting; oil, if for use on a salad, is delicious and indispensable. I have eaten seal oil and found it (very unexpectedly) good. I had supposed it would have a flavor of fish oil. There is no such flavor about it. It is equal to the best extract of cotton seed—that quality sold as olive oil in all American groceries. Augmatfat and blubber, under a French label, would be deemed a luxury in New York as in Arsuk. For the rest the Eskimos trade seal oil and skins to their governor for three kinds of hardtack, for coffee, sugar and tea. They catch Arctic codfish (misarkornak in Eskimo and gadus navaga in the books) and salmon in the seasons; they shoot no end of gulls, ducks, ptarmigans and the Arctic hare; they have eggs in endless quantity in the season, and very many foxes are trapped. The fox is to the Eskimo what the 'possum is to the plantation darky. He likes to smoke, and under favoring circumstances will swap anything he's got, including his wife, for rum.

Fur Sales in London.

"People who have never attended the big midwinter fur auction in London," says a fur dealer, "can have no idea of its magnitude. Buyers from all parts of the world—America, China, Australia, Russia, everywhere—come there to bid for furs and stay there until they have secured their stock in trade. The winter just passed has been the coldest on the continent of Europe for fifty years, and furs of all sorts have consequently been higher in price than for many a season. For instance, silver fox, which sold at $100 a first-class pelt last year, now brings $147. In this sale 900 silver fox skins were sold, 2,700 cross fox, 1,400 blue fox, 1,600 white fox and 56,000 from the common red fox. That will give you an idea of the mighty work done by the trappers."

THE number of pictures to be exhibited at the main Paris salon this year has been reduced from 2,400 to 1,600.

THE design of M. Mercie adopted for a Meissonier statue in Paris represents the artist sitting, his head resting on his right hand.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

AN Ionia (Mich.) concern is shipping cornocb pipes to England.

CHINAMEN are now employed as "spotters" by a Brooklyn horse-car company.

IN Germany more than 180,000 married women work in shops and factories.

THE employment of women at the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, Eng., has awakened widespread interest.

IN a Swiss canton the municipal authorities have decided that all employers must share profits with the laborers.

A COMPANY of Russian and Belgian financiers with large capital has been formed to cultivate cotton on a large scale in Bokhara.

A COLONY of farmers from Illinois have bought six thousand acres of land near the town of Mercedes, Cal., which will be divided twenty-acre tracts.

AN immense two hundred ton piece of granite which will dress to a pillar six feet in diameter by forty-five feet long has recently been quarried near Petersburgh, Va.

ARTIFICIAL eyes are supplied to all the world from Thuringe, Germany. Nearly all the grown inhabitants of some of the villages are engaged in their manufacture.

DOMESTIC servants are so scarce in Montreal that the women in want of help are said to visit the jail with a view to engaging young women to work for them at the close of their term of imprisonment.

WHY WOMEN TALK ABOUT IT.

THIS IS WHY.

Ontario Center, N. Y.
May 7, 1890.
F. E. C. Medicine Co., Rochester, N. Y.:

For seven or eight years my wife has been troubled with some kind of kidney trouble. She tried many different remedies but all in vain. She continued to grow worse. Last fall I induced her to try your F. E. C. Remedy, and before using one bottle she began to improve, and now, after using six bottles, she is entirely cured. I have recommended it to many and it has benefitted in every case heard from.

IS THE ITATA SUNK?

An Unconfirmed Rumor About the Fleeing Vessel.

EXCITEMENT IN NAVAL CIRCLES.

Interesting Developments Expected in Washington To-Day.

Commander Ramsay Says the Itata Must be in the Neighborhood of Acapulco—If Mexico Observes the Neutrality Laws Strictly She Could Not Take on Fuel or Provisions.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, May 13—The Anglo-American (newspaper) publishes rumors of the sinking of the Itata by the United States cruiser Charleston, but gives neither time nor place. The authorities here say they have no information whatever on the subject.

The government has given strict orders to the port authorities on the Pacific coast to report the appearance of any Chilian or other war ships. It will be difficult to get news, as the government wires have to be relied on altogether.

The general opinion here is that the Itata and her convoys will double up on the Charleston. The government has ordered the gunboat Democrata to keep a sharp lookout for the vessels.

It is rumored here that a private telegram has been received announcing that a fishing schooner saw two vessels out at sea off the coast at full speed. One of the vessels was sighted at 10 a. m. and the other at 2 p. m., but they were so distant that the fishermen were not able to distinguish them. This report, however, cannot be traced to a reliable source.

NAVAL CIRCLES EXCITED.

No News from the Charleston Received in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The reported sinking of the Itata is not believed here, but there is great excitement in naval circles. A few more hours will probably bring interesting developments.

Commodore Ramsay, who has been acting Secretary, and who has had the burden of the correspondnce growing out of the affair, said to-day that he believed the Itata would be compelled to show herself in a day or two.

No news from the Charleston was received at the department to-day. The only message received from the Pacific squadron was a cablegram from Admiral McCann at Valparaiso, acknowledging the receipt of instructions some days ago, and stating that he would follow them. What these instructions are the department is not disposed to reveal at present, but it is generally assumed that they direct Admiral McCann, in conjunction with Admiral Brown, to patrol the Chilian coast and shut off, if possible, the flight of the Itata.

The fact that the Itata must be running short of fuel and must soon make port has caused considerable discussion as to what her reception will be in that event. Naval officers who have been calculating the probable distance she has traveled since leaving San Diego, think that she must be in the neighborhood of Acapulco, Mexico, and that she is likely to coal there. If Mexico observes the neutrality laws strictly, the fugitive would only be allowed to remain in the harbor 24 hours and would not be permitted to take provisions or fuel.

Predicting Mexico's Action.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—An unofficial dispatch received here says that if the Itata entered Acapulco, it being a neutral port, the Mexican Government would not, in all probability, allow the United States Steamship Charleston to take her into custody, but if she had contraband goods on board the Mexican authorities would train the guns of the fort on the vessel and seize her themselves.

Senators Return to Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The Senate Committee on Relations with Canada has returned to Washington after an extended inquiry in some of the principal cities along the Canadian border, closing at Buffalo. The committee will likely take a trip to the New Brunswick border later in the summer.

Mrs. Logan Sails for Europe.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Mrs. John A. Logan, John A. Logan, jr., and family and Mr. L. C. Bruce, of the Turf, Field and Farm, are among those on the passenger list of the steamship Columbia, which sailed to-day. Messrs. Logan and Bruce will make a tour of the horse breeding farms in England.

Union Men Win a Strike.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The strike on the new Federal Building in Brooklyn is ended, and the demands of the union men have been acceded to. None but union men are now employed. The situation of the housesmiths' strike remains practically unchanged.

NEARING HIS OLD HOME.

The President Will Only Make a Short Stay in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 14.—There will be a grand welcome for the President when he reaches this city, but everything will have to go with a rush, as his stay here is limited to 45 minutes.

OMAHA, May 14.—When the Presidential party finished their tour of the city they repaired to the residence of Senator Saunders, father-in-law of Russell B. Harrison. The wives and daughters of Senators and ex-senators, military officers and prominent society people of Omaha, assisted Mrs. Saunders at the reception. Ten young girls welcomed the President. The matrons received the ladies of the party.

A general reception followed, and several thousand people pressed in and met the visitors informally. The President lunched with the Saunders household privately, and while stretching his legs under the table he could not help remarking that he felt more at home there than at any other time during the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Harrison, who left Washington with the Presidential party, took leave of their fellow-travelers at Omaha, where Mrs. Harrison will remain for two weeks, when she will go to New York to sail for Europe with Mrs. McKee on June 3. Mr. Charles L. Saunders, a brother of Mrs. Russell Harrison, also left the party here.

THE $20,000 RACE.

Final Trial of the Horses Who Will Run To-morrow.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The horses who are to run for the $20,000 stake at the Brooklyn Jockey Club to-morrow have been given their final trials. The following are the names and the time in which they covered the mile and a quarter, the handicap distance:

Tenny finished strong in 2:07; Tea Tray, 2:08 1-4; Russell and Terrifier, 2:09, 1-4; Castaway, Cassius and Once Again, 2:14 1-4; Lonstaka finished strong in 2:08 1-4; Uncle Ned finished four lengths in front of Terra Cotta, 2:09 1-2; Senorita was well within herself in 2:12 1-2; Carroll in 2:11; Leighton, 2:12 1-2; Judge Morrow and Reilly went the distance in 2:13 1-4 and both pulled up; Burlington was not pushed and did it in 2:13; Cousin Jeems ran good and strong and finished in 2:09 3-4; Chaos went the distance in 2:15 and pulled up very lame.

Banquet went the handicap distance, but all the watchers were left on the time; Saunterer in 2:13; Los Angeles and Santiago were sent a mile, which they finished in 1:48; Prince Royal and Eon did a mile in 1:45 1-2; Lavinia Belle galloped the distance in 2:17.

DR. GRAVES' DENIAL.

He Says He Did Not Send a Bottle of Whiskey to Mrs. Barnaby.

DENVER, Col., May 13.—Dr. Graves makes a statement in which he emphatically denies that he ever admitted sending a bottle of whiskey to Mrs. Barnaby. He says he did not know he was accused of poisoning Mrs. Barnaby until he reached Denver.

He has employed Judge Furman as his counsel, and under his advice Dr. Graves has refused to appear before the grand jury. Judge Belford, one of the counsel in the famous Millington case, has been employed by the friends of Mrs. Barnaby.

It is extremely probable that the grand jury will indict Dr. Graves, in which case Judge Furman says he will demand an immediate trial.

The Ripper Murder Inquest.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The coroner's inquest has begun on the body of Carrie Brown, who was brutally murdered in the East River Hotel. The coroner's office is crowded and the array of Water street habitues is something startling. The eight females who were held as witnesses are also present. Ameer Ben Ali, or Frenchy No. 1, the accused murderer, is closely watched by two detectives. The jury, after listening to several witnesses, visited the scene of the murder.

Refused to Incorporate the Society.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Judge Lawrence, of the Supreme Court, has refused to incorporate Baron Hirsch Lodge No. 1, because of his unwillingness to incorporate the society in the name of a foreign dignitary when he does not know that the use of the name is authorized. The purposes of the society were to assist members when sick or otherwise in need.

Four Killed by a Boiler Explosion.

CUMBERLAND, Md., May 14.—A special dispatch from Gormania, W. Va., says: By the explosion of a boiler in G. W. Wilson's sawmills, at Wilsonia Station, near here, three men and a boy were instantly killed and two others seriously hurt. Owing to the village being without telegraphic communication, no particulars can be learned.

Gompers' Mission a Failure.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 14.—The object of President Gompers' visit to the coke region is said to have been to induce the district organizations to sever connection with the Knights of Labor and join their forces with the American Federation of Labor. It is also said that he met with an energetic refusal.

CORTE GOING HOME

The Italian Consul at New Orleans Lets Out a Secret.

HE SAVED THE MAYOR'S LIFE.

His Countrymen Arranged a Scheme to Kill the Leaders of the Mob.

They Called at the Consulate Thirsting for Revenge—They Intended to Blow Up the Leading Social Club of the Crescent City With Dynamite—Only Stopped by Threats of Exposure.

NEW ORLEANS, May 14.—Signor Corte, the Italian Consul at this port, who will leave to-morrow for Rome, said he had the kindest feelings for the people of New Orleans. He has proven that, he said, for he had saved the lives of Mayor Shakespeare, Mr. Parkerson, Mr. Wickliffe and others.

Being pressed for an explanation, the Consul, after some hesitation, said:

"A night or two after the lynching of the Italians, a dozen or more of my fellow countrymen, whom I did not know, called at the Consulate thirsting for revenge. They told me they had determined to avenge their countrymen, and mentioned those I have named as the first objects of their wrath. Furthermore, they said they intended to blow up the Pickwick Club (the leading social club here) of which the mayor is a member, with dynamite.

"I at once told them that they must put such thoughts from them and told them that this action would lead to a great popular outbreak and an indiscriminate slaughter of the Italian population—men, women and children. I threatened to have them arrested and punished if they would not promise to desist from their intention. This threat had the desired effect and the men promised to be guided by my advice in the matter."

THE TRIP ABANDONED.

It Would Cost Too Much to Take the Senators to Alaska.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The Senate Committee on Territories, which was contemplating a trip to Alaska this summer, has abandoned it on account of the expense it would involve.

It was intended originally to use a government boat, but there were so many objections to this that it was given up. Then the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company was asked to name a rate for the charter of a boat for 30 days, but the price asked, $22,000, was so great that Senator Cullom, the acting chairman of the committee, as well as Senator Platt, decided that it was beyond the committee's means. The committee may go to the Pacific coast during the summer, but this has not been determined.

MR. BLAINE'S CONDITION.

He is Resting Comfortably, but Will Remain in New York This Week.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Secretary Blaine is resting comfortably at his daughter's residence, 75 West 70th street.

Dr. Dennis, his physician, called at the house at 10 o'clock and had a consultation with the distinguished statesman's wife, the result of which was the decision that, under all the circumstances, it would be judicious for Mr. Blaine to remain in this city for the balance of the week.

Anniversary of the Johnstown Horror.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 14.—Arrangements are about completed for the memorial services, which will take place on May 31, the second anniversary of the great flood. A chief marshal has been appointed and a route for the procession laid out. Three thousand men will form the line, which will be composed of about all the organizations both civic and military in this city.

Fear Trouble from the Negroes.

CENTREVILLE, Md., May 14.—The colored residents around here are still muttering threats of vengeance for the lynching of Asbury Green. Of the 1,400 inhabitants, 200 are colored and they may do much mischief. At a late hour they were collected in groups upon the street corners and trouble is feared. One hundred white citizens are patrolling the streets and the whole town is awaiting developments.

Teemer's Challenge to Gaudaur.

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—John Teemer, formerly of McKeesport, Pa., but now of St. Joseph, Mo., has challenged Jacob Gaudaur to row him three races for $2,500 a side, best two out of three, winner to take entire amount. If Gaudaur is not suited with this, Teemer will row a race of three miles on any body of water in the United States for $1,000 or any sum that Gaudaur wants to put up.

He Sold Liquor to Indians.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 14.—The United States District Court sentenced Samuel Farrar, of Lockport, N. Y., to serve four months in the Niagara County penitentiary and pay $25 for selling liquor to Indians. Isaac M. Warren, accused of selling beer at wholesale in Ontario County without a government license, was acquitted.

THE STEWART WILL CASE.

An Important Point to be Decided by Judge Wallace To-morrow.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The trial of the case of Sarah Branagh against William P. Smith, involving the claims of the alleged Irish heirs of the late A. T. Stewart, has begun before Judge Wallace in the Supreme Court. General Butler and W. H. Secor appeared for the plaintiff, and Elihu Root and Joseph H. Choate represented the Stewart estate.

Long arguments were submitted on both sides, the defense contending that Sarah Branagh, the mother of Mary Branagh, Stewart's cousin, being an alien, could not, as an heir, acquire any right to an interest in the Stewart estate. Judge Wallace seemed inclined to take this view of the case, but gave General Butler until this afternoon to hand in his brief, and said he would decide the question on law points to-morrow.

HARRIS IS INDICTED.

The Medical Student Will Have to Stand Trial for Murder.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Grand Jury brought in an indictment charging Carlyle W. Harris, the young medical student who administered morphine to his wife, Helen N. Potts, with murder in the first degree.

The indictment states that "Mrs. Helen Nelson Potts Harris came to her death by the use of five grains of morphine, administered with malice aforethought by Carlyle W. Harris on January 31."

Harris has been in the Tombs several weeks and will be arraigned before Recorder Smyth to plead to the indictment.

Lingo Has Hope.

CAMDEN, N. J., May 14.—The counsel for Francis Lingo feel sure that their client will be granted a new trial by the Supreme Court. Lingo is in the best of spirits in spite of the refusal of the county courts to grant him a new trial, and declares that he has always felt he will never hang, and cannot believe "the Almighty will allow an innocent man to be executed."

Cigarmakers Make a Big Demand.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 14.—The Manchester Cigarmakers' Union, which includes all the cigarmakers in the State, are on strike for an increase in wages of $1.50 per 1,000. The manufacturers offered an advance of 50 per cent. of the union's demand, but the offer was rejected. Both sides are firm.

The Nobleman's Son Goes to Prison.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Frederick Buckley, a genteel looking young man, who is believed to be the son of a nobleman resident in Ireland, was sentenced to two years and six months' imprisonment for attempted forgery. Several charges are pending against him in Brooklyn for forgery.

Withdrawing the Troops.

PITTSBURG, May 14.—An order has been issued withdrawing the last of the troops from the coke region. Sheriff McCormick having notified the Governor of his ability to preserve order.

Another Destructive Forest Fire.

WILLIAMSPORT, May 13.—A destructive forest fire is raging on Wallis Run, in the northern part of Lycoming County. Great damage has already been done.

CRISIS IN PORTUGAL

Ex-Minister Loring Looks for a Republic Soon.

THE PEOPLE ARE VERY RESTLESS

They Have No Faith in the Present Condition of the Country.

Portugal's Representatives Claim that Trouble Now Existing is Not Due to Politics—They Say that the Republicans Have No Leaders to Direct a Revolution. Spain is Interested.

SALEM, Mass., May 14.—Dr. George B. Loring, ex-Minister to Portugal and an authority on the affairs of that country, arrived here to-day from Washington to spend some time at his home.

Dr. Loring thinks that the present unstable condition of finances in Portugal is most significant and foreshadows the ushering in of a republican form of government.

Ever since the Brazilian revolution the people of Portugal have been extremely restless, and the movement just now shows plainly that even at home the Portuguese have not much confidence in the stability of the present system.

The well known political economist Chello has written a letter in which he says that Portugal has a colossal deficit, ruinous loans contracted upon humiliating terms, and that she is confronted by monetary, industrial and political crises of a threatening kind.

PORTUGAL IS SHAKY.

An Effort to Show that the Present Trouble is Not Political.

PARIS, May 14.—A member of the Portuguese Legation in this city to-day said in an interview that the present crisis in his country was of a purely financial character, and that politics did not enter into it.

He declared that Republicanism was losing ground in Portugal as a consequence of the disastrous results which had followed the establishment of the Republic in Brazil.

The Portuguese Republicans, this gentleman asserted, had not a single man capable of directing a revolution.

Senor Betanero Montenegro, a member of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies, declares that should an attempt be made to establish a Republic in Portugal the Spanish Premier, Senor Canovas del Castillo, would promptly interpose his opposition to such a movement.

PRINCE GEORGE IN FAVOR.

The Czar Pleased Because He Saved His Son's Life in Japan.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 14.—Prince George, of Greece, is again in high favor with the Czar on account of his defense of the Czarewitch against the attack of the Japanese fanatic.

Prince George has been under a cloud with the Russian Court, owing to the unfortunate wrestling bout, which resulted in injury to the Czar's second son, the Grand Duke George, but now that is atoned for by saving the life of the eldest. The birthday of the Czarewitch will be celebrated with more than usual eclat next Monday.

Late advices from Shanghai state that the would-be assassin beloged to a class whose importance has been much diminished by the overthrow of the old regime in Japan, and who, for that reason, are very bitter against Europeans, whom they hold responsible for the changes.

There is no suspicion that the crime was in any way prompted by European conspirators. The fact is that the advocates of political change in Russia look forward with hope to the accession of the Czarewitch, as he is believed to be an entirely different man from his father, and inclined to Western methods.

WILL DESERT PARNELL.

It is Rumored that a Prominent Supporter Will Abandon the Irish Leader.

DUBLIN, May 14.—The National Press asserts that within a few days one of the most influential supporters of Mr. Parnell will renounce his allegiance to the political fortunes of that gentleman.

Mr. Parnell's friends say he is angry over the resolution adopted by the McCarthyites in regard to the Paris fund and the evicted tenants, and declares that it is wilfully misleading in its assumptions. He is preparing a reply, in which he expects to throw the blame for the tangling up of the fund upon the McCarthy faction.

Great Royal Funeral.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 14.—The remains of the Grand Duke Nicholas were interred in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul. The funeral was one of the most splendid exhibitions of the kind ever witnessed in Russia. The body was saluted by 100,000 troops on the way here. The Czar's court is now in double mourning.

Three Republics for Arbitrators.

PARIS, May 14.—It is reported in diplomatic circles in this city that notwithstanding the rupture of negotiations between President Balmaceda and the Chilian Congressional party, France, the United States and Brazil intend to fulfil the task of arbitrating the matter in dispute between the two contending nations.

Editor Cockrill Retires.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Col. John A. Cockrill, who has been identified with the World since it was purchased by Joseph Pulitzer about eight years ago, has severed his connection with that paper.

FAILED FOR A MILLION.

Big Clothing Manufacturers in New York Go Down.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Announcement of a failure involving a million of dollars in liabilities, and resulting in the insanity of one of the members of the implicated firm, has startled the entire cloth and clothing trade of this city.

Levy Brothers & Co., wholesale clothing manufacturers, at 610, 612 and 614 Broadway, is the firm, and into troubles were precipitated by the attachment of its stock and fixtures by the sheriff.

Two attachments, one for $90,615.34 in favor of the National Park Bank, and the other in favor of Joseph Lilienthal, a money broker at 394 Broadway, for $19,709.26, were served by Deputy Sheriff Victor Heimburger.

News of misfortune travels fast, and the service of these two writs was quickly followed by the issuances to the sheriff of many other writs against the doomed clothing firm.

The firm is composed of Julius Levy, Augustus H. Levy and Moses Levy. The last two named are brothers. A sad thing about the failure is that Augustus H. Levy, when the shock came, fell into a fainting fit, and has since been declared insane.

The failure is highly likely to bring down other but smaller firms with it. Most of them would be likely to be out-of-town firms, as the creditors in this city are mostly for comparatively small amounts.

FOREST FIRE VICTIMS.

The Missing Men of the Ill-Fated Austin Train Not Yet Found.

AUSTIN, Pa., May 14.—The excitement attending the late forest fire is gradually subsiding, but on the streets may be seen many men whose faces and hands are bandaged and whose singed hair and other marks of ill usage proclaim them survivors of the fire. Others who are being cared for at boarding houses and their domes, are not able to be out and some of them never will be.

No other subject is talked of but the terrible fire.

Survivors of the ill-fated train which was burned, regard their escape as something of a miracle. The missing men have not been found yet, and it may be a week before the complete list of the victims will be made known. The only dead body found was that of Superintendent Badger.

Paul Cesta, who has been in the woods for several days fighting fire, says that a number of men have surely lost their lives in the various lumber camps that were destroyed.

Mrs. W. H. Badger, wife of the dead superintendent, has arrived here. Her grief is most pitiable.

Standing of the Knights of Honor.

NEW ORLEANS, May 14.—At the second day's session of the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Honor, the reports of the officers were read. They show that there are 2,578 working lodges, with a membership of 137,000 Knights in good standing.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

More than 100 Indians have died of the grip in the State of Washington.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Y. M. C. A. election to-night.

—Give Peck a trial in kid gloves—its a great hold with him.

—The Long Island Wheelmen will take a run over the Central New Jersey macadamized roads to Plainfield Sunday.

—In casting a planer at The Pond Machine Tool Co's. works, Saturday, 23 ton of melted iron was poured in the mould.

—A meeting to organize a Council of the Jr. O. U. A. M. in North Plainfield will be held to-night at 108 Somerset street, corner of Manning avenue, at 8 o'clock.

—The taking of testimony in the certiorari case of the Water Supply company vs. the city, was to have begun at Elizabeth this morning, but was postponed because some of the counsel had other engagements.

—A delightful pleasure tour to Washington, D. C., by a special train of elegant day coaches by way of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, is planned for Monday, May 25, as detailed in the advertisement columns of THE PRESS to-day.

—The Galignani Messenger, of Paris, dated May 2, contains an item taken from THE PRESS regarding Frank Gray the sonambulistic milkman. This is another straw that marks the extended circulation of Plainfield's only newspaper.

—L. B. Woolston, Secretary of Endowment Rank No. 387, Knights of Pythias, to-day received for the widow of Hugo Weigman, a check for the sum of $2,000, being the full amount of the insurance in the Rank on the life of the deceased.

—With their usual appreciation of the best sources of suburban news, the New York papers to-day republish in its entirety from the columns of THE PRESS of yesterday the story of the Gable-Avery elopement published here exclusively.

—The young wife of a Crescent League member who was riding proudly along on her husband's wheel and dressed in a brand-new bicycle suit, the other day, was most disagreeably surprised when the driver of a passing watering cart pulled the string and drenched her.

—A dog belonging to Charles J. Noel of Netherwood, bit its owner's little boy, this morning. A physician treated the lad's case immediately, while the dog was sent to the pound to be held four days before killing so that the pound keeper's fee of 50 cents may be collected.

—A box filled with chemicals was received by the United States Express Company at Plainfield, a few days ago, developed dense fumes and an intense heat while standing in the office awaitng an owner, and to prevent the fire that was threatened the liquids were emptied into the gutter.

—The Featherstone pneumatic bicycle is the latest of its kind. The rubber tires are as big around as a tennis ball, and inflated with air. Rogers the bicycle man has one at his headquarters, 42 Central avenue. Call and see it, and at the same time take a look at the "Victor" and inspect Mr. Rogers's complete repair shop.

PARTICULARS MENTION.

Councilman Rushmore is off on a fishing trip in the Adirondacks.

Miss Joy is visiting her brother, James R. Joy, and his wife, nee Miss McGee.

Ex-Chancellor Runyon has been engaged as special counsel for the city in its water-works trials and tribulation.

Counselor Charles A. Reed has taken to writing base-ball rhymes for the Somerville papers, with a local West End application.

J. W. Gavett and family will leave in a few days for their Summer home, "Valley View Villa," just over the first range of the Watchung mountains.

Miss Wilkinson, formerly of this city and now of Tacoma, is visiting Mrs. Corlis Pond of West Seventh street. The recent announcement of her engagement to a Chicago gentleman, is already followed by rumors of an early date for the wedding day.

Col. Alexander S. Bacon, at one time Lieutenant Colonel of the 23rd Regiment of Brooklyn, and now Col. of the Second Provincial Regiments of New York city, will speak to young men under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at Vincent chapel, next Sunday at 4:15 P. M.

Ex-Councilman E. L. Morris, of this city, is one of the committee in charge of the fourth annual excursion of the members of the New York and Brooklyn coal exchanges, that leaves May 26 for Baltimore, Gettysburg, Harper's Ferry, Washington and Mt. Vernon.

The financial editor of the New York Telegram quotes Messrs. Charles and Finy Fisk of this city, as his authority, and states that "the bond business is in anything but a flourishing condition, and at no previous time since March last have dealings dwindled to such small proportions as at present."

At a recent social reception of Dr. Talmage's congregation, in Brooklyn, Mrs. Evelyn Everett Spicer sang "That better land," by Cowen. At the request of the great preacher she repeated it twice during the same evening. Next Sunday evening, Mrs. Spicer will sing this favorite piece at the Park Avenue Baptist church. She will also sing Gounod's beautiful solo, "There is a Green Hill far Away."

COME OFF THAT PERCH.

What's the Matter With Using Some of John Kean's Money to Buy Him a Dose of His Own Medicine!

The Times backers who write those exaggerated "leaders" that the paper's ostensible but subsidized editor is forced to publish in spite of his superior judgment and better taste, need suffer no longer from the pain that has attacked them upon contemplation of the terrible bill the tax-payers will have to pay for the services of additional counsel in water-works matters.

There is idle in the bank about $4,000 of John Kean's money that was paid into the city's treasury before he had completed his deed of choking the life out of a company that was already engaged in constructing a system of water-works in this city under control of the Council and with the people's rights thoroughly protected.

That money may properly be used just now in discovering whether the city has any rights John Kean is bound to respect, and whether the city has the privilege of granting a franchise to a water-works company that will agree not to rob the people.

STILL CLIMBING UPWARD.

The Crescents Can't Be Downed in the Race for the Pennant.

By defeating the Elizabeth team in the whist tournament last night the Plainfield Crescents increased their lead, over all competitors, and gained one on their average number of points per game. Elizabeth's average dropped from 261 to 256. She also forfeited to Plainfield first place in the percentage of games won. The score was: Plainfield, 277; Elizabeth, 228. Mr. Bender of Fanwood was umpire. The game between Fanwood and Westfield was postponed.

Royal Arch Masons.

The Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons were in session at Trenton on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The Grand Chapter was opened by Wm. H. Sebring, P. H. P., of this city, promptly at 10 o'clock a. m. Considerable routine business was transacted. There are twenty-five hundred members in the State. The following officers were elected:

Grand High Priest, Robert A. Simpson, Jersey City; Deputy Grand High Priest, Edward Mills, Camden; Grand King, A. J. Bale, Baleville, Sussex county; Grand Treasurer, Fred. Weise, Bordentown; Grand Secretary, G. B. Edwards, Jersey City; Grand Scribe, A. F. Randolph, Bridgeton; Grand Captain of Hosts, T. O. Ayres, Orange; Grand Royal Arch Captain, F. M. Tiernan, Roselle; Grand Principal Sojourner, J. E. Fulper, Washington; Trustees, G. Edwards, W. W. Goodwin, Charles Bechtel; Grand Chaplains, Henry Vehslage, Washington; V. N. Bagley, Rahway; Grand Organist, J. K. Sealey, Jersey City; Grand Tyler, A. S. Bennett.

A Ladder for the Fish to Climb.

Fish Commissioner Ward, Warden Honeyman, J. W. Ballantine, W. H. Rogers (inventor of the ladder by which fish are enabled to work their way up over a dam as easily as a boy can climb a pole), and Supt. Brown of the canal company, met at the dam below Bound Brook last Monday. There is every prospect—says the Somerville Messenger—that another year will see the shad roaming the Raritan to and above Somerville.

Several dams above Somerville were also visited.

Dead fish are frequently found far up the river, and the cause is to be investigated.

WHERE THE FOLLY WILL END.

Divorce, Arrest, and a Life of Shame, the Probable Outcome of Mrs. Avery's Escapade.

The elopement of John B. Gable and Mrs. Wm. B. Avery, the news of which was published exclusively in THE PRESS last evening, has wrecked forever the happiness of the homes deserted by the erring wife and faithless husband.

Mr. Avery is heart-broken at the discovery of his wife's ingratitude and duplicity. She had always received from him the fondest care, the kindest treatment. As THE PRESS has already stated, no wish, no whim, that she expressed, ever remained unsatisfied. Mr. Avery was lavish with his money in gratifying his wife's desires, and his personal attention to her every want was a subject of constant respectful remark among his neighbors.

The deserted husband is still amazed at the folly of the woman who has blighted his life, and he cannot comprehend how in spite of his years of kindest and most loving care she whom he believed so pure and good could betray so shamefully the man who cherished and protected her.

It now transpires that since she and Gable left town she has visited her husband's home at 47 Westervelt avenue during his absence in the day-time, and has removed valuables and household goods to the New York hotel where she and Gable have rooms. She has also, it is said, been supplying him with money some weeks or even months past. She bought for him the new suit of clothes he has been wearing of late, and made other purchases for him; in each case, it is alleged, ordering that the bills be sent to her husband.

But shameful as this conduct seems, Gable's was, in one particular, even worse. To THE PRESS to-day Mrs. Gable sent word that her husband had left her nothing but the mere pittance of $1.50 to provide for herself and three children, and she had just discovered that he had mortgaged to the full value all the little property which she owns in her own name at 47 Cottage place. In securing that mortgage, Gable swore that he was the legal owner of all the property, and on Mrs. Gable's affidavit a warrant will at once be issued for his arrest both for wife-desertion and perjury.

As THE PRESS said yesterday, Mr. Avery will immediately seek a divorce. Through his counsel, Messrs. Jackson & Codington, he will begin proceedings to-day.

Mrs. Avery and Gable seem both to have been very bold and brazen in acknowledging to Plainfielders their relations one to the other. The stories that some of the neighbors tell are very complete in detail, and run back a considerable length of time. None of these people, however cared to tell the injured husband or afflicted wife the truth, and the knowledge of the facts comes to the innocently suffering ones as a terrible blow.

Mrs. Avery is a woman of very attractive appearance. She is plump in figure, and comely in countenance. Her age is about 35. She was always richly and tastefully dressed. One would judge her to be a woman of refinement, and it is difficult to conceive the reasons for her infatuation for Gable, who is far from being the sort of a man one would expect to find the paramour of such a woman to be.

The elopers are said to be having a very jolly time of it in New York city. But they are spending money so recklessly that they must soon reach the limit of their purse, when the whirl of gaiety on which they have entered must come to an end. Gable has boasted to a friend that they were squandering money right and left, at the rate of $200 a day. The present prospects are that the fleeting pleasures, the transient folly, will speedily be ended, and that, the end of their rope reached, Gable will languish in jail for his misdeeds, while Mrs. Avery, bearing the stigma of divorce, will be brought to the degradation and living death of a life in the streets.

LATER.

This afternoon Mrs. Avery returned to town by one train, and Gable on the one following. Half an hour later Mrs. Gable reported to the police that her husband was packing up everything in the house, to take away. An attempt will be made to arrest Gable on several charges before he has a chance to leave town again. Mrs. Avery's return is probably meant to be only temporary, in compliance with what she told a friend a day or two ago, that she was going to visit Plainfield again to-day to get some more things from her husband's home.

Cost of Submarine Cables.

The life of a submarine telegraph cable is from ten to twelve years. If a cable breaks in deep water after it is ten years old it cannot be lifted for repairs, as it will break of its own weight. On this account the cable companies are prepared to put aside a large reserve fund in order to be prepared to replace their cables every ten years. The action of the sea is the great enemy of the submarine cable; it eats the iron away so completely as to turn the outside coating to dust or sediment, while the core is still intact. The breakage of an ocean cable is a very costly accident, owing to the difficulties to be encountered in repairing it. It often becomes necessary in case of a break to charter a ship at five hundred dollars per day for several days in succession trying to fix upon the location where the cable has parted. One breakage in the Direct Cable Company's line a few years ago cost that syndicate one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars.

Men of brains originate, the unprincipled imitate. Counterfeit never has the true ring of the genuine. Wide-awake people refuse to be gulled. They insist on Hires's Root Beer, and are sure to get it.

—A coaching party from East Orange put up at The Albion, Saturday evening, and drove back again in their tallyho about nine o'clock.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

SMASHED BY THE EXPRESS.

A Passenger Train at Full Speed Crashes Into a Freight.

A collision which only by what seems a miracle escaped being a terrible fatality occurred on the Philadelphia and Reading railway two miles beyond Bound Brook, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the fast passenger express known as Philadelphia flier No. 522, leaving New York at 4 o'clock, crashed into a freight train moving in the opposite direction.

The express left Bound Brook at 4:53 for a straight and fast run to Trenton. The freight should have been on a siding waiting for the express to pass, but the engineer was carelessly drilling cars back and forth on the main track a short distance this side of the spot where the Lehigh Valley tracks cross the Reading road. Just as the express was due, conductor Theodore Naylor bethought himself of its coming, and engineer Edward Doler coupled his scattered cars together and tried to back in upon a siding while flagman Charles Laques was sent back to signal the expected express.

Two miles beyond the Bound Brook station the Reading road branches from the Central's tracks. At this point is a sharp curve shut within a deep cut. The railroad here is a network of main tracks, sidings, and switches. Where the freight train was backing is just beyond this curve. Because of the especial danger of this spot Laques went even farther back from his train than the rules require and took his position some distance around the curve, on this side of it. He says, and his story is corroborated by people at a farm house beside the track, that he signaled frantically to the express to stop when it was a mile away, and kept up his signaling as it approached and passed him. He was surprised not to see the engineer at his post in the cab, and thinks he must have been lounging on his cushioned seat. As the train reached the curve, however, the engineer stuck his head out of the window and smiled back unconcernedly.

The train was going at a speed of fifty miles an hour. It swept around the curve, and a moment later the flagman heard a fearful crash. Engineer Frank of the express had barely time to clap on the air-brakes and leap from his cab when the collision occurred. As Frank jumped he just missed the rear end of the freight train and was hurled into a culvert. He was followed by a mass of debris, but singularly escaped all injury but a few scalp wounds and a sprained ankle.

The express was crowded with passengers, but not one was injured, though it was at first reported that the engineer and several others had been killed. Locomotive No. 206 of the express ground to splinters several big box cars filled with fish consigned from J. M. Brownell, Newport, R. I., to Stockham & Bowley, at the Dock street fish wharf, Philadelphia, and tossed thirty feet away from the track a mammoth block of West Point building stone, weighing several tons, that nearly filled one of the big flat cars. When the locomotive stoped, its machinery was clogged up with fish and splintered wood-work. The cab which the engineer had left was swept from the engine and buried beneath huge timbers and twisted iron-work. Not a car of the passenger train left the track, and even the smoking car, which bore the brunt of the collision, suffered no damage but a shattered pane of glass.

The tracks for a considerable distance, and the fields on each side of them, were strewn with all kinds of fresh fish and the fragments of the shattered freight cars. Farm-hands and boys from Bound Brook carried away big bags full of cod, halibut, black bass and scup, while train men had a jolly supper of lobster, which they cooked over bonfires. The wrecking train was a long time coming, and the crew found it a very nasty and tangled wreck to clear away. Tons of fish will be buried to-day in the fields beside the track.

The company will, it is said, hold the crew of the freight responsible for the accident. Flagman Laques, in telling his story to a PRESS reporter at the scene of the accident last evening, said that he was greatly worried for fear the accident would result in his discharge. It was his first accident in an experience of ten years. He was greatly relieved when told that the people at the farm house had seen him signal the express and were ready to testify that he had done his duty.

When the collision occurred only three of the backing freight cars had passed the switch leading to the side track. Had the freight backed much farther the engineer of the express in leaping would have been dashed against the freight cars. As it was, he barely cleared the last one.

The passengers on the express received a most violent shaking-up.

Wrecked the Bicycle, and Maimed the Rider.

Fred. Hockridge, of 41 East Fifth stret, corner of Washington, was run into on his bicycle last night by a horse and buggy driven by Adam Blair, at the corner of Park and North avenues. Hockridge and his wheel were dragged along North avenue several feet. The young man was severely bruised and cut, and the bicycle was ruined. Hockridge says that Blair was driving at reckless speed and bugged the curb on the wrong side of the road in sweeping around the corner.

Considerable excitement was caused by the smash-up, and Blair narrowly escaped being arrested on the spot.

It's the best selling thing on our shelves is what the dealers say of Salvation Oil. It is no wonder everybody speaks well of it. 25 cents.

J. F. HUBBARD RE-ELECTED.

Chosen Unanimously for a Fifth Term as Director of the Board of Freeholders—Interesting Facts About the Court and Jail Expenses.

The Board of Chosen Freeholders of 1890, held its final meeting Tuesday afternoon. The principal matter before the meeting was the annual report of County Collector Wood, which furnished many facts of interest. The report gave the financial affairs of the county with great conciseness.

The total of the receipts for the year was $625,253.53, and the expenditures $582,676.95, leaving a balance of $42,676 38.

In the county expenses the costs of the court was an item of magnitude, $36,020.82. This amount is the largest the county has ever paid, and the increase of salaries is a noticeable feature. The election account was $11,085, also the largest amount the county has ever been called upon to pay for election. This increase was due to the changes under the new ballot reform law, and the special election of last fall.

The report of the jail committee was very satisfactory. It showed that the cost for each prisoner per day has been only fourteen and seven-tenths cents, the lowest cost ever reported, reflecting high credit on the management of the institution. This sum is after the deduction of costs of labor performed by prisoners. The actual cost is 24½c per day for each prisoner. There were 704 prisoners confined in the jail during the year. There were 67 in jail at the end of last year, and 718 discharged, leaving still 53 inmates.

After the adoption of the collector's report and the reports of the standing committees, there were a few routine matters, and the meeting closed with the usual pleasant resolutions regarding retiring officers and members.

J. Frank Hubbard, of this city, had just finished a term as Director, and twenty-three years service in the Board. Mr. Jones offered a resolution expressing the board's appreciation of Mr. Hubbard's efficient management of his duties, his close and devoted attention to the interests of the county, and his uniform courtesy to his associates.

Mr. Hubbard made a feeling address, thanking his associates for their co-operation and kindness to him. Other short speeches were made by members, and the Board adjourned.

Yesterday morning the new board met and organized, electing Mr. Hubbard again as Director, unanimously.

Exciting Shooting on the Crescent League's Ball Grounds.

Yesterday afternoon on the ball grounds of the Crescent League, was witnessed the opening of a series of trap shooting matches at clay targets. The events were very interesting, as the scores below show, and the affair was profitable to the League, as well.

There was not a thing about the sport objectionable to the neighbors. The ammunition used is fine shot that all falls within the grounds, and wood powder that is noiseless. The interest taken in the matches evidences that the League has opened another source of enjoyment to its members.

The matches were all at ten "blue-rocks" each, and resulted as follows:

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Con-umption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

A NEW LOT OF VICTIMS.

Dr. Baker, Dr. Shaw, Dr. Gaston and President Smith, Accused of Robbing Women of Food and Clothing.

The attention of President Smith of the Council having been called to an article in the news accusing him of entering into a scheme to swindle the people by means of a bogus insurance project, he said:

"It is a lie. I never signed any call for any meeting of anything of the kind. I have a policy in the company and that is my only connection with it in anyway. If the people are swindled I will be one of the victims."

V. W. Baker the dentist, R. J. Shaw the druggist, and Dr. W. F. Gaston are others whose names were added to the call, and whom the news has branded as swindlers. According to the news, "wives in Plainfield informed us that they are suffering for food and clothing;" and it is implied that Dr. Baker, Dr. Shaw, Dr. Gaston and others are robbing those women of such necessities.

Not the Leader of the Tramps.

[From The New York Tribune.]

A statement was published May 7 declaring that a band of tramps led by Harry Edwards had been for some time terrorizing the people of Westfield. The statement appears to have done Mr. Edwards an injustice. He declares that he had nothing whatever to do with the tramps, and his neighbors say that he is a quiet and industrious citizen. A statement has been signed by sixteen business men of Westfield saying that they have known Mr. Edwards for a number of years and that they have never heard of his being accused of any sort of crime whatever, or even suspected of it. Among the names signed to the statement are those of B. H. Woodruff, a grocer; Dr. F. A. Kinch, L. M. Whitaker, postmaster; A. S. Clark, ex-Surrogate, and John M. C. Marsh, Chief of Police in Westfield.

The day after the original item was published Chief of Police Marsh ordered the tramps to leave the town. They did not dare to offer resistance and at once went away.

Exit the Old, and Entry the New.

The retiring Board of Freeholders of Somerset county held their last session at Somerville yesterday. During the year their expenditures amounted to $77,742.03.

The new board met after the adjournment of the old. There is no change in this board, except that it is composed of nine instead of ten members, as the borough of North Plainfield does not have a Freeholder under the recent act, and the members from the one-year townships (Montgomery, North Plainfield and Warren) were re-elected this Spring.

Following is the list:

	Term expires
Bedminster—George Ballentine	1892
Bernards—Aaron Dilley	1893
Branchburg—John N. Yawger	1892
Bridgewater—Hiram Rockafellow	1893
Franklin—John N. Staats	1893
Hillsborough—John S. Everett	1892
Montgomery—Jacob M. Vreeland	1894
North Plainfield—Geo. W. Bullman	1894
Warren—Israel V. Adams	1894

All the old officers (except Collector, who holds over), were re-elected.

—"The Temperance Outlook" will be the subject of an interesting address by the Rev. Dr. Carroll, at Reform Hall tonight. Admission free. All are welcome.

Oscar Wilde talks of coming back, and says he won't mind the ocean trip, so long as he can get plenty of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup to kill off colds.

Jews in a Desperate Condition.

First Shipment of Green Fruit.

VACAVILLE, Cal., May 14.—A carload of cherries was shipped to Chicago to-day, being the first shipment of green fruit this season and a week earlier than usual.

Protest from Von der Ahe.

BALTIMORE, May 14.—Chris Von der Ahe, president of the St. Louis baseball club, telegraphed President Kramer of the American Association, protesting yesterday's ball game and charging Umpire Matthews with unfairness in his decisions. Matthews' removal was demanded. This action is characterized by the ball people here as "another Von der Ahe bluff."

Daring Wager on the Great Handicap.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Joseph Thompson, the Australian plunger and bookmaker, was at the Hoffman House and offered to bet $5,000 even that neither Tenny, Tea Tray, Burlington or Prince Royal would win the Brooklyn handicap to-morrow. He was promptly taken up by a sporting man named W. C. Johnson.

Three Tow-Boats Burned.

PITTSBURG, May 14.—Three Pittsburg tow-boats—the George Roberts, Eagle and Twilight—lying at the Monongahela wharf, were burned last night. The George Roberts is a total loss, and the Eagle and the Twilight were partially burned. Loss, $25,000; fully covered by insurance.

Kingman Won the Derby.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—The largest crowd seen on Churchill Downs since the Ten Broeck-Mollie McCarthy match in 1878, witnessed Kingman run the least interesting and slowest Derby ever run. Time by quarters: 0:33, 1:05, 1:35, 2:01, 2:21 3-34, 2:52 1-4.

Surrendered to the Standard.

Baseball Grand Stand Burned.

TROY, N. Y., May 14.—The grand stand at the Troy Baseball Grounds was burned last night. Loss, $1,200. The club has secured the Laureate Amateur Grounds for their games.

His Weak Point.

A wife, whose husband has a bulging brain and a homely face, used to try to make things pleasant at home by expressing her admiration of his talents and giving him the pet name of "Brains." Her delicate flattery did not seem to have much influence upon him, though she kept it up for a whole year after their marriage. One time, not long ago, when she was in a happy frame, or melting mood, or meditative state, she expressed her admiration of his comely countenance, and at last went so far as to say she would give him the pet name of "Beauty." He smiled as she repeated the word with a full consciousness that she had touched his weak point. And now, whatever be his mood of mind or the vicissitudes of life, that word dispels all other thought, and the twain are happy.

What an "Inch" of Rain Means.

Few people can form a definite idea of what is involved in the expression: "An inch of rain." It may aid such to follow this curious calculation: An acre is equal to 6,272,640 square inches; an inch deep of water on this area will be as many cubic inches of water, which at 227 to the gallon is 22,000 gallons. This immense quantity of water will weigh 220,000 pounds, or 100 tons. One hundredth of an inch (0.01) alone is equal to one ton of water to the acre.

PRESIDENTIAL EPISTLES

Andrew Johnson's Letters Are the Rarest of All.

One of Johnson's Tailor Accounts—How Collectors Are Striving for Full Sets of Presidential Letters—The Prices Which These Treasures Command.

[COPYRIGHT, 1891.]

Many persons in this country are just now vieing with each other in the collection of the letters of historical Americans. Some have a fad for those of artists; others for authors; some for millionaires, and still others for statesmen or politicians and generals of the revolution or rebellion. Expense on a somewhat extensive scale attends the satisfying of an ardent desire for a full list of any of these. For instance, sample letters of all the presidents, from Washington to Benjamin Harrison would be worth upward of $400, and there are very few persons who possess such a treasure.

The information on this subject contained in this article was given me by Walter R. Benjamin of Twenty-third street, New York, who is a professional dealer in autograph letters, and has a stock embracing a very wide range of notable persons, and valued at over $50,000. Mr. Benjamin possesses some remarkable treasures in his line of business, including letters of some of the most noted people of history, such as Henry VIII., Marie and Catherine de Medici, Mazarin, Bonaparte, Napoleon III., Luther, Wesley, and others of equal fame. His American collections are even more noteworthy and interesting; since they include those of nearly all the famous characters of early

AUTOGRAPHS OF PRESIDENTS.

American history, the heroes of colonial days, the founders of the republic, statesmen and generals and famous men in every walk of life.

Since the great Washington centennial celebration was held in New York there has arisen a voracious demand for Washingtoniana of every kind, and above all for Washington letters. A collection once begun the possessor is hard to satisfy until he renders it complete. The craving for old, faded, worm-eaten letters grows on one just like that for old china or bric-a-brac, manuscripts or pictures. Many persons, after having acquired one or two Washington letters, find it impossible to advance any further on that line and set about acquiring a presidential collection. Hundreds are now setting their hearts on this task, and it is likely to cost them many a dollar and many a heartache before they accomplish it, as the following facts will show. It is thought that there are about 9,000 Washington letters in existence. He always wrote with care and on good paper, and as he was prominently before the people even in his twentieth year, great numbers of his letters were preserved by the friends to whom he sent them. His handwriting changed greatly, but his signature was virtually the same at all periods of his life, and in spite of their number his letters range in price from $35 to $350. Some of them referring to striking historical matters have brought even more than the last sum under the hammer.

Jefferson is also costly, but much cheaper than Washington. His letters are more readily obtained. A very characteristic one of the "Philosopher of Monticello" is the following to General Benjamin Lincoln of revolutionary fame on the latter's retirement from the collectorship of the port of Boston. It is dated November 27, 1806:

"DEAR SIR: I have received your favor of the 12th inst. proposing to resign your office of collector at the end of the present year, and I receive it with real concern. No one respects you more than myself, none is more deeply impressed with the value of your revolutionary services, nor does anyone more earnestly wish your personal happiness. You are one of those who deserved well of your country, and I have seen with pleasure you convenience allied to its services. How far it may now be more desirable for you to separate yourself from the office depends on circumstances into which I have no right to enquire, and of which yourself alone can judge. It is on my own account therefore that I ask some respite of your determination so as to give me a more enlarged scope of time to fix on a successor, and that I particularly request that your resignation may relate not to a fixed day, but to the actual appointment of a successor, on my assuring you it shall not detain you beyond another quarter, say beyond the last day of March next. Accept my friendly salutations and assurances of great esteem and respect.

TH: JEFFERSON."

Taken at random, these are some of the current prices for the letters of other presidents: Pierce is fairly rare and brings from $5 up to $20; Tyler is common and ranges from $2 to $5; Taylor is very rare. He did not shine as a penman and wrote few letters, and very few of his missives have fallen into the hands of collectors. His letters, therefore, are worth from $25 to $100; Van Buren is not rare, and fetches only $3.50 to $5; Arthur is scarce and dear. Friends who have his letters hold on to them, and Mr. Benjamin says they will be more common in twenty years, as they will then be brought out from their hiding-places. They are now worth about $10 each; Monroe letters are quite common, and are readily bought at from $2 to $5. Here is an unpublished one of his in Mr. Benjamin's collection, written while secretary of war to Gov. Snyder, of Pennsylvania, dated September 19, 1814. It is of interest in view of current war scares:

"SIR: The enemy having left Baltimore and passed down the bay, I have deemed it advisable to alter the destination of the Pennsylvania militia assembled at York. General Watson has been ordered to march those troops to the neighborhood of Philadelphia and dispose of them agreeably to such arrangements as may have been made for the defense of that city, should it be attacked by the enemy. It is hoped, however, that our late brilliant success on Lake Champlain, and pressure on the enemy on that frontier generally, may contribute to relieve our eastern frontier."

Garfield letters are scarce and hard to obtain, as are those of Gen. Grant. Hayes letters are worth from $2 to $3, and are not very plentiful. Letters of the elder Harrison are very scarce, and are worth from $12 to $20. The following unpublished letter of this president was found in Mr. Benjamin's presidential collection, and is given here as showing something of the character of the hero of Tippecanoe, the grandfather of the present president of the United States. Under date of Franklinton, O., March 12, 1813, Gen. Harrison wrote to Isaac Shelby, governor of Kentucky, as follows:

"DEAR SIR: Having secured the posts at the rapids of the Miami in a manner to bid defiance to the efforts of any force that the enemy can bring against it, I left the command with Brig. Gen. Leftwitch and came on here for the purpose of superintending the arrangements for the organization of the force which is to compose the army that is intended to operate in this quarter the ensuing season. I found the roads in such a situation as to render it in my opinion altogether impracticable for the troops which are to relieve those now at the rapids to take the route heretofore pointed out for those which are to come from Kentucky. I must therefore request your excellency to give such directions to the detachments you may be now sending off as will bring them with the greatest facility to Piqua and St. Mary's, in this state, at which latter place they will be embarked in boats and proceed to the rapids by water. I will send an officer of the quartermaster's department to Limestone to procure boats for such as may have progressed thus far to proceed to Cincinnati.

I left the Miami rapids on Friday last. I had some days before organized a detachment for the purpose of crossing Lake Erie from the Sandusky bay to Malden for the purpose of destroying the enemy's vessels at that place. I have the most flattering prospects of the success of the enterprise, as it was conducted by an officer, Capt. Langham, of distinguished valor, at the head of about 250 men that were selected from the whole army. Their route across the lake was in the direction of some islands which in common years afford a safe passage to the opposite shore. Unfortunately, however, the detachment found the lake beyond Bass island entirely open for a very considerable distance and was obliged to return to the Miami bay, where I met them on the 6th inst. with 150 volunteers with which I had marched from Camp Meigs to cover their retreat should they be pursued. Finding that the original design was rendered abortive I had determined to proceed to the river Raisin for the purpose of burying the remains of our unfortunate countrymen who fell in the action of the 22d January. This design became also impracticable from the weakness of the ice, which continually gave way under our horses. Almost all the gentlemen who were with me broke in, and my own horse was saved with much difficulty. To have attempted the expedition by land to the river Raisin would have subjected the detachment to certain defeat. I have the honor to be with great respect and regard, dear sir, your humble servant."

Of the later presidents, the letters of Abraham Lincoln are by far the most sought after, and the most expensive. Enthusiastic collectors will pay almost as much for a Lincoln as for a Washington, and here is a reproduction of one which brought $50 at a recent sale:

Springfield, Ill. Aug 14 1860

A. C. Kenney, Esq

Dear Sir

Yours of the 10th is received. I am for which I thank you. I am sorry I cannot answer your question more definitely. I have not the means of doing so. I am not aware that any one has ever counted the votes for President in the Electoral College. I suppose the Secretary of State has the returns, and could do so, but I have not the time to do it myself. I am very truly yours

A. Lincoln

Some of Fillmore's letters are worth a good deal, letters bearing his autograph ranging in price from $3 to $40. The following extract is from a letter of his in this collection, dated Buffalo, April 28, 1846, and addressed to Horace Greeley: "I think much may and ought to be done for the improvement of society. I am for progress guided by experience, and regulated by sound discretion, but opposed to all mere theoretical speculations and wild experiment."

Probably Mr. Greeley had been talking Utopia, but Mr. Fillmore was evidently not a believer in the dreams of idealists.

Ex-President Cleveland is not quoted in the market, as he is reputed to be so obliging that he will send an autograph letter to anyone who applies.

A full set of the signers of the Declaration of Independence fetched $10,350 in Boston the other day. The late Senator Hearst's son and heir, W. R. Hearst, is an enthusiastic collector and will pay almost any price for a letter he sets his heart on. At the Boston sale above mentioned he paid $450 for a letter of Capt. William Munson, describing the execution of Maj. Andre, and $700 for a letter of Andre's.

The fad for autograph letters is one which is extremely attractive and exciting after a person gets fairly started in the race and it is not devoid of instruction. It certainly furnishes a true intellectual delight, and if prudently managed costs much less than many other pursuits to which men of money and leisure devote themselves.

One of Andrew Johnson's letters brought $80 at a sale in Boston recently, and every scrap of his writing is worth money. In this collection are several curious extracts from one of his account books when he worked at his trade as a tailor. These show that he charged $3.50 for making a coat, and took part payment in flour. In writing a "pair of pants," he put it down "pare," and he spelled thread "thredd." The following fac-simile is taken from a page of this account book:

1869 Feb. 15th Dr. to A. Nelson

ANOTHER GLACIAL EPOCH.

The Writer Says This Is Getting to Be a Cold, Cold World.

Though the past winter has been moderate in America the cold in Europe has been so great that Prof. Bonney, an English geologist, it is reported, has been led to inquire if such a permanent fall of temperature would restore the so-called glacial epoch? During the frost from November 25 to January 22 the mean temperature over the southeast of England was 9 degrees below the freezing point. Prof. Bonney concludes that a lowering of the mean by only 18 degrees Fahrenheit would again cover the British islands and the United States with an ice sheet.

The theory of the late Dr. Croll, upon which mainly this conclusion has been reached by geologists, is, however, far from impregnable, says a writer in the New York Herald. He assumes that in the remote past our winters happened when the earth was in the aphelion of its orbit, and hence over eight million miles further from the sun than it now is in winter. From this assumption he reasons that our summers would be cooler and shorter and winters colder and longer, that snow would accumulate enormously on the continents and that the equatorial and gulf streams of the Atlantic and Pacific would be stopped or thrown off into the southern hemisphere.

No wonder geologists who had in vain spun numerous theories and had long been groping hopelessly in the dark for some explanation of the ice age clutched at Dr. Croll's fascinating hypothesis. But it is a rather lame expedient. Under the conditions assumed by Dr. Croll—the sun's direct heat being in winter one-fifth less than it now is—evaporation from the ocean and minor water surfaces of the globe would be so scanty and the atmosphere consequently so dry that precipitation would be very light. Careful analysis of rainfall data shows that in our epoch more than one-half of the earth's land masses receives only about fifteen or twenty inches of rain annually; the rest averaging from twenty-five to fifty, and six per cent. getting about seventy-five inches. Were all the land of the northern hemisphere to receive fifty inches of rain, or its equivalent, forty-two feet of snow, in a year, this deposit would not account for all the known phenomena of glaciation. But, on Dr. Croll's theory, the annual precipitation in the glacial epoch could scarcely have averaged eighty per cent. of the present quantity. If, as he supposes, the warm gulf streams were shunted off from our hemisphere into the regions south of the equator they would ultimately return under the forces of gravitation.

We may, therefore, without hesitation, conclude that there is nothing whatever in this theory of the glacial epoch which affords the barest probability of any serious climatic change on the northern continents, much less any change that would produce an ice sheet. The discussion, however, will not be useless if it leads geologists to look further for some satisfactory explanation of the glacial epoch.

IDOLATRY IN INDIA.

Stone, Metal and Wooden Objects of Heathen Worship.

Captain Crailshank of the English army told a story about idolatry in India lately, says an exchange. It seems, he says, as if there were more idols than people in India. They are made of stone, metal or wood, and you can see them under every shade tree.

It is like reading a chapter from the Bible to walk about some of the groves. A few of the temples are made of solid marble and gold.

The custom of worship is amusing. The devout Indian, on reaching the temple, first rings a bell. That is to notify the god that he is on hand to do business. After that ceremony the worshiper repeats his prayers, and then deposits his offerings. These consist of rice, grain and cloth. They are afterward put into the holy cart and sold.

The priests have no trouble in selling them, for the holy food is always quoted high. Twenty loads of holy food can be sold in the time it takes to dispose of a cargo that has not been to the temple.

The ceremony of putting the gods to sleep would make a saint laugh. The worshipers assemble in the temple and blow on horns, yelling and shouting at the top of their voices. This resembles an American Indian war-dance, and it is kept up all night long.

Other ceremonies are as strange, and the work of civilization does not progress rapidly. Buddhism did more than anything else to reform idolatry, but the people have drifted back into the same old habits.

An advance sect with high morals has been founded, but it will do but little if any good.

F. BORNHORST.

Lost Health Restored.
Starkey, Yates Co., N. Y., June, 1890.
I was suffering from general debility fifteen months, had eight doctors treat me, took all sorts of medicine, slept hardly more than one hour nights, sweat a deal, so as to soak that it seemed the last of my life, my heart troubled me so that I couldn't sit up nor walk. After I took the second bottle of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic my appetite returned, slept nearly all night, the sweats and heart trouble disappeared, and now am happy to say that I can work again and enjoy good health. MRS. P. MALEY.
Our Pamphlet for sufferers of nervous diseases will be sent free to any address, and poor patients can also obtain this medicine free of charge from us.
This remedy has been prepared by the Reverend Pastor Koenig, of Fort Wayne, Ind., for the past ten years, and is now prepared under his direction by the
KOENIG MEDICINE CO.,

LAST DAY OF TRAVEL

Washington Will Welcome the President To-Night.

A NON-PARTISAN RECEPTION.

An Echo of Cheers Follow the Train Through Indiana.

The President Cordially Received at Indianapolis—He Makes an Eloquent Speech—Refers to His Boyhood Days and Says When His Toil is Over He Will Gladly Return to His Old Home.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Preparations are being made to receive the Presidential party this afternoon about 5 o'clock.

Several of the leading political clubs composed of the Republican State association were the first to suggest the idea, but it did not take very well, as the prominent men spoken to on the subject at once said that such a demonstration should be entirely non-partisan.

The officers of the Board of Trade were consulted and they took the matter in hand and have prepared to give the President and his party a cordial greeting.

The President at Home.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 15.—The approach of the Presidential train to this city was heralded by a battery salute. From every window and housetop on the principal streets the Stars and Stripes were unfurled, and large-sized pictures of the President were conspicuous everywhere. In Jackson place, near the Union station, a speaker's stand was erected, but the rough-hewn planks were concealed from view by a mass of bunting and Stars and Stripes. Arriving at this stand Mayor Sullivan delivered an address of welcome. There was a perceptible moistness in the President's eyes, and his voice almost failed him as he acknowledged the welcome. Continuing, he said:

"My manhood has known no other home but this. It was the scene of my early struggles. It has been the scene and instrument and support of my early success in life. I come to lay down before you to-day my offering of thankfulness for the friendly helpfulness in boyhood and in all hours down to this. I left you two years ago to take up the work of the most responsible office in the world. I went to these untried duties sustained by your helpful friendliness. I come after two years to confess many errors, but to say to you that I have but one thought in my mind—to use what influence I have for the general good of all the people. Our stay is so brief that I must deny myself the pleasure of taking all these friends by the hand. God bless you all! I have not forgotten, I cannot forget Indianapolis. I look forward, if my life is spared, to this as the city where I shall rest when the hard toil is done. I love its houses and rejoice in its commercial prosperity. Pardon further speech and allow me to say God bless you, every one, and good-bye."

The party immediately returned to their train and were soon on the last stage of their journey to Washington.

CORTE MADE A MISTAKE.

The New Orleans Grand Jury Calls for the Names of the Plotters.

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—A committee of the grand jury called on Consul Corte and asked him for the names of the plotters whom he alleged had intended to assassinate the mayor and others, but whose lives were saved through his mediation.

The Consul informed the committee he had been misinterpreted by the newspapers. He said there was a strong feeling among the Italians here, as in all other places in America, and he, like other Consuls, had used his best efforts in the interest of peace and quiet.

Consul Corte will take his departure from this city this evening.

The Committee of Fifty has just made its report. It is of a startling nature. The report says that Hennessy was murdered because he endeavored to trace out brigands; that Chief of Police Bertrand of Rome, who promised him aid, also died by the assassin's hand; that even the Italian Consul says an attempt was made to poison him; that he promised the committee evidence, but evidently dared not give it. The committee recommend that Sicilians and residents of lower Italy be treated as the Chinese are now treated.

O'Leary Starts Another Raft.

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 15.—James D. O'Leary is about to start another big raft. Operations have been carried on for him the past winter at several points on the St. John's river and its tributaries. A number of cribs have been built, and if there should be a strong spring freshet they will be brought to St. John, where they will be made into a raft which will be towed by ocean tugs to New York.

Employes Close a Mill.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., May 15.—The Windemere Mill, at Ellington, has closed on account of attachments levied by the help for their pay. The mill was started up but a short time ago by the Bertram Manufacturing Company after being idle two years. The mill property is mortgaged to Jordan Marsh & Co. of Boston for $20,000 which will be foreclosed on July 1, unless redeemed.

The Belmont Oil Works Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Shortly before 1 p. m. fire was discovered in the Belmont Oil Works at Point Breeze. The fire raged furiously and involved the destruction of the entire plant. An explosion caused the fire.

Charged With Murdering His Wife.

MURDER IN A TENEMENT.

A Drunken Debauch Winds Up in a Terrible Tragedy.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 15.—William Kerrigan and his wife, aged 23, came from Haverstraw, N. Y., three days ago to visit Mr. and Mrs. Carson at 161 Steuben street, this city. The two women are sisters.

The quartette have spent most of the three days in drinking, and frequent quarrels have occurred, which culminated last evening in the murder of Mrs. Carson.

A violent quarrel took place in the Carson apartments, and when the police were finally called in they found Mrs. Carson dead on the floor, with her throat cut from ear to ear, while her husband had two terrible gashes on the head. Mrs. Kerrigan was slightly cut about the face, and her husband is missing, he having fled.

Carson says that Kerrigan attacked his wife and cut her throat, and that he was stabbed while trying to defend her. From statements made by Mrs. Kerrigan and neighbors, who were close by during the quarrel, it would seem to be a case of wife murder.

Carson and Mrs. Kerrigan were locked up, and the police are looking for Kerrigan.

THE ALLEGED RIPPER HELD.

The New York Coroner's Jury Decide that Frenchy No. 1 is the Murderer.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The jury in the "Carrie Brown" inquest after hearing all the testimony, and being out 20 minutes, found that Annie Brown came to her death by strangulation at the hands of Ameer Ben Ali, alias "Frenchy, No. 1." Only one ballot was taken.

Frenchy, when the verdict was explained to him, thought he was already doomed, and believed he would be taken out at once and put to death. The situation was explained to him and he expressed great relief.

There was an immense crowd at the doors of the coroner's office to see the alleged ripper taken away to the Tombs.

DR. GRAVES TO BE INDICTED.

He Will be Held for the Murder of Mrs. Barnaby.

DENVER, Col., May 15.—It is pretty generally understood here that Dr Graves will be indicted for the murder of Mrs. Barnaby to-day or to-morrow. Judge Beiford, who has been employed to assist District Attorney Stearns in the prosecution of the case, was asked last night: "Does the State suspect Dr. Graves?"

"The State has it eye upon Dr. Graves and proposes to have its hands upon him in a a day or two," the lawyer replied.

She Wants $5,000 Damages.

ROSDOUT, N. Y., May 15.—Miss Warwick, Ulster County, Miss Susan Cashman, a petite and attractive young lady, has brought suit for $5,000 damages for betrayal under promise of marriage against Howard Pierson. The defendant is well known in newspaper offices throughout Orange and adjoining counties, where he has been a compositor and correspondent for several years. Pierson has been arrested and held for trial.

Will Discharge 100 Employes.

ROXBURY, Mass., May 15.—The Howard Watch & Clock Company, the oldest company of the kind in the country, has notified its employes that after June 1 the factory will run on three-quarter time and that 25 per cent. of the help will be discharged. This will turn out over 100 hands. The company of late has hardly paid expenses, owing to the dulness of business.

Found the Body in the Canal.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 15.—At 3 a. m. the body of a woman floating face downwards was discovered at the wastewier in the canal here. The body gave signs of having been in the water several days. It was recognized by a bystander as that of the missing Minnie Metune, whom it was reported jumped from a bridge over the canal on May 4.

The Brooklyn Handicap To-day.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Brooklyn Handicap, for a stake valued at $20,000, will be run this afternoon over the course of the Brooklyn Jockey Club at Gravesend. Greater interest centres in this race than has ever before been taken in a similar event, and the largest crowd that has ever assembled at a race in this country will be present.

Labor Troubles in New York.

NEW YORK, May 15.—There are 92 lumber dealers now banded together in the Lumber Trade Association. Nearly all shops have joined the general lockout. Nearly 1,200 housesmiths were paid their strike money to-day. The framers are still keeping the strike up. The combination of strikes seems to have paralyzed the building trades.

Dishonest Pensioner Sentenced.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 15.—In the United States Circuit Court Daniel F. Copp, of Wolfboro, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty and, upon indictment for procuring a false affidavit in support of a pension claim, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500.

THE ITATA RUMORS

Mexico Still Sending Out Reports of a Sea Fight.

NAVAL OFFICIALS ARE PUZZLED.

They Cannot Account for the Lack of Reliable News from the Vessels.

It is Believed that the Charleston is Not Pursuing a Straight Course—She is Looking Around the Islands of the Upper Mexican Coast—England is Excited Over the Chase.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 15.—The rumor is repeated here to-day that the Chilian steamer Itata and the United States cruiser Charleston had a short fight and that the privateer was sent to Davey Jones's Locker.

Even in government circles there seems to be a belief that the battle has taken place, though why the Itata should not surrender is beyond comprehension.

One account has it that the Charleston fired on the Itata because the latter refused to heave to when ordered, and the Chilian responded from the small guns mounted on her decks.

Only a few shots had been fired when a shell from one of the Charleston's 8-inch guns burst in the Itata's hold and exploded the cargo of powder stored there, blowing the ship into fragments.

Another story says the Itata, on being overhauled by the Charleston, used every effort to escape, and only fired on the cruiser with her stern guns. A running fight was kept up for several hours and a number of shot struck the fleeing vessel and sank her.

Nothing is said about the crew by those who retail this account, but it is presumed they were rescued.

Navy Officials Puzzled.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—No news of the Itata or the Charlestown has been received at the Navy Department.

Not the least credence is placed in the rumors about the engagement between the vessels.

It is apparent that the Navy Department officials are somewhat puzzled to account for the lack of news from the vessels and are obliged to content themselves with the theory that the Charleston is not pursuing a straight course, but is steaming easily two and fro, overhauling and examining merchant steamers and looking around the islands off the upper Mexican coast.

THE MOHICAN ORDEDED TO SEA.

She Will Go to Chilian Waters as Soon as Possible.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—Orders have been received at Mare Island to have the Mohican got ready for sea as fast as possible.

Her officers make no secret of the fact that she is under orders to proceed to Southern waters as fast as steam and sail can carry her.

It is generally believed at Mare Island that the United States Government has decided to concentrate as large a fleet as possible in Chilian waters, where it will remain until the war is over.

This belief is strengthened by the fact that the Mohican will carry a large quantity of shells, which can be used by the Charleston or the San Francisco.

It will take fifty days for the Mohican to reach Callao.

The United States war steamship Omaha has arrived here from San Diego.

GREAT BRITAIN IRRITATED.

England Interested in the Pursuit of the Chilian Vessel.

LONDON, May 15.—The public interest in the American pursuit of the Chilian vessel Itata overshadows everything of a European nature, and the latest news is sought with the most eager curiosity.

The sympathy of the British press is almost unanimously with the insurgents, and there is no concealment of the irritation felt at the course of the United States in taking the opportunity to strike a blow at their cause.

Apart from this, however, the affair excites interest from a naval standpoint as possibly providing a test of the efficiency of the new American navy.

The Esmeralda Called at Acapulco.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 15, via Galveston.—A dispatch from Acapulco has been received here to the effect that the Chilian cruiser Esmeralda has left that port, after having requested several favors, which were refused. The vessel is well armed and equipped. Her officers received telegrams from the United States, and the vessel then sailed in a northerly direction, presumably to meet the Itata.

Boyd Wants a Hearing.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—H. D. Esterbrook of Omaha is here to see if Mr. Boyd's case in the Nebraska Governorship contest can be expedited in the United States Supreme Court. He saw Mr. Justice Brewer to-day, but did not receive much encouragement as the court is just on the point of adjournment for the summer work in the circuits.

THE ROAD STRIKES BACK.

The Chicago & Northwestern Discharges All Union Switchmen.

CHICAGO, May 15.—At precisely 7 a. m. every switchman in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company—200 in this city and 300 employed at points along the line—was discharged and paid off.

The company chose this hour as the most convenient to notify both the day and night men that their services would no longer be required.

General Manager Whitman of the road reports that so far there has been no trouble or disturbance occasioned by the lock-out.

The road has been preparing for this action during the past two months, and for every man discharged there was another to take his place.

Yardmaster Frank McInerney, whose discharge the switchmen demanded, and enforced by a tie-up during Manager Whitney's illness six weeks ago, was reinstated and took charge of the new men.

Mr. Whitman says that the company would no longer put up with the state of things that has existed during the past three weeks, and the action just taken is a practical demonstration of the company's intention to run its own business.

THE GREAT FOREST FIRES.

One Sixty Miles Long Burning in Pennsylvania—Michigan's Loss is $2,000,000.

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., May 15.—The forest fires are still burning from Manistee to Huron. The loss is already estimated at $2,000,000, and this figure will be doubled unless the flames are checked by rain.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., May 15.—A great forest fire is raging along the mountains between Punxsutawney and Bellwood. It is 60 miles in length.

Koch's Lymph Abandoned.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—The use of the Koch lymph for the cure of tuberculosis in man and cattle has been practically abandoned by all hospitals. The Tuberculosis Commission of the Veterinary Department of the University of Pennsylvania has also abandoned its experiments with the Koch lymph.

To Sick to Appear in Court.

NYACK, N. Y., May 15.—Joseph Storrs, who was indicted by the Rockland County grand jury on a charge of arson and assault in the first degree, was so sick today as to be unable to be moved from his cell in the jail to the court room, and his case was accordingly put over until June. His condition is critical.

Officers Elected by the A. O. H.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The 42d annual convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians has adjourned. M. F. Sheriock, of Syracuse, was elected National Delegate; Patrick Dugan, of Jersey City, Secretary, and J. J. Patton, of Boston, National Treasurer.

Sale of Hearst's Racing Stock.

GRAVESEND, L. I., May 15.—The sale of the racing stock of the late Senator Hearst of California, took place here during the afternoon. Fair prices were realized. The largest sum paid was for Tournament, who was bought by Foxhall Keene for $23,500. Among other prices brought were $3,500 for Rhoda, $4,100 for Ballarat, $1,200 for Sir Launbelot and $2,800 for Miss Belle.

POPE LEO ON LABOR

He Refutes Socialistic Theories in His Encyclical.

SAYS THEY ARE A DELUSION.

The State Should Intervene to Regulate Private Property.

Revolutionists at Work in Portugal—The King May Abdicate and Seek Refuge With the Comte de Paris—An All-Night Session of the House of Commons—Davitt Sails for America.

ROME, May 15.—The Latin text of the Papal encyclical about to be published analyses and refutes the Socialist theories tending to abolish private property, and upholds the principles of the Church as the first and main element in the solution of social questions.

The true solution, the Pope says, is to be found in the Gospel, which, rightly studied, would teach employers and employed to become united, while fulfilling their respective duties. The Church has always sought to promote the application of the principles stated in the Gospel, and to give moral and material help, as inculcated in the doctrines of Christ.

The State should intervene to regulate private property in order to ensure the public peace, and the moral and material welfare of the working people.

The Pope here comments on the necessity of Sunday rest, and deals at length with the subjects of strikes, of wages and of the hours of labor of men, women and children.

In conclusion, he dilates on workingmen's societies, including associations for mutual aid and accident insurance.

The Pope then goes on to treat of sick benefit funds, of technical education and mixed syndicates of employers and employes.

The State, he declares, ought to countenance all such institution, as calculated to improve existing social conditions. He praises the good work that such institutions have already achieved, and calls upon Catholics to assist in their formation, urging that all should be animated by a Christian spirit.

PORTUGAL'S REVOLUTION.

The King May Seek Refuge With the Family of Comte de Paris.

LONDON, May 15.—Advices from Portugal state that French and Spanish emissaries have been detected in Lisbon and Oporto, spreading revolutionary doctrines.

It is also stated that the Comtesse de Paris earnestly urges upon her daughter, the Queen of Portugal, and also upon the King the folly of facing the danger of a serious revolution and advised them, in the event of such peril, at once to seek refuge with the family of the Comte de Paris in Great Britain.

The King was at first much opposed to this advice, but has latterly been growing more impatient of his situation and desirous of the ease that his father-in-law's vast fortune would assure to him. He has lately communicated with his relative, Dom Pedro, the ex-Emperor of Brazil, as to the best course to pursue, and is said to be awaiting suggestions from that quarter.

PARIS, May 15.—Senor Zorilla, the exiled Spanish republican leader, ridicules the statements which were published yesterday in this city as coming from a member of the Portuguese Legation and Senor Betanero Montenegro, a member of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies, especially the statement that upon the first attempt to establish the Republic of Portugal the Spanish Prime Minister would interpose on behalf of the Portuguese monarchy.

Envoy Redmond's Salary Stopped.

DUBLIN, May 15.—Last night the electors of North Wexford held a meeting at which they resolved to stop payment of the salary of John E. Redmond, who represents North Wexford in the House of Commons, and to devote the money thus saved to the relief of the evicted tenants. Mr. Redmond is one of Mr. Parnell's envoys now in America to collect funds for the Parnellite cause.

Harrington to Abandon Parnell.

DUBLIN, May 15.—It is rumored that Timothy Harrington, is going over to the anti-Parnellites, and that E. Dwyer Gray, formerly member of parliament for Dublin, and the holder of half of the stock of the company which owns the "Freeman's Journal," "Evening Telegraph" and the "Morning News" of Belfast, has seceded from the Parnellite party.

Pelly Returning to Canada.

LONDON, May 15.—The Birchall-Benwell murder is recalled by the fact that Pelly, who narrowly escaped Benwell's fate, will start for Canada to-morrow to follow the profession of engineer.

Worked All Night on the Land Bill.

LONDON, May 15.—The Irish Land bill reached clause 16 last night, the House of Commons sitting till 2 o'clock this morning. The bill will probably be finished to-day.

Minister Porter Will Summer in Italy.

ROME, May 15.—Mr. Porter, U. S. Minister here, is preparing to spend the summer in the highlands near Roca di Papa. The Minister has no idea of leaving the country.

The Kaiser Will Have Short Sermons.

BERLIN, May 15.—Kaiser William has ordered the court preachers in the future on no pretext whatever to make their sermons longer than 15 minutes.

No Change in the Florida Contest.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 15.—One ballot last night in the Senatorial caucus resulted: Call, 32; Mays, 44; Bloxham, 2.

AN AMERICAN LADY INJURED.

Possibly an Attempt at Murder in the Mountains of North Wales.

LONDON, May 15.—A despatch from Chester states that a Mrs. Donkin, of Baltimore, Md., has been found in the Snowden Mountains, North Wales, in a terribly injured condition.

The police incline to the belief that the lady has been the victim of foul play, and that an attempt had been made to murder her.

Mrs. Donkin is so seriously injured that she has not yet been able to make a statement of the affair.

The case is being investigated by the local authorities.

The theory was first advanced that the lady received her injuries in consequence of having fallen down the mountain slope.

When Mrs. Donkin was found she was unconscious, her head having been battered in by stones.

Four physicians are now in attendance upon the lady, whose recovery is believed to be impossible.

Her husband has been arrested on suspicion of having committed the crime.

A later dispatch says that the man's name is Duncan, and on being informed that his wife was still alive, he confessed that he had battered her head, and the police have found a stone covered with blood and hair near the spot where the woman had lain. Duncan on being taken before a magistrate, made no explanation of the affair, and was remanded. It is stated that his family in Washington occupy a good social position. Duncan, who is 27 years old, is short, slight and fair haired, and wears spectacles. He is a noted linguist. It is stated that he met his wife in Stockholm, and that her father is a cigar manufacturer at Abo, in Finland. Mrs. Duncan is still unconscious, and there is only the smallest hope of her recovery. Duncan's motive for the crime has not been explained.

MRS. BATCHELLER HURT.

Serious Accident to the Wife and Daughter of Our Minister to Portugal.

LISBON, May 15.—Mrs. Batcheller, the wife of the United States Minister to Portugal, was seriously injured yesterday in a carriage accident, and now lies in a critical condition.

The accident happened while Mrs. Batcheller and her daughter were returning from a visit to the Queen's palace, and was caused by the breaking of the axles of the carriage. Miss Batcheller was also hurt, but not severely. One of her ankles is dislocated, but otherwise she escaped injury.

Representatives of the King called at the American Minister's residence to inquire as to Mrs. Batcheller's condition.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A true bill has been returned against the rioters at Morewood, Pa.

The Bank of England has raised its discount rate to 5 per cent.

—The Keyport base-ball team, that is to play the Crescents to-morrow if it do not storm, was one of the strongest in the State, last year, and this season, it is said, the nine is fully as good.

—A very pleasant entertainment was given last evening to the Intermediate Department of the Monroe Avenue chapel Sunday-school. Parlor games were indulged in and refreshments served.

—In to-morrow's issue, THE PRESS will publish a portrait of Dr. Briggs, the noted Presbyterian who is to be tried for heresy, and also a sketch of his career and of the teachings for which he has been criticised.

—The members of the Holy Cross choir are working hard towards raising the amount needed for their camping expenses, and they hope their friends will remember the entertainment to be given in the Sunday-school room the evening of May 27.

—The Independent Woman's Exchange has removed from No. 8 Park avenue to No. 9 East Front street, in the First National Bank building, where Mrs. W. L. Force will be pleased to see all her former customers, who desire either stamping, plaiting, pinking or stitching.

—Through the efforts of Senator McPherson, Casimir Ebner, a disabled Union soldier of this city, has been granted a pension of $12 a month, dating back. This is another instance of the interest New Jersey's U. S. Senator takes in the matter of securing pensions for deserving ones.

—The annual sale of fancy and useful articles, with strawberries and iced cream, in aid of the Sunday-school of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will be held at the Union Sunday-school rooms, corner of Front street and Clinton avenue (near Evons station), on Thursday of next week from four to ten o'clock p. m.

—The people advocating the opening of North Broadway will ask 5 court at Somerville next week to appoint commissioners to see that equity is done to all in the development of the new thoroughfare. The enterprise is being pushed vigorously, and men of prominence and influence have united to achieve the desired improvements.

—To night at seven o'clock the Bible normal class of the Young People's League, conducted by Chas. B. Brown, meets in the parlors of the First Baptist church. Subject: "An introductory study in the book of Numbers." Any of the young people of the city will be cordially welcome either as visitors or members of the class.

—People who saw the collision at North and Park avenues, Wednesday night, between Adam Blair's buggy and Fred Hockridge's bicycle, say that neither party was to blame more than the other. The affair seems to have been an entirely unavoidable accident, and witnesses exonerate Mr. Blair from the charge that he was driving recklessly. The courteous and obliging mail carrier does not deserve to be censured for carelessness of which he was not guilty.

—The third anniversary of the Warren Union Mission Christian Endeavor Society will be celebrated in the chapel this evening. The celebration will be begun at 7:45, with a service of song from "Temple Songs". The programme has been carefully arranged, and the address of the evening will be made by the Rev. Mr. Cubberly. A general social time will follow. Representatives from other societies are expected to be present, and a good time is anticipated.

—Captain W. E. Fuller of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, and Captain Frank L. C. Martin of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, made a run to Philadelphia, last Sunday, over the route to be taken by the Great Century (100 miles) run on June 13. They left here at 5 o'clock in the morning. They report the roads in excellent condition with the exceptions of about two miles between Dunellen and Bound Brook, and ten miles between Trenton and Bristol, which they found quite heavy owing to the dry weather. A good rain would put these in good shape. The prospects are that about 400 wheelmen will participate in the Century run this season. The run is open to all wheelmen, and Plainfield should be able to send a good many of her riders.

PLAINFIELD TO HAVE THE BEST.

Its Street Railway Company Investigating Every Improvement in Motor and Machinery.

The extract below, taken from a certain very unreliable paper of this city, shows how an innocent bit of news of little moment can be twisted by a false head into conveying testimony directly contrary to the fact it records.

DISCARDING THE TROLLEY.

The Evening Wisconsin, of May 5th, says that the Villard syndicate will introduce a new motor on its electric lines in that city. It is known as the Edison Single Reduction Motor, which does away with much gearing, simplifies the machinery, and reduces the noise to almost nothing.

The item itself merely states that a new motor is to be introduced. The head line asserts that the trolley is to be discarded.

Councilman Spangenberg of the committee on streets, was shown the above by a reporter of THE PRESS. He said that the very motor spoken of was being investigated by the Plainfield Street Railway company, and if it proved to be the best would be adopted for this city.

It is the intention of the company to go even further than that—they will be the first in the country to discard the trolley as soon as any more practicable, economical or serviceable system shall be perfected. The franchise they officially accepted last Monday contains this requirement:

Section 17. That when any improvements or other method of furnishing the power for the propulsion of cars by electricity shall have been determined to be a practical success, by a commission consisting of three electrical engineers, one to be selected by the Common Council, one by the said company, and the third by the two so chosen, such company shall within six months after the passage of a resolution by the Common Council requiring the same to be done, and notice thereof given to said company, adopt such improvements or substitute therefor such improvements or new methods of propulsion.

The officers and directors of the company all signed the acceptance of this and the many other wise provisions for the interests of the people that the franchise embodies. The company from the outset will strive to please the community in every particular. The material for the construction of the road is all ordered, and the surveyors are already at work. The cars are being built by the Pullman company. They are of mahogony, vestibuled and upholstered in light gray brocade such as is used in the Blue Line cars.

THEIR HONESTY BEYOND QUESTION.

Men of Such Social and Professional Standing in the Community Cannot be Harmed by Vicious Papers.

Dr. Wm. F. Gaston and Dr. Vincent W. Baker visited the office of THE PRESS, this morning, and denied any connection with the calling of a meeting for the organization of what the news says was a bogus insurance scheme. They say—as does President Smith of the Council—that their names were signed to the advertisement without their authority or knowledge.

Both gentlemen were naturally very indignant at being publicly drawn into the matter. The article in the news gave the date of the advertisement, and everybody who looked through the files of THE PRESS could see who were the signers of the "swindle" that the news said it had brought to the attention of the Secretary of State and had put "ex-Chief" Carey on the track of.

The entire community know that men of such standing in social and professional life as Dr. Shaw, Dr. Baker and Dr. Gaston, do not lend their names to, or even countenance, dishonest or unfair projects of any sort. The calling of public attention to an advertisement with the names of such reputable men attached, and branding it as a swindle without first investigating the truth of their connection with it, was a contemptible trick.

But, as THE PRESS said yesterday, these men are only additional victims added to the long list of those who have been slandered by the sheet that blackguards but that cannot harm.

Plainfield Knights of Honor Institute a Lodge at Somerville.

Bridgewater Lodge, Knights of Honor, was instituted in Somerville, Wednesday evening, with appropriate ceremonies in which many Plainfield Knights took part.

The new lodge starts with a charter list of 27 members. It is composed of prominent men of Somerset county, and promises to be one of the best lodges in the State. It is well officered as follows:

C. S. Hoffman, Dictator; W. P. Bergen, Vice Dictator; G. Jenkins, Assistant Dictator; H. C. Adair, Reporter; J. S. Garrettson, Financial Reporter; T. J. Honeyman, Treasurer; I. L. Cone, Chaplain; C. E. Vanderhoff, Guide; Jacob Kline, Jr., Guardian; Louis Noll, Sentinel; Jacob Klotz, Past Dictator and Representative to Grand Lodge; Dr. Wagoner, Medical Examiner.

The instituting officers were: R. C. Jones, Grand Dictator; G. W. Housman, of Wetumpka Lodge, 3407, Acting Vice Dictator; S. E. Flower, of Wetumpka, Assistant Dictator; C. J. Feytel, of Wetumpka, P. G Dictator; J. M. Mayher, Grand Reporter; W. J. Cadmus, State Medical Examiner, Chaplain; J. Van Middlesworth, of Wetumpka, Guardian; T. S. Little, Deputy Grand Dictator, Instituting Deputy; L. J. Van Alstyne, of Wetumpka, Grand Guide.

—Religious service will be held this evening at Monroe Avenue chapel, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be led by J. Brit. Martin.

A QUAKER WEDDING.

Bride and Groom Solemnly Declare Themselves Man and Wife.

A very pretty Friends' wedding ceremony took place at the residence of Mrs. Avis L. Laing, 52 Broadway, last evening, when Miss Frances S. Mosher, daughter of Mrs. Laing, became the wife of Arthur T. Stryker. Promptly at the appointed hour, half-past seven o'clock, the bride and groom took their position in the room, with the "best man", Horace Huff, and the maid of honor, Miss Ida M. Lorton, beside them. When the bride and groom had clasped hands the groom said:

"In the presence of the Lord and this assemblage, I take thee, Frances S. Mosher, to be my wedded wife, promising, through Divine assistance, to be unto thee a loving and faithful husband, until separated by death."

And the bride responded:

"In the presence of the Lord and this assemblage, I take thee, Arthur T. Stryker, to be my wedded husband, promising, through Divine assistance, to be unto thee a loving and faithful wife, until separated by death."

The bride and groom then signed the wedding certificate, and the "best man" read it aloud, as follows:

WHEREAS, Arthur T. Stryker, son of John G. and Almira Stryker, of the city of Plainfield, county of Union, and State of New Jersey, and Frances S. Mosher, daughter of James H. and Avis L. Mosher, of the city of Plainfield, county of Union, and State of New Jersey, propose taking each other in marriage, ...

These are to certify, that for the accomplishment of their intentions, this fourteenth day of the fifth month, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety one, they, the said Arthur T. Stryker and Frances S. Mosher, met at the residence of Avis L. Laing, in the city of Plainfield, county of Union, and State aforesaid, and in the presence of friends assembled, the said Arthur T. Stryker, taking the said Frances S. Mosher by the hand, did on that solemn occasion declare that he took her to be his wife, promising, through Divine assistance, to be unto her a faithful and loving husband until separated by death, or words to that effect. And then the said Frances S. Mosher did in like manner declare that she took the said Arthur T. Stryker to be her husband; promising, through Divine assistance, to be unto him a faithful and loving wife until death should separate them, or words to that import.

And they, the said Arthur T. Stryker and Frances S. Mosher, she, according to the custom of marriage, assuming the name of her husband, as a further confirmation thereof, did then and there to these presents set their hands.

ARTHUR T. STRYKER,
FRANCES S. STRYKER.

And we being present have subscribed our names as witnesses thereof.

[Here follow the signatures of all the witnesses.]

After the reading of the certificate the groom saluted the bride, as did all present. Then the witnesses were invited to sign the wedding certificate, which they did.

The bride looked charming in a costume of white cashmere, trimmed with brocade silk. The happy couple received a great many handsome gifts.

After the ceremony a very enjoyable wedding supper was served.

A Journey With Pastor Schenck.

At the sociable of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Trinity Reformed church, last night, the Rev. Mr. Schenck kindly consented to give an account of his tour in the great city of London. There was a large attendance, and all highly appreciated his interesting description of the various places of note in that largest of cities. Among the places he pictured were St. Paul's cathedral, interior and exterior, Bank of England, interior and exterior, Tower of London, Westminster Palace, interior and exterior, and Westminster Abbey, interior and exterior. He also took his hearers to the great docks and warehouses, and gave an interesting description of the great shipping port.

Miss F. Mattison sang a solo very acceptably, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss J. Mattison. At an appropriate time refreshments were served. The committee of young ladies having the sociable in charge were Miss F. Mattison, Miss Minnie Force, Miss Mabel Woodruff and Miss Phœbe Mills.

Gentlemen need not wear gloves at dinner parties, that is, if they don't have clean ones; but under all circumstances they must take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup when they get a cold or sore throat.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The congregation of Dr. Ketcham's church tendered a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch, last evening.

Robert C. Gibson, the Mounted Letter-carrier of New London, Conn., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Wm. Wright, at her home, 32 West Fifth street, this city.

An unusually pleasing and artistic entertainment was given at Hope chapel, last evening, by the Young Women's Christian Temperance Association. Miss Mabel Potter, Miss Gussie Holmes and Miss Amey Green sang sweetly; Miss Barber, Miss Dewey and the Messrs Newman rendered charming instrumental selections, and Miss Morrison recited, displaying much talent and good taste.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

Notes of the Boys' Club.

The last of a series of entertainments given to the members of the Boys' Club, during the season, will be given to-morrow evening. A fine programme has been prepared, and all members are invited to be present.

The Boys' Club base-ball team will go to Elizabeth to-morrow morning to play an amateur base-ball club of that place. The game will be called at 9:30. The names of the players and their positions are as follows: Clarence Sutphen, c.; Mattis P. Bolsterli, 2b.; Winn, l. f.; Schenck, s. s.; States, r. f.; Fleming, 3b.; Moran, c. f.; M. Sutphen, captain and 1b. The score will be printed on the board at the rooms Saturday evening.

The Edwards Zouaves will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings of next week for drill. All members please attend.

The Boys' Club team will play the Young Richmonds Saturday, May 23, and the Young Cuban Giants Saturday, June 3.

W. H. MINER, Supt.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose-bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Journal".

PLAINFIELD IS PROUD OF IT.

ANOTHER YEAR OF ZEALOUS WORK BY THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Faithful Officers Re-elected—Interesting Reports of Labors Accomplished—Increased Scope with the Longed-for Building—The Fund Now $36,800—How They Brought Mr. Mills—Praise for Secretary Manning, and Hallowed Reverence for the Young Missionaries Who Sacrificed Themselves in the Soudan—The Association the City's One Safe Resort for Youth—Help for Strangers, Work and a Fresh Start in Life for the Needy, Education for Earth's Toilers, and a Sweet Religion for All.

At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association, last evening, officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

President—W. D. Murray.
Vice-President—D. E. Titsworth.
Treasurer—E. St. John.
Recording Secretary—J. R. Joy.
Corresponding Secretary—A. C. LaBoyteaux.
Directors—J. W. Gavett, James W. Jackson, S. Cahoone, T. E. Hazell, E. L. Bonny, A. B. Beers, Wm. Thompson, E. R. Ackerman, G. R. Cornwell, C. E. Boss, Nelson Runyon, G. Q. Packer, E. L. Suffern.

The following interesting report, reviewing the great volume of work accomplished by the Association during the year just ended, was read by President Murray:

To the Members of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, N. J.:

It is always a pleasure to be able to look back on the past and feel that although it is gone forever it has done something towards making the present better and the future brighter. In such a place our Association can stand to-night and look back over the year just closed. While we confess that we have not done all that we wished to do, while it has not been possible for us, with our limited accommodations, to do all that we can do or all that we know ought to be done for the young men of this city, we do feel that the last year has not been spent in idleness.

Many of us had hoped that this meeting would be an "At Home" for our Association—that by this time we should be in our own building. But once more we can only hope that our next annual meeting will be such. Many things have delayed us in our building project. Our plans for a building had been adopted, but the cost of erecting it, with all that we wished, was found to exceed the amount contemplated. We have therefore been compelled to have the plans modified, and hope now to bring the cost within our means. Then the question of whether Peace street would be opened or not has been very troublesome. It seems now, however, that the street will be extended, and will go through one side of our lot. Recognizing that we are the servants of the people, and dependent on them for financial support, a desire not to do anything which might even seem antagonistic to the city's best interests has caused us to await quietly the action of the local authorities in the matter. Our subscriptions amount to $36,800, of which $18,343 has been paid in.

And now briefly of the work of the year. While acknowledging our indebtedness to the ladies who have so kindly continued to assist us, we can truthfully say that we have adhered to Association work; that is, for men, by men. We believe that the good people of this city have made us the disbursers of $2,721.86 of their money because our object has always been to improve the moral and spiritual condition of the young men of the place. In this effort we have employed the usual social, physical, intellectual and spiritual agencies.

Socially we are restricted. Nevertheless we have continued to furnish the one safe resort, always open, and social meeting-place for young men. The rooms have been used by Christian Endeavor Societies, King's Daughters, Sunday-school teachers, and kindred organizations of the city. Here we have given ten receptions to members, or to special classes.

Not the least interesting feature of our work this year has been a series of timely talks on such subjects as "How to Keep Well", "Money", "Gambling", "Business Success", "Some Things Men Ought to Know", and "Haste to Get Rich". These talks have been well attended, and must do much good.

Our educational classes have been well patronized—106 different people having been connected with the classes in mechanical drawing, penmanship, book-keeping, vocal music, and stenography. Two members of the short-hand class are now stenographers for large business houses.

Thirty-six places of employment were secured for men, some of whom owe not a little to the start thus given them. At our last anniversary we said that the contribution made that night would be used to provide attractive cards advertising the Association. Through the kindness of the officials of the Central Railway of New Jersey one of the signs was placed in the station at Fanwood, where it one day caught the eye of three young Englishmen, who were on their way west. They followed the directions and called at the rooms to rest themselves. They were persuaded to stay in the city, and for each a good and permanent position was found.

Physically we have been more restricted than in any other line. The sending of six of our boys to the Association camp for boys, and our annual outing at Boynton Beach, are about all that we attempted. Eight of our members, occupying two tents, attended the Bible-school conducted by Dwight L. Moody at Northfield. But so much spiritual good comes from this gathering that we are apt to forget the physical. But our ideal is the all-around man: his body a temple of the Holy Ghost; his heart pure as a child's; his thoughts high; his mind well trained; and his whole being consecrated to the Master's service—"complete in Him".

Spiritually our work has prospered. An average of 56 men have attended each of our 49 Sunday afternoon Gospel meetings. Four of these meetings have been personal-purity talks. Our evangelistic "teas", held during part of the year, had an average attendance of 22. In this our sixth year of Workers' Training Classes; we have conducted two divisions. Two former members of these classes are now teaching similar classes in their churches.

Our Board of Directors, having informed themselves of the work of the Rev. B. Fay Mills, the evangelist, invited the pastors of the city to a joint Conference at our rooms, at which the need of a religious awakening in our city was discussed, and the possibility of getting Mr. Mills was suggested. As a result of this meeting, a call was sent and Mr. Mills came among us; and the glorious results, in part, we know.

We have conducted weekly meetings at our two outposts, and have had, during part of the year, a men's Christian conference and a class for inductive Bible study. God has been pleased to accept our labors, and men have been converted to Him through our instrumentality. How many of such there are we do not know; we have been content to lead them to Him, who, we know, "will in no wise cast out".

While busy with the home field, we have not forgotten the great commission to preach the Gospel to every creature. Never can we forget the words of those three young men who now, their labor ended, sleep in the heart of that dark continent to which they believed their Master called them. As we sat at tea with them, just before their departure, and listened to their earnest words, we were aroused to a new interest in our brethren in foreign lands, and then later in the year we were privileged to hear Robert P. Wilder, founder of the Student Volunteer Mission movement. Growing out of this increased knowledge we have organized a band who are giving systematically to extend the work for young men.

But I need not detain you, because you have had detailed reports from the different committees, and let me say that to these committees our success is due; guided and directed by our self-sacrificing General Secretary, their work has been well done. But above all, credit should be given to the General Secretary himself. He is the one who has written many letters of introduction to young men; who has sent them to Christian homes; who has visited them in sickness, corresponded with them while away, advised and encouraged them in many ways, and labored abundantly to extend the Kingdom of God among the young men of Plainfield.

Good as it is to look back over a well-spent past, it is better to look forward into a hopeful future; and so may our past year's work be for us not so much a cause of rejoicing as an incentive to do still greater things in the year that lies before us. Our field is indeed white for the harvest; may we, like that first band of young men who gathered around the Lord Jesus, not only pray the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers, but go ourselves, confident that our "labor is not in vain in the Lord".

Other reports, treating in detail the work of their several departments as briefly suggested in the President's comprehensive paper, were read by T. E. Hazell, chairman of the music committee, A. C. LaBoyteaux of the invitation committee, Nelson Runyon of the committee on care of the rooms, Chas. E. Boss of the educational committee, E. L. Bonny of the devotional committee, and Stephen Cahoone of the committee on boys' work.

Mr. Cahoone's committee has charge of such a distinctive and important branch of Association labors that the report is published in full:

The general line of work in this department has been the same as in the previous year. This work is carried on through the organization known as the Young Men's Auxiliary, under the direction of a committee from the Association.

This society has met once each week, excepting during July and August and during the continuance of the Mills meetings. In general the work is divided as follows: Religious, social, literary, and business.

The business meetings are occupied with hearing reports of committees and such matters as would naturally come up for discussion or action. On July, 10, 1890, and Jan. 6, 1891, the semi-annual elections of officers were held; and at any meeting of the society, if a quorum be present, members may be elected, if they have been recommended by the membership committee.

The literary exercises have consisted of debates, recitations, talks on various subjects, and addresses on different phases of Association work. Those delivering addresses have been R. G. Leypoldt of New York, Geo. G. Peck of Newburgh, Sumner F. Dudley of Orange, and others. On May 12, 1890, the Rev. C. B. Mitchell delivered a most interesting lecture in Reform Hall, on "The Paris Exposition", illustrated by stereopticon views. The boys were in charge of this entertainment, and realized by the sale of tickets $28, which amount was given to the building fund of the Association.

The social features of this work have been the monthly gatherings in the hall, when refreshments have been served, and games and other exercises of a similar nature have afforded amusement to a large proportion of the members. On July 9 nine of the boys spent a most enjoyable day at Boynton Beach, and from July 8 to July 22 six were in camp with a party of young men from New York, under the charge of Sumner F. Dudley, at Lake Wawayanda. This camp has not only been a source of great enjoyment, but it has been of great benefit as well. Mr. Dudley carefully selected the boys composing it, the influences and associations were of the best character, and a reunion of some who participated in it has since been held at Orange.

The religious interests of the boys have received especial care from the committee. During the year at least one religious meeting has been held each month, and recently it was thought best, in view of the small number who can attend, or who do attend, to hold only religious meetings for the balance of the year. There have been Bible readings, talks on special topics, and prayer meetings, in which the boys have taken part quite freely. Quite a number have expressed a desire to lead a Christian life, and 18 have united with the church, while many who were Christians have been greatly quickened, and led to a more entire consecration of themselves to the Master, and to work for Him, as they had not done before. As in all true Association work, this is the end and aim of effort, and all other agencies and means employed are for its furtherance and realization.

A very important feature of the work for boys has been the singing class, conducted by E. A. Embury, and which has been of great practical benefit to many of the younger boys not connected with the Auxiliary. Mr. Embury has been very faithful in training these boys, and some of them have made such progress that they have been of great service in assisting the choir at our Sunday afternoon meetings, and have also rendered similar service elsewhere.

In thus briefly reviewing our work for the year, while conscious that it has not been all that one could have wished, we must make due allowance for many circumstances over which the committee has had no control, and which will continue to exist until our Association has a suitable home for all branches of its work, when one department will not conflict with the other. In our judgment the greatest practical benefit to be derived from work for boys is the training which they receive as recruits for the Association. In the first year there have been 15 connected at one time or another with the Young Men's Auxiliary, who have become active members of our Association, and there are many others whom we hope to see actively engaging in work and coming into the ranks of our workers and committeemen, not as novices, but fitted by their training and experience to render efficient service from the start.

The following interesting statistics are from Mr. Bonny's report:

	No of meetings held	Total attendance
For young men, Sundays	49	2780
Men's Christian conferences	9	93
Evangelistic Bible class	10	230
Workers' training classes—
W. D. Murray's	21	214
J. H. Manning's	24	169
Special (Mr. Murray's)	4	20
Mt. Pleasant, Sunday evenings	48	1205
Washingtonville, Sunday ev'n's	50	1200
" Sunday-sch'ol	52	2044
" Young men's Bible class	52	403

In his educational report Mr. Boss gives great and deserved praise to instructors J. A. Robinson, Garret Q. Packer, E. Loomis, and all other teachers in the various classes. The 105 students have all appreciated the advantages offered to them, and were earnest and untiring in their application to study, so that great benefit resulted.

THE PASTOR'S PARAGRAPHICS.

Notes from "The Visitor" in Which All Are Interested.

In the May issue of The Visitor, published to-day, the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell, the pastor-editor, records the following items of general interest concerning the people of the Methodist church:

The pastor and wife are "at home" Tuesday evenings.

C. H. Rugg and James C. Peck have been elected Stewards.

"Children's Day" will be observed the second Sunday in June.

Dean Rodman will preach at the Monroe Avenue chapel May 24.

Mrs. Hunter has returned for the summer to her home at 74 Broadway.

Mrs. Lucy Hooley, of 53 Central avenue, is out again after a long illness.

Dr. Hurlbut has gone to St. Louis to attend the meeting of the Board of Control of the Epworth League.

James McGee is to speak next Sunday in Brooklyn at the memorial services of the late Mr. Pratt, the noted philanthrophist.

The mother and sister of James R. Joy are visiting at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Joy on Orchard place, Washington Park.

Mrs. Harry D. French, of Willow avenue, is enjoying a visit from her sister-in-law and nephew, Mrs. Kimball and son, of Chicago.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Circle held a delightful social last night at the beautiful and hospitable home of J. P. Homan, 6 West Fifth street.

The last week-night meeting of the Epworth League for the summer will be held June 19, when the committee on social work will give a reception.

On Friday evening, June 5, the League will have an "Educational Evening,—the three R's". Something novel and instructive may be expected.

S. E. Birdsall has gone west for the summer to look after his mining interests. G. Q. Packer will have charge of his large and interesting Bible class during his absence.

The ladies of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society have a birthday box, in which each member is requested to deposit on each birthday anniversary a birthday offering for the cause of missions.

To-night the Epworth League will have a "Curio Evening". Each member is requested to bring some curiosity, antique, or object of peculiar interest, and give a brief explanation of its history. A good time is expected.

Mrs. E. H. L. Randolph has returned from a lengthened visit to the home of her parents in Nashville, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph are now occupying one of the beautiful new houses on Westervelt avenue, number 18.

R. W. Mahaffee and family have returned from Brooklyn, where they went to live a few months ago. The entire family were so ill that they were compelled to return to healthy Plainfield. They are warmly welcomed back by a host of friends.

The spring series of Junior League meetings are now being held. The meeting on Sunday last was largest yet attained. Mrs. H. D. French, Mrs. A. A. Taft, Mrs. Edwin Loomis and Mrs. L. M. French assist the pastor and wife. The parents and friends are invited to visit the Junior League any Friday afternoon.

On Friday evening, May 22, will be given the Juniors' reception. The young people remember the jolly time had last year, and are looking forward with pleasure to the coming reception. These Sunday-school receptions are marked features in the school, and are greatly enjoyed by the scholars.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Elizabeth District will hold its annual district meeting in Vincent chapel May 28. Delegates from all the auxiliaries of the district will be present. Able speakers will address the convention. Meetings will be held morning and afternoon. Luncheon will be served in the chapel by the ladies, and such royal welcome will be given to the visitors as characterizes the people of this hospitable city.

Next Sunday evening the Epworth League Chapter will celebrate the second anniversary of the organization of the society. An appropriate responsive service will be used, the church will be beautiful with flowers, Charles E. Scudder will speak words of welcome, Miss Edith Katline will give a review of the Chapter's work for the past year, and Charles W. McCutchen, Superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday-school, will deliver an address.

The Epworth League at its last meeting elected the following officers and committees for the ensuing year: President, Charles E. Mitchell; First Vice President, G. M. Rittenhouse, who is chairman of the committee on religious work; Second Vice President, James R. Joy, who is chairman of the committee on literary work; Third Vice President, George R. Cornwell, who is chairman of the committee on social work; Secretary, Arthur Crone; Treasurer, Clarence M. Smith. Committee on religious work: Edith Katline, Emma Brown, Minnie Sharp. Committee on literary work: Charles E. Scudder, Ida Angleman, Susie Emerson. Committee on social work: Alice Carroll, Louise Pangborn, Harry Jenkins.

The Elopers Gave the Police the Slip.

John B. Gable and Mrs. Wm. B. Avery, the elopers, who made another flying visit to Plainfield yesterday afternoon, walked freely about town under the very noses of the astute police, and when the officials woke up and got ready to arrest them on the warrants that were issued the giddy birds had flown again. Now an attempt may be made to bring them back by requisition papers.

The Bulls Can Run it Alone.

The Plainfield Press says there's a bear wandering around in New Jersey. But the wranglings of the Plainfield city council do not indicate that any of them have escaped.—Elizabeth Journal.

Not yet, but they are growling against holding so many meetings and may run away any day. But that won't make any difference, the meetings will be held and business transacted just the same.

Christianity and the Masses.

The theme of Dr. Lewis's discourse at the Seventh-day Baptist church, to-morrow morning, will be: "How can we bring Christianity to the masses of the people?" Services begin at 10:30. Seats are free and strangers welcome.

So say we all of us? Salvation Oil is the greatest cure on earth for pain. Price only 25 cents.

SUING FOR THE CHILDREN.

The Claim Against the Plainfield Pythians to be Heard by the Courts.

The suit of Mrs. James Keating against the Plainfield Lodge of the Knights of Pythias for the possession of her deceased sister's three children, which the Knights put in the Children's Home at Plainfield, will be begun in the Orphans' Court of Somerset county at Somerville next Friday before Judge Bartine.

Mrs. Keating has retained Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, of Plainfield, to conduct her suit. Her sister was married to John Duckworth, who lived at Plainfield and who died there last fall. His wife had died some time before. Duckworth's friends allege that it was his desire that his children should all be educated in the Children's Home, where he had put one of them after his wife's death. He was a member, in good standing, of the Plainfield Knights of Pythias.

Mrs. Keating and her other sister, however, insisted that as they were the next of kin they had a prior right to the custody of the children, but before they could take them the Knights of Pythias put the orphans into the Home, the managers of which then refused to deliver the children to their aunts. Hence this suit.

Mrs Keating's husband is a prosperous business man of Elizabethport. They have children of their own, but claim that they are amply able to stand the additional burden of rearing the Duckworth orphans.

SAVED THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS.

Yet the Brave Firemen Receive but a Paltry Donation Towards the Relief of Their Sick and Destitute.

The Fireman's Relief Association of this city met Wednesday evening in annual meeting. The treasurer's report shows that the income for the past year has been $1,153, but that the disbursements have been $300 in excess. This outgo has all been for the relief of sick and destitute firemen, and to their widows. It has been the worst year in the history of the Association. Demands for assistance have never before been in excess of the receipts.

For many years it had been the custom of the owners of property where fire occurred, to "set the boys up" to whatever they were pleased to order. This sometimes meant two or three kegs of beer at an expense to the host and a damage to the firemen. Chief Doane therefore requested that those whose property had been saved and who felt disposed to show their appreciation and generosity, should donate the cost of the "treat" direct to the Relief Association's treasury. So the "boys" have gone without their "refreshments", but the Association has not gained much thereby. One donation of $25 and one of $5, is all that has been received.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—T. O. Doane.
Vice President—A. Saltzman.
Treasurer—Joseph A. Hubbard.
Secretary—E. Mosher.

A Most Satisfactory Explanation of Their Connection.

To the Editor of The Press:—Noticing that our names are published by you in your last night's edition as having signed the call for the meeting of the North American Endowment association and as thereby having been accused by the news of entering into a scheme to swindle the people by means of a bogus insurance project, we can say with Mr. Smith that we never signed a call for the meeting as advertised; but on the contrary were greatly surprised to see our names appended to the advertisement.

Our only connection with this organization was to subscribe for a few shares of its stock and if the concern is a swindle we are the victims.

The fact is that soon after subscribing we took steps to investigate this company and in answer to our inquiries received the following letter:

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT,
COMMONWEALTH BUILDING.
BOSTON, April 12, 1891.

Mr. Vincent W. Baker, Plainfield, N. J.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter to the Secretary of the Commonwealth has been referred to this department for reply. The corporation concerning which you inquire is charted in Massachusetts to do an assessment endowment business. Their report to the 1st of January showed a membership of 5,702, with a liability upon the certificates of $2,851,000. They had not collected one dollar for the endowment fund and had nothing whatever in the State Treasury. It had collected from its members during the year for expenses $38,606.

It does not require a vast amount of arithmetic to discover how long it will take a corporation of this character, drawing from its members this much money in a single year for expenses without securing one dollar towards the purpose for which it was organized, to succeed in paying its membership from $2 to $5 for $1.

Respectfully yours,
GEO. S. MERRILL,
Insurance Commissioner.

Since receiving this letter we have had nothing whatever to do with this association except to aid in its exposure and suppression.

This letter we did not publish at once—by advice—as it was thought it might interfere with securing sufficient evidence to entrap and convict the swindlers.

Certainly we think, as law abiding and respectable citizens, that your article has done and may do us great injustice, and we desire that you may put us right in the matter.

W. F. GASTON,
E. J. SHAW.

FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

A SORELY-TRIED BOY.

You wouldn't suppose he had any,
But he had, this little John;
Why, he had to get up in the morning,
And put his own little clothes on.

And he had, when he came to breakfast,
A lot of oatmeal to eat,
And he didn't like to eat it—
He wanted to have all sweet.

And sometimes he had to go errands
When he really wanted to play;
And then he had to study
When he went to school each day.

And O, dear! dear! his mother
Wouldn't let him eat much fruit cake;
And she wouldn't let him go barefoot—
He thought that a great mistake!

And she wouldn't let him go bathing
With nobody older nigh—
Over that terrible trial
Our Johnnie had many a cry.

And I don't think that is nearly all,
But I can't remember more
Of this poor little Johnnie's trials,
The things which troubled him sore.

He'd a home and father and mother,
A plenty to eat and wear,
And presents at every Christmas—
A velocipede and a snare

(A snare, I mean, to catch rabbits),
And lots of pigeons and things,
And all you'd think a boy would want—
Kites and marbles and strings.

But then, he had all those trials
Coming up so every day;
He couldn't do just as he wanted to,
All the time he couldn't play.

Now tell me little laddies—
Put each little "thinking cap" on—
Did you ever see any one like him?
Do you know any boys like John?

—Emily Baker Smalle, in Our Little Men and Women.

A TRUE INDIAN STORY.

How Two Little Girls Were Badly Scared by a Terrible War Whoop.

"You see, my dears, when I was a child I said 'mother,' not 'mamma,' as you do. That sounds old-fashioned to you, but to me it sounds very sweet. My mother was the dear grandmamma whom you can hardly remember; she would be eighty-three years old today."

Mrs Ashley gave a little sigh. Alice and Charlie kept quite still out of sympathy, though they were eager to have her go on.

"I don't think either of you ever saw an Indian, but you have heard about the Indian troubles during the past months. I suppose they have recalled things mother used to tell me about her own childhood.

"Indians were plenty here then. When she was a little girl like you, Alice, she went to what they called a 'district school.' It seems odd enough now, but there was no janitress to take care of the school-room, and the sweeping was done by the schoolgirls. Every afternoon two were appointed by the teacher to stay after school and sweep. They enjoyed it because they made a frolic out of the work, and it was no unusual thing for two of them to ask:

"'Please, sir, may we stay to-night and sweep the schoolroom?'

"On this day, the duty fell to my mother and her best friend. Little girls had 'best friends' then, as they do now."

Mrs. Ashley pinched Alice's ear a bit; Alice laughed and they both thought about Hattie Brown, who was Alice's "best friend."

"The girls were doing their task as fast as their fun would let them, but it took some time to sweep around the legs of those old benches and desks. Mother stepped into the entry to get the dust-pan from behind the door, when she looked out and saw an Indian boy pass, with two brooms on his shoulder. They often made brooms to sell in those days. Mother was fearless, and I don't suppose she thought he would hear her; at any rate she called out:

"'Pretty, little Indian! Got two brooms!'

"With that she went back to gather up the dirt, and was holding the dust-pan for the other girl to brush it on, when she heard right in her ear, the most unearthly yell. It was no more nor less than the regular Indian war-whoop!

"There stood the Indian boy close by her side, a mocking look on his face, his eyes dancing with fun to think he had paid her off for her careless speech; an instant, then he ran off like a deer.

"Mother said they were both so frightened they hurried home as fast as they could, and they didn't ask the privilege again to 'stay and sweep the school-house.'"

"Maybe I'll be a soldier and go fight the Indians when I'm a man," said Charlie, valiantly. "What if I'd meet that very fellow who frightened grandma! I'd settle him," he added, with a delightful disregard of chronology.

Mamma laughed, but she shuddered too.

"I trust the Indian troubles will be settled and the fighting over, before my boy is a man, though I hope he will be ready to do any service which his country has a right to claim."

"Mother used to tell me a great many stories about 'when she was a girl,'" Mrs. Ashley continued, "and this one I never tired of, though I dare say I heard it fifty times over. I could just see that Indian boy with his brooms, and I could hear that awful yell, mother made it so vivid.

"I fancy I was like most children; I enjoyed a danger which wasn't a danger any more, and liked to thrill and tremble over it. It was delicious to know that after all it was for me a make-believe Indian and a make-believe yell."—Little Men and Women.

NANNIE'S JOKE.

How a Little Girl Playfully Spoiled the Last of a Good Dinner.

Grandma was expecting company for dinner—the minister and his wife and little girl. So she was very busy that morning cooking all sorts of good things and among the other things were the famous pumpkin pies, made just as her grandma had made them.

Her grandma! Why, it almost made Nannie dizzy to think about grandma's grandma.

Nannie was standing on a chair close beside the table, helping grandma cook. She had come out in the country the day before to try and get over La Grippe.

"I should think," said Nannie, "that that way to make punkin pies wouldn't be very good, 'cause it's such old style."

"Old style's the best for pies, I guess," laughed grandma. "You see if it ain't. Now I suppose, child, you never do have 'em in the city, do you?"

"Only the kind that lives in cans,' answered Nannie. "And papa says they can't hold a candle to yours; but I never could see why they'd want to."

"I should think they couldn't!" said grandma, decidedly. "And now, child, we are ready for the seasoning. Just hand grandma the spice-box over there, won't you?"

Nannie put her nose down to smell when the box was opened.

"Ah, how good, grandma! It smells more like Christmas than ministers' folks, I think."

"There's ginger and mustard standing right beside each other," said grandma. "That's the beauty of doing you own work, dear, 'cause they look just alike; but I could go to them in the dark, and not make a mistake."

Just then some one knocked at the sitting-room door and grandma had to go.

"Now, dearie, don't get into mischief, will you?" she said, as she started.

And Nannie did not really intend to, but grandma was gone a long time, and by and bye Nannie began to think it would be a good joke to put the mustard in the place of the ginger.

"Papa dearly loved a joke," she thought, "and so do I. How they all will laugh!"

So, quick as thought, she changed them.

"Now, p'r'aps it will be better than ginger. Maybe I'll discover something," she thought, trying to quiet her conscience.

When grandma came back everything looked all right, and she hurriedly seasoned the pies and put them in the oven.

"The land knows Mrs. Pipkin is the beater of a stayer," she said, as she shut the oven door and looked at the clock.

But everything was ready when the minister's family came, and grandma's cap and Nannie's apron were stiff and spotless.

The dinner was good, and they all ate as though they enjoyed it. And grandma, who just prided herself on her cookery, beamed with delight over the way things disappeared.

When the pies were brought on, the minister's wife said: "Now we are to have some of the famous pumpkin-pie that we have heard so much about."

Nannie's heart plumped down like lead as she looked at grandma's happy face as she handed around the great golden wedges.

But what was the matter with it?

They all took one mouthful, and then a hasty drink of water.

Grandma quickly tasted hers, then looked at Nannie's crimson face, and Nannie burst out crying:

"O grandma, it was a joke," she sobbed out.

No one laughed at all, but grandma arose and took Nannie's hand and took her upstairs and put her to bed right in broad daylight.

"O grandma," said Nannie, when they had all gone, and grandma had come upstirs, "I am degraced forever! I'll never play a joke again."

"It's no joke at all, when it hurts folks' feelings," said grandma.

And Nannie has been very careful ever since to remember that.—Mrs. L. E. Crittenden, in Youths' Companion.

A Clever Dog.

A man of Athens has a fox-terrier. There appears to be something like reasoning power directing some of her actions. She has been sleeping in the basement of the house, in a box placed under the stairs for her convenience. Recently, one of the servants missed a small shawl, which early in the morning and late at night she had been accustomed to wear. A short time ago she went downstairs late at night, and glancing into Spot's box, saw the dog snugly wrapped up in the shawl. She didn't disturb the dog, but told her master about it the next morning; and he concluded to watch the dog that evening. The shawl was missing as usual during the day. At night, when everybody else had left the basement, he saw Spot scratch away a lot of kindling wood in the cellar and scratch out the shawl. She pulled it across the floor to her box, and, carefully adjusting it, took the corner in her teeth and rolled over twice. In the morning the shawl was not in her box, and a search of the wood-pile revealed that the clever dog had removed it and carefully covered it up.—Atlanta Banner.

CHILDREN'S WISE SAYINGS.

—Mamma—"You naughty girl! You've eaten every cooky there was on the plate. I told you you might have three." Little Edith—"Yes, but you didn't tell me which three. So I had to eat all to be sure to get the right ones."—Boston Transcript.

—Full-Grown Gloves.—Tommy Jones—"Say, mister, I want to get a pair o' gloves." Furnisher—"Kid gloves?" Tommy—"Naw! Naw! What a' you givin' us? Gloves fur grown pursons."—Binghamton Leader.

—Eddie came walking in one morning with a very solemn face and a large rent in his little kilt skirt, and, sidling up to his mother, he asked: "Mamma, will you please glue my dress together?"—Youths' Companion.

—What He Got.—"Now, children," said the Sunday-school teacher, "can some one tell me what Joseph's father gave him?" A deep silence reigned over the class. "Perhaps, Tommy Bingo," continued the teacher, "you can tell me what your father gets when he goes to the tailors." "Yes, sir," said Tommy, triumphantly, "he gets trusted."—West Shore.

—At Trinity, N. F., a whole family of four, named Hodge, who were suffering for the necessaries of life, died from eating a dead rabbit, found in the woods, which had evidently died from eating some poisoned food or plant.

A BEAUTIFUL WRECK.

A sad scene with which to terminate a brilliant evening. They have returned from a reception. She had felt restless and nervous during the day, but, realizing the demands of society, resorted to an artificial stimulant, one of those Quack Poisons that flood the market under various names. The picture shows the reaction.

Women, this is a fearful fact! Avoid the misery that must ensue from the use of Quack Medicines. They only increase your suffering, and complicate your disease. We extend to you a remedy that never fails, combined with the experience of Mrs. Pinkham.

A TERRIBLE TRIP.

Rounding a Dangerous Turn in the Good Old Coaching Days.

An Experience Which Made an Old Stage Driver Say His Prayers—A Madman's Wild and Furious Drive.

One of the most famous and most largely patronized stage routes of three decades ago was that which ran from Portsmouth, N. H., to Concord, says the New York World. In the suburbs of the latter city there now resides an old man who was once a famous driver over the line. His name is Reuben Hemiup, but in the good old days he was known far and wide as Reckless Rube. He was a daring and dashing "master of the ribbons," and had the reputation of always bringing his coach through on time.

"Ya-a-s," said old Rube, "I hev took many a ride over th' ole turnpike, an' I allers managed to git there on time, somehow. Once I skipped the last relay an' got into Kunk'rd purty nigh 'n hour afore I was due. How's that? Well, you see, I only hed two passengers that day—a man an' his woman. The man was the drollest cuss ye ever see, an' he wanted ter ride on th' box. My assistant was laid off fur a day to 'tend a fun'ral, an' so thar was room. Well, that air fellow tole me that he was a driver hisself—that he'd driv from Virginia City, in Nevader, ter Sacremento, and wanted me ter give him the ribbons. We war 'bout four mile from th' last relay afore gittenˈ ter Kunk'rd, when I let him hev 'em, an' the way he swung that whip was a caution. The hosses jest plunged like mad, an' we went down the side o' the mounting's though old Nick war a chasin' of us. The coach rocked an' awayed an' pitched, so that, reckless as I was in them days, I was afeard that she'd keel over an' spill us all into the ravine. I reached aout an' tried to grab the lines, but gorramighty, 't wan't no use. That feller jest chucked them lines clean outen his han's down across the hosses' backs, an' he kep' a swingin' that air gad till the hull six war a runnin' dead away. I was mad, there an't no use'n talkin', an' I grabbed the feller by the throat an' well, I don't know how it happened, but afore I c'ud ha' said Jack Robinson I was on my back and the cuss was a holdin' me with one hand an' a fingin' the lash with t'other. It was jest at that minut that we passed the relay where the fresh hosses was all stan'in' in the road ready far me. Cos' we only stopped there long enough ter change. But gorramighty, man! we went by 'em so swift-like that you c'udn't tole a hoss from a mule. The coach was s-rollin' like a row-boat in a hurrykane, an' the woman inside stucked her head outen the windy an' yelled like a Commancher Injun. 'Bout half a mild ahead was a steep pitch, with a sharp turn at the bottom, an' a deep gully dead ahead. We was agoin' so like mad that I calkeriated that we wouldn't make the turn, but keep right on to the bottom o' the gully 'mong the rock an' stuns. I thought over my 'Now I lay me,' an' one or two others that I c'udn't remember's well, when all on a sudd'nt we struck the pitch. Gorramighty! it was awful! We jest slid down same's though the bottom'd dropped out o' the road. When we reached the turn the hosses made it all right an' then the ole coach swung aroun' tew. Well, sir, that air coach jest run on the two nigh wheels fur more'n forty rod, an' leaned way over jist es fur's 't c'ud 'thout goin' clean over. A quarter'r an inch more'n we'd been goners, but bimeby it settled back onto its four wheels kinder slow-like, cos' you see we was agoin' so fast that it c'udn't come daown quick. There ain't much more tew tell, 'cept that we run into Kunk'rd the same way an' the hosses stopped cos' they c'u'dn't go no furder. That droll cuss on the box with me, was a foamin' at th' mouth, an' it tuk four men to hole him an' 'bout a dozen to cart him off. Crazy? Well, gorramighty, I should say so! Yes, the hosses got over it; the woman wasn't hurt nor the coach neither. Have a little wee drop o' pepper in yer cider, sir? Yes, that was the reckllessest drive I ever took."

ADDRESSING PACKAGES.

A Valuable Suggestion from an Old Expressman.

In so simple a matter as marking the destination of an express package, it is possible, according to the Express Gazette, to commit a costly error through sheer excess of caution. "Are you going to pay for that package at this end?" was the question asked by an express clerk, says the journal above mentioned, as he watched a lady, who, having wrapped up a package and addressed it on one side, was about to address it on the other side also. "Yes," she replied. "Do you want to pay twice?" asked the expressman. "You are very liable to be charged twice for an express package if you mark it on both sides. After a package is paid for in advance, or at the point of shipment, we mark it 'paid' on the side of the address. When the billing clerk gets that package, the chances are just even that he is presented with the side which is not marked paid, and he bills 'collect.' Never address both sides of the package. If by any means your package gets open, the bill accompanying it will tell the expressman where it goes."

Imagination and Sympathy.

It takes imagination to realize vividly anything outside of our own consciousness, but, directly we have this keen realization of another's condition, we are in some sort of sympathy with him, says the New York Ledger. Who would tread upon a worm or wantonly crush a butterfly or kick a dog if he were vividly realizing the pain he was inflicting? And, still more, who would wound a fellow-being by word or deed or look; who would oppress the poor, cheat the ignorant or despise the feeble, if the distress they created was ever present before them? So true is it that "Evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart."

VESTAL VIRGINS.

Maidens Who Were Keepers of the Sacred Fire of Rome.

Ovid tells us that the first temple of Vesta at Rome was constructed of wattled walls and roofed with thatch like the primitive huts of the inhabitants. It was little other than a circular, covered fireplace, says the Cornhill Magazine, and was tended by the unmarried girls of the infant community. It served as the public hearth of Rome, and on it glowed, unextinguished throughout the year, the sacred fire which was supposed to have been brought from Troy, and the continuance of which was thought to be linked with the fortunes of the city.

The name Vesta is believed to be derived from the same root as the Sanskrit was, which means "to dwell, to inhabit," and shows that she was the goddess of home, and home had the hearth as its focus. A town, a state, is but a large family, and what the domestic hearth was to the house, that the temple of the perpetual fire became to the city. Every town had its Vesta or common hearth, and the colonies derived their fire from the mother hearth. Should a vestal maiden allow the sacred fire to become extinguished she was beaten by the grand pontiff till her blood flowed, and the new fire was solemnly rekindled by rubbing together of dry wood, or by focusing of the sun's rays. It might not be borrowed. The circular form and domed roof of the temples of Vesta were survivals of the prehistoric huts of the aborigines, which were invariably round.

P. E. C. Medicine Co., Rochester, N. Y.:

For seven or eight years my wife has been troubled with some kind of kidney trouble. She tried many different remedies but all in vain. She continued to grow worse. Last fall I induced her to try the P. E. C. Remedy, and before using one bottle she began to improve, and now, after using six bottles, she is entirely cured. I have recommended it to many and it has benefitted in every case heard from.

ON SCHEDULE TIME

The President's Grand Tour Ended Last Evening.

HE TRAVELED OVER 10,000 MILES.

Covered the Continent Twice Without Accident to Any One in the Party.

The Chief Magistrate Referred to the Journey as One that Had Never Been Equalled—He Delivered 140 Speeches During the Tour—Baby McKee Receives the First Greeting.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The grand tour of President Harrison and his party, which began April 14 last, ended at 5:30 o'clock last evening, when the Presidential train came to a standstill in the Pennsylvania Railroad station here, exactly on time.

The great journey of 10,000 miles had been accomplished without an accident and without deviation from the prearranged schedule, except on one occasion.

Benjamin Harrison McKee was the first person to be greeted by the President, who jumped from the train and clasped his grandson in his arms. Little Mary McKee was also at the station.

Secretary Foster, Secretary Proctor and Attorney-General Miller, with several assistant secretaries and a number of government officials, met the party at the train. Only a few people were at the station when the party arrived. The President, Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Dimick were driven directly to the White House, while Mr. and Mrs. Boyd took a train for Philadelphia.

The last day of the journey was the quietest of the entire tour. Rain fell most of the time, and when the party reached Washington it was pouring down steadily.

Between Washingington and Baltimore the members of the party and the train employes assembled in the observation car, and to them the President made a short speech in which he thanked all those who had accompanied him for their courtesy and attention. He referred to the journey as one that had never been equalled, and paid a high compliment to Mr. George W. Boyd, the general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who had charge of the train, for the great success he had achieved in keeping exactly to the prearranged schedule.

The President delivered 140 speeches during the tour. His best record for a single day was Thursday, when he talked to 12 different assemblages. The day before he made 11 speeches.

ADIRONDACK FIRES.

The Blazing Forests Are Getting Beyond the Control of the Wardens.

ALBANY, May 16.—Reports have just been telegraphed to the Forest Commission of large and spreading forest fires in township No. 13, town of Indian Lake, Hamilton county.

Forester Thomas Powers also sends word that the fire, owing to the excessive dryness of everything about the woods, is rapidly getting beyond control.

Three fire wardens have been summoned and are on the ground directing all their available force in checking the flames. Back firing has been resorted to about the village of Cedar River, but even this has proved so far unavailing.

Three times the wardens and their helpers have been driven from their posts, and once narrowly escaped being hemmed in and destroyed.

Small fires have also started near Olmstedville, in the southern part of Hamilton county, and Forester Powers reports that unless rain intervenes they will be powerless to prevent the destruction of timber in this district.

At Benson, in the same county, forest fires are also raging, which was caused by the burning over of fallow land without the consent of the fire wardens, which is required by law.

The Forest Commission has telegraphed orders to the fire wardens of neighboring districts, and every effort is being made to prevent a general conflagration, which the long drouth has made such ample provision for.

The Adirondack region was never so dry and the streams so low as now, according to the report of Chief Warden Garmon.

Knights of Honor Officers.

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—The Supreme Lodge Knights of Honor at their session here elected the following officers: Supreme Dictator, Honorable Samuel Klotz, Newark, N. J.; Supreme Vice Dictator, Honorable Marsden Bellamy, Wilmington, N. C.; Supreme Assistant Dictator, Honorable John Mulligan, Yonkers, N. Y.; Supreme Reporter, B. F. Nilson, St. Louis, Mo.; Supreme Treasurer, Joseph W. Beanch, St. Louis, Mo.; Supreme Chaplain, Rev. H. M. Hope, Danville, Va.; Supreme Guide, J. H. Hancock, Louisville; Supreme Guardian, J. P. Shannon, Elberton, Ga.; Supreme Sentinel, C. H. M. Curry, San Francisco.

College Contests at New London.

NEW LONDON, May 16.—Representatives of the Harvard and Yale boat clubs and the Board of Trade committee held another conference, which resulted in the signing of an agreement substantially the same as the one formerly in force, which binds the colleges to have their annual boat contests on the Thames river course for the next five years. The interested railroads and citizens guarantee to defray the expenses of the crews here, to keep the quarters in repair and give the boat clubs $350 each.

Sir John Macdonald Breaking Up.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16.—Sir John Macdonald has had to knock off from his Parliamentary duties. The Premier is in his 77th year, and breaking up from old age, aggravated by heart failure. His condition causes consternation among the Tory party, which will go to pieces if he disappears.

NEW WAY TO WRECK BANKS.

Examiner Drew Tells How the Keystone National Was Robbed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Bank Examiner Drew told a sensational story of deception in the efforts of President Gideon W. Marsh and Assistant Cashier Charles W. Lawrence to cover up the shortage of the Keystone National Bank. The story was told before United States Commissioner Bell, who gave the accused officers a partial hearing.

Mr. Drew said he made examinations of the bank's books about twice a year, generally in January and July. Marsh and Lawrence concealed the true condition of the bank and the Lucas defalcation in a most original manner.

John Lucas was the organizer of the bank and its president up to the time of his death. Mr. Lucas was reputed to be a very wealthy man, but since the failure of the bank the fact has developed that he abstracted large sums from the institution. Mr. Drew told of the way in which the shortage was covered up. He says as follows: President Marsh and Mr. Lawrence would remove from the "individual deposit ledger" whole leaves. After the examination of the books these leaves would be reinserted. The effect of this would be to show that the deposits were much less than they really were.

Mr. Drew characterized this as an unheard of method in bank wrecking. They falsified accounts as well. At one time Mr. Drew found that $50,000 of discounted paper alleged to be held by the bank was missing. Altogether the deficiency amounts to $998,000. Most of this immense sum is said to be charged to the Lucas "deficit," as Mr. Drew sometimes called it in his testimony. At other times he referred to it as "defalcation."

The witness told how Messrs. Marsh and Lawrence acknowledged to him their manipulation of the bank's books, and it was upon this acknowledgement that warrants were obtained for their arrest.

MR. BLAINE'S ILLNESS.

The Secretary's Washington Friends Are Alarmed at His Condition.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Notwithstanding the reassuring reports from New York regarding Mr. Blaine's condition, his intimate friends in this city are seriously alarmed and do not seem to place much reliance in the bulletins issued by his physicians.

This is not so much because they have any inside information indicating that his present attack is likely to result seriously, but because they know that he has had other similarly alarming attacks recently.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Dr. Dennis, who is attending the distinguished patient, says positively that Mr. Blaine is rapidly recovering from his sickness, which was brought on by overwork, and will be able to resume his official duties in a few days.

THE POISONING MYSTERY.

Mrs. Barnaby Took About Eleven Grains of Arsenic.

DENVER, May 16.—Prof. Headden has, after two weeks' hard work, finished his analysis of Mrs. Barnaby's viscera. The result of the analysis of the poison simply corroborates Dr. Sewall. It discloses the fact that about two and a quarter per cent. of the fluid was arsenic.

"Mrs Barnaby took about two tablespoonfuls of the fluid," said the Professor, "which amount contained about 11 grains of arsenic."

The grand jury has not yet made any report upon the case.

United States Marshal Lake Injured.

NEW YORK, May 16.—United States Marshal Lake was quite seriously injured while returning from the race track at Gravesend last evening. He was riding on the outer side of a crowded open car and in some way was crowded off. He fell down an embankment and into a cut, a distance of 35 feet. The train was stopped and the marshal was taken to the Seney Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained fractures of the right arm, his left fore-arm, his nose and, besides cutting his scalp in several places, he had received severe contusions of the left breast and thigh. Although suffering great pain it is not thought that his condition is serious.

Arrested for Blackmail.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Annie Vanzandt, aged 40 years, was arrested here charged with attempted blackmail. Chas. S. Smith, an agent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, was discharged after paying her $190 on a policy on a deceased daughter, it having been stated by her at the company's headquarters in Newark, N. J., that he had only paid her $45. She tried to collect the balance from Smith, and upon his producing a receipt in full from her he was reinstated with the company, and the woman arrested.

Death Exposes a Robbery.

NEW YORK, May 16.—It has just been discovered that Medad W. Stone, who died six weeks ago, had wronged the Corn Exchange National and two other banks in this city out of at least $40,000 on bogus certificates. Mr. Stone was one of the best known members of the Cotton Exchange, and no man had a better reputation for honesty and faithfulness to duty.

VICTORY FOR TENNY

The Great Swayback Wins the Brooklyn Handicap.

30,000 PEOPLE SEE THE RACE.

It is Estimated that Over $1,000,000 Changed Hands on the Result.

Great Bundles of Money Fairly Hurled at the 118 Bookmakers in the Betting Ring. Tenny Finished Two Lengths Ahead of Prince Royal—Tea Tray Got Third Place. The Time Was Slow.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The great Brooklyn Handicap Race, which has been the all-absorbing topic in turf circles for the past few weeks, has been run. Tenny, who has been the favorite for the past few days, won the race easily enough at the finish, though in the first part of the race he looked to be out of it.

Fully 30,000 people were present, including all the officials of New York and Brooklyn, while millionaires, merchants and business men rubbed elbows with their clerks and other employes. The fair sex was plentifully represented, and their bright, sparkling faces and brilliant costumes relieved in a great measure the general gloominess of the day.

All Crazy to Bet.

In the betting ring all was pandemonium. Men stumbled and trod over each other in their desperate endeavors to get the good odds before the bookmakers changed them. Great bundles of money were fairly hurled at the bookmakers, and money floated about in a way that would make a miser crazy. There were in all 118 bookmakers doing business, the largest number ever seen on a race track in this country.

It is estimated that over $1,000,000 changed hands on the result.

The Race.

When the handicap horses were all on the track, they paraded past the stand to the post. Jockeys and horses seemed to be fully alive to the importance of the race, and Starter Caldwell had little trouble in sending them off. They were away at the third break, with Burlington in the lead, setting a lively pace, with Russell second and Loantaka third. At the half Russell had gone to the front with Nellie Bly second and Burlington third, and Tenny, Tea Tray and Prince Royal were away back in the bunch. Russell was still in front at the three-quarter pole with Loantaka at his throat-latch, while Once Again spurted into third position.

At the mile, to the surprise of everybody, Russell and Loantaka were still running neck and neck, but Tenny had improved his position and was running third, two lengths away. As they turned into the stretch Judge Morrow came with a great burst of speed from the bunch and took the lead, half a length ahead of Tenny. A shout went up from 30,000 throats, "Judge Morrow wins," but the pace was too hot for him and he was soon joined by Tenny, Tea Tray and Prince Royal.

Tenny to the Front.

Barnes, on Tenny, realizing that the critical moment had come, began urging the great "swayback" with whip and spur. The horse responded nobly, coming down the stretch with a great burst of speed, and at the stand there was daylight between him and Prince Royal. Barnes' face broadened into a grin as he glanced over his shoulder and saw that the race was won. Tenny finished two lengths ahead of Prince Royal, who beat Tea Tray a head for the place. Then came Judge Morrow, Riley and Bemuth, while Burlington, who was the winter favorite, finished back in the bunch. The time was 2:10.

NEARLY A BIG WRECK.

Close Call for 1,200 People on the Long Island Railroad.

NEW YORK, May 16.—An accident occurred last evening to a train on the Long Island Railroad, while returning from the Gravesend races, which resulted in several persons being slightly injured by jumping.

The train was composed of 16 cars which were crowded to the doors. It is estimated that 1,000 persons were on the train.

As the train was approaching the curve at Parkville, the engineer slowed up, and this prevented what would likely have been one of the most terrible accidents in the annals of railroading. A spreading of the rails at this point caused several of the cars to leave the tracks, but as the train was going slowly the engineer easily stopped it without serious results. Several persons jumped when they felt the cars bumping over the ties, but beyond a few bruises and sprains they all escaped serious injury.

To Administer on Diss Debar.

NEW YORK, May 16.—District-Attorney Nicoll has formally turned over to the public administrator the documents he received some time ago from Mme. Diss Debar, in which she stated that she intended to put an end to her life and made him the custodian of her children.

MYER OFF FOR THE FIGHT.

The Streator Cyclone on His Way to New Orleans to Meet Bowen.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Billy Myer, accompanied by Alf Kennedy and his trainers and seconds have left for New Orleans over the Illinois Central.

Myer's contest with Andy Bowen, the New Orleans Octoroon, takes place before the Olympic Club in the Crescent City, Tuesday next. Billy is down below weight, 134 pounds, and is looking well.

He will gain from 3 to 5 pounds on the way down, and will probably weigh 137 or 138 pounds when he reaches the city.

Attacked by Four Men and Robbed.

KEYPORT, N. J., May 16.—Philip Lott, a well-to-do resident of Old Bridge, was found unconscious during the forenoon in George Dunham's woods, five miles from here. When he was able to talk, he said that four men approached him while he was driving along. One of them asked him what time it was. He was about to take out his watch when he was struck and knocked senseless with a rail. They stole his horse and wagon and robbed him.

Driven to Suicide by a Wayward Son.

KINGSTON, N. Y., May 16.—John Merritt, formerly a dry goods merchant at Rondout, committed suicide by shooting himself at the West Shore depot. He was for several years superintendent of a department in H. B. Claflin & Co.'s store in New York city. It is said that trouble over a wayward son had something to do with his killing himself. Mr. Merritt was 62 years of age.

Yale's Oldest Living Graduate.

BOSTON, May 16.—By the recent death of Dr. Joseph D. Wickham, of Manchester, Vt., Charles Judson McCurdy, LL.D., of Old Lyme, Conn., becomes the oldest living graduate of Yale University, having graduated in 1817. He is 94 years old, and has held office under both the State and Federal governments.

New York's Jack the Ripper Case.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Counsel for the alleged Jack the Ripper, Frenchy No. 1, appeared before Judge Martine, and asked that now that the Coroner's jury had seen fit to deem Ben Ali guilty of the murder of Shakespeare, the case be allowed to go before the Grand Jury without further examination. The motion was granted.

A Washington Newspaper Suspends.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The affairs of the Evening Critic newspaper company of this city have been placed in the hands of a receiver, and the paper suspended. All the compositors have been paid in full but the editorial and reportorial staff is in arrears for about a week's salary. The paper has been running at a big loss.

Quarrymen Demand Higher Wages.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 16.—The employes of the quarry owners, Brownsell and Murkland, and Jenny and Bullingtec are on a strike. The men, who are members of the quarrymen's union, have demanded an increase of 15 per cent. The demand was refused by the firms mentioned.

No Contraband Goods Aboard.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Customs officials have been keeping a strict watch over the steamer Monserrat, which left here last evening with a cargo of cereals and provisions for Chili. No arms or contraband goods were shipped, however, and she started on her voyage.

Test it Yourself.

Test it for Purity. Cleveland's Baking Powder is perfectly pure. The same claim is made for powders adulterated with ammonia and alum, but you can settle the question yourself. "Boil a teaspoonful of the baking powder in a teaspoonful of water; if adulterated the smell of ammonia can be detected in the steam."

Test it for Strength. Cleveland's Baking Powder is the strongest. It is the most effective and economical. Try it. A teaspoonful of Cleveland's will do more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of other powders.

Test it by Results. Food made with Cleveland's keeps moist and fresh for days, but if made with others soon dries out and becomes "husky." Cleveland's leavens evenly, making fine grained, delicately fibred breads and cakes, results produced by no other leavening agent.

Cleveland's Baking Powder Stands all Tests.

ACAPULCO THE POINT

The Esmeralda is Waiting There for the Itata.

THE CHARLESTON ON THE WAY.

If There is to be a Battle It Cannot be Much Longer Delayed.

Mexicans Believe That the Americans Will Get the Worst of It—A Secret Dispatch Received at the Navy Department—Thought to be from Commander McCann at Chili.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Another day has passed, and the Navy Department has not heard from the cruiser Charleston or the belligerent ship which she is endeavoring to overtake to capture.

A cable dispatch in cipher was received at the Navy Department, and three officers have been busily engaged in translating it. The dispatch is thought to be from Admiral McCann at Chili, but the officials of the department will say nothing of it or its contents.

The Charleston has been at sea since last Saturday, and must now be near Acapulco, where she will probably stop to coal, as she can only carry 800 tons, which must be nearly exhausted, if she is making even ordinary headway.

THE ESMERALDA WAITING.

Still Off the Coast of Acapulco and the Charleston Expected To-day.

ACAPULCO, May 16.—A strange steamer was sighted off this port this forenoon and it is supposed she is the Itata. The Charleston has not yet put in an appearance.

The Chilian man-of-war Esmeralda, which came to this port Tuesday and left later, is still off this part of the coast.

It is the general belief that the Esmeralda will endeavor to meet the Itata and, if possible, transfer all the contraband part of her cargo before the Charleston comes up. If this can be done the Itata will be surrendered—otherwise it is the general opinion that there will be a fight and the feeling here among the Mexicans is that the American will get the worst of it.

The Charleston should get here either to-night or to-morrow morning, at least, and if there is to be a naval engagement it cannot be much longer delayed.

WHY RAUM RESIGNED.

It is Alleged the Commissioner's Son Used His Influence for Financial Gain.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Secretary of the Interior accepted the resignation of G. B. Raum, jr., assistant chief clerk of the Pension Bureau.

It is understood his resignation was called for, and was the direct result of using his influence and position to secure the appointment of persons to positions in the Bureau in return for financial benefits received or promised.

Interior Department officials assert most emphatically that General Raum, Commissioner of Pensions, is in no way responsible for the conduct of his son, and that he was entirely ignorant of the transactions which led to young Raum's resignation.

SAID TO BE A NIHILIST.

The Czarevitch's Assailant Was an Escaped Russian Prisoner.

LONDON May 16.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Chronicle says it is reported that the Czarevitch is more seriously wounded than is admitted by the authorities.

The correspondent adds that the assailant of the Czarevitch is a Nihilist who escaped from Saghalien, an island off the coast of Asia belonging to Russia, and who succeeded in entering the Japanese police service.

Mailing Boxes on Street Cars.

BOSTON, May 16.—A plan is under consideration whereby those just out of the city proper may have equal mailing advantages with the city residents. The plan is to place letter boxes on all horse cars which enter Boston from the suburbs.

Death from Lockjaw.

BIRMINGHAM, Conn., May 16.—Miss Ellen E. Lattin, aged 17 years, died last evening of lockjaw, after suffering from spasms two weeks. She stepped on one of the teeth of a garden rake.

THEIR LIVES AT STAKE.

The Trial of the Elliott Brothers for Murder Has Begun.

COLUMBUS, O., May 16.—A murder trial is just beginning here which will be the most hotly contested and celebrated the capital of the State has ever seen on account of the prominence of the parties concerned.

The prisoners are William J. Elliott, editor of the Sunday Capital, and his brother, Patrick Elliott, business manager of the same newspaper and superintendent of the Columbus Public Employment Bureau.

They are charged with the killing, on Washington's Birthday, of Albert C. Osborn, city editor of the World, with whom they had had a newspaper war, and Wm. Hughes, an aged and disinterested spectator, who was killed by one of the flying bullets.

The trial of William J. Elliott has begun, and the selection of a jury is going on, but is making slow progress. The case is in the hands of eight of the ablest attorneys in the city and promises to be a long and bitter trial.

HE WAS A RECTOR'S SON.

Some Facts About Duncan, Now Under Arrest in Wales.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—R. C. Duncan who has confessed in Wales that he hammered the head of his wife with a stone, is the son of an Episcopal rector in Earleville, Chester county, on the Eastern shore of Maryland, but has spent recent years at the home of an aunt and uncle in Georgetown, D. C.

He was always apparently of a quiet disposition while here, and rather studiously inclined, having a special taste for languages.

His family connections, without being fashionable, are of the highest respectability. He is about 24 years of age, has no settled occupation, and was making a tour of Europe for pleasure only.

His marriage, if he really contracted one, was unknown to his relatives here.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

David Elansburg, a builder of Newburgh, N. Y., has made an assignment.

Herbert Spencer has joined the London Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

A number of clergymen and seminarists have come out in defense of the Rev. Dr. Briggs.

Yesterday gold at Buenos Ayres experienced a further advance and closed 200 per cent. premium.

John Conlon, liquor merchant of Lincoln street, one of the most prominent Irishmen in Boston, died during the day aged 55.

Secretary Foster has notified the Collector of Customs at Philadelphia to dispense with ten of his weighers, and has also directed the Appraiser to reduce his force.

At New Brunswick, N. J., the body of the late Ebenezer Hall, which, it was reported, had shown signs of having become partially petrified, was exumed. No evidences of petrification were found.

Henry Burt and Harvey Lansing, playmates, about thirteen years old, of Bridgeton, N. J., and sons of prominent citizens, were shooting at a mark with a Flobert rifle, when the Burt boy accidentally shot his companion dead.

In the House of Commons Postmaster-General Raikes said that the first Chinese mails by the Canadian Pacific arrived in London yesterday, having taken thirty-six days from Hong Kong, and twenty-six from Yokohama.

Rudolph F. Sigel, a son of Gen. Franz Sigel, was arrested at the International Hotel in New York city during the morning, having escaped from a private lunatic asylum. Young Sigel is a civil engineer, and overwork is thought to be the cause of his trouble.

The judgment of $12,500 which Miss Caroline J. Cammerer, the Philadelphia music teacher, secured for breach of promise against Clement Muller, the wealthy German real estate owner of New York, has been affirmed by the Supreme Court.

Killed the Warden and Escaped.

BERLIN, May 16.—A daring escape of a prisoner is reported from Coblentz. He managed to attract the attention of the guard by knocking on the door of his cell. When the warden appeared he struck him with a pitcher, stunning him. He then seized the warden's sword, and before the injured man could collect his senses, ran him through the body with the weapon, killing him. The murderer coolly donned the dead officer's uniform and walked out of the prison.

THE DAILY PRESS.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - Managing Editor.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The usual meeting will be held in the W. C. T. U., rooms this evening at 7:45 o'clock.

—The Elkwood Cafe, West Second street, is open on Sundays from 10 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m.

—Muhlenber Hospital is much in need of linen. Any donations of second-hand material of such character, will be thankfully received.

—The New York papers think it's queer that the Plainfield police let wife-deserter Gable slip through their fingers. Some Plainfield people think so too.

—An easy way to earn $10 is to leave at THE PRESS office for the advertiser the name of the culprit who steals milk from cows pastured on Washington avenue near the brook.

—Telephone linemen working at the corner of Front street and Park avenue, caused a break in the fire-alarm circuit that started the steam gong this morning. There was no fire.

—The bowling team of the Y. M. C. A. will roll a match game on the Olympia alleys with a team of the Crescent League, next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the Association and their friends, both ladies and gentlemen, are invited.

—The Board of Health are faithful and untiring in their efforts for the safety of the community. Every supposed case of infectious or contagious disease is an object of their immediate care, and if it proves dangerous the house and street is quarantined at once.

—Van Emburgh & White call particular attention to ten special bargains that they will offer during the coming week. This firm is out after the business, and they say that if low prices, large assortments, and good goods are any inducement, they will get it.

—The first anniversary of the organization of Branch 1199, Order of the Iron Hall, will be held at their rooms Tuesday evening, May 26. Refreshments will be served at 9 o'clock. Dancing will begin at 10 o'clock. E. C. Morse and F. P. Storr are the committee in charge.

—Frank L. C. Martin is selling a great many Columbia bicycles in town, and each proud possessor of this perfect wheel says it's the best in the market. At Mr. Martin's well equipped repair shop Wm. Van Tine, Superintendent of repairs, is constantly in attendance, and gives the promptest and best service.

—Mrs. Gable wishes THE PRESS to request that people having had furniture left with her husband to be upholstered will please send for it. She also wishes denied the story made by an irresponsible sheet that she has applied to the overseer of the poor for help. She says that as long as she can work she will earn her own living.

—A free stage will leave on Sunday mornings for Netherwood chapel. It will start from the North avenue station at 10:30, through Broadway to LaGrande avenue, LaGrande avenue to Franklin place, Franklin place to Broadway, Broadway to Woodlawn avenue, to the chapel, returning after the services by the same route to the station.

—A service was held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at New Market this morning, in memory of a former officer and member, the late Deacon Isaac Clawson, of Farina, Ill. Deacon Clawson was for many years a resident at New Market, owning the place on the Bound Brook road now known as the Dryden property. For upwards of 20 years the deceased had resided at the place of his death, but many descendants and relatives live in the east, and attended today's services.

—The Bound Brook Chronicle says: "Last Friday on his way home from Newark after delivering his load of hay, a certain hay carter living not many miles from Dunellen fell asleep on his wagon or was under a spell of some kind. When he arrived at Plainfield his horses turned into West Fourth street, pulling into Michael Higgins's house, tearing the banisters off and one post from under the porch. By this time he had come to his senses and realized the damage he had done. So he started for home, turning his team into Richmond street on his way back to Newark. It was very late when he arrived at his destination."

He Still Retains Affection for His Fireman Clothes.

When wife-deserter Gable appeared at his house, Thursday afternoon, he said to his wife, who was startled at his appearance, "Fine tales they 're telling about me." Then he lapsed into moody silence. He took his shotgun, fire-hat and red blouse and did them up into a bundle. Then he went out into the yard and out into the street. The neighbors hissed him as he passed.

Mrs. Avery Anxious to Make up.

Mrs. Avery came back to town again to-day, and is reported as anxious to be taken back by her husband. She is said to grieve deeply at his action in seeking a divorce, and is quoted as uttering words of great penitence and saying that she meant her little escapade should be a "mere frolic".

Don't you know! Why get a bottle of Salvation Oil; it will cure toothache at once. 25 cents.

Wait and See.

Until the city receives official notification with a copy of the papers in the case, there is no way of knowing just how much foundation there is for Elias B. Pope's boast that the people shall have no street railway this Summer although the Common Council (excepting Mr. Ginna, of course), has unanimously granted a franchise and the Mayor has signed the ordinance therefore. Let it be hoped for the sake of Mr. Pope, however, that he has not gone so far in petty spite as street talk indicates. The public should wait with THE PRESS until the Corporation Counsel can receive a copy of the writ and give an opinion as to how much of a stay it is and how comprehensive in its effect.

Plainfield Indians Feast and Enjoy Themselves.

Miantonomah Lodge of Plainfield red men had a grand time in their wigwam last evening. The distinguished warriors of other tribes present were: Thomas McDonough, great sachem of New Jersey; Frederick Wahl, great senior sagamore, and Daniel W. Stevens, great chief of records.

The programme opened with the "Visitation Ode" by the tribe, and the entry of the Great Chiefs. Then followed recitations by warriors Carney, Leigh and Newcome, and songs by Chief Wahl and warriors Rogers and Odam. Supper was subsequently served at Force's hotel where Chief Sidney E. Flower responded to the toast, "Good of the Order". Addresses were also delivered by Chiefs Stevens and McDonough and songs were sung by brothers W. B. Rogers, G. Flannery, W. Howell, W. Kline, E. Odam and E. Rogers. The closing address was by the Sachem of Plainfield's tribe, Richard E. Seaman. The committee of arrangements consisted of S. E. Flower and George McGinnis.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

F. A. Dunham is absent for a few days in Michigan.

Miss Bert Stokes of Philadelphia, is visiting her uncle, George W. Force of West Second street.

Miss Lizzie DeCamp returned to her home, at Chester, yesterday afternoon, after a month's visit among relatives and friends.

Mrs. Spicer, of Brooklyn, as already announced in these columns, and Mr. Daland, of Elizabeth, will take part in the special service of song to be rendered at the Park Avenue Baptist church, to-morrow evening.

Dr. Ketcham has returned from a weeks' vacation during which he was the guest of the Messrs. Evans, of Baltimore, sons of the late ex-Mayor of Plainfield, on their elegant steam yacht "Restless". Trips were made to Atlantic City, Cape May, Little Egg Harbor and other ports on the New Jersey coast.

In the report of the annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A., published yesterday, no mention was made of the valuable services of A. J. Gavett and C. J. Robertson who have been since last October instructors in mechanical drawing. The services of the four other teachers in educational work, were recognized.

The Daily Continent says of a recent Plainfielder: "John F. Plummer, who failed in the drygoods business a year ago, and who conducted the merchants' campaign for Harrison, is about six feet tall, fifty years of age, and has dark hair and a smooth face. He was for many years prominent in the Union League Club, but is now located in the far West, looking after the interests of several wealthy landowners."

Town Topics says: "Jake Kirkner is a religious kind of man, but when he turns bearish on the market, the way he goes for stocks, hammer and tongs, would make one imagine, who saw him trade, that it was a case of 'after me the flood.' He positively can see no good in human nature. He distrusts everything from a railroad point of view, and the only things that he is not a bear on for the moment are those celestial mansions in the skies."

J. Burt Hurlburt left town this morning for Utica, to attend the 30th annual reunion of the 14th Reg't N. Y. Vols., of which he is a member. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Florence V. After the reunion they will visit friends in the Adirondack region, where he will leave his daughter for an indefinite period. This is only the second vacation Mr. Hurlburt has had after twenty-two years' of faithful service as foreman of the job printing department of The Constitutionalist and DAILY PRESS.

The Death of Dr. Coles.

Miss E. S. Coles, of Scotch Plains, in a letter from California, gives an account of the death of her father, Dr. Abraham Coles, and says: "My father had a cough when we left home, and it continued to afflict him until his death. He did not derive the benefits we anticipated from a change of climate. He grew weaker until he died. He had no fear of death, and said we must not greatly mourn our loss, but remember our father was in heaven. Almost his last words were: 'I know in whom I have believed, and I know it has been the purpose of my life to love Him and to see Him.'"

Men of brains originate, the unprincipled imitate. Counterfeit never has the true ring of the genuine. Wide-awake people refuse to be gulled. They insist on Hires's Root Beer, and are sure to get it.

GABLE AND MRS. AVERY.

The Eloping Wife Owns the House, and What is Mr. Avery Going to Do.

Not the least pointed of the many stings that rankle the heart of William B. Avery now that his wife has deserted him for Upholsterer Gable, is the fact that in his doting confidence he was fool enough to transfer to her the pretty house in which they lived. This he did some years ago. This last disastrous matrimonial venture was not Mr. Avery's first. He is now about fifty-one years old. Less than ten years ago he lost the wife of his youth. When not long afterward he married his present wife, she was little more than twenty-five years old. She was rather slender, and not at all bad looking. As the stationery business in the Custom House in New York was profitable, Mr. Avery bought the house at Plainfield—a three-story frame building with a French roof, beautifully furnished, and surrounded with a yard in which fruit trees bloomed in the spring. As Mr. Avery worked hard he got thin. His thinness was punctuated by a pair of iron-gray side whiskers. On Mrs. Avery matrimony had quite the opposite effect. Her face rounded and her formed filled until she looked like a very comfortable fit in the village cart he bought her, and left her little room for the dog which was always by her side.

And Mr. Avery, firmly to knit his buxom wife to his side, transferred the property to her. They led a quiet life, going little into society and being little known to the neighbors. Not a word was ever said against Mrs. Avery until John Gable began to wink at his friends and say that a lady of great social standidg was "stuck on" him, and gave him money in exchange for his smiles.

Nobody believed Gable. He is—according to the description of him given in the New York papers—and Plainfielders can see for themselves just how aptly the description fits—a tall, lanky man, with a face that could not be called attractive under any circumstances. He had greasy hair which he combed in that distressing plastered-on-the-forehead-and-poached-up-at-the-sides way which is justly condemned by all civilized persons. He and Mrs. Avery are about 34 years old each. Two years ago in a evil hour Mr. Avery called him in to lay carpets. Mrs. Avery saw and was conquered. Her love rose above such trifles as Gable's general air of uncleanness, his loafer-like manners, his atrocious hair, and his strong odor of liquor. Mr. Avery is a quiet, neat, orderly person, correct in morals and general habits.

Mr. Avery is looking very sad over the loss of his wife, and perhaps that of his property. He has determined to get a divorce as soon as a divorce can be got, and he is anxious to set aside the conveyance of the property to his wife. When Mrs. Avery returned Thursday she took away with her three trunks filled with clothing and whatever of jewelry and silverware there was in the house.

Mrs. Gable is disposed to be far more philosophical than Mr. Avery, which is the more remarkable as she has lost her breadwinner and has three small children to support. She is very hard of hearing, and ill health has not left her untouched, although she is only about 30 years old. She says that her husband is the victim of a fat but cunning woman, but that he is worthy of no mercy.

"I want to see him behind bars", said she yesterday afternoon, whereat the baby playing upon the floor burst into a wild wail of agony, and a visiting neighbor woman dressed in black and with a gold necklace and locket about her neck, remarked that the men were devils and no mistake.

As for Mrs. Avery and her carpet layer, they have not been heard from, and are supposed to be in New York. Plainfield people say they will come back and ask to be forgiven and get forgiven as soon as their money runs out. Mr. Gable said openly before he left that he was "after spending the lady's money." It is probable the husband will be able at least to delay the sale of the house if his wife attempts it.

Says It Was Whisky, But How?

Eloper Gable is quoted as saying that "whisky had driven him to what he had done, but he was sorry for it. He had got a job in Philadelphia, and he was going there. He was going to send for his wife and children after he had got well started in business".

A Happy Anniversary.

The third anniversary occasion of the Warren Mission Christian Endeavor Society, took place in the Chapel last evening. Through the efforts of the flower committee and friends, the platform was decorated with buds and the arrangement of the abundance of dog-wood blossoms was very much admired. The programme consisted of music, reports from the several committees, which showed that the Society was in a very prosperous condition. The address was made by the Rev. J. Cubberly, of New Market, his subject being "Soul-winning," which was full of interest and very instructive throughout. At the the close of the exercises the social committee did their best in furnishing the good things provided, and a general social time followed.

You Can Bet on It.

Have the Crescents a nice pitcher for the present season? It is claimed that they have and the public hope it. Whoever desires, however, an ice-pitcher that will stand by him season after season, and assure him of a refreshing delivery, must visit Collier's, 3 Park avenue, where this great summer need, together with everthing else in the line of table service, is to be obtained at the purchaser's own terms.

STEPHEN BURHANS,
Sexton Wayne st. Ref'd church, Jersey City

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

SOMERVILLE'S SHATTERED IDOLS.

What the Natives think of the Team the Crescents Are Soon to Meet.

[From The Somerville Democrat.]

The West Ends are not entitled to the name of ball players. They are simply living on their former glory. Why, just to think, a year ago, with five amateurs on the team, instead of two as now, we won a ten-inning game from this same team [the Bergen Points] by the score of 4 to 3, and yet, with the team, as it was supposed, greatly strengthened, we are beaten on our own ground by a score of 20 to 1. It is a shame, and there is certainly a screw loose somewhere. Some are inclined to think that it is in a great degree Manager Mack's fault. In the first place, he has not the control over the team that he should have. They do as they please—receive a large price for playing here, and when they make an error and play rocky ball they stand and laugh.

When a man makes an error he is excusable; but when he puts up the game that those fellows did last Saturday, it is infamous, and does more to hurt the national game than anything else. Why, the idea of Currie pitching so we were unable to get but two hits in the whole game. They, all of them, even the heavy batters of the team, hit at his high ball, every one of which, had they waited, would have entitled them to be given a base on balls. But no, they must strike at it; and, in the first inning, with two men on bases, and our heaviest batters up, he struck out two men in succession. Our team is made up of men who play an individual game. They seem not to take any interest in team work. They are all after personal glory. They are, in fact, home-run hitters. That is, they would be such, but they are not and never will be. Take Hatfield, for instance [whom the Crescents discarded]. He was strongly recommended as a good, all-around player. He has ably demonstrated the fact that he is not fit to play marbles, let alone base-ball. In the first inning, when he played short, what did he do?—made three of the worst errors ever seen on a ball field; and at the bat, why he could not hit a balloon. Then there is Williams, a man who, although a fair player, is so much imbued with the spirit of personal glory, and want of applause, that he must play a grand-stand game. It is a a pretty thing to see a man pick up a hot-hit ball, as Williams tries to, but when he fumbles it, and then lines it across the diamond ten feet above the first base man's head, it is disgusting. Then again when he attempted to get a high pop up fly, which was a catch that a ten-year-old boy would be ashamed to miss, what did he do?—caught it so pretty, then looked toward the stand for the round of applause he expected, and dropped it. It broke the old man's heart, and for an instant he was motionless; but perhaps it will teach Al. a lesson.

Bowes can catch when he tries, but his throwing to bases is poor, and he never in the world would have caught the runner at second, had any other man than Jack Farrell been there. Frank at one time was a batter, but not so now. Like the others, he does n't play ball to win, but only because of the mighty dollar. Farrell plays ball all the time, although he made his share of errors with the others. He and Bowes made the only hits in the game.

Why, the old Leaguers could have put up a better game than did our high-priced ball tossers. Better hire a professional battery, and let the club boys retrieve our lost glory. Major, Davenport, Carbonell and Bergen played a great game, and are deserving of credit, and had the other five played as well the result would have been far different. The larger portion of the men are down on Bergen. Why? No one knows, but if they would follow in his wake they would play a little better ball.

Manager Mack should certainly release some of the players. Which ones we will not say. We will leave that to his own good judgment; but certainly some of them ought to go. Meanwhile the days roll along, and this week Saturday the "Allertons", of New York, play here. The result is of course in doubt. The West Ends hope to win. But with such playing as last Saturday, they certainly cannot, and the Allertons are no slouch team, either.

Col. Bacon and Stirring Songs.

Col. Alexander S. Bacon, the lawyer, lecturer, and soldier, of New York city, will address a mass-meeting for men under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., at the Vincent M. E. chapel, to-morrow, at 4:15 p. m. Col. Bacon after his graduation from West Point, immediately entered the regular army as a lieutenant, and served on the western frontier. Subsequently resigning his position, he spent two years in traveling in Palestine and Egypt. He is successful as a lawyer and is a man much liked by young men. Though he is a Republican he was appointed Colonel of Second Provincial Regiments of New York city by Governor Hill about one year ago, in addition to which he has served with distinction as Lieutenant-Colonel of the Twenty-third Regiment of Brooklyn. The subject of the address will be: "A young man's opinion of young men." A stirring service of song will begin promptly at 4:15 p. m., and will be led by a special male chorus with a cornet accompaniment.

Gentlemen need not wear gloves at dinner parties, that is, if they don't have clean ones; but under all circumstances they must take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup when they get a cold or sore throat.

Oh, What a Cough

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

A GLORIOUS VICTORY.

How a Band of Valorous Young Fighters Routed the Enemy.

The first I heard of it was when Fred came rushing into the house after breakfast. "The enemy!" he cried. "The enemy is upon us!" "Where?" cried the others of us, jumping up. "In the battlefield, of course!" he said; and he seized his flag and rushed out again. We all followed as quickly as we could. I put on the helmet, and Max took the drum, and we let Toddles have the bugle this time because he'd just tumbled down; and he had the hearthbroom, too, so he was all right. We ran into the field and found that the enemy had taken up a strong position behind the old cannon. (Ours is a real battlefield, you know, and has been there since the war.) So we formed in line, and Fred made a flank movement, meaning to take the enemy in the rear; but when he heard Fred coming, he charged on our line, and Toddles ran away, but Max and I retreated in good order, and formed again behind a rock, and began to shell him with green apples. He stopped to eat the apples, and meanwhile Fred completed his flank movement, and falling upon the enemy's rear, whacked it violently with a stick, waving his flag all the time, and shouting: "Yield, caitiff! Yield, craven hound!" (I tell him that nowadays people don't say those things in war, but he always says that Roland and Bayard did, and that what suited them will suit him.)

Well, the enemy turned suddenly on Fred and drove him back against the cannon; but by that time he had advanced again, and Toddles was blowing the bugle as hard as he could, which seemed to disconcert the enemy. Fred took a flying leap from the cannon right over his back, and, putting himself at our head, rallied us for a grand charge. We rushed forward, driving the enemy before us. A panic seized him, and he fled in disorder; we pursued him as far as the fence, and he got through a hole and escaped, but not before we each had a good whack at him. It was a glorious victory. Fred made us a speech afterward from the cannon and we all waved our—well, whatever we had to wave, and vowed to slay the invader if he ever dared to show his nose on our side of the fence again. Ah, yes! it was a splendid fight.

"Who was the enemy?" Why, didn't I say? Farmer Thurston's pig, of course!—St. Nicholas.

AMUSING SCIENCE.

An Egg in Fresh Water, in Salt Water and in a Mixture.

Take two glass jars, A and B, and a third, C, double the size. Fill A with fresh water. If you attempt to float an egg on the surface of the water in this jar you attempt an impossibility, for the egg will instantly drop to the bottom, as the density of the fresh water is less than that of the fresh egg. On the other hand, float an egg in the jar B, filled with water strongly impregnated with salt, and endeavor to make it sink to the bottom! This is an impossibility, for the egg, in spite of every effort, will rise to the surface. Here the density of the salt water is greater than that of the egg. This experiment demonstrates how much easier it is to float in salt than in fresh water. Aided by the tests of the two glass jars, pour a certain quantity of the water in jar A and of the water in jar B into jar C, and, after a little adjustment, you will obtain by this mixture a liquid having the exact density of the egg. The egg now will not be compelled to descend to the bottom, as in the pure water, or float on the surface, as in the water strongly salted, but, as shown in our illustration, C, will remain suspended half way, and you can make it rise or fall by either a pinch of salt or introducing a little fresh water.—Once a Week.

Give and Take.

The following story may not be true. Indeed, it probably is not; but we may say that if it were true, it would teach a lesson as well as excite a smile. We find the story in a New York paper.

When Jay Gould arrived in Boston a few days ago, he was confronted by a youngster with an unusually dirty face, who shouted: "Mornen' paper, only two cents!"

The millionaire bought a paper, and gave the boy a five-cent piece, saying: "Keep the change, and buy a cake of soap to wash your face with."

The newsboy counted out three cents, and dropped them in Mr. Gould's hand. "Keep your change," said the boy, "and buy a book on politeness."

The Kaiser's Narrow Escape.

BERLIN, May 16.—While the Kaiser was driving to Potsdam during the day, in the carriage presented to him by the Czar, the horses bolted and the carriage collided with a tree. The Kaiser was falling out when his adjutant caught him in his arms and saved him from injury. It was a narrow escape.

THE CASE OF DR. BRIGGS

WHAT WILL THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY DO ABOUT IT?

This Great Gathering of the Presbyterians Begins at Detroit in a Few Days. The Career and the Teachings of the Teacher Who Has Been Criticised.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Fort Street Presbyterian church at Detroit, Mich., will soon be the center of interest, and perhaps the storm center, of the whole Presbyterian church of the country, for there, on the 21st of May, will be held the next general assembly of that church. This meeting is likely to be memorable in the annals of religious controversy. Three most important subjects, two of which certainly strike at the very root of the church's creed and discipline, are to come up for debate. These are, first, the question of the institution of the order of deaconesses, on which opinion is much divided. This, however, is the least important item on the list, and will probably be overshadowed by the two more important subjects, first the revision of the creed, and second the attitude of the church toward Professor Briggs, of the Union Theological seminary.

PROFESSOR BRIGGS.
[From a photograph taken in Scotland.]

It will be remembered that the greatest interest was aroused last year over the question whether the Confession of Faith of the church should be modified so as to soften some of the harshness of Calvinistic doctrine. By a vote of 134 to 68 presbyteries the church was committed to revision, but decisive action was postponed at the Saratoga assembly last year through the appointment of a carefully organized committee to take the whole subject under consideration and report to the assembly this year or at the earliest possible moment. This committee have held a number of meetings and done much by correspondence, but it is doubtful if they will find themselves prepared to do more than report progress at Detroit. This may satisfy the general assembly or it may not. If the committee are prepared to make a final report, and the assembly acts upon it, there certainly will be a very important and a very earnest, not to say acrimonious, debate.

However, the theme which bids fair to crowd all others into the background involves the orthodoxy of Dr. Briggs. For many years this learned and much respected theologian has been looked at rather askance by a large element in the Presbyterian church. It was not, however, until his now celebrated address a few months ago, on taking the chair of biblical theology at the Union Theological seminary, that the opposition to his views found open voice and became pronounced. In fact, this address did not immediately excite hostility, but the more it was examined the worse it appeared in the eyes of many, until the fire could not be smothered longer and the presbyteries began to take formal action upon it. Already quite a number of presbyteries have made overtures to the general assembly, either protesting against the view enunciated in the address, or asking that the attention of the assembly be directed to these views, as dangerous and without warrant in the faith of the church or in Scripture.

Among others the New York presbytery, of which Dr. Briggs is a member, appointed a committee to investigate the subject.

The point at issue will be better understood if we sketch hastily the life of Dr. Briggs. He was born in New York in 1841, but was graduated at the University of Virginia in the class of 1860. Subsequently he passed through the theological course at the Union seminary, graduating in 1863, and then, after private studies, took a course of three years at Berlin, remaining there till 1869. Shortly after his return he took the only pastoral charge of his life, that at Roselle, N. J., where he was minister for four years, from 1870 to 1874. In 1875 he was elected professor of Hebrew and kindred languages at the Union Theological seminary, and has been a prominent member of the faculty of the seminary ever since. He was made doctor of divinity by the College of New Jersey, and in 1884 the University of Edinburgh paid him the high and rare compliment of giving him a second D.D.

All his life Professor Briggs has been a close student and a vigorous and fearless polemic. For nearly ten years his unconventional views on some points brought suspicion on his orthodoxy, but it was not until the publication of his celebrated "Whither" last year that he became known throughout the world as a leader in the bold movement toward liberalism in the Presbyterian church. The sale of this little book "Whither" was one of the sensations of the year. So great was the demand for it that for weeks the presses of Scribner's establishment could not keep up with the demand. It was answered by Dr. McCosh and by many others, and was instrumental, more than anything else, perhaps, in bringing to a head the question of revision. In the mean time what is known as the "higher criticism" had been disturbing the peace of the Presbyterian church.

As early as 1884 Dr. Briggs had identified himself prominently with this theory of Bible study in a remarkable book published in that year, on "Biblical Study: Its Principles, Methods and History." One portion of this work is devoted to the explanation and advocacy of what has long been known among theologians, and lately become familiar to the religious world, as "the higher criticism." In this work Dr. Briggs describes the phrase as follows: "Having secured the best text of the writings, criticism devotes itself to the higher task of considering them as to integrity, authenticity, literary form and reliability." It proceeds on the assumption that the Bible should be subjected to the same rules of criticism as other volumes, and that the true canon, the correct text and the position and character of the various writings can and must be determined by the use of human reason.

As Dr. Briggs says, "Biblical criticism is one of the departments of historical criticism, as historical criticism is one of the divisions of general criticism." And it is in this spirit that Professor Briggs deals with the Bible. Naturally, therefore, he is sharply arraigned by other theologians, who look upon the canon of Scripture as above the power of reason, and to be accepted to the last detail as an inspired composition.

It was while the church was in a ferment over this question that a friend of the Union Theological Seminary, Mr. Charles Butler, gave that institution $100,000 for the foundation of a professorship of biblical theology, and named Dr. Briggs as his preference for the chair. In deference to this wish, and very willingly, the faculty of the seminary transferred Professor Briggs from the chair of Hebrew to the new position. This of itself was an irritating step to many who believed that Dr. Briggs' views unfitted him for the place of instructor in a theological seminary. But these feelings were intensified by the theme which the professor chose for his inaugural address, namely, "the authority of the Holy Scripture," in which he discussed with a frankness that appalled the more conservative element the inspiration of the Scriptures, their authenticity and freedom from error, their narratives and miracles, the meaning of prophecy, their teachings on election, redemption and other dogmas.

The newspapers quickly saw the sensational features of the situation and spread the speech broadcast through the country. Soon the opposition was heard from, and the new professor was attacked from every quarter, often with the most uncalled for intemperance. He was charged with being a disguised rationalist, with deliberately undermining belief in the Bible, and was called many harsh names by leading divines in the church. On the other hand, his friends—many of them the strongest men in the church—have hurried to his defense, and here the case stands, awaiting the action of the general assembly. That body has cognizance of the matter through the relation of the seminary to the church. Some time ago the corporation of the seminary took such action that the assembly has a right in some particulars to review its work and veto its selection of new professors.

In return the seminary has the advantage of an official connection with the church. At present it is the second largest seminary in the Presbyterian church, being exceeded in numbers and influence only by the one at Princeton. This being so, many of the presbyteries hold that the general assembly should exercise this veto in the case of Dr. Briggs, and forbid the Union Theological seminary to longer retain Dr. Briggs in the chair he now occupies. The seminary, however, claims that he was merely transferred from one chair to another, and that in a matter of internal convenience of this sort the general assembly has no power to interfere, and it is thought that when the matter comes up in the assembly the representatives of the seminary will immediately withdraw from that body and resume the independent position which the seminary formerly occupied.

This might avoid an immediate battle, but it will probably lead to bitter feeling and to action by the general assembly that might place the seminary in an awkward plight, as its graduates in some cases might be subjected to sharper criticism when they came up for examination before the local presbyteries, as must be done before the call to any church is extended. Dr. Briggs will be on hand at the assembly himself, as he has been elected a delegate from the Presbytery of New York, and as he is a born fighter and will have a strong backing, it is certain that any debate on his orthodoxy would be of extraordinary interest.

Personally Dr. Briggs is one of the most admirable and charming of men. As the "bravest are the tenderest," so this fearless and at times almost reckless polemic is, at home, gentle and courteous to a marked degree. He is happily married, and with his wife and five children finds a home in a pleasant neighborhood west of Central park.

HENRY R. ELLIOT.

Gold and Silver Mining.

It is a favorite saying among miners that nature strives to equalize the production of gold and silver at a certain ratio of values. Other things being equal, a gold mine yielding but few dollars per ton of ore can be worked much more profitably than a silver mine yielding the same sum per ton, gold being "free" and silver "rebellious," as miners say. This may be stated thus: Gold lies in the inclosing rock as the kernel lies in the nutshell, while silver is in chemical and mechanical union with one or more of a score of metals. Crack the shell, and the gold kernel drops out; but the silver must go through many expensive processes to get rid of its natural affinities. Hence all the ores yielding but five dollars per ton of gold are often more valuable than ores yielding twenty dollars per ton of silver.

Lotta has been on the stage since 1856, when she appeared before a San Francisco audience at the American theater. Her fortune is estimated at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

MORE OR LESS PROMINENT.

FRED DOUGLASS mourns because he can never celebrate his birthday, having no idea as to when it occurs.

MARY ANDERSON'S favorite articles of diet, according to a Louisville chef, are larded cutlets and sweetbreads. She is also very fond of spinach.

EDWARD WEBSTER SANFORD, the New York lawyer, is a nephew of Daniel Webster, and has a high forehead and deep-set eyes like the distinguished statesman.

HENRY WATTERSON, the brilliant journalist, aspired to be a pianist when a boy, and appeared in a number of concerts, but a felon robbed him of his thumb and changed his career.

JOHN STEPHENSON, the man who built the first street car, is a very hale old gentleman at the age of eighty. He is frequently seen walking on Broadway in preference to taking a car.

CAPT. JOHN MCELWAIN, of the New York police department, has been retired on his own application, after nearly thirty years' service on the force. His pension will be $1,325, or about half pay.

MR. BLAINE is out for a "constitutional" every fine afternoon. His favorite walk is one of the many roadways intersecting the reservation back of the white house, and frequently the walk is extended around the monument.

MRS. GOUGH, the widow of John B. Gough, lies the victim of steadily advancing disease, which has progressed to entire helplessness, though, from the nature of the malady, paralysis, she may survive many months, it may be years.

SAMUEL MACKINDER was treed by a panther near Crescent City, Cal., a few days ago. His cries for help were responded to by a man with a rifle, who shot and killed the creature, which measured nine feet four inches in length.

YOUR MOST DANGEROUS FOE.

What Causes Sleeplessness and How to Prevent It.

Are you sleepless? Do you pass restless, wakeful nights? Do you toss from side to side, with weary, heavy eyes and brain which teems with thoughts in restless activity—until your nerves palpitate and throb like the strings of a tensely strung instrument swept by the fingers of a mad man?

Then be warned in time.

Madness stares you in the face.

Sleeplessness is simply a rapid road to the insane asylum.

You, and thousands like you, rush blindly on to the verge of insanity, softening of the brain, shattered nerves, paralysis, idiocy, etc., without knowing or realizing the fearful consequences.

Men allow care, anxiety, or business troubles to drive sleep from their eyelids, while women, with unstrung nerves and excitable temperaments, pass hours upon hours each night in sleepless, restless misery.

No greater calamity can befall you than to become sleepless. Sleep is more necessary than food, and you must have it or face deadly consequences.

What wonder that there are so many shattered nerves, tired brains and debilitated bodies, when we consider the thousands upon thousands who pass restless or disturbed nights and rise mornings feeling indescribably miserable, dragged out, scarcely able to face the day's work! What wonder so many rise mornings from their beds, where they have lain with weary lids and sleepless eyes, tossing from side to side, or simply catching short, unrefreshing naps filled with dreams, feeling heavy-headed, irritable, with pale faces, haggard looks, dull and heavy-ringed eyes, and go about their daily employment with tired limbs, exhausted energies, nerveless and ambitionless!

As You Value Your Life and Health Do Not Use Opiates.

It is maddest folly to fly to the use of opium, morphine or chloral. They simply stupefy and paralyze the brain, and do not produce that natural and refreshing sleep which the tired and exhausted brain and nerves must have in order to repair the waste of tissue.

There is one sure way to cure sleeplessness, and that is by the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great nerve and brain invigorator. This wonderful remedy is Nature's own sleep producer, and is perfectly harmless, being made from pure vegetable medicines fresh from the lap of Nature. It may be given to infants, children, or the most delicate invalid without fear. It soothes, calms and quiets the weakened, irritable and overwrought nerves, producing perfect repose and refreshing, natural sleep; at the same time it builds up and tones up the shattered nerves and gives renewed life, strength, vitality and vigor to the system. Use it, you who are sleepless.

Be Convinced of Its Wonderful Power.

I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura as being a good remedy for sleeplessness. Having been troubled in this way for three years, and objecting seriously to opiates, I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura with great benefit. I have also recommended the Nervura to many of my friends, who have been much benefited by its use.

MRS. G. H. HILL,
11 Union St., Concord, N. H.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

MUSKEGON IN RUINS

Twenty Blocks in the Little City Swept Away.

350 DWELLINGS WERE BURNED.

Hundreds of Families Thrust Upon Their Friends for Shelter.

The Scene During the Progress of the Fire One Never to be Forgotten—A Little Child Missing and a Sick Man Dies While Being Removed from His Home—The Court House Burned.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 18.—To-day 20 blocks of business houses and dwellings of this city are in smoldering ruins. The total number of dwellings burned was 350. Many of the burned places have no insurance. Hundreds of families are thrust upon their friends for accommodations.

The fire started at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the Langakell Hotel barns, just off Pine street, from some unknown cause, and aided by a strong wind swept away 10 blocks up Pine street, one of the chief business streets of the city. Then, by a sudden shift in the wind, the flames were driven toward Terrace avenue, one of the finest residence streets in the city, where they destroyed many houses.

By 9 o'clock fire had reached the southern district of the city, where there was more space between the houses, and the firemen succeeded in considerably reducing the progress of the flames. As the high buildings burned there was great danger from flying fire brands, and the firemen were obliged to continually shift their positions. The Grand Rapids engines were put to work as soon as they arrived.

Scenes During the Fire.

The scene during the progress of the fire was one never to be forgotten. Men in broadcloth labored side by side with workingmen in overalls against it, and women in silks with diamonds in their ears clutched at their treasures and dropped them in heaping armfuls from their palatial houses, while women in rags rushed frantically from their humble dwellings with what poor treasures their slender means had afforded. Crowds lined the streets. Women wept, children cried bitterly, and sweating men with grim faces rushed to and fro, doing what they could to aid the unfortunates.

The Court House Burned.

Among the more valuable structures wiped out were the Pine Street House, the Philaboum block, Eckerman's drug store, Matthew Wilson's residence, Sadgwick's wholesale store, McMichael's shoe store and the Langakell Hotel. The $100,000 court house was also destroyed, but its public documents were saved. Prisoners in the county jail, which occupied the basement of the court house, were liberated. Several cows and horses were burned, and a little child, who was sleeping in the Langakell House barns, where the fire started, is missing.

Among the sad incidents connected with the fire was the death of Berry Stevens, assistant postmaster, the son of Postmaster Stevens. He was very ill with pneumonia, and the flames made it necessary to remove him to a place of safety, and he died while being carried through the streets.

AN IRISH BATTLE.

Many Persons Hurt in a Fight Between Parnellites and McCarthyites.

DUBLIN, May 18.—Kanturk, in County Cork, was the scene of much disorder yesterday. While the McCarthyites of the town were holding a meeting the proceedings were interrupted by a band of Parnellites who invaded the place of meeting.

A free fight followed, in which many persons were seriously wounded. Numerous arrests have been made.

CARDINAL GIBBONS DENIES.

Reported Differences Between American Priests and Bishops Don't Exist.

BALTIMORE, May 18.—Cardinal Gibbons said yesterday evening in regard to the Rome despatch, which speaks of the difficulties and dissentions that have arisen between the bishops and priests of America, that he was not aware of any dissentions nor of serious difficulties. The Cardinal also said he had received a letter from the Pope within the last few days, as stated in the Rome despatch. In this letter the Pope spoke in terms of warm praise of the prelates of the United States and their devotion to the Holy See and to their laborious apostolic mission.

Hanged Him for Theft.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., May 18.—John Teter, of Tucker county, was robbed a few days ago by Perry Thompson. Teter and his friends captured Thompson, placed a rope about his neck and were about to hang him. When disputing about the best methods, Thompson escaped. He was caught yesterday and hanged.

His Wife's Low Necked Dresses.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 18.—Rev. Alfred W. Adams, a well-known clergyman of this city, created a sensation both in social and religious circles recently by his vigorous protests against his wife's habit of wearing low necked dresses. She was so indignant at his conduct that she has instituted divorce proceedings.

Navassa Phosphate Strike Serious.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A cablegram received at the Navy Department confirms the private advices of the strike among the negroes at the Navassa phosphate island, West Indies, and reports the situation there as very grave.

GREAT RELIGIOUS EVENT.

The Corner Stone Laying of a New Seminary Witnessed by 50,000 People.

YONKERS, N. Y., May 18.—At least 50,000 people witnessed the ceremonies of laying the corner stones of the new St. Joseph's Catholic Seminary on Valentine Hill yesterday.

It was one of the grandest ecclesiastical demonstrations ever held in the country, and the largest in the State since the dedication exercises of the great Cathedral in New York city.

The corner stones were to be laid at 3 o'clock, but it was nearly 3:30 before Archbishop Corrigan, Archbishop Ryan and the priests and guests reached the platform, owing to the dense crowds which blocked the road for miles and prevented their progress to the scene.

The programme opened with the anthem "This is the Lord's Day," which was followed by the singing of "Ecce Secerdos" and "Veni Creator." The corner stone of the main building was first laid and blessed, when a similar ceremony was performed with the corner stone of the chapel. The blessing of the stones was conducted by Archbishop Corrigan.

The sermon was delivered by Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia. The singing was by the chancel choir of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, under the direction of Rev. John A. Keller, assisted by the Catholic Saengerbund comprising four societies. A large number of prelates, priests and distinguished citizens from all parts of the country were present. The seminary will cost $500,000.

TOMS' ASSAILANTS CAUGHT.

The Torturers of the Aged Housekeeper in Jail in New Brunswick.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 18.—The men who on January 17 gagged and bound aged John Toms and left him tied up in a closet in the Kilpatrick cottage for 52 hours have been captured, and one has made a confession. They are George Cook and John Walker, both well known characters here. They disappeared at the time of the assault, but were traced by detectives for some distance. Pursuit of them was given up owing to the lack of funds, but private subscriptions enabled it to be taken up again.

A week ago Walker was located on a farm near here and watched. It was then ascertained that Cook was in Newark. They were arrested simultaneously Saturday and locked up in the jail here. Walker made a confession, in which he said Cook was the prime mover in the scheme. It had been their intention to rob the house, and when Toms attempted to prevent them Cook suggested that they kill him after they had bound him. Walker objected but Cook drew a revolver and would have shot the old man but the cartridge failed to explode. Toms was then taken up stairs to the garret and thrust into the closet.

MR. BLAINE'S CONDITION.

He is Said to be Improving, but Callers Are Not Wanted.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Reports given out from the sick room of Secretary of State Blaine are to the effect that his health is improving and that his condition is satisfactory.

The gout was said to be steadily subsiding. During the day he was represented to have rested comfortably and to have been in cheerful spirits. Very few callers, however, were permitted to enter the house of Mr. Damrosch, as Mr. Blaine expressed the wish that no one be admitted to see him except members of the family and regular attendants.

Riot Victims to be Buried To-day.

DENVER, Col., May 18.—There will be two corpses in the funeral procession that is to be conducted this afternoon under the auspices of the Trades' Assembly. John Ridenor and Thomas Kelley, who were wounded in the brickyard fight, died at St. Joseph's Hospital. The funeral will call forth the largest assemblage of workingmen ever seen in Denver. Ten thousand workingmen are expected to take part, and so great is the excitement that the police force has been doubled to prevent any further trouble.

Poisoned by Eating Smoked Sturgeon.

PITTSBURG, May 18.—About 30 people in Sharpsburg, a suburb of this city, were poisoned by eating smoked sturgeon, and many of them are dangerously sick. A Pittsburg fish dealer visited Sharpsburg and sold a large quantity of smoked sturgeon at four cents below the market price. About 25 or 30 people are in bed from eating the sturgeon. Half a dozen physicians are kept in constant attendance upon the patients.

Want Dr. Heber Newton Investigated.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The feeling against the Rev. Dr. R. Heber Newton that was stirred up by Father Ignatius has crystalized to some extent, and a number of clergymen have united in asking Bishop Potter to make an investigation. The investigation, if made, will determine the question whether Dr. Newton is orthodox.

No Further Trouble With the Switchmen.

CHICAGO, May 18.—Judging from present indications, there will be no further trouble between the Chicago & Northwestern Railway and the discharged switchmen, nor is there any likelihood of any disturbance occurring on other roads.

RESUMES THE CHASE

The Charleston Leaves Acapulco for Chili.

NO NEWS YET FROM THE ITATA.

It is Reported that She is Pushing South as Fast as Possible.

The Esmeralda Still Lies Near the Harbor Entrance of Acapulco—Her Officers Kept Informed of What is Going on in the United States—Many Rumors About the Fugitive Vessel.

ACAPULCO, via GALVESTON, May 18.—Ever since her arrival here the Charleston's ship's company has been on the keen jump to get ready for sea again.

The work of coaling has been rushed as never rushed before. Last night with a sufficient coal supply for 10 days at high speed, the Charleston left this harbor to continue the chase of the Itata.

No one but Captain Remey knows what course the Charleston will steer.

The Esmeralda still lies near the harbor entrance, but has not yet coaled ship. Her captain is apparently ignorant of the Itata's whereabouts.

There can be no doubt that the Esmeralda is kept informed by telegraph of what is going on in the United States. One of her officers is often seen at the cable office receiving or sending messages. It is rumored, even, that money will be transmitted to the Esmeralda by cable transfer to enable her to get coal here.

At present she could be of little service to the Itata, even if the latter arrived off the port, for both ships must be nearly cleaned out of coal.

The Esmeralda's officers and crew talk very freely about the Itata. One of their stories is that they have already met the Itata and taken her stores and arms from her. Another is that the Itata has met a coal-laden vessel at sea, and is now pushing on southward with full bunkers.

These tales overlook the impossibility of transhipping a heavy cargo of coal or of arms in the open sea. Such an operation, even with every preparation made and modern appliance supplied, would require a week of smooth sea, and it would be a difficult and dangerous job then.

What the Charleston now intends doing will depend upon Captain Remey's orders. It is not impossible that he will continue straight on for Chili—stopping for coal at Panama—in order to join the other ships of our navy at Iquique.

WHITE HOUSE GOSSIP.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee Leave for Indianapolis to Attend a Wedding.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Everybody is happy and smiling at the Executive Mansion. The White House has put on its suit of summer linen covers and matted floors and looks fresh and comfortable.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. McKee will return to Indianapolis to attend the wedding of Miss Lyna McKee, sister of Mr. McKee, which takes place Wednesday. Mrs. McKee will be away from Washington some five days, when she will return here to remain until she and Mrs. Russell Harrison sail for Europe June 3.

Mr. Halford, the President's private secretary, and daughter are expected to return from their trip to Europe on Wednesday.

Dr. Scott, Mrs. Harrison's father, who resides at the White House with the President's family, is preparing to go to Port Townsend, Wash., on a visit to his son, Judge John N. Scott, who is an attorney there.

Her Body Washed Ashore.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The body of Mrs. Emma Mohler, of Brooklyn, was washed ashore at New Dorp, S. I., yesterday. The woman has been missing since Jan. 23, and was supposed by her relatives to have committed suicide while deranged. It is now believed by the police that she was murdered. When the body was found a new Belgian pavment stone, weighing 19 1-2 pounds, was discovered securely fastened to the body by a rope, which was tied at the back in three knots. The woman, who was 55 years old, is said to be insured for $10,000. A searching investigation will be made.

The Woman's League Support Mr. Blair.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Woman's National Industrial League of America has written to President Harrison commending the appointment of ex-Senator Blair as Minister to China; approving of the sentiments of Mr. Blair as expressed in his speeches, and recommending to the President that unless Mr. Blair is sent to China "as our trustworthy and faithful representative, or in failing to do so the government of the United States of America refuse to be represented at the court of the Emperor of China."

The Ex-Assemblyman Commits Suicide.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 18.—Ex-Assemblyman Charles A. Binder, aged 34, of New York city, committed suicide at the Sheridan House in this city. Mr. Binder disappeared from his home in New York the other day, and it is alleged that he misappropriated funds of an estate which had been entrusted to his care.

KILRAIN IN TRAINING.

To-Day He Begins Work at Belfast for His Fight With Slavin.

BELFAST, N. Y., May 18.—To-day Jake Kilrain commenced active training for his coming contest with Slavin, which takes place in Hoboken, N. J., June 16.

Kilrain is in poor condition, and will be obliged to work hard to get in shape, but as Muldoon and Cleary took Sullivan from a fallen monument two years ago when he fought that successful and memorable battle with Muldoon's present protege, Kilrain, and put him in the best condition in which he ever fought a battle, there is no doubt that after two or three weeks of manual labor Kilrain will be in the best of condition. He and his trainers have the greatest confidence of winning, and within a week may be expected a vast change in Jake's appearance.

He will train under the same system as did Sullivan, taking 20 mile walks daily, punching the bag, wrestling and sparring. As Kilrain's future depends wholly upon this fight, no chances will be taken, and his trainers will do all in their power to place him in condition to win the $10,000 which the club offers. This amount, too, looks large to the Baltimorean, and if he is not in shape to be termed a winner within three weeks it will not be the fault of his trainers nor his own desire and ambition.

HELD BY HER ENEMY.

One Reason Given for the Disappearance of Julia Campion.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 18.—The town of Fairfield, just west of here, has a mystery in the disappearance of Miss Julia Campion, a prominent resident of the town, and who is over 70 years of age. Miss Campion was the victim of an assault two months ago at the hands of a prominent young farmer, John Flanagan. He was arrested, notwithstanding Miss Campion's protests, she shrinking from the publicity of a trial.

Miss Campion is totally paralyzed in her lower limbs, and since the affair she has been constantly under the care of a nurse. Tuesday evening the nurse left her for a few moments, and upon her return Miss Campion's chair was empty and nothing has been seen of her since.

It has been surmised that she has been carried away by some of Flanagan's friends, who propose to keep her until after the trial, which is to be held at this month's term of the Supreme Court.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Detectives After an Alleged Accomplice of Dr. Graves.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 18.—Word has been received from Denver that the detectives retained in the Barnaby poisoning case were coming East to hunt down a woman accomplice of the suspected Dr. T. Thatcher Graves.

This allusion to a woman accomplice is supposed to refer to a young woman in Providence, with whom, it is stated, Dr. Graves has held business relations. The young woman has been shadowed for three weeks.

A dispatch from Denver says that Dr. Graves was indicted by the Grand Jury for the murder, by poisoning, of Mrs. Josephine A. Barnaby.

Knights to Vote On the Coke Strike.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 18.—A call for a district meeting of the Knights of Labor has been issued for the purpose of having an expression by secret ballot from the rank and file on the question of continuing or discontinuing the coke strike, and adopt measures whereby the will of the majority can be successfully executed. The call asks the local assemblies to inform the district officers of the condition of the strikers; how many evictions have occurred; how many are depending upon support; how many ovens are running, etc. The district meeting will be held in Scottdale on Wednesday.

Admiral Braine Retired To-Day.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 18.—Capt. Henry Erben took command to-day of the Navy Yard here in place of Admiral Braine, who has been placed on the retired list. Captain Erben has been in the service since 1848 and had sixteen years of sea service. With Admiral Braine's retirement Capt. O. F. Stanton will become Commodore and Captain Erben will head the list of captains with the relative rank of commodore.

The G. A. R. Memorial Hall.

DECATUR, Ill., May 18.—General Veazey, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, notified the National Memorial Committee here, that he has issued official general orders calling upon all Grand Army comrades in all parts of the United States to contribute to the $300,000 fund required to erect the G. A. R. memorial hall at Decatur, the birthplace of the organization.

On Trial for Murdering His Wife.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 18.—John Shaw, who killed his wife at Oceanic, N. J., two months ago, was placed on trial to-day to answer an indictment charging him with murder in the first degree. This is the first murder trial in this vicinity since the conviction of Richard Kearney, colored, who was hanged nearly three years ago for the murder of Miss Mary Purcell at Long Branch.

The Briggs Investigating Committee.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Moderator Shearer has announced the names of the committee which is to act upon the recommendations contained in the majority report of the committee which investigated Dr. Briggs' inaugural. They are Rev. George W. F. Birch, D. D.; Rev. G. G. Lampe, Rev. R. F. Sample, D. D.; Prof. J. J. Stevenson and J. J. McCook.

Drowned in the Schuylkill.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—By the upsetting of a sailboat in the Schuylkill River off Wilson's Point, Mrs. Susan Roscoe, her infant son Christopher and Miss Mary Carr were drowned.

An Aged Ex-Slave Dying.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 18.—Aunt Louisa Trittoe, the oldest person in New Haven, is dying. She is a historical character, and was the last slave sold in New Haven.

THE ADVANCE GUARD

Great Gathering of Third Party Men at Cincinnati.

3,000 DELEGATES TO BE PRESENT.

The Convention Opens To-Morrow and Senator Peffer May be Chairman.

The Kansas Delegation to be Welcomed by a Brass Band—Two-Thirds of the States Will be Represented—Ignatius Donnelly Working for the Nomination of President of the United States.

CINCINNATI, May 18.—The advance guard of delegates to the National Union Convention, which opens to-morrow, has been straggling in through the day, and about 200 of the 3,000 or more that it is expected will participate in the deliberations of the gathering are on the ground.

Many of them are men whose rough attire, bronzed faces and horny hands betoken long acquaintanceship with the plow and harrow. Others bear names that are prominently identified with economic and radical movements. Among these are ex-Congressman Weller, of Iowa, more familiarly known as "Calamity Weller;" General Secretary Hayes, of the Knights of Labor; W. C. Crum, of New York, editor of the Wall Street Farmer and president of the recently formed National Union League; G. I. Washburne, of Boston, president of the Northeastern Industrial Alliance; Mason A. Greene, of the Boston Nationalist Club; W. T. Wakefield, of the Lyan, Mass., Nationalist Club, and John H. Crouch, of Fort Scott, Kan., brother of the deceased Oklahoma boomer.

The Lion of the Hour.

The temporary lion of the hour is Farmer H. L. Bries, of Winn County, La., whose acceptance of a delegate's mission necessitated his riding 50 miles on a plantation pony to the nearest railroad station. His credentials bear the signatures of 1,200 grangers out of a total voting strength of all parties of 1,700 in the county.

Stragglers are also here from Maine, Kentucky, Texas, Tennessee, Minnesota and other States, but the full delegations will not arrive until to-night. The Kansas delegation, which is en route on a special train of 10 cars, will be met by the reception committee, all the delegates in town and a couple of brass bands and escorted to headquarters in triumph.

Will be a Big Mass Meeting.

Despite the fact that it is styled a convention, however, it is apparent thus early that the forthcoming gathering will be nothing more than a big mass meeting. There has been no idea of conforming to a basis of representation. While it is anticipated that two-thirds of the States will be represented, yet two of these, Kansas, with her 500, and Ohio, with nearly as many more, will control at least a third of the total vote that will be cast on every proposition. Hamilton County alone furnishes credentials for nearly 100 participants, representing such heterogeneous elements as the Knights of Labor, City Alliance, Railway Employes' Association, Municipal Congress, the United Labor Party, composed of adherents of Henry George, and the Nationalists or Bellamyites.

There is some talk already about the organization of the conference, and it is the general impression among the delegates that Senator Peffer of Kansas will make the best presiding officer.

Ignatius Donnelly Causes a Split.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 18.—The attempt of Ignatius Donnelly to take a delegation to the conference at Cincinnati, which would back him as a unit as the Alliance candidate for President of the United States, has split the Alliance party into two bitterly warring factions, one of which is certain to withdraw from the party.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Two Persons Killed and Three Injured in a Railroad Accident.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Two persons were instantly killed, one was fatally hurt and two more were severely wounded by a peculiar accident on the Long Island Railroad last night.

A passenger train suddenly ran off the track near the Greenville station, plunged down an embankment 100 feet high and cars and locomotive crashed together at the bottom with all on board. From the wreck the dead and wounded were taken as soon as possible.

The dead were Frank Coombs, the engineer of the train; John Jarvies, a friend of Coombs, who was riding with him on the cab.

The wounded were: Michael Riordan, fireman, caught by the wreck of the locomotive and terribly scalded; Conductor Jones, bruised and shocked; Brakeman Riordan, badly injured.

There were only a few passengers on the train. These were badly shaken up, but escaped any serious hurts.

Remarkable Baseball Game.

TACOMA, May 18.—One of the most remarkable baseball games on record was played here between the Seattle and Tacoma clubs, of the Pacific Northwestern League. It took 22 innings to decide the game, which was won by Tacoma by a score of 6 to 5. At the ninth inning the score stood 3 to 3; in the fifteenth each club scored one run, and each again scored one run in the eighteenth, making the score 5 to 5. No more runs were made until the twenty-second, when Tacoma scored one run, winning the game.

Scarlet Fever in Jail.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 18.—A scarlet fever epidemic has broken out at the New Haven County Jail. Nine prisoners are down with the malady.

Parnell Free to Marry.

LONDON, May 18.—Mr. Parnell is now free to marry Mrs. O'Shea, as the decree nisi was made absolute to-day.

LONG HIDDEN TREASURE FOUND!

Interesting Relics of the Ill-Fated Donner Party Discovered at Truckee.

TRUCKEE, Cal., May 18.—There is great excitement at Truckee over the discovery of a portion of the treasure buried by the Donner party in 1846-7. In the early days of the gold excitement in this State, the Donner party attempted to cross the mountains into California by an untried pass. They were snowed up in the mountains and suffered great hardships, many dying from cold and starvation. Relief expeditions were sent out, and a few survivors were rescued in this way.

During their sufferings the party buried a quantity of treasure, the amount of which is estimated by some at $10,000. A search has frequently been made for this treasure, but without success. There is authentic history of the burial of several hundred dollars by Mrs. Graves, one of the members of the party, on March 3, 1847, near the shores of Donner lake, and it is supposed it was this money which was found on Thursday last by a miner named Reynolds, who was prospecting on the hillside near the lake. He found a spot where the earth had been torn up by a falling tree and his attention was accidentally called to some dark looking pieces of money lying on the top of the ground. He picked up ten ancient looking dollars, and upon scratching slightly in the earth uncovered a large quantity of silver. He afterward searched the ground with a companion, and Friday the men succeeded in finding nearly $200.

They are still prosecuting the search and other searching parties are being organized here. From the present indications the hills on the north side of Donner lake will be covered with treasure hunters to-day. Persons familiar with the incidents connected with the Donner party feel no doubt that the sum of money just found is that buried by the Donner party forty years ago. The coins are of all dates prior to 1845, and of the most obsolete and forgotten markings. The coins are from France, Spain, Bolivia, the Argentine Republic and a number of other foreign countries.

CORBETT AND JACKSON.

The Betting on Thursday's Battle in the Colored Man's Favor.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Jim Corbett and Peter Jackson meet in the California Athletic Club on Thursday night. The stories that have gone abroad about the colored man and his poor condition are not thought of now, because the Australian is in the best possible condition for a fight.

That, at least, is the opinion of good judges who have gone out to his training quarters within the past few days and heard Fitzpatrick talk. Jackson may have been sick and he may have been seriously injured by being thrown out of a carriage, but no vestige of any hurt of any nature remains. Jackson is in fine form and expects to beat Corbett and his friends do the same.

Corbett has had good handling through Donaldson and is equally confident. He does not talk very loud, but repeats over and over again that he will give Jackson the hardest fight he ever had. As to Corbett's hands being tender, Donaldson says he has no fear on that score.

"Every time Jackson feels 'em," the trainer says, "Jackson will know that he has been hit. We'll take chances on that sort of thing."

The betting here is in Jackson's favor, but that may be because the California Club wants him to win, and the members of that organization are betting on sympathy. The members of the Olympic Club, where Corbett taught boxing, and which club has been a rival to the California ever since the latter was organized, are taking all odds.

The Amalgamated Association's Demand.

PITTSBURG, May 18.—It is reported that the iron-workers of the all-powerful Amalgamated Association, the strongest labor union in America, are talking of demanding an increase of 50 cents a ton for puddling and proportionate increase in other departments, in spite of the claim that the Association takes the condition of the market into consideration, and the market has been at a low state for some time, though probably ready for a turn now. But the Amalgamated Association never does anything hastily. There will be a conference with the manufacturers.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Snow and sleet visited London yesterday.

The Delaware Legislature has adjourned sine die.

The Winona Paper Company of Holyoke, Mass., has been adjudicated insolvent.

Mrs. Emma Kneeshaw was "read out" of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Irvington, N. J.

The American sealers are getting impatient over the delay of settling the question of a closed season in Behring Sea.

The Iron Car Equipment Company of New York will operate the works of the Huntington Manufacturing Company of Huntington, Pa.

There are thousands of dollars of unclaimed deposits from defunct savings banks in the hands of the Banking Department at Albany, N. Y.

Mr. William Sellow, of Portland, Conn., has been appointed a Special Agent of Immigration under the new law, with headquarters at New York.

At Allentown, Pa., a bill has been filed against the Keystone Cement Company, of which Antonio Navarro, Mary Anderson's husband, is president, to foreclose a mortgage of $100,000.

Four hundred persons watched 10 prisoners being lashed and four of them pilloried in the Newcastle, Del., jail yard. The offences were burglary and petty larceny. Only one of the prisoners was a white man.

The World's Fair Directors and union workingmen of Chicago have come to an understanding. A final settlement of the labor question will, perhaps, be reached to-morrow night, and the workingmen will practically get what they have been struggling for—a minimum scale of wages.

Olive Lodge, and Celestial Crescent Lodge, both of Plainfield, will entertain the delegates. Colored society is in a flurry of expectancy about it all.

—Many have noticed by the advertisement on the opposite page, that there is a marked change on hand about Packer's furniture establishment. He is changing his extended stock every week by selling all he has and buying new. There are no higher grades, or newer styles or lower prices than at Packer's, Park avenue and Second street.

—The attention of the readers of THE PRESS is invited to the advertisement of the annual fair and festival of the Childrens Sewing School of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, at Evona, for the sale of useful and fancy articles with strawberries and iced cream, to assist the funds of that unostentatious but most useful and charitable institution.

—A struck jury in Newark decided Saturday that the Lehigh Valley should pay the Central Railroad of New Jersey $35,473 for the privilege of crossing the tracks of the Elizabeth and Newark branch of the Central at grade, in the middle of the Newark meadows. The jury will determine also what system of signals must be used at the crossing.

Boys' Club Notes.

The game with the Amateur B. B. C., of Elizabeth, Saturday, was forfeited to the Boys' Club team because the visitors did not appear. A return game has been planned for the 6th of June with the same team. The Boys play the "Young Richmonds", next Saturday.

The entertainment given the boys Saturday evening, was a great success. W. L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, told the boys about his experience in a balloon. It was a great treat for the boys and all were delighted. The boys are anxious to hear from Mr. Saunders again.

The Edwards Zouaves meet for drill this evening at 8:30. All members are requested to attend.

The Bicycle Club's Nine Win.

On the Bicycle Club's base-ball grounds, Saturday afternoon, the Bi Club team defeated the White Caps by a score of 9 to 3. The feature of the game was the sharp fielding of the Bi team. Dorr played an errorless game behind the bat, and his throwing to bases was very fine.

The teams were composed as follows: Bi Club—Lowry, p.; Dorr, c.; Walz, s.s.; Dwight, 1.f.; Murray, 3b; Tilney, 1b.; Place, c.f.; Sheppard, 2b.; Lovell, r.f. White Caps—McGee, r.f.; A. Simmonds, 1.f.; Davis, c.f.; Freeman, 1b.; Smith, 3b.; Pierson, 2b.; B. Egan, c.; Sutphen, s.s.; Burt, p.

Jacob S. Justice, a prominent real estate and coal dealer and a member of the Camden Board of Trade, was arrested Saturday morning on a charge of violating the insurance laws of the State by organizing a benevolent endowmeent association at $3 each. Caplases were issued for other prominent organizers of the short term socities.

THE CITY'S FUTURE AT STAKE.

SIXTEEN SEASONABLE QUESTIONS THAT GO RIGHT TO THE ROOT OF IT ALL.

The People's ex-Mayor Wants to Know (Besides Much Else) Whether the People Who now Claim to Own the City for Water Purposes are not Those who Already own it for Gas Purposes, and Whether the Quality of the Former is to be as the Latter and at Prices as "Gegerous".

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Lack of time prevents my compliance with your kindly repeated request for my views on the Water Works and Sewerage question. I can only say now that it is not only my opinion but that of every man well informed on the subject, whom I have met, that the question is one and not two. The experience of all cities shows that water supply and sewerage should be dealt with together and not separately.

Though I cannot now write an article on this subject, I may venture to ask a few questions—the answers to which may be made by the Council and officers of the city of Plainfield, or by the so called Plainfield Water Supply Company, at their convenience.

1. Is there any reasonable probability that the party who twenty-two years ago lobbied through a special act enabling it to supply Plainfield with water, and afterward abandoned the job without taking a single step toward its practical accomplishment, is today a legal corporation in full force under that act?

2. Who were the persons in the Legislature—and out of the Legislature—in 1869 and half a dozen years afterward (when they tried to cure delinquencies and revamp legislation) who attended to this legislation, and what present relation do those persons now bear to the Plainfield Water Supply Company?

3 Why are these parties now so anxious to pay the trifling expenses of the current litigation as a quid pro quo for the abandonment by the city of its resistance to their pretensions?

4. Are any of the manipulators and managers of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, who propose to own the city for water supply purposes, the same men who are the managers of the gas and electric light interests, who practically own the city for these purposes? If so, may the city expect from them the same quality of water as it has had of gas, and on like generous terms?

5. Have property purchasers in Plainfield for the past twenty-two years, understood that in purchasing they were acquiring only an equity in property, subject to rights, liable at any moment to be exercised under an ancient charter of a close corporation?

6. Is it wise to consent to a monopoly in any form in the hands of a corporation in respect to our water supply? If so, should that monopoly be given to parties who already monopolize the other matters of public need and supply?

7. Why should Plainfield rush into water supply or sewerage, without proper care for the interests of the city, when she has now the reputation and record of being the healthiest city of her size in New Jersey, and one of the healthiest cities in the country, and when there is danger that, having water without sewerage, or water and sewerage together without proper precautions taken, she may lose her fair reputation?

8. Why — morally and reasonably speaking—should the city of Plainfield have foisted upon it the tail end and ruin of a defunct and irresponsible concern?

9. Why—from the same point of view—should the wreck of an Elizabeth investor's speculations even though grafted on a long forgotten charter (so called) be palmed off on the Plainfield public?

10. Though it may be doubted whether or not Mr. Marsh's plea before the court (representing the great detriment to Plainfield of water supply without sewerage) was really a legal argument—was it not nevertheless an argument based on truth and correct premises? If so, why should it be abandoned until we are driven into the last ditch?

11. After Mr. Marsh had stated to the court that he intended in his answer to call in question the existence of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, why was his answer put in void of any such radical and vital count?

12. If there was any good reason then for not going to the root of the matter, why should not the step be taken now; either by quo warranto, bill in equity, or any other available method?

13. Is there any good reason why, in defending itself against unreasonable schemes, the city of Plainfield should not have the best legal assistance it can obtain?

14. Is there any one remark made by the Mayor regarding the necessity for the city's owning its own sewerage works, which does not apply with equal force—or even greater force—to the necessity for owning its water works?

15. Is there any sense in the public's being stampeded by an outcry against the "Big Six", and the evil doings of the "Great Combine"? Let the "Big Six" make its own record, and let the public commend or condemn it on its record. But, merely because it wants a thing is not a final reason for condemning that thing; nor, because it opposes a thing, should the rest of the Council and the citizens rush off to sanction it.

16. Is there any one reason why the city of Plainfield should not now begin its way of dealing with the water and sewerage question by getting the control of the situation back into its own hands, so that it can deal with this subject in its own true interest, and so that its Common Council can pass ordinances that will have the respect alike of the people and the courts?

L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

A REMARKABLE SCORE.

Fanwood and Bergen Point Make a Total of 587 odd Tricks at Whist, and the Former Leads in Average

Another set in the Central New Jersey championship whist tournament was played on Friday evening last. It was the game scheduled for the 29th between the Fanwood players and the N. J. A. C. players of Bergen Point. The latter claimed that they had another engagement for the evening fixed and arranged with their opponents to play last week.

The result—Fanwood, 294, and Bergen Point, 293—is very remarkable. Not particularly because the score was so close, but because it was possible for the two sides to win 587 odd tricks in the three hours alloted. It will seem incredible to all the other contestants. They will be unable to understand it. THE PRESS, however, learns of a new wrinkle adopted by others since the Crescents have kept their lead and high average, and the credit of the invention of the scheme is said to be due the Fanwoods. That is to have the cards all shuffled and dealt before time to begin is called. Thus play commences as soon as the bell rings and higher totals can be reached in the hope of gaining an advantage over the Plainfielders.

The record, including Friday evening's game, is:

	Games Played	Total Points Scored	Average
Crescent League	7	1912	273 1-7
Fanwood Club	5	1374	274 4-5

PARTICULAR MENTION.

F. C. Langhorne has gone to Canada again, on a fishing trip.

Miss Susie VanWinkle is visiting her uncle, N. Carman Dunn, of Philadelphia.

Mlle. de Vere, the Patti of church choirs, who is to sing at the Choral Society's concert this evening, gets $100 a Sunday, which is unprecedented in the church world of music.

Geo. L. VanEmburgh led the meeting at the Union Village M. E. church, last evening. Cornelius, the Centurion, as recorded in the Acts, was the foundation for a very interesting lecture, and many of those present expressed themselves as being spiritually blessed.

A publishing company of New York has just issued in book form a lecture by William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, a Master of the American Society of Civil Engineers, delivered by invitation of the Directors, at Sibley College, Cornell University, on the "Theory and practice of air compression and compressed air machinery".

Peter Hoagland, an old and highly esteemed resident of this city, died at his home, 188 West Front street, last night, in the 61st year of his age. As announced in these columns at the time, he was stricken with paralysis about two weeks ago and confined helpless to his bed. Another stroke followed yesterday that reached his heart. Funeral services will be held at his late home, Thursday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock.

A merry party of Brooklyn young women came out last Saturday to a yellow luncheon tendered them by Miss Tarbell, of East Fifth street, who was one of their classmates at the Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn. The house was profusely decorated with flowers, the weather was perfect, and the twenty that sat down to the table enjoyed a happy meeting. The luncheon was followed by a long drive through the city and suburbs, and all agreed that Plainfield was a beautiful place, and that they had enjoyed a most delightful day.

A Light Company with a Light Capital.

There was filed in the County Clerk's office at New Brunswick, Friday, a certificate of incorporation for the Dunellen Electric Light Company, which is capitalized at $5,000 and proposes to manufacture and sell electricity for power, light and heating purposes in Dunellen, North Plainfield, Bound Brook, Plainfield and Piscataway townships, and this county. The capital stock is in 50 shares of $100 each, held as follows: W. H. Sebring, Plainfield, five shares; H. W. Spencer, North Plainfield, five shares; Chas. P. Sebring, North Plainfield, 35 shares; W. B. Coddington, Dunellen, five shares.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

A FIRE IN BULL-FROG CITY.

No Wells for the Steamer, So Buckets Put Out the Flames.

Just before 10 p. m. Saturday, Mr. Allen, marshal of that part of North Plainfield christened "Bull-Frog City," was aroused by his neighbors with the information that John Barry's house was afire. He went at once to the spot, and an alarm was sent to the Warren Engine house on Somerset street.

Allen found the fire burning on the floor just in front of a close door in an upper-story room. He quenched it on the surface with a pail of water, but could hear the flames cracking below. When the closet door was opened fire burst forth in every direction. What started it was not apparent, but some say they smelled the fumes of burning kerosene.

Meanwhile the firemen were getting out the best they could. Their harness was upstairs, and the steamer was stored in the back of the building behind the hose cart, as it was intended to send its wheels to the blacksmith shop for much needed repairing this morning.

Chief Fairchild and his men succeeded, however, in getting to the scene of the fire with the steamer, but although they tried the brook at two different places, could not get within 2,000 feet of the burning house, and had only 1,200 feet of hose.

Then an inhabitant said he knew of a private well that could be pumped on for three hours without exhausting it. He pointed it out in the middle of a freshly dug garden. Boards were laid for the steamer to stand on and she started to pump. The well yielded just 8½ quarts and then gave out. A bucket brigade was formed and the fire put out after much damage was done.

He Died at Sea.

The flag-ship Philadelphia of the North Atlantic squadron arrived in New York, Saturday, from Hayti, bringing the body of Admiral Gherardi's aide, Flag Lieut. Alan G. Paul of Philadelphia, the brother of Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, and cousin of Dr. Comegys Paul, of this city. Lieut Paul died at sea on Wednesday last.

His illness dated from the time the white squadron on evolution left for Europe in 1889. He was standing very near a gun on the Dolphin that was prematurely discharged, and he received a shock which rendered him partially deaf.

His deafness steadily increased. When the Philadelphia went to Hayti in January last Lieut. Paul, who had just recovered from an attack of pneumonia, was assigned to her as the aide of Admiral Gherardi, whose mission was to complete negotiations with the Haytian republic for the acquisition of Mole St. Nicolas as a coaling station. Lieut. Paul's indisposition was increased by the heat of the climate, but he did not report sick until the middle of April.

He was attacked with vertigo, and his deafness increased so that he could barely hear. Symptoms of epilepsy developed on Monday last, and he died on Wednesday.

Lieut Paul was one of four sons of Jas. W. Paul of Philadelphia. They were Laurence T., the eldest; James W., Jr., a son-in-law of A. J. Drexel, and a member of the firm of Drexel and Co., and Frank W., who is in Europe. Mrs. Astor is the only daughter. Their mother died about a year ago. Lieut. Paul was forty-five years of age.

A Song Service by Soloists and Congregation.

A very enjoyable service of song was given in the Park Avenue Baptist church, last evening. The large audience which filled the house seemed to appreciate every part of the service most heartily.

The two solos by Mrs. Spicer, of Brooklyn, were very fine. She has a highly cultivated voice and sings with excellent expression. "The Green Hill Far Away," by Gounod, was sung with evident spiritual appreciation of its pathos and sentiment. "That Better Land," by Cowen, she sang with great sweetness and power. The anthem, "Benedic Anima Mea", a composition of Mr. Daland's brother, was very creditably rendered by a quartette consisting of Mrs. Spicer and Miss Hawkins, Mr. T. I. Runyon and Mr. Daland of Elizabeth. The pastor gave a short talk on the "Relation of Music to the Sanctuary."

The grand old hymns sung with so much fervor by the congregation, almost convinced one that congregational singing, when heartily entered into, is after all the most inspiring.

Thirty Young Men of This City Take Part.

The meeting at the Washingtonville Memorial chapel, last evening was one long to be remembered. The house was crowded. Thirty young men from Plainfield accompanied by their teacher, Chas. B. Brown, took charge of the services. The singing of the young men, was a marked feature. After a gospel talk on "Asking and Receiving", the young men gave short testimonies and told with telling effect how they had asked, and what they had received by coming over on the Lord's side.

A deep interest was manifested by all present. It was one of the best gospel services ever held in the chapel.

—Charles Wilson was arrested by Marshal Rutledge on saturday night for being drunk and disorderly. He was released on bail to appear at seven o'clock this evening before Justice Crossley.

It's good, isn't it? You have found it out for yourself by buying a bottle of Knapp's Root Beer Extract and making a delicious beverage.

THE NEW JERSEY DENTAL LAW.

Its Object Is Not to Give the Home Dentists a Monopoly.

Some of the New York dentists have been criticising the New Jersey State Dental law, which provides that before a man may practise that profession in this State he must pass an examination before the State Dental Association. The New Jersey law is almost a copy of the law of Massachusetts. It was enacted to prevent the invasion of the State by charlatans and quacks who drive around in carriages and pull teeth in the street, "without pain."

Several deaths resulted from the careless and unskilled work of these people, and the Legislature passed the law to protect the public. New Jersey used to be overrun with "teeth extractors," who carried on their business in the public squares, and who often sent their victims home with mangled and broken jaws.

The New York dentists claim that the law was passed to relieve the dentists of the summer resorts from competition with New York and Philadelphia professional men. New Jersey dentists protest, however, that that is not its object and that the practioners of other States may easily secure the right to do business in this State if they will make application.

The Saturday Short-of-Car Nuisance.

(From The Westfield Standard.)

The regular patrons of the New Jersey Central Railroad are very much interested to know whether they are to be subject this season, as they were last, to the annoyance of having to stand up in the trains for the want of seats. It looks that way. Last Saturday the 1:30 p. m. train from New York left the Jersey City depot, with not less than twenty passengers standing, ten of them out on the rear platform. Before starting passengers politely asked the train men as they were uncoupling a locked car to leave it attached to the train and open it as passengers were standing in all the cars. These particular men said they had no authority and were obeying orders. Whose orders they were obeying nobody could find out. As they uncoupled the last car the coupling bar swung over and caught Hon. George Kyte in the elbow, and he was knocked down the steps and would have fallen off the platform altogether if a bystander had not grabbed him. One passenger refused to show his ticket without he was given a seat. He rode free. Others with less courage grumbled a good deal, but American fashion paid up, being, doubtless, "too busy to fight." Said a little man who wore a big red necktie and brown hat: "I would n't kick if there had n't been a car left behind. It's poor economy for a railroad to make its patrons mad to save a doubtful dollar or two".

"Wang" Is a Success.

That admirable comic opera comedian, DeWolf Hopper, assisted by an excellent company, has inaugurated his second annual season in New York city, at the Broadway Theatre, and the Plainfielders who have been in to see him, say that the big comedian is greeted by the largest and most enthusiastic audiences ever assembled in that beautiful house. From start to finish, the vast audience is most excellently entertained, for the dialogue is bright, and witty, the music tuneful and catchy, the stage settings elaborate and handsome, and the costumes, picturesque and tasteful, and notable for their brilliancy of color.

The production is a noteworthy one, and reflects the highest credit upon Mr. Hopper, his talented company, and last but not least, the management, who by their liberality have given lovers of comic opera in the metropolis, one of the finest productions ever seen on any stage "Wang" is an emphatic success.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyon question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c., 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

DRIVING SEA FLOCKS.

Fun with the Fishermen Along the Newfoundland Coast.

The gregarious porpoise, or Phocæna communis, is one of the most jolly and careless fishes in the sea. He is hardly ever found alone, but delights to join great roaming parties, and scour the fishing coasts, running into all the coves and bays along the route, and sometimes entering the mouths of tidal rivers, in pursuit of other fishes. But even when a great herd of porpoises is in pursuit of a "school" of capelan, herring, tomcod, seatrout, or other fish, it will stop its march to play.

The gregarious porpoise is known by various names along the coasts of Labrador, Newfoundland, the maritime provinces of Canada and New England. The best known of these names are puffing-pig, herring-hog, seahog, and roundheads. The porpoise is from four to six feet long, with a thick, round body, and black, shining, hairless skin. When he is above water for some time, with the hot sun shining upon him, his bare hide fairly glistens with oil, and if you pass to leeward of him in a boat you catch his strong, oily smell. Like the whale, he is obliged to rise to the surface regularly to breathe.

The "drive" which is illustrated in this article happened on the coast of Newfoundland. It was a very calm and clear day about the middle of June, and most of the fishermen were overhauling their nets and "bulltow" trains. A deep bight ran in from the sea, and at the bottom of this bight was a long strand. About a mile and a half out, some fishermen lying on the headland saw a large herd rise and begin to play. They ran down to the "tilts," and made signals to the nearest boats, and these in turn made signals to the boats further away. In the space of ten minutes nine or ten fishing-boats were rowing as fast as they could for the mouth of the bight. As they drew near the boisterous herd they became very silent, for if you frighten the porpoises by making any unusual noise, the whole flock will disappear as suddenly as they came. They have very little fear of a boat if it approaches noiselessly.

In this herd there were from eighty to one hundred porpoises, spread out in a semicircle two or three deep, with a half dozen veterans leading at the middle or bulge of the crescent. The boats ranged in the rear of the beasts, so as to cover the flock, and rowed quietly after them. They were bound in for the very bottom of the cove, where there were "breaching" cod and large shoals of capelan. Sometimes they started up and swam madly forward, the rowers having all they could do to keep up with them; again, they would turn about, jump out of the water and fight sham battles, turning the sea into foam.

The strand was not more than fifty or sixty yards distant, and the water was rapidly growing shallow. There were no fish in there, and the porpoises swam along slowly, as if under protest. Sometimes they stopped and turned, but the boats had drawn up closer and closer, till the men might almost touch the animals with their oars; and there was nothing for the herd to do apparently but go on. Lying motionless along the sand were old men, women and children waiting for the "beaching." When the flock got so near the shore that there was little more than water enough to float the leaders, they hesitated, turned and made up their minds, in spite of the large black things floating before them, to return to deep water. Then the leader of the pursuing party gave a signal, to which every oar and throat responded. The boats charged the flock, shouting, beating the water with their oars, and throwing overboard ringing grapnels. Terror and confusion seized the porpoises. They plunged hither and thither, most of them, however, making straight for the beach. Some of them dived to go out under the boats, but the fishermen prodded them with long boat-hooks, or terrified them with the ringing grapnels. Not more than half a dozen escaped. The rest went aground on the sand, tumbling and sprawling about in the most helpless and clumsy fashion where they were quickly despatched by the people on shore. The fishermen allowed their cod nets to stand, and worked all night and the next day stripping the skins and blubber off the roundheads. They afterward rendered out the oil in huge pots set upon the beach. The carcasses yielded nearly five hundred gallons of oil, which afterward fetched about $340.—Edmund Collins, in Harper's Young People.

Defects and Excellencies.

The Boston Transcript hears of a schoolboy who has found out, what all of us find out sooner or later, that a single fault attracts more notice than many excellencies.

"I am sorry, Henry," said Uncle George, "that you exhibit so little proficiency in orthography. That letter you wrote to Mr. Brown the other day had so many misspelled words that it set the whole counting-room in a roar."

"H'm!" said Henry. "That's just the way in this world. There were a good many words in that letter that I know were spelled right, but of course I get no credit for that."

The President's Cape May Cottage.

CAPE MAY, N. J., May 18.—It is reported that the President is no longer a property-holder at this place, he having recently disposed of his cottage here. The President paid $10,000 for the cottage, and it is understood that he sold it for the same price.

Mrs. Langtry Said to be a Bankrupt.

NEW YORK, May 18.—A dispatch from London reports that Mrs. Langtry has been unable to satisfy her creditors and that she will shortly appear in the bankruptcy court.

Two Young Men Drowned.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 18.—Frank Webbet and Lewis O. Lanphiere, young men of the town of Milford, were drowned in the Sound yesterday by the capsizing of their boat. Frank L. Burns and Frank Green, who were also in the boat when she capsized, succeeded in clinging to the bottom of the craft until rescued.

Death of a Prominent Editor.

MERIDEN, Conn., May 18.—William F. Graham, editor of the Republican, died at his home yesterday after a long illness of consumption, aged 46 years. Mr. Graham enjoyed a wide acquaintance with the public men of the State and country, and had a great deal of influence in the councils of the Republican party in Connecticut. He was a vigorous and ready writer, particularly on political subjects.

Another Cigarette Victim.

NEW YORK, May 18.—John Buckley, jr., 21 years of age, committed suicida last night by hanging himself in his father's house at 68 West 55th street. Despondency caused by lack of employment and excessive cigarette smoking is presumably the reason for his killing himself.

Mr. Gladstone Out of Bed.

LONDON, May 18.—Mr. Gladstone is out of bed, but not allowed out of doors.

The Duchess of Fife a Mother.

LONDON, May 18.—The Duchess of Fife, daughter of the Prince of Wales, was delivered of a daughter yesterday at the Duke's residence of Sheen. Mother and child are well. The Princess of Wales was present.

THE NEXT PRESIDENT.

WALTER WELLMAN'S IMPARTIAL GOSSIP ABOUT THE CANDIDATES.

The Next President Will Be Harrison, Cleveland, Blaine, Hill, Alger, Cullom, McKinley, Sherman, Gresham or McPherson—The President and Mr. Blaine.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Who will be the next president of the United States? Who will be chosen as the candidates of the two great parties? These are questions which we hear asked more frequently at the capital, perhaps, than anywhere else in the country. Here we are all politicians, all president makers, and the great quadrennial game of politics is already attracting universal attention. I propose to give you some of the presidential gossip as I hear it in Washington, without bias or prejudice concerning either parties or men.

I think I can name ten men, one of whom almost to a moral certainty will be the next president of the United States. These ten men are Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland, James G. Blaine, David B. Hill, General Alger, William McKinley, John Sherman, Senator Cullom, Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, or Judge Gresham.

One finds in Washington a prevalent belief among well informed politicians and public men that President Harrison will again be the candidate of his party. The tradition that an elected president who gives fairly satisfactory service is entitled to renomination is a strong one, and not often set aside. The political power of an administration, even when used in a perfectly proper and legitimate way, is tremendous. There does not seem to be much doubt that the president desires a renomination, and that his friends are actively at work to secure that end. It is true that the president is not as popular among the members of his own party as he would like to be. Many men have been offended in the distribution of offices, and there has been a great amount of grumbling. Moreover, the president's best friends say his manner has sometimes been unfortunate. He lacks the tact which makes "no" a pleasant word. It is said here that the president makes more enemies even when he says "yes," simply by his manner of saying it, than some men would make in denying requests.

Among Republican United States senators there was much criticism of the president last winter. Many of them were sore displeased with him, and swore they would not help renominate him. But this feeling appears to be softened with the flight of time. During the past six months the president has gained rapidly in the esteem of his own partisans, and as the convention day draws nigh—it is only a year or a little more away—the chances become greater and greater that the Republican candidate in '92 will be the candidate of '88.

Wherever men write or talk of the next presidential campaign, there the name of Blaine appears. In many respects Mr. Blaine is the most commanding, most picturesque and interesting figure in our national politics. Even the president's most devoted admirers admit that Mr. Blaine is the great party leader, as Tilden was the leader of Democracy in his time, as Clay was in his day, and Jackson in his. Of course the thousands of men who hero-worship Mr. Blaine are urging him for the presidency.

I have the best of reasons for saying that Mr. Blaine is not and will not be a candidate for the presidential nomination. Moreover, long before the convention meets he will repeat his performance of three years ago, and write a letter which will make his position as clear as daylight. Mr. Blaine does not want the presidency. What he does want is to be the natural and actual leader, the master spirit of his party. To this end he aspires not only to continue as the premier of the administration, in case the Republicans be fortunate enough to retain power, but he wants to be the Warwick, the king maker of his party. Every one who is near the sources of inside information in national politics knows that Mr. Harrison was nominated at Chicago in 1888 by the friends of Mr. Blaine. Further than this, there was a promise from the representatives of the nominee to the representatives of Mr. Blaine that in the event of success at the polls Mr. Blaine should be appointed secretary of state. After the election Mr. Blaine's friends were very much afraid there was some hitch in this agreement, that a misunderstanding was likely to arise and Mr. Blaine not be called to the cabinet, after all. Those were anxious days for Mr. Blaine and his intimate friends.

It is perfectly true, and in behalf of the truth of history it will do no harm to say so, that at one time the president elect, as General Harrison then was, had a serious notion of leaving Mr. Blaine out of his council. Had he done so, no doubt another bitter factional war within the ranks of that party would have been started—such a feud as that which existed for years between Conkling and Blaine, and which probably kept them both out of the presidential chair. It is perfectly true, furthermore, that at the outset of his administration the president was not inclined to be confidential or specially friendly with Mr. Blaine. He was just a little troubled with a fear that the latter would overshadow him. To remove this reserve, this lingering suspicion, from the president's mind at once became Mr. Blaine's fondest task. Persistently, and with rare tact and skill, he little by little managed to get closer and closer to the president. He sought in every way in his power to convince the president that their interests were identical, and that the president could have no more loyal supporter and lieutenant than himself. It was a long struggle.

One of General Harrison's predominating characteristics is reticence, unwillingness to make a confidant of any one, and suspicion even of his friends. But in the end Mr. Blaine was completely successful. He and the president are now warm friends. They consult each other freely, confidentially and almost daily when both are in the city.

There is no reason to doubt that General Harrison and Mr. Blaine understand each other fully. Between them they hope to control the nomination and the party policy, and, luck being with them in the election, to continue four years more as the chief men of their party and of the government. Of course the enthusiastic admirers of Blaine who are not so much in love with Harrison will make every effort before and at the convention to induce Mr. Blaine to accept the nomination himself. Already they are crying that he is the natural leader of the party, while the president is but its official leader. Scores of Mr. Blaine's old friends have, to my personal knowledge, visited or written him, imploring him to permit the use of his name, at any rate not to write a letter that would take him out of the range of possibilities. Notwithstanding all this the chances are that Blaine will stand for the president and that the president will be renominated.

At the present moment the most formidable rival the president has appears to be General Alger, of Michigan, who was also a candidate in 1888. General Alger is a very wealthy, warm hearted, benevolent man, who has managed to gather about him a coterie of friends of whom any man might be proud. Many of these friends, like Mr. Clarkson, Colonel Dudley, General Thurston, Ben Lovell, of Massachusetts; Senator-elect Gallinger, of New Hampshire, and ex-Senator Platt, of New York, are skillful and powerful politicians.

In case Major McKinley succeeds in carrying Ohio on a protection platform he may be a formidable rival in the next convention. His weakness as a candidate is in the situation at home, where Senator Sherman, the Nestor of public life in America, has by no means concluded to imitate his friend Edmunds' example and voluntarily step out of service. It is considered pretty certain that Mr. Sherman will stand for re-election to the senate; they do even say he will go out for the presidential nomination with as much vigor and confidence as of yore. Ohio cannot send two candidates to the front and do good for both of them. So if Senator Sherman should decide to try his luck once more in the presidential sweepstakes it is difficult to see where Mr. McKinley could get in. Moreover, one hears a good deal of this 'sort of talk at Washington, to wit: That the party is in a certain sense divided between the advocates of reciprocity and of protection, and that in selecting a candidate it will be well to choose one who has in times past been counted a "home market" and orthodox protectionist statesman, and who is also identified with the experiment of reciprocity. The friends of the president say he fills the bill exactly.

Senator Allison, who has twice been an aspirant for the nomination, will not make the race, it is said, this year. But Senator Cullom will be in it. Illinois will send a delegation solid and enthusiastic in his support. Cullom not only looks like Abraham Lincoln, but has many of the traits and good qualities of the emancipator. It is a pity Mr. Cullom's legislative specialty, the railroad transportation question, has been too far from the active sympathies of the great masses of people, too little partaking of sentiment, to make him really popular.

Judge Gresham, who was the candidate of Illinois three years ago, but not of Indiana, will not be formally presented in 1892. His friends say they will rest their case on the belief that if the party wants a man to win with it will take the judge, fresh from the bench at which his decisions for the people and against monopolies have made him one of the most popular men in the country.

In this connection I hear that Colonel William Wade Dudley, the well known politician who has never been recognized by the president at the White House, though he was so largely instrumental in pushing his friend General Harrison from a law office to the executive mansion, is to be a delegate at large from Indiana. Colonel Dudley really lives in Washington, but his popularity is so great in Hoosierdom that even the warm friends of the president admit he can have whatever he wants. Dudley plainly says he is opposed to the president, but the administration managers will elect him a delegate at large, and meanwhile seek to reconcile him with his old friend.

Among the Democrats there is a conundrum quite as interesting as that which bothers the Republicans. Will it be Cleveland or Hill? Will the governor go into the convention with New York solidly at his back, and thus prevent the nomination of Mr. Cleveland? If he kill off Cleveland will he also kill himself? These are questions which one cannot answer with satisfaction to himself or any one else. The prophets are as yet chary of venturing opinions.

They are traveling in the west, the south and southwest, making inquiries into the political situation and preparing for next year's struggle as if they were in earnest. As yet there are no signs that Governor Hill has given up the idea of receiving the nomination for himself. When he does make way, as the probabilities are he will be compelled to do by the popular demand for Cleveland, it will not be until he has made himself the residuary legatee of his big rival. If Mr. Cleveland wants the nomination next May he will have imperative need of the New York votes controlled by Governor Hill, and as two terms—one of which he has already had—are all Mr. Cleveland could hope for, why could not Governor Hill be his successor as the Democratic candidate?

Viewing all the field over, there are plenty of wise men who believe the rival candidates next year will be the rivals in the campaign of 1888. These wise men must not forget the "dark horse," however. The "dark horse" in the Democratic race is none other than Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, who, it is understood, is being groomed by that most adroit political manager, Senator Gorman.

WALTER WELLMAN.

GRANDMA'S LITTLE STORY.

She Tells Kittie How Her Papa Went to the Head of the Class.

"O, Kitty!" said her mamma, in a grave tone, as Kitty came into the sitting-room one morning, with her dress all awry, "what an untidy little girl! Just see; your shoe is unbuttoned, your apron is torn, your face is dirty and you have lost your hair-ribbon. When will you learn to be neat, and to play without getting yourself into such a state?"

Kitty did not look very well pleased. "It's an awful lot of trouble, mamma," she said, almost crossly; then, with a sudden change of tone, she asked:

"Grandma, what are you laughing and shaking your head for?"

"I was only thinking of something," answered grandma.

"What was it?" asked Kitty; "please tell me, grandma!"

"O, dear, no!" said grandma; "I never could tell a story to an untidy little girl!"

"Could you to a tidy one?" asked Kitty.

"I think I might be persuaded to," answered grandma, smiling.

That was enough. Kitty fairly flew out of the room. In ten minutes she was back again, actually shining. Shoes buttoned, a clean apron, nicely brushed hair and cheeks glowing from the hard rubbing they had undergone.

"Jane rubbed dreadful hard," she explained to grandma, "but I did not say a word; now tell me, please," and Kitty curled herself into a little ball on the rug.

"Well," began grandma, "I was thinking of a little boy who was rewarded once for being tidy."

"Was papa always tidy?" asked Kitty, in a tone which implied that she hoped that he was not.

"Yes, I think he was," answered grandma.

Kitty sighed deeply.

"From the time that he was a little boy, he seemed to love to be clean and neat," grandma went on, "and when he began to go to school, he was very particular that his boots should shine, and that his hands were washed the last thing before leaving home."

"I don't think that he was very clean when he poured molasses all over himself," murmured Kitty.

Grandma coughed a little bit behind her hand, and then went on with her story:

"He did not know that he was more tidy than the other little boys—I do not think that he thought about it at all, or he would not have been so much surprised when it was noticed. He went to school to a very disagreeable and unjust Quaker, who seemed always glad when he could find fault with any of the boys, and the boys said that he enjoyed punishing them. He had a very disagreeable habit of looking over the class, and suddenly selecting one boy to scold."

KITTY'S PAPA IS BIDDEN TO GO TO THE HEAD.

"I shouldn't think you'd have let my papa go to school to such a cross man!" said Kitty, indignantly.

"We did not allow him to after we found what a very unjust man he was; but that was not until some time later. One day he called up the arithmetic class; and when the boys were all standing up before him, instead of going on with the lesson, he began to look at them, one after another.

"'O, dear!' thought the poor little fellows, 'wonder who's done what, now?' and there they stood, really trembling. After what seemed to them a long time, the old Quaker let his eyes rest on Henry; he gave him one long look, and then said: 'Henry, thee may go to the head of thy class; thy boots are the cleanest!'

"You may be sure, Kitty, that your papa was very much relieved, and though it was an unjust thing for the teacher to send him above the rest for having clean boots, still it may perhaps have taught the other boys what a good thing it was to be tidy."

"Humph!" remarked Kitty, rocking herself back and forth; then, a moment later, she said:

"I think, grandma, that perhaps I like the stories about papa when he was naughty, better than this kind."—Annie L. Hannah, in Our Little Men and Women.

He Loved Sausages.

A correspondent sends from Michigan a true story of a farmer's dog who has been found guilty of obtaining goods under false pretences. He is extremely fond of sausage, and has been taught by his owner to go after them for himself, carrying a written order in his mouth. Day after day he appeared at the butcher's shop, bringing his master's order, and by and by the butcher became careless about reading the document. Finally, when settlement day came, the farmer complained that he was charged with more sausages than he had ordered. The butcher was surprised, and the next time Lion came in, with a slip of paper between his teeth, he took the trouble to look at it. The paper was blank, and further investigations showed that whenever the dog felt a craving for sausage he looked around for a piece of paper, and trotted off to the butcher's. The farmer is something out of pocket, but squares the account by boasting of his dog's intelligence.—Youth's Companion.

THE FARMERS MEET

The Alliance Convention in Session To-Day.

OVER 3,000 DELEGATES PRESENT.

The Third-Party Men Seem to be in the Lead With Their Scheme.

The Kansas Delegation Vote Unanimously for the New Movement—Mr. Powderly an Active Worker—The Eastern Delegates Tell What They Want—The Convention Regarded With Interest in Washington.

CINCINNATI, May 19.—There was much confusion when the Alliance convention was called to order.

Charles Cunningham, for many years chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Arkansas, and candidate for Vice-President on the Union Labor ticket in 1888, was elected temporary chairman, Speaker Elder of Kansas having declined the honor.

Over 100 notices of resolutions that as many delegates propose to submit have been filed with Rev. E. P. Foster, who was elected principal secretary.

Over 3,000 delegates are here and a struggle as acrimonious and energetic as any that ever appeared at the session of an old established party convention is on. Gen Weaver of Iowa, and Col. Norton of Kansas, are working every corner to force a new party into the field.

Mr. Powderly, the Knights of Labor chief, is frequently consulted by third party men.

Ignatius Donnelly is one of the prominent figures in the convention, and he is credited with very earnest aspirations to the third party candidacy for President.

About all the Greenbackers who went to Congress on top of the wave 14 years ago have turned up here. They come, as E. Moody Boynton of Massachusetts says, "Solely from a source of duty." He declares that he would not accept office under the Government again for a million dollars.

Kansas Favors a Third Party.

"As goes Kansas, so will go the convention," has been a popular expression ever since the first contingent of delegates put in an appearance, and the representatives of the grasshopper State after a caucus that lasted several hours decided to support the organization of a third party through thick and thin.

Whether the representatives of the granger and labor organizations that are gathered here are to bring into existence a third political party, or whether definite action is to be postponed until next spring, when the policies of the two old parties shall have been more fully developed, are issues that will have to be fought out on the floor of the convention. There is no question but that to-day the third party men are running it to suit themselves.

The Reform Press Association held a meeting, formed a national organization and arranged for an interchange of news service. A conference was also in progress between the delegates from New York and Boston, and those of the Southern States looking toward the reaching of an understanding that would enable the northern and southern wings to work harmoniously on the floor of the convention.

What Eastern Men Want.

Eastern men want this plank adopted on the silver question: That the conference favors "the restoration of silver to the position it occupied before 1873, viz., on an equality with gold as a monetary standard of value."

Also the following: "As eight hours constitute a legal day's work for government employes in mechanical departments, we believe this principle should be further extended so as to apply to all firms and corporations employing labor in the different States of the Union, thus reducing the hours of labor and in proportion increasing the demand for it."

Watched in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Farmers' Alliance and Labor convention is regarded with great interest by politicians. Notwithstanding the declarations of Senator Peffer of Kansas, that there will be no third party, ticket or platform discussed, everyone believes that the outcome of the gathering will be a movement in that direction.

MR. BLAINE IMPROVING.

He Walks Around the Room Without the Aid of a Cane.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Secretary Blaine was reported as being very much improved at noon. He arose from bed and sat up for two hours. He also walked around the room several times without the aid of a cane. The following bulletin was given out by Dr. Dennis:

"Mr. Blaine is feeling very well, having enjoyed a good night's rest. His appetite is good and his strength is rapidly returning. He intends to leave the city in a few days."

It has not yet been decided whether he will go to Washington or to Maine. Mrs. Blaine thinks, however, that her husband will go directly from New York to his place in the Pine Tree State.

Demarest Not Yet Indicted.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 19.—The district attorney of Erie County has heard nothing further from the forgery case against Assemblyman Demarest, which was dismissed in Rockland County for want of jurisdiction. As soon as he is notified by the clerk of Rockland County in the matter a warrant will be issued here and Demarest will be indicted.

Three Killed in a Collision.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 19.—A freight collision on the Louisville & Nashville road caused the death of three men: J. Costello, brakeman; Lester Brown, fireman, and D. Edmonds, engineer. The first section of the freight train was standing at a tank when the other crashed into it. Those killed were on the rear section.

RUMORS ABOUT RAUM.

The Pension Commissioner Says He Will Resign if the President Desires.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—This has been a day of contradictory rumors, in which Pensions Commissioner Green B. Raum has figured very conspicuously.

One was that he had called upon the President and without any ceremony at all presented his resignation and insisted that it be accepted at once. Another report had it that the President had summoned the Commissioner to the White House and demanded his resignation.

Neither of these rumors could be confirmed. The Commissioner did not see the President, as he told a friend he intended to do, but he proposes, if possible to have an interview with him to-morrow. Then he hopes a complete understanding may be reached.

TUDOR HAVEN SELECTED.

Ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland Disappoint Marion Residents.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., May 19.—Ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland will make Tudor Haven their principal place of residence during the coming summer season, much to the disappointment of Marion residents, who have been hoping that they would again spend the season there.

The decision of the Clevelands to reside on this side of the bay is the result of Mrs. Cleveland's recent visit to Tudor Haven, when she expressed herself as pleased with her new home.

ONE THOUSAND STRIKE.

Dobsons' Employes Opposed to English Carpet Operatives.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—One thousand operatives in the employ of J. & J. Dobson, carpet manufacturers of this city, are on strike.

Their grievance is the importation of English operatives. The employes also claim that the Dobsons have violated the contract labor law by importing weavers from England.

Sudden Death of a Clergyman.

PITTSBURG, May 19.—Rev. Jonas Pitts died suddenly at his home on Alder street, East End, at 8 a. m. His wife arose at an early hour, leaving her husband in bed. At 7 o'clock her son was sent to awaken his father for breakfast. The son found his father in an arm-chair and unconscious. Physicians arrived promptly but were unable to save his life. The exact cause of death is unknown and an autopsy will be held. The deceased minister was in his 47th year and last preached at Trinity Hall, Washington, Pa. Of late years he has had no charge on account of poor health.

Carpet Weavers Refuse to Strike.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 19.—The threatened general strike among the 1,000 employes of the Hartford Carpet Company at Thompsonville has been averted by the action of the weavers' meeting, which, by a vote of 51 to 39, decided not to strike for the enforcement of their demands, which had been refused. Had they struck, the movement would undoubtedly have spread to the other departments, as the other workmen would have been without work.

The Bay State Redistricting Bill.

BOSTON, Mass., May 19.—The Republican members of the Legislature held a caucus last evening behind closed doors for the purpose of discussing the Congressional redistricting bill. It was decided to appoint a committee of five to confer with the Republican members of the redistricting committee to see if a better and more acceptable bill cannot be drafted.

The Assignee's Commission $260,000.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Judge Lawrence has approved the accounts of William Nelson Crowell as assignee of the banking firm of Decker, Howell & Co. Upwards of $5,000,000 was received by him and every creditor was paid in full. His commission on the work, which the Judge has approved, amounts to about $260,000.

General Butler's Client Sentenced.

BOSTON, May 19.—Claretta E. Johnson, General Butler's client, who was released from jail on a writ of personal replevin and subsequently rearrested, appeared before Judge Nelson in the United States District Court and was recommitted to the Sherbourne reformatory to serve out her sentence. No counsel appeared for her.

Whiskey and Opium the Cause.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., May 19.—George H. Graham, for the past 10 years agent for the American Express Company in this city, is charged with having opened registered letters and has made a full confession. Graham attributes his downfall to whiskey and opium, which sapped his moral sense.

Destructive Timber Fire.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 19.—A fire set to clear land from which the timber had been cut in the town of Theresa, this county, is still burning, control of it having been lost. It has burned over 600 acres and 500 or 600 cords of wood, and is now in the big timber.

THE FLEEING ITATA

Preparations Made to Seize Her at Iquique.

NO POSSIBLE CHANCE OF ESCAPE

The Baltimore and San Francisco Watching for Her Arrival.

The Charleston Still Hot in Pursuit—There Are Only a Few Ports in Chili that the Escaped Vessel Can Enter—The Government Will Not be Baffled—Deserters Tell a Story.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The centre of interest in the Itata affair, which was first at San Diego and then shifted to Acapulco, is now about to move again, possibly to some Central American or Colombian port, where the fugitive or her consort may call for coal, or where the Charleston may go for news. Meanwhile a point still further south is looming up in public attention. Iquique, the principal port held by the insurgents will soon be the rendezvous not only of the principal vessels of our navy now on the Pacific coast, but of several English cruisers.

Instructions have been sent to the Baltimore and Pensacola lately at Valparaiso to proceed north for the purpose of heading off and capturing the Itata, and like instructions have been given to the San Francisco, which arrived at Iquique last week. The Charleston will undoubtedly make Iquique her goal unless she should overhaul the Itata on the way and bring her back.

The difficulties in hunting for the Itata on the open ocean are obviously very great, since she may either keep near shore or many miles from it, and the Charleston might run by her. But the problem of escape for the Itata is at least as difficult. There are only a few ports in Chili that she can enter, and before she reaches any of them the Baltimore and San Francisco, both very fast vessels, will be there watching for her arrival.

This does not complete her trouble, for should she manage to elude the three fast cruisers, and slip into Iquique or some other port held by the insurgents, her surrender may still be demanded for return to San Diego. The case is one in which the government of the United States has gone so far as to be ready to go further rather than be baffled.

Deserters from the Itata Testify.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—Two deserters from the steamship Itata have given some interesting testimony in regard to that vessel before the grand jury at Los Angeles, which is investigating the Robert and Minnie case. These men testified that when the Itata started north she had on board a number of rifles, four 60-pound guns, a crew of 90 men and 60 soldiers. Two days before the Itata steamed into San Diego all the munitions of war and the soldiers were stowed away in the forward hatch and other changes were made which made her look like a first-class merchantman. It was also brought out that it was the intention of the Itata to transfer her cargo to the Esmeralda at Pichiluque, on the coast of Lower California. The Esmeralda was to escort the Itata to Iquique. If the trip were made without interference, all well and good, but if not the Esmeralda proposed to give battle.

DR. GRAVES IN PRISON.

Arrested Last Night and Will be Given a Hearing This Afternoon.

DENVER, Col., May 19.—Dr. Graves was arrested last evening and taken to the county jail, where he spent the night. This afternoon he will have a hearing, when the question as to whether he will be admitted to bail or not will be decided.

It is said upon good authority that Miss Sallie Hanley has also been indicted. It was thought yesterday that Mrs. Graves had been indicted, and it is said that such was the case, but the grand jury, acting upon the advice of District Attorney Stevens, reconsidered their action, not having evidence enough yet to warrant it.

The theory is that Mrs. Graves wrote the label on the bottle sent to Mrs. Barnaby, while Miss Hanley carried it to Boston.

A New York Town Scorched.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 19.—The village of Perry, Wyoming County, was damaged by fire last evening to the extent of $100,000. It broke out in the stores of Goldwater & Brother and W. Herin simultaneously. The two stores, together with Masonic Hall, the Olive Opera House, Smith & Son's boot and shoe store, W. A. Gillett's dry goods store and Williams & Company's real estate buildings, were destroyed. The insurance about half covers the loss.

A Town Reported in Flames.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 19.—Three fire companies left this city for the town of Frugality, Cambria County, which is reported as being in flames.

THE DUNCAN TRAGEDY.

A Quarryman Saw the Washington Man Trying to Murder His Wife.

LONDON, May 19.—A quarryman, who discovered that H. C. Duncan, of Washington, D. C., had attempted to murder his wife near Bettws-y-Coed, North Wales, by beating her over the head with a stone, and who assisted in conveying the unfortunate woman to a hotel in the neighborhood, now states that he was given a five-pound note by Duncan as an inducement to conceal the facts of the case. He says that when he arrived on the scene he found Duncan holding a handkerchief to his wife's mouth, but he removed it as soon as he saw the witness approaching.

In her delirium Mrs. Duncan exclaimed: "Don't hack at me; get me up."

Mrs. Duncan is still in a precarious condition, and repeatedly calls for her mother.

An Advance Granted to Strikers.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 19.—The carpenters' strike is over, the contractors having decided to give the advance wages, $2.50 per day, to a majority of the men. The Carpenters' Union passed a resolution that the men could go to work whenever a majority were granted the advance. This leaves nearly half of their number without work, or they must return at the contractors' terms.

President Leland's Order to Shoot.

SKOWHEGAN, Me., May 19.—It having just been discovered that surreptitious attempts had been made to obtain the formula used in the tanning of leather by the Leland Tanning Company, a guard has been placed around the works armed with Winchester rifles, and orders have been given by Silas Leland, the president of the works, to shoot any one that approached without a permit.

Sorry He Tried to Murder His Wife.

ROME, N. Y., May 19.—Louis Lyrae, whose wife lies at the point of death from injuries inflicted by him with an axe, was found last evening in the woods near his home, six miles north of this city. He had a bag tied over his head. He was asked about his crime and appeared in a very penitent mood, kneeling in front of the bed in his house.

A Town Surrounded by Burning Forests.

TERRA ALTA, W. Va., May 19.—Destructive forest fires are raging in the Cheat river mountains. A tract of 5,000 acres north of here has been burned over and a number of farm houses destroyed. At Oakland Village the greatest alarm is felt, as the town is almost surrounded by the burning forests.

Vote to Aid a Railroad.

CALAIS, Me., May 19.—A vote was taken in the towns in Washington County upon the proposition to guarantee 5 per cent. interest on $650,000 for 30 years in aid of the Maine Shore Line Railroad. From returns received it is safe to say that the proposition has been carried by about 4,000 majority.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 19.—Peter J. Peters, aged 91, popularly supposed to be the oldest Grand Army veteran in the country, died here last evening.

THE TROOPS FIRED

Servians Shot Down for Defending Queen Natalie.

GREAT EXCITEMENT PREVAILS.

An Effort to Expel Her from Belgrade Frustrated by Students.

They Stopped the Government Carriage, Detached the Horses and Carried the Queen Back to Her Residence—Soldiers Summoned to the House and Drive the Crowd Back—Opposition from Citizens.

VIENNA, May 19.—The Prefect of Belgrade, charged with the duty of expelling Queen Natalie from the country, went to her residence during the morning, compelled her to enter a carriage and drove with her to the quay, where the royal yacht was awaiting her. On the way a number of students detached the horses and dragged the carriage with the Queen back in triumph to her residence.

Aware of the strong public sympathy for the Queen, the government, cordoned with troops the streets in the vicinity of Queen Natalie's residence, excluding the public.

After Natalie had taken refuge in her residence, the principal citizens and merchants sided with the Queen and showing their sympathy openly and a large number of students gathered to defend her in her dwelling.

The troops, after vainly endeavoring to disperse the supporters of the Queen, fired upon them, killing two and wounding many.

HUNDREDS POISONED.

Pittsburg Officials Warn the Citizens Not to Eat Smoked Fish.

PITTSBURG, May 19.—Chief Brown, of the Department of Public Safety, ordered an official investigation of the alarming number of cases of poisoning from eating smoked sturgeon reported to his office by the Bureau of Health.

Dr. J. Guy McCandless was ordered to proceed with the investigation, and at a late hour he reported that the smoked fish had been cured with creosote. The doctor advised the destruction of all smoked sturgeon now on sale in the city.

Chief Brown ordered the proper officers to visit every place where the fish is sold and condemn it, and through the afternoon papers the chief warns the citizens of the city to eat no more smoked fish.

Almost every physician in the city reports from five to thirty cases. None of the cases have yet proved fatal, but the people sick from the effects of the poisoned food number in the hundreds. Thirteen physicians interviewed agree that their patients exhibit symptoms usually evidence of summer complaint.

Mr. Gledhill, who seems to have cured and sold this particular lot of fish, says that only smoke from hard wood was used, and that he courts and will pay the expense incurred for a searching investigation. He says the fish were perfectly fresh when received from Bayside, N. J., last Thursday. Mr. Gledhill positively denies the use of creosote in curing the fish and is unable to account for its presence.

Anxious About Mr. Blaine's Health.

LONDON, May 19.—The British press continues to manifest marked interest in the condition of Mr. Blaine's health. The Daily Chronicle says, with regard to the Presidency: "Mr. Harrison as a protectionist, pure and simple, opposes Mr. Blaine's policy of reciprocity, and that while on his tour he endeavored to take credit for the great fruits of this policy is most significant."

The Erie Terminal Chartered.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 19.—At the State Department a charter has been granted to the Erie Terminal Railroad Company. The new line will be from a point in the city of Erie, Pa., to a connection with the Pittsburg, Shenango & Lake Erie railroad, at or near Girard Township, Erie county. The capital stock is $150,000, and the length of the road will be about fifteen miles.

Two Deputies for Every Workman.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 19.—The Frick Coke Company made a small start at the Redstone Works. Fifteen ovens were started and they claim to have 25 diggers at work. There are two deputies for every working man. The strikers angrily view the curling smoke and the progress of work from the public road, but are not allowed to step onto the company's property.

"Our Mary" Retired Forever.

LONDON, May 19.—Mrs. Antonio de Navarro, nee Mary Anderson, has purchased a house at Tunbridge Wells, where she has decided to reside permanently. She left London with her husband for their new home, and before departing said: "I have not the slightest intention of ever acting again. I have retired forever."

The Czarowitz to Marry.

VIENNA, May 19.—It is said that a marriage has been arranged between the Czarowitz and the Princess Helen, fourth daughter of Prince Nicholas of Montenegro. Such a marriage would be of great political importance, and could not fail to give the highest possible satisfaction to the Pan-Slavist world.

The Cape May Cottage Not Sold.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—At the White House it is stated that the widely published report that the President had sold the Cape May Cottage is untrue. It is the intention of the Presidential family to spend the summer at Cape May as usual.

ITALY GROWING CAREFUL.

Illegal Immigrants Will Not be Sent to the United States.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—United States Consul-General Bourn, at Rome, Italy, informs the Department of State that the Italian government has issued a circular prescribing more stringent regulations as regards the embarkation of minors from Italy to the United States. Minors over 18 years of age must produce a special authorization issued by the Minister of War before they can be received on shipboard.

Minors unaccompanied by parents must show the shipping contract between the agent and the minors' parents or guardians. If with parents, minors must show a certificate that there is no legal impediment to their embarkation.

Treasury Department officials construe these restrictions as evidence that Italy sees that the United States intends to strictly enforce the immigration laws and that it is better that illegal immigrants be not sent to the United States, as they will surely be returned at the expense of the steamship companies.

KEYSTONE ODD FELLOWS.

Statistics of the Order—Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year.

LANCASTER, Pa., May 19.—The Independent Order of Odd Fellows met in grand encampment during the day. Lodges from all parts of the State were present.

The Treasurer's report for the year showed a balance of $819. The per capita tax for the ensuing year was fixed at 8 cents per term.

There were 1,425 persons admitted to membership during the year.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Grand Patriarch, Richard H. Graham, Philadelphia; Grand High Priest, F. D. Vanarsdales, Philadelphia; Grand Senior Warden, George Hawkes, Philadelphia; Grand Scribe, James E. Nicholson, Philadelphia; Grand Treasurer, John S. Helm, Philadelphia; Grand Junior Warden, E. J. Frisman. M. Richards Muckle has been elected Representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

J. W. F. Wilkenson, of New Jersey, won first prize at Princeton College for essays by sophomores.

Bishop Henry Potter, of New York, has consented to deliver the baccalaureate sermon at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., Sunday, June 21.

Henry Rubbrecht's saloon and John Murphy's cooperage works and residence at Maspeth, L. I., were burned during the morning. Loss $7,500.

Pasqualina Robertiello, the Italian girl who shot her lover for refusing to marry her after he had betrayed her, has been placed on trial in New York.

Conductor Daniels, of the Northampton Railroad, while temporarily deranged with malarial fever, shot himself in the house of his brother at Windsor, Conn. His wound is fatal.

Anson Ferrand, who, with three other prisoners, escaped from the Essex County, N. J., jail, over a year ago, has been recaptured near Boonton, that State. He was lodged in his old quarters.

Gaudaur and Mackay's challenge to O'Connor and Hanlan for a double scull race has been accepted. The race is to take place in five or six weeks hence. The details have not as yet been arranged.

There is no change in the situation of the strikes of the New York lumber handlers, the framers and housesmiths. Both employers and men express confidence in their positions, and a determination to hold out.

The extensive barb wire and wire drawing plant of the Joliet Enterprise Co. at Joliet, Ill., was destroyed by fire at 2 a. m. Loss $250,000; insurance $65,000. Three hundred men are thrown out of employment by the fire.

The Rockwell House, a summer hotel at Luzerne, near Saratoga, N. Y., was destroyed by fire early in the morning, together with several cottages. The house contained about 300 rooms. The loss and insurance is not yet known.

The deficit of ex-Cashier Spaulding of Ayer, Mass., is now found to be about $37,000. Spaulding, who is awaiting his trial, is living quietly at Townsend. The president of the bank, Mr. Atwood, says the institution will soon recover its loss.

Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10c, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by J. G. Miller, No. 10 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J.

MR. MARSH WAS RIGHT, AS USUAL.

His Water-works Opinion Upheld by the Highest of Legal Talent.

The referring of the local water-works problem to special counsel has resulted in that counsel, one of the ablest in the State, sustaining in every particular the opinion already given by Craig A. Marsh, as the following communication, presented to the Plainfield Common Council at its last night's session, goes to show:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 18, 1891.

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:

Ex-Chancellor Theodore Runyen, the special counsel for the city engaged by the committee on water, printing and stationery, pursuant to resolution of the Common Council, after several interviews with said committee (at one of which I also was present), has reached conclusions respecting the case of the Plainfield Water Supply Company vs. Plainfield, and the ordinance involved in that case, which are precisely the same as those previously reached by me and communicated to your honorable body. This will appear from the following, just received from such special counsel:

"Craig A. Marsh, Esq., Corporation Counsel, Plainfield.

"I agree with you that the suggestion of the court should be adopted, whereby by consenting that the ex parte affidavit of the Water Supply Company's President be used as evidence in the case, the city may be saved the costs of the litigation. I also agree with you in advising that no appeal be taken from the decision of the court about to be rendered setting aside the ordinance in question as to the prosecutor.

"I do not favor the application by the city to the Attorney General to institute quo warranto proceedings, because I am satisfied that the application would be denied. I do not advise the filing of a bill in equity, because no facts have been presented to me which would give the Court of Chancery jurisdiction.

"THEODORE RUNYON.

"May 18, 1891."

The proposed contracts with Mr. J. M. Low for water-works and sewerage which were accepted by resolution of the Comman Council adopted May 4, 1891, we are also agreed were beyond the power of the Common Council to enter into, and should be amended in several important particulars. Accordingly, the resolution accepting the proposals of Mr. Low and directing the Corporation Counsel to draft an ordinance in compliance therewith should be reconsidered, and the proposals and specifications should be referred back for correction.

Yours respectfully,

CRAIG A. MARSH,
Corporation Counsel.

In compliance with the recommendation of Mr. Marsh, Councilman Hetfield introduced a resolution, which was unanimously passed, that the motion passed at a former meeting authorizing the drawing up of an ordinance for the granting of a water-works and sewerage system contract to J. M. Low & Co., be reconsidered, and that the proposals and specifications of Mr. Low's company be referred back to the committee on water, printing and stationery for correction and revision.

Early in the meeting Councilman Hetfield arose to a question of privilege, and made some spirited remarks concerning the publication in two other papers of the letter which had been privately examined by the Council at its last meeting, in connection with the proposed water-work ordinance a rough draft of which had been submitted. Mr. Hetfield explained that the letter in question was not public property, and was not to have been read in public except in explanation of the ordinance. As the ordinance had not been presented neither it nor the letter was public property. To satisfy some other Councilmen, however, he had permitted them to read it, handing it to Mr. See, who had handed it to others; and some one of them—for some reason which he did not know—had had it transcribed by a stenographer and had had it published and used as against him. If he had wanted to conceal anything, he never would have shown it, but he had nothing to conceal. Nevertheless, it was entirely a private affair, and he wished to condemn publicly such practice and such Councilmen as would do such a thing. Further, if plan or idea was to be carried out, henceforth such other private communications as might come to him he would keep in his pocket. He thought he had acted in all fairness. He had made no effort to conceal anything; had done nothing he was ashamed of. But he insisted that the letter of Mr. Marsh was something that ought to have been kept private.

Residents of Kensington avenue petitioned that three street lights be placed on that thoroughfare, between Broadway and Prospect avenue. The committee on public lights were given power in the matter.

Charles H. Hand asked for permission to connect waste-water pipes in the Amphion Hall building at 8 and 10 West Second street, with the North avenue sewer. The petition was referred to the committee on lights.

The Plainfield Electric Light Company gave legal notification of its assignment of its street lighting contracts and all other business to the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company.

On motion of Councilman Ackerman, and by a unanimous vote, Counselor Marsh's water-works communication was ordered spread in full on the minutes, so that it might be kept as a matter of record where it could be easily found.

In response to a question from President Smith, Mr. Marsh stated that the opinion of Justice VanSyckel had from the outset been that the recently-adopted and contested ordinance forbidding the tearing up of the city streets for the laying of water or gas mains was altogether inoperative against the Gas and Water Supply companies, whose special charters gave them rights which the Council could not by ordinance abridge or abrogate.

The application of Frank E. Miller for a license for Hotel Netherwood was granted. Councilman Ackerman voted with all the others to grant the hotel license, and was alone in voting no on the question of licensing the selling of liquor at the bar.

The ordinance fixing the tax assessments for the year and the ordinance offering a reward of $500 for the arrest of fire-bugs, were adopted on third reading and final passage.

Councilman Gallup introduced a new ordinance to establish such a grade on North avenue between Richmond street and Terrill road that no further complaint of its being constantly under water could be entertained. It was passed on its first reading.

Councilman Hetfield presented a communication from the Plainfield Street Railway Company, officially accepting the route for its tracks mapped out by the Council in its ordinance. A private letter which accompanied the legal document Mr. Hetfield declined to read, but he intimated that it suggested that no action be taken by the Council in the matter.

Counselor Marsh suggested that since the courts had called a halt in the street railway proceedings the Council ought to do nothing in the way of legislation on the subject that might be construed as contempt of court. Mr. Hetfield therefore merely gave the document of acceptance into the hands of the clerk for safe keeping.

The date of the next adjourned meeting was fixed at Monday evening, May 25, in spite of the protest of Councilmen Ginna and Ackerman and the votes of those two and Councilmen See and Johnston against such frequent meetings. Councilman Rushmore was absent.

Mr. Pope's Objections.

Following is the affidavit upon which the Supreme Court has granted a writ—served on Mayor Gilbert and Clerk Coward this morning—requiring them to produce the ordinance in question and all proceedings relating thereto, before the Court Tuesday morning, June 2:

To the Honorable Bennet VanSyckel, Justice of the Supreme Court:

The petition of Elias R. Pope, of the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, respectfully shows:

First. That he is seized and possessed of an undivided one-third share or portion of a certain lot or tract of land in the said city of Plainfield, having a frontage of three hundred and forty-eight feet or thereabouts on Park avenue in the said city, and extending along said avenue from Fifth street to Sixth street.

Second. That the Plainfield Street Railway Company, a corporation of the State of New Jersey, organized under an act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to provide for the formation of street railway companies, and regulate the same," approved April twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and eighty-six, applied to the Common Council of the said city of Plainfield some time in the month of March or April eighteen hundred and ninety-one, for a location of the tracks of its proposed street railway in the said city of Plainfield conformably to the route designated in its articles of incorporation, and that the said Common Council of the said city of Plainfield, on the twenty-first day of April A. D., eighteen hundred and ninety-one, adopted an ordinance locating the tracks of the railway of the said company through various streets in the said city of Plainfield, including Park avenue, between Front and Sixth streets, a printed copy of which said ordinance is hereto annexed and made a part hereof.

Third. That the said Railway Company proposes to use an electric system known as the Trolley System for the propulsion of its cars; and to that end proposes to construct two lines of poles between the curb lines and sidewalks, on each side of the street through which it passes, which poles, according to the said ordinance are to be placed opposite to each other, and one hundred and twenty-five feet apart.

Fourth. That the said ordinance makes no provision for the condemnation of the property rights affected by the erection of the said poles, nor does the law under which the said corporation is organizes make any such provision, nor does the said company offer or propose to make any compensation to the property owners to be affected by the erection of the said poles.

Fifth. That the said Plainfield Street Railway Company presented to the said Common Council, before the adoption of the said ordinance, consents to the location of its said Railway through Park avenue, amounting in frontage on said avenue only to sixteen hundred and eighty feet or thereabouts. That the distance between Front street and Sixth street, on said Park avenue, through which the said railway is located, without counting the width of intersecting streets, is fifteen hundred and ninety four feet, or thereabouts, and counting the width of intersecting streets it is eighteen hundred and thirty feet, or thereabouts.

Sixth. That your petitioner has examined the said consents for the said sixteen hundred and seventy feet of frontage since the adoption of the said ordinance and finds that at least one of them, for forty-five feet, is void for defective acknowledgment, and that at least three others for two hundred and five feet, were not signed by the persons owning the land for which they consented.

Seventh. That the said ordinance is now being published according to law, and that it will become effective by the completion of the said publication some time within the next few days, and that your petitioner is informed and believes that the said The Plainfield Street Railway Company propose to commence the construction of its said railroad upon the route designated in said ordinance forthwith upon the completion of the said publication.

Your petitioner therefore prays that a writ of certiorari may be granted to him to review the said ordinance in the Supreme Court of this State.

This is signed by R. V. Lindabury, counsel for the petitioner, and sworn to by E. R. Pope as true "to the best of his knowledge, information and belief".

ORATORIO ITS FORTE.

Plainfield's Choral Society Proves Its Ability and Training by a Perfect Rendition of "The Creation".

The Plainfield Choral Society ended last evening what has been probably, as a society, and undoubtedly, in a financial way, its most successful year, under whatever name it may have existed.

Much is said by leading critics in disparagement of oratorio music, but for all that there are some musical people who do yet love to hear it and who will take advantage of every opportunity afforded. It is possibly to its fine rendition of "The Messiah" last season that the society owes its unusual success this year. Not only were all the seats sold long before the performance of "Elijah," but some who came with money in hand in what seemed to them plenty of time were turned away. Some have not been able to obtain tickets at any price, while there have been others who have paid a heavy premium.

The society has fully demonstrated the fact that such music is its forte. Not only is it better rendered, by them, but there is more enthusiasm in the society itself. The rehearsals are better attended and there is more accomplished. Much of the credit is due the leader, E. J. Fitzhugh, for his untiring energy and patience. His plan is to build from a solid foundation, so that the chorus stands as it were on a rock and there is little chance of failure.

Haydn's oratorio of "The Creation" was given last evening with these best of soloists: Miss Clementine DeVere—upon whom the critics have long since ceased to place a criticism, as they say to hear her once is to hear her always, she is uniformly good and the same; William H. Rieger, the only one of the three who has sung here before, and who is the best that New York can produce, and Ericson Bushnell, who has won all hearts by his pure English singing.

Miss DeVere in no way belied all the good things which have been said of her. Although the part assigned afforded no opportunity for her to show the purity of the highest tones of her voice, she charmed all hearts by the delicacy of her rendition of "With Verdure Clad", and the artistic finish of that most beautiful solo "On Mighty Fens." Another audience, outside of Plainfield, would have shown their appreciation by greater applause.

William Rieger was in excellent voice, and sang decidedly better than at his last appearance here. His part was the least prominent of the three, but very necessary and acceptable. "In Native Worth", familiar to all, was his principle solo.

Ericson Bushnell divided the honors of favoritism with Miss DeVere. Though not possessing a voice of remarkable scope, he is a very charming singer. His tones are rich and broad, his breaths are a revelation, and his expression appeals to the soul of the hearer. There is possibly no oratorio in which the music is more descriptive of the sentiment, than "The Creation." To the bass principally is given the power to make or break the effect. Mr. Bushnell made it. His wonderful power of expression was particularly noticeable in "Rolling in Foaming Billows", and the solo following the description of the arrival of beasts upon the earth. From the tawny lion to the sinuous worm, one could seem to see the manner of animal.

The trios of Gabriel, Uriel and Raphael were very enjoyable, as was also the duet of Adam and Eve.

The chorus was never better prepared. The shading was finer than ever before and the attacks were as a rule excellent. The slight break in the final chorus was caused by an unlooked for failure on the part of the soloists, which partially disturbed the chorus. They were saved from collapse by taking their cue from Mr. Fitzhugh.

It is a question whether it takes a good deal to please a Music Hall audience, or whether they are so wrapped that they cannot rouse themselves to hearty applause. However, the applause given last evening was overwhelming compared to that of "The Messiah," or "Elijah," when several numbers would pass without a sound, while the audience showed afterward by its general enthusiasm that it was a delighted one. It is a pity that the soloists, being strangers, cannot always appreciate the fact. A warm reception is as necessary to the success of a concert as any other one thing.

The society will have a social meeting on Thursday evening and will elect officers for the ensuing year, and transact whatever business may come up. It has been suggested that it gives "The Messiah," and "The Holy City," with a new oratorio for the last concert, next year.

Death of John Veghte.

John Veghte, for many years a prominent citizen of Somerset county, died near Somerville Sunday. He was for a long time Cashier and then President of the Somerset County Bank, and was at the same time Collector of the county. He finally got into financial difficulties. He was at one time a prominent candidate for the Congressional nomination in this district on the Democratic ticket. He was stricken suddenly on the street about two weeks ago and had been gradually sinking ever since. Spinal meningitis was the cause of death.

MONKEY TRICKS WITH FIRE-ARMS.

Mr. Squires of Plainfield Tells How to Handle a Gun.

A bronzed and bearded sportsman of 70 years walked into the big gun store of ex-Councilman Henry C. Squires of this city, on Broadway, New York,—says the Brooklyn Daily Times of May 16—and asked for some 22-calibre cartridges. A box was handed out to him, and he examined them leisurely with the eye of an expert.

"The last I bought didn't fit very well"—he observed.—"I think I'll try these", and with the familiarity of an old customer he reached to take a gun down from the rack.

"Don't, sir, please"—said Mr. Squires.—"You're an old customer and a good one, but it's the rule of the store never to let a gun or pistol be loaded in it."

"Bosh!"—said the the sportsman, a trifle testily—"I've handled guns before you or any of your clerks was born. I only want to see if they will fit it. The last ones I had were a trifle too tight to work easily in my target rifle, which is this make." And the old sportsman opened the breech of the rifle he had taken down and shook two or three cartridges out of the box he had just bought. Perhaps he did it a trifle more hastily because of the gun seller's protestations.

"It's against the rule"—repeated Mr. Squires hastily.—"I really can't."

Bang! Thud!

He never finished the sentence. The man had dropped the cartridge into the gun and closed the breech and something had inexplicably gone wrong for the first time in his half century of experience. The gun went off, the little bullet whizzed the length of the store and buried itself in the wood-work about the door, not half a yard from where a man sat loading cartridges.

"My God!"—said the old sportsman—"I never had a thing like that happen before." His cheek was white and his hand trembled like a leaf in the wind. The man who had been loading cartridges showed a sudden pallor, and all the clerks came running up with consternation in their faces.

After the trouble was well over Mr. Squires was in a mood to talk about the safe handling of guns. "Yes:"—he said—it's the rule of the store to let no arm be loaded in it. We simply won't load a gun or a pistol for a man and let him take it away. The fool who didn't know it was loaded isn't a patch to some of the people who come in here. They will grab the guns off the racks or counters and point them at each other, and play all sorts of monkey tricks. Of course they're never loaded, but it isn't safe to presume upon that. People come in here with pistols to be repaired. 'Is it loaded?'—we always ask.—'Oh, no!'—will be the reply. But we don't take it for granted. It is the invariable rule in receiving an arm to look first for cartridges; and you'd be surprised to see how often we find them, all rusted in sometimes; sure not to go off when burglars are around and quite apt to explode when they're not wanted to."

"Can't you give me a few sensible rules about handling a gun?"—was asked.

"The one important rule"—he replied—"is never, under any circumstances, to point the muzzle of a gun or pistol at yourself or anybody else. It makes no difference whether it's loaded or not. Everyone who has anything to do with firearms ought to make this a sort of second nature, so that he will without thinking about it always observe this rule. When carrying a gun in the field most sportsmen either carry it over the left arm, with the muzzle pointing up and to the left, or under the right arm with the muzzle forward and down. The second position is the more convenient for quick firing and on the whole better."

"How would you get over a fence carrying a gun?"

"That depends on the fence. I wouldn't set the gun over the fence with the muzzle up and get over on top of it, and a would n't crawl through and pull the gun after me by the muzzle. Anything but a barbed-wire fence I would climb over carefully, holding the gun in my hand and always aimed away from any human being, preferably at the ground."

"How early is it proper to give guns to boys?"

"Under careful instruction, any time after they are 12 years old boys can carry light 16-guage or 22-calibre guns, but it is wrong to arm them with heavy rifles whose balls carry a long distance. Of course any boy should be taught to handle a gun properly."

The season is just beginning when militiamen are practicing rifle shooting at numbers of field ranges, and in a few weeks the State camps will be under way with sham battles and field work of all sorts. Usually some men get hurt during this mimic warfare, and the reporter went from the gun store to ask a Creedmoor marksman, who has won lots of badges for rifle shooting, if there was any way of avoiding such accidents.

"The military rule"—he said—"is always to hold the piece with the muzzle elevated. The men are so close together that if a man were to carry his rifle muzzle down like a hunter he'd be plugging the legs of the man ahead of him full of lead. The safest military pose is the familiar one with the rifle over the shoulder, muzzle slanting up. Of course you know the four shooting positions, standing at 100 yards, sitting or kneeling at 200, lying down at 300 to 600. Then in the long range matches they sometimes lie flat on their backs with the gun resting upon the legs. That's hardly a military posture, though."

"How would you get over a fence with a gun?"

The marksman seemed a little staggered, and did n't return a very satisfactory answer. He seemed to think, however, that it would be a pretty good plan to carry the gun over a fence precisely as if on parade. But one can hardly see how this would always be easy. Imagine a man going over a high barbed wire fence with his rifle in prime military posture. Probably it would be a good plan for militiamen to remember Mr. Squires's rule of not pointing a gun at anybody while struggling with the barbs and uttering appropriate remarks.

It's the disregard of this rule that accounts for the accidents at sham fights. How blank cartridges get mixed up with loaded ones is a mystery, but they do, sometimes. Perhaps the armorer is in too great a hurry and makes a mistake or perhaps one or two of the men happen to have loaded shells in their pockets and put them in by mistake in the excitement which even a sham fight always causes. Then when the opposing forces get at close quarters and there is a tremendous racket in the air and guns are going off at close range and with deadly aim, some one is apt to get hurt. This happens even with the blank cartridges sometimes, the mere blaze and shock of the report making ugly burns at close quarters. Making it the invariable rule to fire in the air would obviate any possibility of accident.

Two ladies once lived as close neighbors. Both had cherished sons, until one day the son of Mrs. A. got hold of a gun on the sly and by careless management blew his brains out. So soon as Mrs. B. learned of the accident she bought her boy a gun and arranged to have him taught to use it properly. The horrified remonstrances of the entire neighborhood brought out the very sensible reply that it was better for a boy to have a gun and learn to use it than to be left to get hold of one surreptitiously without knowing how to keep his skin whole.

Very different sort of mothers must have had two young men who were hunting squirrels one day. When they were ready to go home one of them, holding his gun carelessly by his side, pulled the trigger to discharge it, not wishing to carry it home loaded. Just at that moment he looked up and was frozen with horror to see his companion standing in direct line of fire. But the gun did n't go off. Miraculous as it may seem, the flap of the shooter's open vest had strayed between the hammer and the cap. It was an old-fashioned muzzle loading shotgun, and if it had gone off the other fellow's chest would have looked like a colander.

NEW JERSEY'S POSTAL RECORD.

One of the Eleven States in Which the Service Is Self-Sustaining.

New Jersey is one of eleven States in which the postal service is self-sustaining. The latest figures show that last year the surplus revenue of Jersey's post-offices was $202,268.78. Only four States in the Union beat that record.

The total postal receipts in the State last year reached $1,365,608.53. Of this amount $1,320,738.52 came from the sale of postage stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards. Box rents yielded $644,670.42, while the sales of waste paper amounted to $19,959. The expenses of the service for the year were $1,163,339. These expenses were for the following purposes: Compensation of postmasters, $308,139-74; clerks, rent, fuel and light, $138,998-66; letter-carriers, $250,263.60; railway postal clerks, $37,757.74, and transportation of the mails, $428,175.01.

There are 831 post-offices in New Jersey, an increase of twenty-four over the previous year. Thirty new offices were established and six were discontinued. Sixteen postmasters died during the year and sixty resigned.

The bulk of the business of the service came from the cities and towns. The rural localities yielded very little revenue to Uncle Sam. The seventy-three post-offices in the State of the Presidential class, so called because the postmasters are appointed by the President and receive at least $1,000 a year, contributed nearly all the postal revenues of the State. They furnish $1,-083,040.91 of the total. These postmasters received $140,000 in salaries.

There are 454 post-offices in New Jersey where a free delivery service is in operation. Only thirty-five of these delivery services paid expenses, or, in other words, in only thirty-five places did the local postage exceed the cost of the carrier system. There are 2,928 miles of main lines in the State, operated last year at a cost of $465,868.96. The number of miles served by horse conveyances is 999.

There were 121,162 money orders issued during the year, involving the sum of $1,423,998.73. There were 79,919 postal notes issued, involving the sum of $141,814.72.

I HAVE not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bled almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston "Budget". I procured a bottle, and since the first days' use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston "Budget", formerly with Boston "Journal".

NEW THINGS EVERY DAY.

IT IS VERY DIFFICULT TO KEEP PACE WITH THE FASHIONS.

However, Olive Harper, Who Makes a Study of Them, Never Fails to Keep Up—Something About Walking Gowns and House Dresses.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, May 14.—It is almost a hopeless task to try to keep even with the fashions, for not only does each week, but actually each day present something new, or possibly what escapes your eyes one day strikes the vision as a novelty the next, but there are such pretty things, and so many of them.

The new sultana silk makes up into a splendid dress for the house. It has a moire ground, over which is strewn pretty brocaded flowers in natural colors, which show up beautifully on the neutral tint of the moire. This needs but a scanty trimming of lace or some other very light garniture, being so very rich looking a material.

The large plaids in ginghams and zephyrs are shown in new and more delicate shades and tints, among them the Persan, which is a sort of mixed crushed raspberry and green, which is very delicate. This forms a very soft neutral ground for higher colored stripes, which, crossing, make the plaids. Some of the handsomest of these have elephant gray ground, or furet, which is like a ground mole in soft color, and in beaver. Camellia is a new red, which is just the color of the red camellia, and is very effective. Resada is the color of mignonette, with several different shades all intermingled until it looks like a rusty green; but gray is a color that never palls, and one sees more gray dresses than all the other colors put together.

HOME DRESS.

One of the prettiest home dresses I have seen this season is of hairline zephyr in gray and green, made in the style of the first illustration, and trimmed around the bottom with three rows of white and brown castle braid. The skirt is lapped and lifted on the left side, and held under a rosette. The waist and sleeves are trimmed also by bands of the same trimming, altogether exceedingly neat and tasteful. It would be a pretty style in woolen goods.

Rather more dressy is an afternoon gown of striped challie, with a diagonal opening down the front to a panel of polka dot surah. The color of the challie is very light ecru, with wood brown stripes, and the surah is dark green, with black spots outlined with dull red. The style is princesse.

Mrs. Frank Leslie, who is now on her way abroad, has just had a summer dress made which is, as she says, "simply delicious." It is made of white glace silk as a foundation. Over this is a complete covering of white lace without figure, and laid above this again is black thread lace in a manner which entirely covers it. In the back there is a full drapery of the lace reaching from the waist to the bottom of the demi-traine, and around the bottom are two flounces of black lace over the white. The waist is open V shaped, and has frills of the black lace overlaying the white, and defined by very narrow bands of black velvet ribbon. The sleeves are puffed and held by black velvet ribbon in the gathered parts, and flots of the same hold the slight drapery at the sides. Altogether this beautiful and refined gown does not weigh a pound.

WALKING GOWN AND HOUSE DRESS.

Nothing is more beautiful than lace, and many ladies have black or white lace shawls lying by which could be made into the most exquisite of garments with a little taste and labor and without cutting. Lace shows its beauty best used as Mrs. Leslie has in this dress and in many others. She has a foundation for it, or a background, so to speak, of crepe lisse or other delicate white fabric, and this shows the delicate pattern without giving a heavy look to the lace, which it is apt to have when it lies simply over the dress material. As a finish to necks of her dresses and the wrists she always has a fall of black lace over a fine plaiting of crepe lisse.

I forgot to mention the handsome walking costume pictured herewith, and now say that it is of plum colored cloth with coat basque, the hip pieces, sleeves and vest of which are made of satin brocade in plum, black and gold. The skirt opens in front over a panel of the same. This is a favorite style of garment this season, and a plain basque can have these lower pieces added when it is desired, and a new style made of an old one.

OLIVE HARPER.

ARTIST AND FUNNY MAN.

Charles Lederer, Who Shines with Such Luster in Chicago.

[Special Correspondence.]

CHICAGO, May 14.—It is not often that we find an equally poised combination of literary and artistic ability, but Charles Lederer, of the Chicago Herald, probably comes as near as is possible to this ideal. His pictures, especially when they illustrate his own work, are excruciatingly funny. The power of caricature is probably better developed in Lederer than in almost any other artist in the country.

You can imagine, as you look at his sketches, the ridiculous light that a practical joke might place you in, and it is easy to understand how the spectators to your misery might never get over the impression, so that every time they saw you afterward they would smile, no matter how dignified you may be, and this is precisely what Lederer's pictures do for their victim. They are irresistible. Perhaps in the way of pure humorous work his best effects have been in the baseball field. His illustrations of a baseball account would unscrew a coffin.

CHARLES LEDERER.

Lederer was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1856, and moved to Brooklyn early in life. At fourteen he was apprenticed to a wood engraver, and at the end of a year took a studio room with another artist, and began his artistic career by drawing comic valentines. He did a great deal of work for many papers during the next few years, but finally drifted into the publishing business. Then, in 1877, he went to Chicago, published an illustrated weekly that lived six months, illustrated stories, etc., until he began to do work for all the papers in turn, finally going on The Herald. Walter Wellman, speaking of the way Lederer first came on the paper, says:

"It was made my duty by the managing editor to 'look after the pictures.' The duty was not a pleasant one. I knew no more about the picture business than I did about hypnotism. Good artists were scarce, engraving methods were crude. After floundering about a few months I discovered a little black haired, bright eyed fellow who, in a top story den, was making sketches for show pictures and some weekly papers.

"'Can you make pictures for a daily newspaper?' I asked.

"'Well, I should smile,' replied the little man. And Lederer has been making Chicago smile ever since."

He is said to receive a larger salary than any other artist west of New York.

TOM MASSON.

Beadle and Natural Gas.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 12.—When I detrained at Greensburg the other night the air was crimping cold for May, and the room to which I was taken (time 11 p. m.) was about as inviting as a cave in Canada. To my complaint my colored guide rejoined:

"I'll get the key and let the fire off!"

Key! Let the fire off! What sort of slang was this? He soon produced a sort of wrench, turned a little bolt in the hearth, and applied a lighted match to what seemed like a pile of whitewashed brickbats in the grate; there was a flash that made me jump back, and then as he turned back the bolt the whole grate glowed and roared gently with a white blaze.

It was my first experience with natural gas as common fuel, and how very, very nice it was. Simply delicious. But in a few minutes I grew very restless. There was something lacking. I could not poke the fire. There was neither poker nor shovel, neither coal nor ashes, and the pan below the grate was as clean as a dining room plate. The pile of white brickbats looked horribly unnatural for a fire—they remained always the same size, and the gentle roar or swish of the blaze was aggravatingly monotonous. I could not read, I could not gaze into the fire and think of the joys of childhood, the romance of early manhood. There was no speculation in the coals, and no coals to speculate in. I got so nervous that I wanted to kick the whole contrivance into bits, and in self defense I turned it off and went to bed.

Suppose the brain-weary city man, who once had a happy childhood in the country, and had longed for years to ramble over the old place again, should return there and find that everything was a sham, that the seeming stumps should prove to be cast iron imitations, the alleged trees manufactured articles, and the lovely landscape across the old river nothing but a painted canvas—all remaining exactly the same at all hours. What he might feel would be much like what many old ruralists do feel in getting used to those plaguey unnatural gas fires. In the first place, the grayish white blocks they fill the grate with are, of all possible things, the most unlike the natural coal or wood, and worse even than that is the dead, depressing monotony of the thing. There is no inspiration in such a fire—no ashes on the coals which form vivid pictures to the lively imagination. Let this thing become general, and one delightful branch of literature is done for. No more "Backlog Studies," no more "Reveries of a Bachelor," no more cloud capped towers and gorgeous pinnacles all in red glow, dark border and feathery ash.

Oh, for one night of boyhood's free fancies by the old wood fire in the old broad fireplace, when Little Red Ridinghood and our favorite schoolma'am, red cheeked girls, fat boys and giants came and went in the ever changing coals, and inferno and fairyland changed places more quickly than in the spectacular drama! One great pleasure, however, is left us. In these lovely May days one can still lie on the grass and gaze at the fleecy clouds, and if he have any of the childish imagination left, see them form their wondrous transformation scenes with the deep blue for a background.

J. H. BEADLE.

THE WHISTLING BOY.

He Gets a Good Word from a Man Who Has Faith in His Future.

If ever in the course of human events heaven blesses me with an heir of the small boy class, says a writer in the Louisville Post, I shall teach him to whistle early in his young career and encourage him to warble merrily away throughout the sunshine and the shade of youth and age. I never see a youngster with his hands shoved down in his pants pockets, his head thrown back, his cheeks swelled out like a pair of bellows and his puckered lips piping a jolly tune that I don't set that boy down as an innocent-hearted lad who wouldn't do anything more harmful than rob a watermelon patch or such. He wouldn't tell a malicious lie or do a cowardly trick.

These are the works of a sly youngster with the averted eye and the soft tread, who is afraid to whistle lest he make a noise and attract attention. The whistling boy never makes the footpad or the cut throat, though he may never be president. I can't help having my suspicions about a man who never learned to whistle in his youth. In nine cases out of ten he has a falsetto voice and a bad digestion, and his ideas on many points of morality are questionable.

YOUR MOST DANGEROUS FOE.

What Causes Sleeplessness and How to Prevent It.

Are you sleepless? Do you pass restless, wakeful nights? Do you toss from side to side, with weary, heavy eyes and brain which teems with thoughts in restless activity—until your nerv a palpitate and throb like the strings of a tensely strung instrument swept by the fingers of a mad man?

Then be warned in time.

Madness stares you in the face.

Sleeplessness is simply a rapid road to the insane asylum.

You, and thousands like you, rush blindly on to the verge of insanity, softening of the brain, shattered nerves, paralysis, idiocy, etc., without knowing or realizing the fearful consequences.

Men allow care, anxiety, or business troubles to drive sleep from their eyelids, while woman, with unstrung nerves and excitable temperaments, pass hours upon hours each night in sleepless, restless misery.

No greater calamity can befall you than to become sleepless. Sleep is more necessary than food, and you must have it or face deadly consequences.

What wonder that there are so many shattered nerves, tired brains and debilitated bodies, when we consider the thousands upon thousands who pass restless or disturbed nights and rise mornings feeling indescribably miserable, dragged out, scarcely able to face the day's work! What wonder so many rise mornings from their beds, where they have lain with weary lids and sleepless eyes, tossing from side to side, or simply catching short, unrefreshing naps filled with dreams, feeling heavy-headed, irritable, with pale faces, haggard looks, dull and heavy-rimged eyes, and go about their daily employment with tired limbs, exhausted energies, nerveless and ambitionless!

As You Value Your Life and Health Do Not Use Opiates.

It is maddest folly to fly to the use of opium, morphine or chloral. They simply stupefy and paralyze the brain, and do NOT produce that natural and refreshing sleep which the tired and exhausted brain and nerves must have in order to repair the waste of tissue.

There is one sure way to cure sleeplessness, and that is by the use of DR. GREENE'S NERVURA, the great nerve and brain invigorator. This wonderful remedy is Nature's own sleep producer, and is perfectly harmless, being made from pure vegetable medicines fresh from the lap of Nature. It may be given to infants, children, or the most delicate invalid without fear. It soothes, calms and quiets the weakened, irritable and overwrought nerves, producing perfect repose and refreshing, natural sleep; at the same time it builds up and tones up the shattered nerves and gives renewed life, strength, vitality and vigor to the system. Use it, you who are sleepless.

Be Convinced of Its Wonderful Power.

I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura as being a good remedy for sleeplessness. Having been troubled in this way for three years, and objecting seriously to opiates, I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura with great benefit. I have also recommended the Nervura to many of my friends, who have been much benefited by its use.

MRS. G. H. HILL,
11 Union St., Concord, N. H.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth St., New York, its discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system renders a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled.

N. B. Send for symptom blank to fill out, or write Dr. Greene about your case, and a carefully considered letter, fully explaining your disease and giving you a perfect understanding of all its symptoms will be returned, free of charge.

PLAYED "STRIPPERS" ON HIM.

A Card Sharper Suffers for Trying an Old Trick on a New York Drummer.

"'No, siree,' exclaimed my friend "Buck," who is a travelling salesman for a large Broadway importing house, says a writer in the New York Herald, "you don't often catch us drummers asleep. We're wide-awake to the tricks of most all trades, I can tell you.

"The last time a sharper tried to down me was at Cleveland, O., a few weeks ago. He tried to work the 'stripper' racket on me. I was seated in my room early one evening, when a little terrier dog ran in through the open door and began sniffing about. Pretty soon a well-dressed young fellow appeared at the door, and, apologizing for the intrusion, asked if I had seen a stray dog anywhere around.

"'Ah! there you are,' said he, espying the canine, 'always running away from me into other people's rooms,' he explained. As might be expected, one word led to another, and very soon we were engaged in a general conversation. The talk drifted to cards and then the stranger produced a pack. He had just learned a new trick which he would show me.

"'Now take a card and look at it,' said he. I did as directed, selecting the ace of clubs. 'Now put it back,' he said, handing me the pack. He then requested me to shuffle the cards well, which I did. He then took the pack.

"'There is your card,' he said at once, producing the ace of clubs. 'Very good,' said I, 'but I don't think you could do it again.' I then called his attention to a picture in the room while I hurriedly examined the pack. 'No,' said I, 'I don't think you could do it again; not for twenty dollars.'

"I'll see you,' said he, producing the money. 'All right,' said I, and the bet was made. I then selected a card—the ace of spades. He handed me the pack, requesting me to replace the card and shuffle them as much as I pleased.

"Now, I can handle the pasteboards myself; while I was shuffling I just fixed the cards on the sharper so that he couldn't tell one card from another. 'There,' said I, handing him the pack, 'where's my card?'

"He took the pack with a smile of confidence and began to run his fingers over the edges. Then he began to look a trifle nervous. 'Come,' said I, 'produce the card or I take your money.'

"Well, sir, after he had fumbled over the pack for a few minutes I just pocketed his twenty dollars. 'Now, see here,' I said to him, 'you've been trying to play 'strippers' on me, haven't you?'

"He never said a word for about two minutes. He then rose to leave the room. 'Say,' said he as he was about to leave, 'you're a New York drummer for another twenty.' 'I'm not making any more bets,' said I. 'I know it,' he remarked as he left the room.

"'Strippers?' Why, that's a pack of cards made slightly narrower on one end than the other. An almost imperceptible difference, yet enough to be distinguished by the touch. When you select a card the sharper hands you the pack so that you replace it upside down, the broad end among the narrow ones—see? He can then 'snake' it out without any trouble. It's a neat trick and hard to detect unless you have been initiated.

"Of course I knew what he was up to when he handed me the pack. I put the card in as he wanted it, and then while I was shuffling I quietly turned it around so that the ends were all alike.

"Did it cost me anything to learn that trick? Well—but I'm not giving myself away. I got twenty dollars out of it back, at any rate."

Emperor William's Body Guard.

The personal body guard of the emperor of Germany, members of which accompany him on his rides and excursions, consists of fifteen stalwart young foresters, all of whom have been trained under officials in the royal forests. After serving their three years in the army they are "picked" by a court marshal and personally presented to the emperor, who selects those that seem fittest to be his personal attendants. The rule is that after a term of service from nine to twelve years they are allowed to retire, when a position as forester is given them in the royal forests. The yoke of service rests lightly on the body guards, for they are on duty only every fifth day, and for this they receive a payment of twelve pounds and ten shillings, a truly magnificent salary as compared with the wages of some of the officials and domestics at the imperial palace.

CAPT. JAMES CARROLL, the new congressional delegate from Alaska, was born in Illinois and was a sailor on the lakes in his youth, but for the last eleven years commanded steamers running from Columbia river to Sitka. He represents a constituency of about eight thousand Alaskans.

PASTOR KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

Recommended as the Best.

"LE MARS, PLYMOUTH, CO., IA., May, 1889.

I suffered from temporary sleeplessness from over work for two years, for which I used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and can recommend same as the best medicine for nervous troubles.

F. BORNHORST.

Lost Health Restored.

Starkey, Yates Co., N. Y., June, 1890.

I was suffer from general debility fifteen months, had eight doctors treat me, took all sorts of medicine, slept hardly more than one hour, nights, sweat a good deal, got so weak that it seemed the last call, my heart troubled me so that I couldn't get up for walk. After I took the second bottle of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic my appetite returned, slept nearly all night, the sweats and heart trouble disappeared, and now am happy to say that I can work again and enjoy good health.

MRS. P. MALEY.

Our pamphlet for sufferers of nervous diseases will be sent free to any address, and poor patients can also obtain this medicine free of charge from us.

This remedy has been prepared by the Reverend Pastor Koenig, of Fort Wayne, Ind., for the past ten years, and is now prepared under his direction by the

DYNAMITE DISASTER

Terrible Explosion on the New York Central Road.

18 MEN KILLED—27 INJURED.

The Mangled Remains of the Victims Scattered Along the Roadbed.

Many of the Killed and Injured Were Italians—The Railroad Track Burrowed for Yards—The Village of Tarrytown Shaken as by an Earthquake—Horrible Scenes Where the Explosion Occurred.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 20.—At 11 a. m. a work train on the Hudson River Railroad was blown to atoms, one mile and a half below Tarrytown, by an explosion of dynamite in transportation for blasting purposes in track construction. There were probably 33 men, including Italian laborers and train men, on board. Of these 18 were instantly killed and 15 terribly torn and wounded. Many of the dead were blown into the river.

The train was in charge of Conductor Connors and the gang of men under Jerome Diaston as boss. The dynamite was all stored on the first of the four flat cars composing the train. It consisted of 24 cases, and each case contained 50 pounds, making a grand total of 1,200 pounds of the terrible explosive.

The Explosion Was Terrific.

The force of the explosion was terrific. The ground trembled as though from an earthquake, the walls of several Tarrytown houses were shaken and cracked, and in the Tarrytown streets the window glass fell in showers to the sidewalk. In Tarrytown scores of clocks stopped, and it is in this way that almost the exact hour of the explosion, 11:20, is fixed. A spark from a passing engine is believed to have caused the explosion.

An Awful Sight.

A terrible sight presented itself to those who hurried to the scene of the awful accident. The ground as far as could be seen was covered with debris. The track was torn up for a space of 600 feet, and the rails were bent into all kinds of shapes. Dead faces and mutilated bodies looked up at one from all directions. The engine was blown out of all semblance of an engine, and the tender was blown half way into the river.

Bringing in the Victims.

Then began the awful work of bringing in the dead and wounded. Men were found dead a hundred yards away from the track, while others were found in the excavations made by the deadly explosive. The wounded were suffering from most horrible mutilations, in many instances arms and legs being torn off, heads bruised and bodies bleeding. The scene reminded old soldiers of scenes after a bloody battle during the civil war. The dead and injured were conveyed to the Tarrytown depot, where the injuries of the wounded were looked after by a score of physicians, who had been hurriedly summoned from all directions. The injured were afterwards taken to different hospitals.

Removing the Dead.

The dead were removed to Vanderbilt's morgue in Tarrytown. Ten of those killed were picked up along the track and five were taken from the river. Three of the injured removed to the depot died shortly after reaching there. It is believed that there are still two more bodies in the river, and this would bring the total number of killed up to 20. From later reports received from the scene of the accident, it would seem that instead of 33 men being on board the ill-fated train, the number was nearer 50.

The following is a partial list of the dead and wounded, whose dead or mangled bodies have been recovered. The names of the Italians cannot be ascertained, as the were only known by numbers:

The Killed.

John McCarthy, timekeeper, of North Tarrytown; Frank Morrissey, who had charge of the dynamite, of Peekskill; Brakeman John Smith; fifteen Italians, names unknown.

The Injured.

George Herrick, engineer, severely bruised.

Leo Pau, fireman, of Stattsburg, N. Y., burned and bruised.

Conductor Connors, of East Albany, slight wounds on the head.

Ed. Finnegan, laborer, bruised from head to foot.

John Fisher, brakeman of Croton, seriously injured in head and body.

Mike McCormack, foreman of the gang, seriously hurt.

Tom Finnegan, blacksmith's helper, probably fatally burned.

The others injured were Italians whose names could not be learned, but according to the best information obtainable there were 21 in all.

A Long Cabinet Meeting.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The first Cabinet meeting since the President's return was held at noon. All the members were present except Secretaries Blaine and Noble. At 12:30 o'clock the library doors were closed for secret consultation. The Itata affair and the Behring Sea matter are sufficient to account for this protracted consideration of public affairs.

Miss Hattie Blaine Engaged.

CHICAGO, May 20.—It is rumored here that Miss Hattie Blaine, the youngest daughter of the Secretary of State, is engaged to Truxton Beale, of California, the recently appointed Minister to Persia. Mr. Beale is a son of Gen. Beale, Minister to Austria under Gen. Grant. He is about 32 years old and a lawyer.

Secretary Blaine's Condition.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Secretary Blaine arose early, ate a hearty breakfast, and looked through the morning papers. His only trouble is the gout, which prevents him getting on his shoe, otherwise he would be out and about.

FAILURE IN THE SHOE TRADE

A Big Manufacturing Firm and its President Make Assignments.

BOSTON, May 20.—The Davis Shoe Company and its president, Joseph Davis have each made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. The company does a large business and has a paid in capital of $250,000.

LYNN, Mass., May 20.—The news of the assignment of the Davis Shoe Company, and Hon. Joseph Davis of Lynn, caused a sensation here. The company had a large factory in operation in this city and another in Kennebunk, Me. It also has the contract for the contract labor in the Virginia State Prison at Richmond, where shoes are manufactured.

Mr. Davis, who has been a State executive councillor, president of the Lincoln National Bank of Boston, and is a director in the First National Bank of this city, was seen at his home, and said that the trouble which culminated in the assignment began as far back as 1885. At that time by the failure of B. H. Corey & Co., note brokers, of Boston, he lost $225,000. During the settlement of affairs of that firm he found that he had been carrying men who were friends of his and needed help, and he stood by them and put most of them on their feet.

Last winter, when the panic came, he had to advance more money, and finally the load became too heavy and the assignment is the result. He said several failures would probably result from the assignment, parties whom he had been helping financially. One firm in Lynn will be obliged to assign. Mr. Davis is confident that with a little indulgence by his creditors he can pay them in full.

ANOTHER COKE RIOT.

Drunken Hungarians Attack Italians and One Man is Fatally Shot.

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 20.—A riot occurred at Whitney's Coke Works during the night. A crowd of drunken Hungarian strikers attacked the Italians who were at work, assaulting them with clubs and stones.

The Italians opened fire on their assailants and one Hungarian was shot in the shoulder, tearing his arm almost from the body. He will probably die.

Several others of the mob were badly injured.

Three of them were placed under arrest.

A Victim of Malpractice.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mamie Raymond, a beautiful young woman 20 years old, who has been an actress and is known as Mabel Jackson, has been taken to the New York Hospital suffering from the effects of a criminal operation. She is said to be the daughter of ex-Marshal Raymond of Louisville, Ky., and ran away from home about a year ago and went on the road with a theatrical company.

Meeting of the Slater Fund Trustees.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The annual meeting of the educational committee of the John F. Slater Fund is being held to-day. There are present ex-President R. B. Hayes, President Gilman, of Johns Hopkins University; Gov. Colquitt, of Georgia; Mr. Broadus, of Louisville; Dr. J. L. M. Curry, of Richmond, and Morris K. Jessup, of New York.

Bunnell & Scranton Will Assign.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20.—Charles W. Scranton of the firm of Bunnell & Scranton, the senior member of which died a few days ago, says that the concern will make an assignment this afternoon. It was said by financial men that the liabilities of the firm would be about $300,000, and assets about half that amount.

Red Men in Council.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 20.—Over 300 delegates are present at the meeting of the State Council of the Independent Order of Red Men. The Governor and mayor delivered addresses of welcome. The reports show the order to be in a flourishing condition. The membership this year is 28,608, an increase of 2,373.

No Convention in Delaware.

WILMINGTON, May 20.—Indications point to the defeat of the question of calling a constitutional convention by from 300 to 500 votes. The question was defeated owing to the stay at home vote in the rural districts. Wilmington polled nearly one-half of the entire vote cast in the State.

The Coke Strike to Go On.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 20.—The Knights of Labor coke strikers held a convention here and after taking a secret ballot it was decided to continue the strike. All the efforts possible will be put forth to have the independent operators stop their works.

On Trial for Forgery.

BOSTON, May 20.—Clark W. Hatch, of the firm of Hatch & Woodford, agents of the Travelers' Insurance Company, of Hartford, is on trial charged with forging a certificate of the death of Henry C. Smith, of this city, whose life was insured in the Travelers for $3,000.

Four Italians Suffocated.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 20.—Eleven Italians were buried by the caving in of a sewer at Elmwood, near here. Four of them were suffocated.

PEFFER IS CHAIRMAN

The Kansas Senator Presiding at Cincinnati.

DONNELLY AND WEAVER CLASH.

A Scheme to Spring the Third Party Idea Voted Down.

The Committee on Resolutions May Not Agree to a Unanimous Report—Compers and Powderly Non-Committal About the New Movement—The Ohio Convention Advocate Independent Political Action.

CINCINNATI, May 20.—The second day's session of the National Union Conference met this morning at 10 o'clock.

The committee on permanent organization reported Senator Peffer president of the convention.

All the other applicants for the honor were made vice-chairmen. They are all prominent men—Hugh Kavanaugh, a leading member of the Knights of Labor; J. A. Brooks, president of the National Farmers' Alliance, and Gideon Delamater of Colorado, an old-time Greenbacker.

It is doubtful if the committee on resolutions will be able to agree to a unanimous report. If not the whole fight will be transferred to the floor of the convention.

Donnelly's Sly Game Spoiled.

Ignatius Donnelly, the sage of Minnesota, created considerable of a diversion by attempting to take a snap vote on the third party question in moving the appointment of a national committee. Amid applause from about two-thirds of the benches he said that he supposed there was no doubt that all were agreed that they were there to form a third party, and certainly not there to act as an appendage to either of the old parties. Donnelly had scarcely gotten through when his proposition was antagonized by Gen. Weaver of Iowa, who heatedly denounced it as an improper and unfair attempt to commit the convention on the sly. He wanted the subject discussed freely, when the proper time came. Donnelly protested that he had no intentions of the kind, but his motion was squelched on a technical point, and the anti-new party vigorously applauded.

The Ohio contingent in the convention has taken an unexpectedly unanimous position in favor of immediate third party action. At a meeting of the State delegation to-day it was voted, not only to advocate independent political action, but to call at once a State convention to nominate a full State ticket.

The third party people feel very much encouraged by the presence of President Gompers, of the Federation of Labor, and Powderly, of the Knights of Labor. Both men are non-committal on the subject of the new party movement, Powderly advising postponement of action. They are here to study the situation and the strength of the various elements represented.

Plenty of Reform Newspapers.

CINCINNATI, O., May 20.—The members of the Alliance Reform Press Association, representing over 100 labor papers in different parts of the country, held another meeting and decided to hereafter issue newspapers of a uniform size and to provide for the publication of specially prepared matter in English, German and Norwegian, for general distribution in the agricultural and labor centers. Cartoons attacking the old political parties will receive special attention.

WON ON A FOUL.

Billy Myer Had Andy Bowen Whipped but Lost the Fight.

NEW ORLEANS, May 20.—Three thousand persons paid $3 each to witness the great lightweight fight between Andy Bowen, of New Orleans, and Billy Myer, of Streator, Ill., which occurred in the gymnasium of the Athletic Club last night. The club hung up a purse of $3,000. The agreement called for the men to weigh at the ringside not more than 134 pounds. Just previous to the fight the betting was $100 to $80 on Myer.

Both men appeared in fine fettle when they entered the ring. Bowen was seconded by Bob Farrel and Bob Kelly, while Link Pope and Alf Kennedy looked after the interests of Myer. Hon. Alexander Brewster was appointed referee by the managers of the club, and this choice met with the general approval of the audience.

The fight was a savage one throughout. In the 23d round Myer committed what the referee called a deliberate foul, and the fight was awarded to Bowen.

The decision is very unsatisfactory to Myer's friends, and the executive committee of the club are now in session trying to come to some equitable agreement about the $3,000 purse. It is thought the money will be evenly divided.

Dr. Graves Will Have Revenge.

DENVER, Col., May 20.—Dr. Thatcher Graves was not arraigned to plead, contrary to expectations. Judge Furman, his counsel, asserts that when his client is tried he will drag from the Barnaby closet family skeletons one by one. He promises evidence that will discount the famous Millington case.

THE HEAVYWEIGHT MILL

Jackson and Corbett in Fine Condition for To-morrow Night's Battle.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The fight between Jim Corbett and Peter Jackson, which will take place at the California Athletic Club's gymnasium to-morrow evening, is creating a wonderful degree of interest here and also abroad, as a number of well known sporting men from various parts of the country are arriving to witness the battle.

Every preparation has been made for the fight, and both men are pronounced in first-class condition. Jackson's present weight is given as 197 pounds and Corbett's as 187, and the men will doubtless strip on the night of the battle close to these figures.

There has been but little betting on the result as yet, but what there was has been in favor of Jackson.

Lawyers Rebuked by a Judge.

KINGSTON, N. Y., May 20.—The county court here came to a sudden and unexpected adjournment. As the lawyers were not prepared with cases and desired postponements until later in the week Judge Clearwater announced that he did not propose to dilly-dally and keep farmers as jurors and witnesses at this their busy season in order to satisfy the legal fraternity, and discharging the jurors, adjourned the court for arguments next Monday.

Three Thousand Dunkards Meet.

EPHRATA, Pa., May 20.—In Mohler's meeting house near here the Dunkards are now celebrating their "love feasts" Three thousand people are present. The usual service of greeting each other, washing feet, etc., will be followed by the ceremony of examination of conscience. The sexes are divided, the women occupying one part of the meeting house and the men the other.

A Big Mortgage Filed.

BEATRICE, Neb., May 20.—A mortgage for $31,000,000 has just been filed in this county, given by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company to the United States Trust of New York. It runs for a term of fifty years, and is being filed at the county seat of every county through which the road runs. There are about 15,000 words in the document.

The Attorney-General to Decide.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Secretary Foster will, it is said, refer to to the Attorney-General for an opinion on the question whether he can issue silver certificates against the $2,545,000 silver seignorage.

Mrs. Duncan Much Better.

LONDON, May 20.—Mrs. Duncan, who was almost murdered by her husband in Wales, is much better.

DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE

Scores of Homes Destroyed in a Pennsylvania Town.

MINERS FIGHTING THE FLAMES.

Several Train Loads of Women and Children Sent Away.

Trainmen Obliged to Pass Through Areas of Fire—Flames Leaping from Tree to Tree—Many Men Badly Burned—Daring Rescue of a Mother and Her New-Born Babe—People Suffering for Food.

FRUGALITY, Pa., May 20.—This place is surrounded by fire. A fire engine from Altoona has been working here ever since yesterday evening, and this morning the Hollidaysburg and Johnstown departments were stationed east of the town, where 50 houses were in great danger.

Several train loads of women and children have been sent away from the place, and others are anxiously awaiting their turn to leave.

This morning the burning of outstanding houses, coal tipples and coal works are reported. More than 600 men have been out all night fighting back the fire.

Frugality is 18 miles from Cresson. At Asheville, eight miles south, the fire is bearing down on the town. A back fire will be started, and the citizens will make a determined fight for their homes.

People who have left this place, the trainmen report, are obliged to pass through areas of flame so hot as to scorch the paint off the cars.

People are beginning to suffer for the necessaries of life.

The flames are leaping from tree to tree, some of which are fully 50 feet high, and appear like mammoth torches. Every now and then a tree crashes to the ground, causing the men to run for their lives, but they are fighting for their homes, and they soon return.

One house contained a woman in childbirth. For hours the flames danced around the building, and it was twice on fire. Amid all the confusion the child was born, and the babe and its mother were rescued just in time to save their lives. Many of the men received serious burns.

BELGRADE IN A FERMENT.

Popular Feeling Very High Over the Expulsion of Queen Natalie.

BELGRADE, May 20.—The city is in a ferment over the expulsion of Queen Natalie. Popular feeling is with the Queen, but the Regency believe that they can depend on the army, whose leaders are friendly to ex-King Milan, and therefore opposed to his divorced wife.

The Queen's friends say that the gendarmes forced their way into Natalie's bed room and summoned her to arise, as she must instantly leave Servian territory. On leaving the palace to step into a waiting carriage, Queen Natalie, who was surrounded by gendarmes with loaded muskets, urgently appealed to the citizens and students, who menacingly pressed about her escort, to no longer resist the officers. It was, she said, her first desire to avert the spilling of the blood of the people.

The escort then closed in about the carriage which the Queen entered, and it was rapidly driven to the railway station where a train was awaiting the arrival of the gendarmes with their royal prisoner. The Queen was at once placed on board and the train immediately started for the Hungarian frontier.

It is said that the ex-Queen was taken to the palace of Sinai, at Bucharest, the capital of Roumania, which gives rise to the rumor that important political events may follow her expulsion from Servia.

Crushed to Death by a Horse.

RONDOUT, N. Y., May 20.—Patrick Cronin, a stonemason, was found dead alongside the stream of water known as Greenkills, near this place, early in the morning. While on his way home in a buggy the horse backed down a steep embankment, falling on Cronin and crushing him to death. When discovered the animal was alive on top of the unfortunate man, but was unable to move as it was tangled up in the harness.

A New York Man's Donation.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 20.—A donation of $200,000 has been made by William M. Rice of New York for the erection of an institute to be known as the Wm. M. Rice Institute. It is to be a copy of the Cooper Institute of New York, and will be devoted to the advancement of science, literature and art. Mr. Rice was formerly a resident of this city.

Eva Hamilton Again.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Eva Mann, or Hamilton, the wife or widow of Robert Ray Hamilton will, it is said, go on the stage in the fall. A play called "The Hammertons" has been prepared for her, in which the names of all the actors are only slightly altered from the real names of the actors in the Hamilton-Mann episode.

Peculiar Way to Commit Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mrs. Mary Jordan, aged 37, of 424 West 53d street, attempted suicide last night in a peculiar manner. She used a small bellows employed in sprinkling insect powder and blew paris green down her throat. She was taken to a hospital and the doctors say she will die. Despondency was the cause of the rash act.

New York's Strikes and Boycott.

NEW YORK, May 20.—From information gleaned around the headquarters of the striking housesmiths and framers and the locked-out lumber men, the situation of affairs is but little changed. The lumber men say the bosses are at cross purposes, and that their combination will be broken before to-night. Wagons loaded with building materials have been seen on the streets, and the union men half their appearance as evidence of their be-

TORTURED BY HER FRIEND.

Alleged Shameful Treatment of Mrs. Barnaby by Mrs. Worrell in Prison.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 20.—It is learned that Mrs. Josephine Barnaby, the wealthy Rhode Island widow, who died of arsenical poisoning in Denver, April 18, was in this city from March 29 to April 6, under the treatment of Mrs. Dr. Martin for paralysis.

A woman who gave the name of Worrell, accompanied Mrs. Barnaby on her visits to Dr. Martin's office and the latter says she was very rough in her treatment of Mrs. Barnaby.

Dr. Martin advised Mrs. Barnaby to get a new companion, and she replied that she wished she could get away from the Worrell woman, but that she was afraid of her.

While in Dr. Martin's office the woman made a scene, and the doctor told her that she acted as if she was trying to kill Mrs. Barnaby and that it was evident that she did not wish her to get well.

The woman replied that it was none of the doctor's business, and she would see that Mrs. Barnaby would not trouble her again.

Dr. Martin said that was the last she saw of the unfortunate woman.

DEPUTIES ATTACKED.

Two of Them Severely Handled by Enraged Coke Strikers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 20.—A mob of strikers kept the police busy all the afternoon. First they chased a negro "blackleg" named St. Clair to lynch him. The fellow was rescued by Officer Gay. Then they set after Ike Crossland, another "blackleg" coker, to save whose neck and hide it required the united efforts of the borough policemen and a posse of citizens. Finding that Crossland had been taken away through the back yard of the Scottdale House, the mob made a wild break for two deputy sheriffs who have been doing duty at the Summit Works.

These fellows they severely pounded until the fire department scattered the crowd by turning the hose on them. As the blood-stained sheriffs were being carried away by policemen, the mob came down on them again and gave them another clubbing. Both men are badly used up. During the riot one of them shot a striker named John Ghost, severely wounding him.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Mothers' meeting at Reform Hall, to-morrow afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock.

—There will be a pleasing entertainment at Reform Hall, to-morrow evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society. The Reform Club and their friends are cordially invited.

—Staff Captain Walsh, a reformed minstrel, will sing Salvation Army songs, with banjo accompaniment, at the Army meetings at Reform Hall Saturday and Sunday.

—The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church will meet to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the lecture room of the church. A full attendance is requested.

—Edsall claims that he is now selling all kinds of carpets at lower prices than New York houses sell them, and he makes them free of charge. Why not buy in Plainfield, and encourage home enterprise?

—Dr. Charles Thiers has engaged Dr. Yorx, the most expert practitioner of Dr. Estebrook's method of painless dentistry in the country, to treat patients at his parlors, 48 Somerset street, who desire the extraction of their teeth absolutely without pain.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McCarthy, who lost their two little ones by scarlet fever under the sad circumstances related in these columns last week, desire publicly to express their sincere thanks to the many kind people who so greatly helped them during their troubles.

—Although having promised, at the request of the people of Easton, to be in that city this week, Mrs. Dr. Edwards has been compelled by the demands of her patrons in this city to remain here until next Wednesday. She will not return to Plainfield again for business; "so now"—she says—"is positively your last chance to consult this wonderful clairvoyant."

—Those in search of a handsome flower for decorative purposes can find a profusion on Fourth street, beyond Clinton avenue, near what is known as Guinea Egg pond. Here acres are covered with an abundance of the blossoms of the wild lupine, a leguminous plant of the genus Lupinus [L. perenne], and of the pulse family [order Leguminosae], whose tops end in terminal racemes of a purplish blue, very showy, flower. The name of the plant is derived from lupus, a wolf, because of the eagerness with which it penetrates the soil, and because of the rapacity with which it destroys the earth's fertility.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Ruttmann of Brooklyn is visiting Mrs. Lissignolo of East Front street.

The Rev. H. F. Hertel, of the Warren Congregational church, has received a call to a church in Vermont. He preaches his farewell sermon next Sunday evening.

J. Fred MacDonald, Nelson Runyon, and William H. Shotwell, are rapidly selling off the stocks, bonds and other marketable collateral of the Latimer estate, of which they are executors, with the hope of making a final settlement with the heirs by July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Opdyke are at home at the residence of their father, Charles W. Opdyke, 184 Broadway, this city. Young Mr. Opdyke has been absent for some years in the "Far West" where he occupied the position of Chief Clerk in the office of the General Manager of the Union Pacific Railroad.

At the annual meeting of the Megantic Fish and Game Club, held in Portland, Me., recently, W. K. McClure of this city was unanimously elected one of the board of directors. The club is composed of some of the wealthiest sportsmen in the country. Ex-Senator Livingston and Messrs. Brower and Wadsworth, of this city, are members.

Among the bridemaids chosen to attend Miss Elinor Shepard upon the occasion of her marriage to Mr. Jack Miller, in Dr. Ketcham's church, on June 1, are Miss Sadie Hayes and Miss Kitty Stewart. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. John C. Bliss, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue church. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their future home in England.

F. A. Dunham, C. E., of this city, has just returned from Michigan, where he has been engaged for the very important and lucrative undertaking of constructing an atlas of Lapeer county. Andrew Gavett, Mr. Dunham's competent assistant, has been left in charge of the important preliminary steps of the work, and he, in turn, will leave the matter, after it is fairly started, in the hands of Frank J. Hubbard, also of Plainfield. On his way home Mr. Dunham secured the contract for paving the streets of Dunkirk, N. Y., with fire brick.

Dr. Charles Bullman, of Third place, returned the other day from another of what he calls his "little trips". It wasn't South America that he "took a run to" this time. He chartered a steamer at San Francisco, sailed for the Sandwich Islands, and was back in Plainfield again in a week or so, after traveling over thirteen thousand miles, without a freckle on his face. Despite his being such a busy man, however, he finds time for literary work. Upon returning from a visit to Ecuador, recently, he wrote a book on "78 Kinds of Snakes I've Met".

NINETEEN YEARS OF FAITHFUL WORK.

Gratifying Record of Progress in the Cause of Abstinence and Benevolence.

The anniversary commemorating the nineteenth birthday of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society was celebrated last evening at the T. A. B. Association Hall. All the members and their families were present, making a good-sized audience. The exercises were begun at nine o'clock. On the stage were seated the officers of the society, all of the ex-presidents that are still members, the Rev. P. E. Smyth, chaplain, and the Rev. J. P. McKernan of North Plainfield.

At the opening of the meeting President John Welsh remarked that as this was the first meeting of its kind in the history of the society, a brief review of the work had been prepared, which he read as follows:

The St. Mary's Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society of Plainfield, N. J., was organized May 19, 1872. It is founded on a thoroughly Catholic basis. Its object is first and chiefly the spread of total abstinence principles, and secondly the distribution of relief to the sick, and burial of deceased members. Since its organization until the present time the following have been its presiding officers: Peter Flynn, Sr., Jas. Reid, Peter Flynn, Sr., John Harding, John W. Moynihan, Peter Galbert, P. Flynn, Jr., Peter Galbert, A. E. Kenney, John O'Rourke, John Harding, P. Kiely, M. B. Flynn, John Welsh.

Our officers have always been patient and faithful in the performance of their duties. The pastor of St. Mary's church has always been chaplain of the society, and has always administered the pledge.

We deem it our duty to give a brief review of the work and the story of the inception of this society.

Observing the necessity of promoting the work of temperance among his people, and anticipating the growth of this parish, the Rev. J. P. Morris, then pastor of St. Mary's church, determined to organize a society having for its object the above-named principles. After consultation with some of his parishioners it was decided to have a lecture on total abstinence in which the principles would be laid down and the way for organization opened. Consequently the Rev. P. Cody, now of St. James church, Newark, N. J., was invited to deliver a lecture, which he did, the evening of May 19, 1872, nineteen years ago. The reverend father gave a very impressive lecture, and urged on his hearers the benefits to be obtained by enrolling themselves in the society about to be established and to take the pledge of total abstinence for the remainder of their lives. The result of his earnest appeal was that he administered the pledge to nineteen persons, five of whom are still with us. These immediately organized themselves into what is now known as St. Mary's T. A. B. Society of Plainfield.

The beneficial feature of this society was the subject of much consideration; but, recognizing the fact that proper care for the sick, relieving distress, and burial of the deceased members, would be an incentive for our people to become members, it was unanimously decided to place that plank in the declaration of principles.

Facts and figures which we here present go to show that their action proved a wise one. Many other wise features were added to their constitution from time to time. The story of what we have accomplished during these nineteen years of activity, is one filled with many recollections of bygone days, the recalling of many pleasant scenes, and the sad parting with members whose memory we still cherish.

We have many thanks to offer for the encouragement always given by the parishioners. When the society was young, and financial aid was necessary to carry on the movement which had been inaugurated, they came forward with a liberal hand. The same can be said of our Protestant brethren who were interested in this cause. During the first year of its existence this society raised by subscription and other means one thousand dollars. Out of this fund we purchased one American flag, one Irish flag, and one banner on which is inscribed our motto, "St. Mary's Temperance Society: We visit our sick and bury our dead". These flags still remain with us, bidding us fight for the cause of temperance, home and country. It is the custom that after a war is over the flags are laid away in some venerated place. It is significant that our war is not over, that our flags are still floating at the head of the army and always surrounded by a group of the bravest. The growth of this society has fluctuated; during the first year 110 members enrolled. Since that time the number has dropped to 60, and thereabouts, at one time going down to as low as seven members, when renewed vigor inspired those remaining to action and soon rebuilt the organization. The average membership, however, during the whole time, has been 55. Up to October, 1875, the drinking of cider had made inroads upon the roll. At this time the rule was adopted punishing each member for that habit the same as for other intoxicating liquors. In October, 1875, a committee was appointed by the society to form a cadet society to instill the principles of total abstinence into the rising generation. The following were appointed: John Harding, Chas. Winston, S. M. Thompson. The result of their labor in this direction was that a society was formed with a large membership, and their meetings were under the direction of some member of this society. Many of these have been transferred from this into the older organization.

It has been the custom for the society to assist in all the ceremonies connected with building of churches on invitation from the pastor. During the life of this organization we have assisted at the laying of corner-stones for three churches in this neighborhood, namely: St. Mary's, of Plainfield, St. John's, of Dunellen, and St. Joseph's, of North Plainfield.

In discharging works of charity we received appeal for assistance from places which have been visited by dire calamities:—the yellow-fever sufferers at Savanah, and at Charleston, the Irish famine, and the recent floods at Johnstown, are among the notable instances on each occasion this society responded liberally.—In October, 1878, a mission was held in St. Mary's church, where a great interest in the work of temperance was manifested by the good fathers. And in the subsequent meeting the reverend chaplain stated that a mass would be offered up once a month for the temperance society; this pious practice was carried on for a long time. At the July meeting in 1879 Father Morris spoke about the fair and the contest for an Irish flag; the contest was to take place between the T. A. B. Society and Division No. 4, A. O. H. The contest was a great struggle, and here again we have to thank our parishioners and our Protestant brethren, for the generous manner in which they came to our assistance to enable us to win the flag. We take occasion here to say that along with our own work we have ever been an ardent supperter of the church. With regard to contributing both financial and and other aid, every movement taken by the pastor to make improvements, and to reduce the debt, the society always did her duty.

During the nineteen years of our existence we have expended for sick benefits to our members the sum of $8,250; and in the same period five members have by death been beneficiaries to the amount of $500; making a grand total of sick and death benefits of $8,750.

Another financial feature has been the purchase of this hall, known as T. A. B. Association Hall, and improvement thereto.

The policy of the society has always been one of unremitting enthusiasm in the cause of temperance; avoiding all movements that would complicate the work, it has always sought the most prudent and effective way of dealing with the common foe. We are in hopes that our membership will increase, that the work will be reinforced by the young men of the parish.

In closing we quote the good advice given by Bishop Keane of Richmond:

Oh, my friends, have nothing to do with drink. Do n't try to take a little of it. Do n't temporize and experiment. Total abstinence alone can do the work. Do you want to do good? Then join the temperance society and do good to your fellowman. The Third Plenary Council of Baltimore declares its approval of the temperance movement, which has the blessing of God's priests and bishops and of the Holy Father Himself.

Mr. Welsh then introduced Father Smyth, who expressed his appreciation of the great work that had been done, and referred to the movement and the evident longevity of its members, only five having died during the entire term. He impressed on the members that their efforts should be towards getting members and building up the society. At the conclusion of his remarks he administered the pledge which is taken annually by all the members.

Father McKernan then spoke, giving interesting reminiscences of his life and his connection with other temperance and total abstinence societies, and showed the difference between the two. His speech was interspersed with humorous sayings, and he congratulated the society on their magnificent showing. He was followed by Peter Flynn, Sr., M. B. Flynn and A. E. Kenney, who gave short sketches of their connection with the organization. After the speeches a luncheon was served by the committee, Father Smyth, Father McKernan and Peter Flynn, Sr., remaining seated on the stage and partaking of the viands from a table over which had been draped an American flag. The spectacle was pleasant and patriotic, and the trio were roundly applauded. After the other exercises the younger people remained and enjoyed themselves by dancing and other amusements. The entire affair was of a very felicitous nature.

Death of Alfred Bedlow.

Alfred Bedlow, for many years a resident of this city, where he occupied a home with his wife and three children, at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, died in New York city, Saturday morning, from a cancerous affection of the throat, at the age of sixty-seven years. He was born in that city, and was a descendant of two well-known families, the Bedlows, who owned what is now called Liberty Island, and the Rutgers families. His brother, Henry Bedlow, ex-Mayor of Newport, R. I., is the only surviving nephew of Colonel Henry Rutgers.

Besides his wife, who is now on her way North, he leaves a son, Alfred, and two daughters, one of whom is married to Howard P. Frothingham, of the New York Stock Exchange. The other daughter is the wife of Leander W. Townsend, of Aiken, S. C. Alfred Bedlow was wealthy, and never engaged in business. He was at one time an extensive traveler.

CLAIRVOYANT!

Mrs. Dr. EDWARDS,

Being in such great demand in Plainfield, she has consented to remain until next

Wednesday Morning, May 27,

As a favor to her many kind patrons. She will then leave for Easton, positively never to return, to this city for business again, as she is compelled to go to Europe in August for a few months.

Mrs. DR. EDWARDS,

Known in this country from Maine to Mexico, she was born with the wonderful gift of second sight, and with a veil. She is the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter. She reveals every mystery; tells you if the one you love is true or false. She removes every evil, settles lovers' troubles, and causes speedy love marriages. She gives reliable information to gentlemen in all business transactions, and informs them how to make profitable investments and acquire speedy riches. She tells lucky lottery numbers. She has an ORRIS EGYPTIAN TALISMAN, which is noted all the world over, as a specific charm for the unlucky. All who are in trouble or sick, should call without delay.

PLAINFIELD'S FAMOUS HYMN WRITER.

The Rev Dr. Lowry, and the Sacred Songs He Has Composed.

In connection with an excellent likeness of the popular preacher and song writer, The Musical Messenger, of Cincinnati, Ohio, publishes, over the initials of J. H. F., the following interesting biographical sketch of that well-known Plainfielder, the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D.:

The name of the Rev. Robert Lowry is associated with some of the happiest hours of my life. The mention of his name brings up emotions of affection and pleasure. I saw him never but once, and that was through a pair of opera glasses across the Cincinnati Music Hall during one of our May musical festivals. It was years ago when he was in attendance at the festival, the guest of Dr. Doane.

The happy times I refer to especially were when I was about sixteen, and my passion for music was so intense, that, as they used to say, "I would rather sing than eat". It was at this time that the usual three religious services of Sunday, with their music, was not enough to gratify my appetite [there were about a dozen of us who shared this hungering], and we used to meet at the church Sunday afternoons, when we would sing to our hearts' content.

Those were glorious times! Since then I have listened to and have taken part in grand music, but I don't believe my delight has ever quite arisen to the ecstacy of those times.

It was at this time that we sang Dr. Lowry's music. I remember distinctly that his name as author attracted our attention, and he became our favorite. We sang everything he wrote. I used to think that a man who could conceive of and write such beautiful music was almost too divine for this earth. Those were days of youth, enthusiasm, and large imagination, and while twenty-five years with their sobering experiences have rolled by, during all that time I have been a devotee to the doctor's music; and while singing with satisfaction the songs of many others, have never been weaned away from my first love. The doctor has kept pace with the times, and his new issues grew better and better, till to-day he stands second to none as a sacred song writer.

All that I said in last issue concerning Dr. Doane's music is equally true of Dr. Lowry's. Their associated work has been a marvelous success.

Robert Lowry was born in Philadelphia, March 12, 1826. His fondness for music was exhibited in his earliest years. As a child he amused himself with the various musical instruments that came into his hands.

At the age of seventeen he joined the First Baptist church of Philadelphia, and soon became a very active worker in the Sunday-school as teacher and chorister. At the age of twenty-two, he gave himself to the work of the ministry, and entered upon a course of study at the University of Lewisburg, Pa. At the age of twenty-eight he was graduated with the highest honors of his class.

In the same year of his graduation, he entered on the work of his ministry. He served as pastor, at West Chester, Pa., 1854-58; in New York city, 1858-61; in Brooklyn, 1861-69; in Lewisburg, 1869-75. In 1876 he became pastor of the Park Avenue church, Plainfield, N. J. In each of these fields his work has been crowned with marked success. Under him new church edifices were erected at most of these places. While pastor at Lewisburg, Pa., he was also professor of belles lettres in the university there. From this university he received the honorary degree of D. D. in 1875.

In the year 1880 he took a rest of four years, visiting Europe. In 1885 he felt that he needed more rest, and resigned his pastorate at Plainfield, and visited in the south and West, also spending some time in Mexico. He returned much improved in health, and has since resided at Plainfield.

On the death of Wm. B. Bradbury, Messrs. Biglow & Main, his successors in the publishing business, selected Dr. Lowry for editor of their Sunday-school book, "Bright Jewels", which was a great success. Subsequently Dr. W. H. Doane was associated with him in the issue of the Sunday-school song books: "Pure Gold", "Royal Diadem", "Brightest and Best", "Welcome Tidings", "Good as Gold", etc. These books took the lead in their line, and probably did more to stimulate the cause of sacred song in this country than any other influence.

The doctor had issued a number of successful books before this time, and has in the meantime issued a number from his own hand that are fully up to his high standard of good judgment and taste.

When he saw that the obligations of musical editorship were laid upon him, he began the study of music in earnest, and sought the best musical text-books and works on the highest form of musical composition. He now possesses one of the finest musical libraries in the country. It abounds in works on the philosophy and science of musical sounds. Some time ago he found at Scribner's several old works on music, one of them being 150 years old, which he purchased at a good round price.

One of his labors of love some years ago was an attempt to reduce music to a mathematical basis. On the established fact that middle c has 256 vibrations per second, he prepared a scale and went to work on the rule of three. After infinite calculation and repeated experiments, he carried it far enough to discover that it would not work.

A reporter once asked him what was his method of composition—"do you write the words to fit the music, or the music to fit the words?" His reply was: "I have no method. Sometimes the music comes and the words follow, fitted insensibly to the melody. I watch my moods, and when anything good strikes me I jot it down, whether words or music, and no matter where I am, at home or on the street. Often the margin of a newspaper or the back of an envelope serves as a note-book. My brain is a sort of spinning machine, I think, for there is music running through it all the time. I do not pick out my music on the keys of an instrument. The tunes of nearly all the hymns I have written have been completed on paper before I tried them on the organ. Frequently the words of the hymn and the music have been written at the same time."

The doctor's favorite of all the pieces he has written is, "Weeping Will Not Save Me". He regards it as being the most evangelical hymn he ever wrote. Some of his best known pieces are: "Shall We Gather at the River", "One More Day's Work for Jesus", "Where is My Boy To-night?", "I Need Thee Every Hour", "The Mistakes of My Life", "How Can I Keep from Singing?", "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me", "Saviour, Thy Dying Love", and "We're Marching to Zion".

"Shall We Gather at the River?" is perhaps without question the most widely popular of all his songs. Of this Mr. Lowry says: "It is brass-band music, has a march movement, and for that reason has become popular, though for myself I do not think much of it." Yet he tells how on several occasions he has been deeply moved by the singing of that hymn:

"Going from Harrisburg to Lewisburg once, I got into a car filled with half-drunken lumbermen. Suddenly one of them struck up, 'Shall We Gather at the River?' and they sang it over and over again, repeating the chorus in a wild, boisterous way. I did not think so much of the music then as I listened to those singers, but I did think that perhaps the spirit of the hymn, the words so flippantly uttered, might somehow survive and be carried forward into the lives of those careless men, and ultimately lift them upward to the realization of the hope expressed in my hymn.

"A different appreciation of it was that evinced during the Robert Raikes Centennial. I was in London, and had gone to a meeting in the Old Bailey to see some of the most famous Sunday-school workers in the world. They were present from Europe, Asia, and America. I sat in a rear seat alone. After there had been a number of addresses delivered in various languages, I was preparing to leave, when the chairman of the meeting announced that the author of 'Shall We Gather at the River?' was present, and I was requested by name to come forward. Men applauded and women waved their handkerchiefs as I went to the platform. It was a tribute to the hymn; but I felt, after it was over, that, after all, I had perhaps done some little good in the world, and I felt more than ever content to die when God called."

On "Children's Day" in Brooklyn, in 1865, this song was sung by over 40,000 voices.

While the doctor has said, "I would rather preach a gospel sermon to an appreciative, receptive congregation, than write a hymn", yet, in spite of his preferences, his hymns have gone on and on in many languages, preaching and comforting thousands upon thousands of souls, furnishing them expression for their deepest feelings of praise and gratitude to God for his goodness to the children of men. What he has thought in his inmost soul has become a part of the emotions of the whole Christian world. We are all his debtors.

JAMES McGEE'S EULOGY.

One Good Man Tells of Another's Virtues.

The memory of Charles Pratt was honored Sunday by services in Emmanuel Baptist church, Brooklyn. He had contributed much to this church, which stands in Lafayette avenue and St. James place, diagonally opposite the Adelphi Academy, to which also he had been a liberal contributor. A few blocks away is the Pratt Institute, founded and endowed entirely by him. The church was filled.

On the platform were the Rev. Dr. Cuthbert H. Hall, the Rev. Dr. D. C. Eddy, the Rev. Dr. Edward Braislin, the Rev. Dr. A. S. Hunt, the Rev. Dr. Thomas B. McLeod, the Rev. Dr. C. R. Baker, the Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, the Rev. Dr. John Humpstone, the pastor of the church, James McGee and James McAlister. After a prayer by Dr. Hunt the congregation sang: "It is not death to die * * * To be at home with God."

James McGee of this city made the first address on "The Man of Business". He said Mr. Pratt's business career might serve as an object lesson to all who were struggling to make a living. They might learn that Mr. Pratt was never so happy as when busy. His line of work did not make him a scrooge or a master. His cheerfulness and good nature mellowed and made beautiful his love of work. Everything that bore his name was guaranteed. The stamp of "Pratt" was as good as the money. He projected magnificent enterprises for the upliftting of men. Business brought to him a big field of experiences. Whether he was traveling, reading, or enjoying social intercourse, he had in mind the furthering of his business, or, rather, the employment of his talent. Business was the platform by which he lifted others up. It was the monitor of his stewardship. He worked faithfully, planned broadly, and executed truly.

WESTFIELD WINS HER FIRST.

And Makes the Biggest Score Yet, in the Whist Tournament.

The whist team of the Westfield Athletic Club won its first victory in the Central New Jersey tournament, last night, in a game against the Fanwoods. The score was: Westfield, 324; Fanwood, 252. By this game Westfield jumps from 241⅞ to 253 3-7 in the average number of points per game, and Fanwood drops again to second place, falling from 274 4-5 to 271.

The record to date, as amended by last night's game, is now as follows:

	Games Played	Total Points Scored	Average
Crescent League	7	1912	273 1-7
Fanwood Club	6	1626	271
N. J. A. C., Bergen Point	6	1605	267 1-2
Elizabeth Ath. Club	6	1536	256
Westfield Ath. Club	7	1774	253 3-7

	Games Played	Games Won	Games Lost	Percent
Plainfield	7	5	2	.714
Elizabeth	6	4	2	.666
Bergen Point	6	3	3	.500
Fanwood	6	3	3	.500
Westfield	7	1	6	.143

	Plainfield.	Elizabeth.	Bergen Point.	Fanwood.	Westfield.	Games won.
Plainfield	—	2	1	1	1	5

Bergen Point	2	1	—	1	1	5
Fanwood	1	1	2	—	1	3
Westfield	1	1	2	1	—	1
Games lost	2	2	3	3	6

Plainfield and Westfield have only one more game apiece to play. The other teams have each two. The Crescents have still the biggest show of winning.

To Make New Jersey a Banner Sheep State.

The last annual fair of the Somerset County Agricultural Society was such a pronounced success that the directors are launching out in bolder enterprises. The grand stand is to be enlarged to twice its past capacity. Several new exhibition buildings will be erected especially for the display of sheep and poultry. The directors believe that the climate of central New Jersey is particularly adapted to develop and improve the blooded strains of fine wool-producing sheep. To encourage this industry and make Somerset county the banner wool-producing section east of Ohio every inducement will be offered to farmers to experiment. Very valuable prizes are to be offered in this special department. In all $10,000 is to be expended in improvements.

Don't be afraid, it won't hurt you! Root Beer made from Knapp's Root Beer Extract cheers but not inebriates.

Renewing the Battle.
